CHICAG, Jan. 31.—(AP)—E. H. Sackett, 50, Kansas City mining engineer, ran amuck this afternoon, shot his way out of a hospital where he had been taken for examination, entered a taxicab in which were his wife, the driver and the driver's twelve year old son, and compelled the driver to speed away. Police pursued the cab, but it was lost in traffic.

No one was hurt by the bullets fired by Sacket in the hospital, but a policeman, who tried to prevent his flight, is believed to have wounded Sacket in the hand.

Sacket, according to his wife's sister, has had periodic spells of insanity for the past ten years.

He came to Chicago last week, and his wife arrived this morning to take him home.

When he appeared at the home of his sister-in-law here this morning, he acted queerly and his wife and a neighbor took him to the Berwyn hospital for examination.

When Sacket realized where he was he drew a revolver and started firing. Then he rushed from the building to the cab in which his wife was waiting, together with the driver and the driver's small son, and made his escape. Special calls have been sent to all police stations to apprehend him, as it is feared he may harm those with him.

COOLIDGE MAKES PLEA FOR ECONOMY AND EFFICIENCY

WASHINGTON, Jan. 30—(AP)—Suggesting the possibility of still another tax reduction "within a few years," President Coolidge last night renewed his plea to government executives for economy and efficiency under a general program of "constructive economy."

Mr. Coolidge observed that too much economy might not be beneficial; he chose rather to "make every dollar count" and to obtain the maximum of results with moneys in hand. The economy policy has done more than reduce the cost of government, the president said, for he saw in it an example to the world in administrative effort.

Speaking at the semi-annual budget meeting of department and bureau heads, the chief executive reviewed accomplishments of the period since the first meeting of the "business organization" of the government in June 1921, and declared that the things done in perfecting efficiency had been "tremendous in results and of overwhelming significance in implications." He suggested, however, that the part played by this government in its own household and in world affairs would not be complete unless it was "reinforced" by adhesion to the world court.

Flynn, state adjutant of the Legion, for such travelling as his plans might call for. The plane has an enclosed cabin and is heated so that the passengers may fly in ordinary street clothes.

FIVE PERSONS WERE FOUND DEAD OF GAS POISONING

In the Living Room of Their Home at Belmont, Mass.—Were Overcome by Fumes From a Leaky Gas Log—In Boston a Widowed Mother and Her Two Children Were Suffocated as They Slept When Fire Broke Out in Their Home.

BELMONT, Mass., Jan. 31—Five persons were found dead of gas poisoning in the living room of their home in the Waverley district here late today. The police believed that they were overcome by fumes from a leaky gas log. Two children were taken to the Cambridge hospital, overcome, but alive.

The dead are: Mr. and Mrs. Daniel A. Holland, Holland's brother William, and his wife, and Mrs. Daniel Holland's father, George Dwelley. Relatives who came for a Sunday afternoon call found them sprawled about the living room, the police said.

Charles, 6, and Gladys, 4, children of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Holland, were found unconscious in another room.

They were rushed to the Cambridge hospital and were still in a coma several hours after their arrival there. Physicians noted slight improvement after hospital treatment, but said that their conditions was extremely grave.

MOTHER AND HER TWO CHILDREN SUFFOCATED

BOSTON, Jan. 31—(AP)—A widowed mother and her two children were suffocated when fire broke out as they slept in their home in the Hyde Park district here today. Mrs. Mary Chase, 45, her 21 year old daughter, Helen, and son, William, 19, perished. The firemen who found the bodies said it was evident the William had been aroused before being overcome and had attempted to rescue his mother and sister.

His body was found at his mother's bedside and he had apparently lifted her part way from her bed when the smoke overcame him and he collapsed on the floor.

The fire started in an ash barrel in the cellar and gained considerable headway before being discovered. Firemen stopped the flames on the second floor, but only members of the rescue squad with gas masks could penetrate the smoke on the top floor where Mrs. Chase and her children were found.

The tragedy practically wiped out the family, as only one other daughter, Mrs. Evelyn Kalen, who lives nearby survives.

MAN WAS SHOT DEAD WHILE RESISTING BANDITS

A dozen patrons were seated in the restaurant when the two robbers, carrying revolvers in each hand, entered. Ignoring the cashier who hastily concealed the night's receipts under a counter, they forced the diners into a rear room and started a search of pockets and handbags.

Mullaney, ordered to empty his pockets, grappled with one of the bandits and in the struggle was shot through the breast. He died a few minutes later. The pair quickly abandoned their holdup attempt and fled but paused at the door long enough to empty their guns into the rear rail.

STRIKING MINERS BEING CARED FOR Y CHARITY

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 31—(AP)—Tomorrow marks the opening of the sixth month of the hard coal suspension which it is now assured, will break all records for length of anthracite general strikes. It will surpass in length the general strike of 1902 and 1922, each of which lasted nearly five and a half months.

The five months of idleness just closed have cost the mine workers $142,450,000 in wages, based on available average figures of total wages paid. Coal production has been curtailed by 21,980,000 tons. What the operators have lost in profits by this enormous production in tonnage can be shown only by the books of the coal companies.

There also must be added to the operators' loss the wages of maintenance men and other expenses in connection with the upkeep of the mines which the coal companies estimate at 3 per ton of production in normal times. Of these losses must be added those in gross revenue of the railroads, estimated at $90,00,000.

While 158,000 men and boys are actually on strike, the key men in the struggle are the 46,00 men who hold certificates as miners so long as these men, who cut or blast the coal, remain out, no coal can be produced. This keeps idle the remaining 113,000 workers needed in the preparation of coal for market.

Thousands of the younger men have left the coal regions to work in other places until the strike ends and many will never return to their old vocations. Other men are being maintained by sons or daughters employed in silk mills, shirt factories and in other industries with which the coal regions are dotted.

BROADCASTING TESTS WERE DISAPPOINTING

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—(AP)—The third international broadcasting tests which ended last night here, according to reports received from all parts of the United States and from abroad, the least successful of the three tests held so far, Arthur L. Lynch, editor of radio broadcast and a member of the committee in charge, said tonight.

Mr. Lynch attributed the poor results to atmospheric conditions which, he said, were during the entire week. "The worst for this time of year I have known in my 16 years' radio experience."

Last night's results were particularly disappointing, Mr. Lynch said. At his listening post at Rockville Center, Long Island, he said, he "couldn't tune in anything." During his week's vigil, he said, he could not definitely pin down one European station, though like hundreds of other listeners, he heard snatches of foreign programs.

MAYNARD, STATE CHAMP IS MAKING A NEW FIDDLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 31—Eugene Maynard, of Lebanon, winner of the state old-time fiddling title at the Hartford contest has signed up to make his first public appearance at the Capitol theatre here. The champion fiddler will bring along his team of old-fashioned dancers.

A blacksmith by trade Mr. Maynard was found working at his occupation when called upon Saturday. He was rather backward about talking of his prowess on the violin but ventured to say that his father was a fiddler of considerable reputation. He said that he had played for country dances since he was fifteen years of age and that he was born in Franklin 55 years ago. His fiddlest praises were not for himself, but for the fiddle which was built in 1727 and which he used to the contest in Hartford. He also brought out a finely toned banjo which his father had made. As age crept on he "kinda gave up fiddling," and until he got stirred up for the contest he had not touched a fiddle for over one year. He knows nothing of notes as they appear on the musical sheet, all his playing being done by ear. Turkey in the Straw is his favorite. Mr. Maynard has a hobby which is probably even stronger than fiddling—that is horses. He knows horses "like a preacher knows the Bible" and he has owned some fine steppers. He is the owner of Peter Bates, one of the best bred horses in the state.

Mr. Maynard invited his visitors to his house where he displayed sections of a fiddle which he is making by hand. He has taken the wood for the neck from the post of a bed which is over two hundred years old and he is working with a complete set of tools for instrument making, handed down to him by his father. The champion state fiddler came to Lebanon in 1876 and remained there. Everybody knows him as "Jerry" and since he defeated 28 contestants in the fiddling contest he is "Jerry the Fiddler." This week his fellow townspeople will display their appreciation of his ability and tender him a reception in the Lebanon town hall.

HELD ON CHARGE OF RECKLESS DRIVING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 31—Eugene Chabot, of New Britain, was injured and the driver of a Ford sedan, Vernon Arnold, of the same city, formerly of Willimantic, was arrested for reckless driving, as the result of a collision of the Ford with a Buick public service car owned and operated by James Brown, of this city, on Main street Saturday night at 9 o'clock. Brown was pulling away from the curbing in front of the Capitol theatre when the new Britain machine, traveling east on Main street, jammed into the rear and side of the local car. Both machines suffered considerable damage, the front of the Ford being badly wrecked. Chabot was riding on the front seat with Arnold. The blow threw him forward and part of his body crashed through the windshield. He sustained a severe cut on the head and was taken to St. Joseph's hospital by Officer Arthur M. Hurley. Three stitches were required to close the wound. Arnold was notified to appear in police court Monday morning on a charge of reckless driving.

The carnival and charity bazaar held at the town hall for three nights under the auspices of the Woman's auxiliary to St. Joseph's hospital, came to a close Saturday night with a fine entertainment and the awarding of the prizes. The first number on the program was a Tap Dance by six pupils under the direction of Mrs. Eileen Racicot. Songs were rendered by Michael J. Farrell and Arthur Roy. Mrs Farrell also favored with a whistling number, displaying much proficiency in this art. Miss Eleanor Connor favored with an exhibition of the ballroom Charleston and as a concluding number Ovide Bachand gave a Tango exhibition. Other than the various youthful artists who appeared during the entertainments among some of the most appreciated numbers were baritone solos by William Chartier and old time fiddling by Eugene Cote of this city. Mr. Chartier, who has just entered his twenties, has inherited much vocal ability from his father, Oliver Chartier. After hearing him on his first public appearance at the carnival his friends feel that with the proper culture he would soon gain renown as an accomplished artist.

Mrs. Johanna Fenton, widow of John Fenton, one of Willimantic's oldest residents of Irish descent, died at 164 Jackson street early Sunday morning following a long illness. She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. L. R. Vail, of Bristol and Miss Mary Fenton, of this city; also two grandchildren, Dorothy E. Vail and John Vail of Bristol. The deceased was born in Ireland, the daughter of Michael and Johanna Sullivan Shea.

The theft of over $400 from a box which was in a roll-top desk in the home of a Hebron resident, sometime between 7:30 and 11:00 o'clock Friday night, is being thoroughly investigated by State Policeman Harrison H Ilburt of the Stafford Springs barracks and Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink of Andover. The officers are withholding the name of the Hebron resident and would say nothing about the case further than that the investigation was progressing. It is indicated that some one familiar with the premises committed the theft. The members of the family were attending an entertainment at the Hebron town hall when the intruder broke open the rear door of the house, secured a hatchet and pried open the top of the desk. The thief overlooked a roll of $700 in bills, which were in a pigeon hole in the desk and also left several checks untouched. A collie dog which had been in the yard of the house when the family left was in the kitchen upon their return, but it was said that the animal would have resented the approach of a stranger.

While conducting their investigation of the housebreaking of a Hebron home Saturday evening State Policeman Hulburt and Deputy Sheriff Frink met and arrested Tony Karas, of Amston, for a series of violations of the automobile law. Karas came bounding over the road toward the officers in a derelict Ford which would have graced any museum of antiques. The machine was minus headlights, the headlights and tail lights having been lost some time ago. There were no brakes and the only indication of registration was a 1924 number plate which dangled from the rear. Karas was taken before Justice of the Peace Carleton B. James of the Hebron town court. He pleaded guilty to failure to have a registration, brakes, and lights for his machine. A fine of $5 and costs, amounting to $17, was imposed. Grand Juror Frank E. Clark prosecuted.

Funeral services for Jennie Midura were held at the late home, 260 South street with Rev. Paul Bartlewski officiating. A committal was read at the grave in St. Joseph's cemetery at 10 o'clock.

It was announced Saturday that Willimantic's share of the fifteen million dollar United Jewish campaign is $2,000.

A man who said that he was Adelard St. Onge pleaded guilty to a charge of intoxication in the police court Saturday morning and was fined $5 and costs, amounting to $13.15 which he paid. St. Onge said that he came from Springfield, Mass., but that he originally resided in Willimantic.

WESTERLY

UPPER STORY OF HOUSE IS GUTTED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Jan. 31—Many factors contributed Sunday morning in making the fire at the residence of John H. Murphy, 17 Narragansett avenue, assume greater proportions than usually follow from a roof fire. Although the fire occurred but two doors distant from the residence of Westerly Fire Chief George E. Eager, before the flames were extinguished, the roof of the large two-family wooden house had been burned almost entirely off and the rooms and contents were deluged by the quantity of water poured on. The P. S. Barber Hose company of Pawcatuck, was also summoned and their firefighters assisted the Westerly department. The damage done by fire and water will amount to several thousand dollars.

The fire alarm was sounded from the bell signal in the fire station for Box No. 15, Narragansett and Newton avenue, about 7:36 o'clock on Sunday morning, but the response of the apparatus and firemen was slow, in fact, one observer stated that it as twelve minutes by his watch after the first bell had sounded before the apparatus left Union street and when the Cyclones pumper, Hook and Ladder truck and Rhode Island Ones hose wagon all went at the same time. Arriving at the scene the firemen were handicapped by low pressure, and this was not helped by the location of the hydrant. The nearest hydrant on Narragansett avenue was near the junction of Jay street and this was many hundred feet distant from the house, the roof of which at the time was a mass of flames. On Spruce street, the nearest hydrant was almost equally distant.

The slow response of the firemen and fire police may be accounted for, in a measure by the number of alarms sent in recently from that vicinity for brush fires and also from the fact that the entire fire department responded the previous Friday night at a quarter of twelve, to a false alarm, turned in from Box No. 68, corner of Oak and Tower streets, the only indication of an alarm being the open box door which met the firemen's gaze. Westerly Fire Chief Eager, while investigating, has a well-formed idea as to the guilty parties of whom he will make an example. Sunday morning's alarm, owing to the prevailing northeast wind, was not generally heard in the business or even northern sections of the town.

It is supposed that the fire at the Murphy residence on Sunday morning was caused by a spark from the chimney landing on the roof. A neighbor reported that on looking at Sunday morning clouds of smoke were seen blowing into the street, but he gave it no further consideration than the thought that the cloud as caused by smoke from a chimney when either soft coal or wood as being burned in quantity. In this manner considerable headway as gained before the flames were seen shooting from the roof. The three alarms which were directed on the blazing house brought the flames under control and prevented them from eating their way downward.

The occupants of the house were asleep at the time, the family of John H. Murphy occupying the upstairs apartment, and Donald Dow and family the lower one. After the roof had fallen and the fire was under control, a line of hose was carried up the front inside stairway and the work of completely extinguishing the flames was continued wen the firemen attacked the blazing part which remained, with axe and buckets of water. The damage generally is reported as covered by insurance.

The services of the Westerly fire department were again called for on Sunday afternoon about 12:30 o'clock when in response to a telephone call the R. I. Ones truck went to the residence of Mrs. Flora C. Mooney, 57 School street. Investigation by the firemen revealed the fact when paper was placed in the heater the flames ignited the soot, and the resultant blaze alarmed the occupants. No damage was done.

Robert Brucker camp, No. 6, United Spanish War Veterans, recently installed officers in Vets hall, Walton block. They were: Commander, Michael O'Connell; senior vice commander, Irving O. Kelly; junior vice commander, James Walsh; adjutant, Harry T. Powers; quartermaster, Henry W. Sutcliffe; chaplin, Daniel S. Harrington, trustee, Thomas F. Lenihan. Installation ceremonies were conducted by Past Commander Shelby C. Nicholas and Master of Ceremonies James F. Spellman, the retiring camp adjutant.

Town Clerk Everett E. Whipple has announced that he will have the Westerly town clerk's office in the Westerly town hall on Broad street, open for business continuously on sek days from 9 a. m., to 4 p. m., and on Saturdays from 9 a. m., to 12 noon. Town Clerk Whipple states that he does this on his own volition and by reason of the increasing business which is carried on by the Westerly town clerk's office. This will be of material assistance to the many out of town residents who have business in the town clerk's office and who otherwise might require an additional day to complete their work. Heretofore the town clerk's office has been closed from 12 to 1 o'clock or during the noon hour.

Westerly Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown received a warning on Saturday morning from the Connecticut state police barracks, in Groton, to be on the lookout for an automobile, Ford one-ton truck, 28561 Conn., stolen from a Trading Cove garage. It was thought that the operators might be connected with the attempted robbery of the Bean Hill factory near Norwich. Chief Brown communicated with Chief Lipton, of Norwich police department, and learned the details of the gagging and binding of the night watchman. Westerly police authorities, being warned are on the lookout for suspicious characters.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appears the following transfer: Jan. 30., Antonio M. Reale, to Joseph R. Reale, a certain lot or parcel of land on west side of extension of Highland avenue.

Workmen in the employ of the Westerly water works department were engaged until a late hour Friday night in making repairs to a broken hydrant on Spring street, which had been broken by an automobile. Water had to be shut off for a considerable section in the immediate vicinity to permit repairs to be made. A stone getting under the valve of one of the hydrants used at the Murphy fire on Sunday morning made it necessary for the department to shut off the water in that vicinity to enable the trouble to be remedied.

POETRY FOR THE WIDE AWAKES.

The Flag.

Here comes the Flag!
Hail it!
Who dare to drag
Or trail it?
Give it hurrahs—
Three for the stars,
Three for the bars.

Uncover your head to it!
The soldiers who tread to it,
Shout at the sight of it.
The justice and rights of it,
The unsullied white of it,
The blue and red of it,
And tyranny's dread of it!

Here comes the Flag!
Cheer it!
Valley and crag
Shall hear it,
Fathers shall bless it,
Children caress it,
All shall maintain it,
No one shall stain it.

Cheers for the sailors that fought on the wave for it,
Cheers for the soldiers that also were brave for it,
Tears for the men who went down to the grave for it!
Here comes the Flag!

—Arthur Macy.

Concord Hymn.

By the rude bridge that arched the flood,
Their flag to April's breeze unfurled,
Here once the embattled farmers stood,
And fired the shot heard round the world.

The foe long since in silence slept;
Alike the conqueror's silent sleeps;
And Time the ruined bridge has swept
Down the dark stream which seaward creeps.

On the green bank, by this soft stream,
We set today a votive stone;
That memory may their deed redeem,
When like our sires, our sons are gone.

Spirit, that made those heroes dare
To die, and leave their children free
Bid Time and Nature gently spare
The shaft we raise to them and thee.

—Ralph Waldo Emerson.

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE AWAKES.

Boys and girls should learn to do things for themselves instead of wanting them done by others. The boys and girls who are industrious and who make a point of doing things themselves instead of continually calling for help are always well spoken of and are in demand. It is while we are young that our character forms and on our actions and habits in youth depends the course we will follow in later life. If we don't do things ourselves how can we learn to do things at all?

We learn a great many things by doing those things ourselves. For instance, we learn how to write by using a pencil or pen and practising first the formation of the letters of the alphabet and then the process of putting the letters together on paper. If we had others to do all our writing and never practised writing ourselves we would never be able to write anything. And so it is through life. We must do things ourselves and not depend on others to do them for us.

Do not get the idea that life is all play and pleasure for if you do you are simply wasting your time and getting no where. Play and pleasure are but a part of life. It is true that recreation for young and old is important, but along with it must go work, and often times hard work.

People who neglect their opportunities to become successful in life, generally have the idea that others who become successful had a better chance than they did. The truth of the matter is that the unsuccessful man did not take advantage of the opportunities that came his way while the successful man did. Those who make their own way succeed while those who expect a way to be made for them usually fail.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY THE WIDEAWAKES

Men of Tomorrow

Dear Uncle Jed: I would like to tell my young Wide Awakes what Dan Beard says. The name of the story is, "The Men of Tomorrow." Dan Beard is national commissioner of boy scouts, and he wants us boys to form and be better citizens of the United States. This is what he says:

You boys of today are to be the men of tomorrow. If you are preparing you how to do things will be men of yesterday and when that time comes the boys of today will occupy the governors chairs, in all the union. Every policeman, every lawyer, every judge, every alderman, every mayor, every congressman, every senator, every president must give up his place to one of you. And if you are good boys today, we shall have a finer set of men tomorrow than we had yesterday.

We want more George Washingtons, more Abraham Lincolns, more Thomas Jeffersons, more William Penns, more John Sigelows, more Mark Twains, more Wilbur Wrights more Thomas Edisons and we must find them among you fellows.

You have seen a lot in the paper about conservation of our resources. The most valuable resources we have are the boys of America. Every boy who goes astray and becomes a misfit is a great loss to his country. Every honorable, brave, efficient boy is a tremendous asset.

So I hope that you boys will follow my example and soon you will be honorable.

A New Game

Dear Uncle Jed: I want to tell you about the whispering story. There was once a school in New Britain. The master's name was Mr. Johnson. When ever his back was turned he was sure that the children would whisper. The said girls and boys, "Stop whispering." But still they would whisper more and more. Mr. Johnson thought of a new game. He said, "Boys and girls I have thought of a new game. The first one that talks will have to stand in front of the room and if he sees any one talk he will tell me and the other will have to take his place." First Tommy Jones whispered to Billy Brown and asked for a pencil The master said, "Tommy Jones, come here and stand in front of the room" Two minutes after "Billy," said Mary Green, "let me see your book." "Tommy," said Mr. Johnson "Mary Green whispered." "Go and stand in front of Mary Green." The rest of the children looked at the clock and it was almost time to be dismissed. The children did not talk for they knew if they were standing in front when school was dismissed they would have to stay after school. All at once the bell rang and they were dismissed. But still Mary Green did not say a word. Mr. Johnson said, Mary you may go home.

A Young Poet

Dear Uncle Jed: Thought I would try my luck at a little composing, now please don't laugh at it, for I'm only a little boy and never will be a poet. Well here goes for Uncle Jed:

U is for universal;
N for needful things we learn,
C for conscientious thinking,
L for learning us how to earn;
E for enmity let's have none of it;
J for jollity let's have loads of it.
E for everybody and the one at the head;
D for darling old Uncle Jed.

Put it together and it will spell the name of the man we love so well. Not much I'm sure but it is all—for our page and Uncle Jed. May it always flourish, is the sincere wish of one Wide Awake.

DEATH OF JOB F. SEAMANS AT DAUGHTER'S HOME

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 31—Job F. Seamans, 79, for many years a resident of East Killingly, died Saturday morning at the home of his daughter in Brooklyn, N. Y. Mr. Seamans was born November 4, 1846, at North Scituate, R. I., a son of Silas and Elvira Cole Seamans.

As a boy he came to East Killingly with his parents, attended school there and eventually engaged in business with his father in the manufacture of shoes, then considerable of an industry in this section.

Mr. Seamans was engaged in this industry for a long term of years. Afterwards he had a retail grocery and general store at East Killingly at the premises now occupied as a business building by James Smith. A decade ago Mr. Seamans having no further business interests here, left East Killingly and has since alternated in making his home with a daughter, who lives in Brooklyn, N. BEAR AT NORTH STERLING MAY BE HIBERNATING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Jan. 31—Not a word relative to anyone having seen the bear reported from North Sterling a fortnight ago by Charles Rounds, of that community, has come through since that day. The matter is mentioned because so many people inquire as to the animal and its well-being. A theory is that this bear has a den and does not venture out during the winter season excepting on rare occasions. After recent light snowfalls, hunters who have traversed the territory, on fox hunts, have scanned the ground for bear tracks, but have failed to find any. This is no evidence against a bear being over that way. The animal has been seen by reliable persons and sooner or later will be seen by others if it remains in the locality where it has been reported various times since last fall.

This is the belief of those who claim to know something about bears and their ways. There is the chance, these people hold that when warmer weather comes, the bear will take to roaming around the territory where its headquarters are, and that the chances of seeing it will be far greater than in the midst of the winter season. Hunters have inquired about the game laws of Connecticut regulating bear hunting. There appears to be nothing in the code that prohibits taking a shot at Bruin, if opportunity offers.

For many who are perturbed over changing conditions, that make for competition with Danielson mercantile organizations by cities within a radius of 30 to 50 miles, there will be special interest in the effort of the Chamber of Commerce to exert itself to the end of bringing new industries to Danielson. The relation between the competition mentioned and the effort to locate new industries in Danielson is that the more workers this community has, the more business it is certain to get from them.

Danielson lies within what is known as the most highly competitive merchandising zone in the United States. This zone includes all the New England states, New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania. There is little to be done about regulating competition. Much remedial as will add towns that feed the competition of nearby cities is held to lie not only in alertness in selling goods, at close margins, but in seeking new industries to build up a community and thereby produce potential customers for what the little towns have to sell. The more people, the more money spent at home, no matter how much cash seeps out from them to other trade centers. Danielson has a favorable position as a trade center for nearly a score of smaller communities. The effort of the Chamber of Commerce to bring new industries to Danielson will be applauded by everyone interested in this community. It is not so much that great industries be sought, as that what are called small concerns by inducement to locate here—or anywhere within the town of Killingly. Small concerns grow, and as to this the Paco Mfg. company is a notable example. No one dreamed when the Danielson Development association brought this infant industry to Danielson, that it would have such a lusty growth. It now gives employment to 450 people, and within a very few years of locating here.

PUTNAM

STOCK BADLY DAMAGED BY SMOKE AND WATER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Jan. 31.—There was another fire in the Stoubouth block at ten o'clock Saturday morning. It was extinguished without material loss to the building but the stocks of the tenants were considerably damaged by smoke, and in two of the stores water damage resulted.

Some eight months ago a fire broke out at night in the basement of the Lombardo fruit store, located in the block. The fire was checked but the smoke spread all through the building. This store has been closed for more than a month but the blaze started in the same place, in a pile of rubbish in the basement. It ate its way up through the floor and water had to be turned on to quench it. The entire fire department was called out and there were several lines of hose laid in case of need.

The stores in the block that face on Main street are, Milot & Williams Clothing store, Alexander's Shoe store, Carroll' drug store. The Lombardo Fruit company, which occupied one of the store rooms has been closed for a month. In the rear of the Carroll drug store is the Arnold restaurant. It suffered both water and smoke damage, as did the shoe store. In Milot & Williams the clothing and hats and stock of that kind were permeated by the smoke which poured up from the basement in a dense cloud for the better part of an hour.

On the second floor were the offices of Dr. George T. Lamarche, Dr. William Saretski, Dr. Harry Sharpe, dentist, the Dragon tailor shop and the Ladoux tailor shop and the Plessis insurance agency, the offices of the Vaughn Co., and of Joseph Ryan, public stenographer, and the Benoit Beauty Shop. They were all damaged by smoke. One of the tenants estimates the total loss at $10,000.

Dr. LaPalme is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene LaPalme of Webster, Mass. but formerly of this city, where for many years the latter was a clerk at the hardware store of Perry and Brown, and later moving to Webster, Mass. Dr. LaPalme was born in Putnam but spent the most of his life in Webster, where he was graduated from the Bartlett High school.

State policemen have been busy here for the last week checking up on the evidence connected with the breaking and entering at the Bradley theatre a week a go. Much of their work has been in connection with the photographing and checking of finger prints. MYSTIC

More than seven months ago the extensive alterations to the Union Baptist church commenced and work has been carried on ever since. The first thing done was the removal of the pipe organ from the gallery. It was packed and stored, except for some parts which were sent to the factory for repairs. The taking down and setting up was to cost $700. The alterations in the auditorium made a great improvement in the looks and appear. The gallery has been removed, except across the rear end and this makes the auditorium look larger than before. An arch back of the pulpit has been built for the organ, with pillars at the two corners, and a baptistry at the south end of the pulpit. A metal ceiling tinted white and the side walls replastered and tinted cream color, new floors, new electric light fixtures, and steam radiators are some of the improvements. The pews have been set and are being painted, while four class rooms have been arranged. The largest will be used by Mrs. B. F. Davis' class which numbers over thirty, also for a ladies' parlor. The only work done down stairs is plastering the kitchen and laying a hardwood floor. On account of the ledge under the kitchen it could not be lowered to a level with the dining room and the two steps will have to remain. When the auditorium is completed the vestry will be redecorated and put in good condition. When the work on the church was first undertaken it was planned to spend $24,000 of which $12,000 was pledged. It is estimated it will cost double the amount. The work is being done by the day and not by contract, no doubt making a difference in the cost. The adult Bible classes have been meeting in the district town hall since September 6th and this has decreased the attendance somewhat. It is expected when they can meet as formerly, the interest and attendance will increase. The regular Sunday services have been well sustained also the prayer meetings.

Crandall and Mrs. Charles L. Van Winkle. The first prize was won by Mrs. Frank D. Stanton of Stonington, second prize by Mrs. Jack Clift of Mystic. Mrs. Ida F. Crandall was the chairman, assisted by members of her committee. Fancy cakes and tea were served. The amount made was $21.50 and is to go toward the war Memorial fund for which the chapter pledged $100.

St. Mark's church held a whist on Thursday night and owing to the extreme cold weather the attendance was not as large as usual. The individual high score was awarded Mrs. Melvina Greenman, and consolation to Mrs. Percy Morgan; gentlemen's high was to Fred Godfrey and consolation to C. C. McLaughey.

Thousands of lovely women could tell you of experiences like this—if you dared to ask them.

"If I only had your lovely skin, Alice!"

"Mine is so bad, not even rouge and powder do any good. But anyone would think you had just got back from vacation. What's the secret?"

"Why, Madge, there's no secret. I would have told you long ago but I felt I couldn't speak of it until you asked me. My doctor told me that constipation was the cause of most skin troubles. Poisons from the waste matter are picked up by the blood and carried to all parts of the body, especially the skin. They were ruining my skin, too, until he prescribed Nujol for me. Nujol stopped the constipation and my complexion began to improve right away. Try it for a week or two and see."

Don't Refuse the Beauty Aid Nujol Will Give

No one needs to have a sallow, muddy complexion. The cause is simple; the remedy is in your own hands. Proper diet, exercise, surface cleanliness and—above all—internal cleanliness. Nujol prevents the formation of intestinal poisons that ruin your health and complexion.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. Nujol simply makes up for a deficiency—temporary or chronic—in the supply of natural lubricant in the intestines. It softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular elimination, without overtaxing the intestinal muscles.

Nujol can be taken for any length of time without ill effects. To insure internal cleanliness it should be taken regularly in accordance with the directions on each bottle. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit, and can be discontinued at any time.

MUST CONTINUE ECONOMY

Having accomplished what was sought under the previous requests of the president for keeping down expenditures and a businesslike use of government funds there is certainly no good reason why such a policy should be abandoned. Its value having been demonstrated it should be retained. Instead of being temporary it should be permanent.

In speaking to the budget organization at Washington, the president referred to the excellent cooperation which had been shown in getting results the saving of nearly $2,000,000,000 in four and a half years and he thereon that the adherence to the world court will be a further move in behalf of economy, enlarged prosperity and peace. But in addition to this there is still a further incentive. Through the national economy plan it has been possible to bring about a reduction in federal taxation at the same time that federal indebtedness has been reduced. Through the employment of similar practices it is possible for him to predict that there can be further reductions in taxation.

That is, of course, what it should be. We are still paying taxes that were made necessary by the war. They cannot be eliminated in one wave of the hand. As conditions change and we are able to pile up larger revenue through larger business, and able to keep down expenditures through a judicious use of national funds, the situation will be created that will reveal a sufficiently large surplus to warrant another pruning of the revenue bill.

Because we have been following an economy program and because we are about to cut taxes again, does not make that we are in a position to rush into extravagant spending. It is a time for the prudent use of government funds. They should be employed where they are needed, but they should not be wasted. According to the wise use of such funds will the date for an additional reduction of the federal taxes be hastened or extended. The president still urges a praiseworthy policy and he is certainly getting commendable results.

HIGHWAY BEAUTIFICATION

Much has been said concerning the desirability of planting trees along the highways. The legislature has given the state highway department authority to do so and for the purpose of carrying out that desire the department has now taken unto itself a landscape architect. Thus we are gradually progressing toward the expectation that the legislature will be asked to give the department authority to take care of all trees on land bordering trunk line roads.

With so many thousand people traveling over the highways daily too much care cannot be given to providing for their safety through the elimination of banks and growths at curves and corners, for the improvement of the highway appearance and the scenic attractions along the roads. Even for the protection of the property along the trunk lines highly valuable work can be done and excellent suggestions offered to property owners who may be interested in cooperating in the undertaking.

That one who understands the job should be placed in charge of it has been recognized by the highway department. For some years the planting, and even the trimming and spraying of trees, may call for no great outlay, but it gives promise of being a good stood job by the time it is extended to the whole trunk line system of the state. How extensively we go into such work will depend upon the attitude of future legislatures.

The start in this direction gives promise of delightful results. Roads can be made much more attractive by the setting out of the various kinds which fit into the various localities to the best advantage. It is work which has received endorsement in cities and in certain states, so that Connecticut will be but falling in line with sentiment elsewhere in this work of highway beautification.

ROCK DUSTING MINES

Many times there are efforts put forth in behalf of protection which seem to accomplish nothing, and gets little attention even though it is doing real preventive work. Such seems to have been the case with the rock dusting of the big coal mine at West Frankfort, Ill. When it is credited with causing what otherwise might have been a serious disaster into almost a minor accident it means much.

In that mine over 1200 men are employed and they are all underground when an explosion occurred last week. There were five deaths but how many more there might have been had there been no rock dusting of the mines is conjectural. The rock dust which had been scattered over the floor of the mine and the piles of it that were released from shattering by the explosion is regarded as having saved many lives and therefore justifies not only what was done in the safeguarding of that particular mine but lends emphasis to the need of fully adopting similar methods in other mines.

Inflammable coal dust will cause serious results. Five deaths in the Illinois mine is too large if they were caused by carelessness but there is real cause for satisfaction that the number was no larger and to know that it was kept at five rather than a possible hundred or even a larger figure through anticipating mine conditions and guarding against them.

According to engineers about two thirds of the fatal and serious accidents in bituminous mines could be prevented. Rock dusting is the means suggested in addition to the use of cars. Recognition of the merits of this preventive is indicated by the fact that about 200 mines in this country have adopted this method, but how far the mines in general are safeguarded by this plan is shown by the fact that these 200 mines represent only about four per cent. of all the soft coal mines in this country.

Rock dusting is apparently a protection which all the soft coal mines should adopt as a means of saving life.

FIREPROOF STRUCTURES

No better arguments for the building of fire proof structures could be asked than those which are furnished by the burning of hotels, factories and municipal buildings, except it be the destruction of hospitals, homes for the aged and children and schoolhouses.

Within a few days costly fires have occurred at Taunton, Mass., and Allentown, Pa., where hotels have been destroyed and in the latter case lives lost. The municipal building at Spencer, Mass., has been burned and there have been numerous other bad fires including factories and apartment houses.

It is not improbable that these fires might have been prevented in other ways than by building fireproof structures, but certainly if that had been the type of construction the buildings would not be a mass of ruins today and death and injury would not have been experienced or faced by the many who were directly concerned.

The experience in these particular instances is such as to justify the belief that such structures as are erected in their place will be of fireproof construction. For the protection of the many involved and the preservation of records in the case of municipal buildings the menace from fires should be overcome. Not many buildings, except in the large cities, are being pulled down for the erection of new and better ones, but as time eliminates the firetrap serious thought should be directed toward doing some permanent fire prevention work as replacement activities get underway. It is certainly folly to invite a repetition of distressing demonstrations of the fire menace.

ANOTHER FLYING PERFORMANCE

Flight from Europe to South America is no longer to be regarded simply as a possibility. It has been accomplished and in quick time by the Spanish aviators in the Plus Ultra, a big Italian plane constructed for the trip. The objective of the aviators is Buenos Aires but they have completed the longest and worst of their several hops in crossing from the Cape Vede Islands to Fernando do Xoronha Island off the Brazilian coast from which point on a short flight they afterwards reached the mainland. Now there remains but a couple of flights down the coast before they will have arrived at their destination.

Thus far their flight has been accomplished with excellent weather conditions, no accidents and no untoward incidents aside from the strain of the long flight and depressing heat encountered in the real crossing which included the crossing of the equator.

The flight has demonstrated the stability of the machine that is being employed and the skillful manner in which it has been handled by the aviators. It is likewise indicating that even though Europe and South America have been in close touch with each other through water transportation lines they are even nearer now through the means of aviation. Such a flight as will undoubtedly be completed this week is probably the forerunner of a commercial aviation line sometime in the unknown future in keeping with the expansion of such flying as can be expected in all directions.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Too late now for any more January thaws this year.

The man on the corner says: Not so bad weather for the ground hog to make an exploring expedition.

Though February is the shortest month of the year satisfaction will prevail if it isn't the snappiest.

No one who reads the Congressional Record ever wonders why the doings of congress are never broadcasted.

If Henry Ford has gone in for the collection of old violins he will find that there's a larger crop than he anticipated.

These are the days when they are bragging about the coal as well as other things which are brought over from Europe.

The senator who needlessly delays the revenue bill and tax reduction can expect to hear from home, and he most certainly should.

General Pershing urges a fair deal in the Tacna-Arica plebiscite. He knows what is needed and understands the difficulty in getting it.

Of course whatever W. Mitchell has to say after his resignation from the army, following conviction by court martial, will be liberally discounted.

There must be a deplorable state of public sentiment when a New Yorker declares a whipping post and lynch law is needed there to stop crime.

Those in Washington who clubbed together and bought a carload of coal at a lower price than could otherwise be obtained only did what others have long since been doing.

WOMEN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

The bread box should be scalded with sal soda at least once a week, rinsed and set in the sun to dry.

Try charcoal for kindling a fire. It ignites quickly and is less trouble than wood, as it requires no chopping.

Empty talcum powder boxes make handy salt and pepper shakers for the kitchen.

When scissors become dull cut a piece of sandpaper to pieces and see how nicely it sharpens them.

If parchment shades are shellacked and varnished they may be washed with a white soap and water. Brighten with a little furniture polish.

Avoid steel in handling fish. It imparts a nasty flavor to it, and steel knives and forks should be avoided when serving it.

Care should be taken in planning menus to avoid combinations of colors or combinations of flavors which do not harmonize.

If the fat for frying becomes hot before you are quite ready for it, drop a piece of dry bread into it. It will prevent the fat from burning.

In making mayonnaise for fruit salad use pineapple juice, with lemon or some other tart fruit juice instead of vinegar. This gives a delicious flavor to the salad.

Put one sugar bag under and another over your bread in the breadbox; it keeps the bread nicer, also the box cleaner. Change each time you make bread.

To remove the shell of an egg quickly after it has boiled the required time place it in a basin of cold water for two seconds and the shell will come off without difficulty.

Dishes in which flour and eggs have been mixed can be quite easily cleaned if they are allowed to stand in cold water for a few minutes before washing. Hot water hardens the mixture and makes it very difficult to remove.

Finger marks on painted doors should be removed with a soft flannel wrung out in water in which a few drops of ammonia have been mixed, and then rubbed with soap. Having removed the stains the paint should be washed with clear water and thoroughly dried.

STRAINER FOR SINK

Use a strainer in the sink. Keep pipes free from bits of food. Avoid grease and greasy water. Wash sink with hot, soapy water each time it is used, and rinse with coldwater. Flush pipes thoroughly once a week with hot water, following with a strong solution of sal soda and much hot water. If pipes are stopped increase the strength of the soda solution, or use a solution of potash.

TO FRESHEN STALE ROLLS

The stale rolls will be like freshly baked ones if put in a paper bag, the bag dampened with warm water, tied tightly shut and placed in a hot oven. By the time the bag is dry the rolls will be freshened and hot.

RICE GLUE

The Japanese make a fine, clear glue, very useful in pasting white paper, by simply boiling rice in water until it is reduced to a thick, fine paste.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY.

Every household should be equipped with sterile gauze (sealed package), absorbent cotton (sealed package), assorted widths of cotton bandages, adhesive plaster, one inch wide, for use to hold the dressing in place when bandaging is unnecessary; one bottle of antiseptic.

Don't forget that a badly kept lavatory or bathroom is a danger to everybody in any home. It should once a week be washed with water, to which a little carbolic or other disinfectant has been added while disinfectants should occasionally be poured down the pipes.

In order that school children may have good eyesight, it is essential that proper care be taken of the eyes of the pre-school child in the home. It is pointed out that for years the importance of proper treatment of the eyes of all newborn babes to guard against infection has been urged.

Never cut the corners of the toenails, since this will often lead to ingrowing nails, especially when it comes to the big toe. Toe nails should always be cut straight across. If you smooth the edges of your nails with a file or emery board, you will also find that your stockings develop a smaller number of holes. For the same reason, smooth the roughness on the edges of the soles of your feet with pumice stone.

FOR BURNS OR SCALDS.

For burns and scalds nothing is more soothing than the white of an egg, which may be poured over the wound. Being usually at hand, it can be quickly applied. It is more cooling than sweet oil and cotton, which were formerly supposed to be the surest application to allay smarting palms. It is the contact with the air which gives the extreme discomfort experienced from the ordinary accident of this kind, and anything that excludes the air and prevents inflammation is the thing to be at once applied.

HEALTHY AND HANDY.

Sauerkraut has been found rich in those "growth substances" known as vitamines, necessary to preserve and promote health. It is said to be a valuable source of iron and vegetable salts and to resemble buttermilk in its tendency to prevent the growth of harmful bacteria in the intestines. Recent scientific tests, it is claimed, have proved that sauerkraut may be preserved perfectly in the can.

FOR LATE RISER.

Do you suppose you could possibly manage to get up just 10 to 15 minutes earlier every morning, and then keep going just as usual in your prebreakfast duties, so that you could have just 10 minutes more in which to eat your breakfast? Undoubtedly a great many digestive difficulties arise from the habit of eating too rapidly and a few bites of toast than to try to most often eaten too quickly. Now if perchance you do oversleep and have to hurry off in the morning, it is far better simply to take a cup of coffee and a few bites of toast than to try to eat any more. Later in the morning a piece of bread and butter, or some nuts eaten leisurely, will keep you from feeling too hungry.

HAY TEA FOR CURTAINS.

Dipping cream net or madras curtains in hay tea or weak coffee after washing will hold the color. Boil a handful of bright hay in two gallons of water for 20 minutes. Strain and add a pinch of powdered alum.

DICTATES OF FASHION

A smart novelty is the anklet of gold filigree which is worn under the sheerest of stockings.

Platinum gray is a color which is rapidly becoming more and more popular not only for costumes and hats but in footwear as well.

Cut steel buckles lead all the other shoe ornaments in popular favor. Rhinestone buckles are strictly limited to evening shoes.

With a molded bodice and a smart uneven hemline the new frocks of black velvet for the young girl gain in chic by the addition of collars and cuffs of cream lace.

Many of the frocks designed for spring have high collars of the material of the dress, held together with bows of velvet or silk ribbons. Some are held also in military fashion with buttons.

Copies of early Victorian jewelry lead the mode in smart things to wear in jewels. Designs of quaint charm and originality are to be found in the pieces which faithfully copy the mode of our grandmothers.

One of the smartest sports frocks, made of a novelty material is of the two-piece type. Crepe de chine in the same tones is used for the collar, the band around the jumper and for the tie, which is run through slashes on the waist.

The new flowered and figured chiffons and georgettes are to be used on frocks of dark tones, being made into vestees and fullness at wrist on long sleeves, to give the bright color touch that must be a part of every dress this spring.

As interesting as the trend of fashion in gowns, in wraps, millinery and so on is the dress that underlies the exterior. Lingerie grows more important as it is worn and more reckoned with the ensemble.

Earrings, to be worn at all, should call attention to themselves by their unusual length and charm of design. Modernistic to the last degree are the earrings which boast a series of bangles or a tikled effect of jewels set in intricate design.

SLEEVES PLAITED FROM ELBOWS DOWN.

The graceful swing of the skirts is being copied extensively in the designs of the sleeves of presentday gowns. Frequently the sleeves, which are extremely tight from shoulder to elbow, are duplicates of the skirts from the elbow down. As a result plaits, so omnipresent on skirts, are becoming a feat on sleeves. Even velvet sleeves are so treated. One new cloak, for example, is of ruby velvet with the sleeves plaited from elbow to wrist and trimmed with black fox.

BROCADES CARRIED OVER INTO NEW YEAR

The soft, rich-toned crinkly materials in which the patterns are woven with bright and dull surface make some of the handsomest nightgowns, slips, negligees, and even pretentious tea gowns.

The brocades have gone so well that some coutouries continue to present them in styles that have something of classic beauty, the sort of thing that endures.

LAUNDRY HINTS

Woolens will not shrink in drying if hung dripping wet on the line to dry. Don't wring them out at all.

When making hot starch, add a level teaspoon of dry washing powder to a quart; this helps to prevent the iron from sticking.

The most satisfactory cloth to use for pressing suits or dresses or wools is one made of wool or part wool, as it will ward off that shiny appearance for some time.

So many hundresses dislike throwing out suds from previous washings. Just because the soap is there. Boiled suds will not thoroughly clean the clothes and will create a very bad color so see that fresh suds are used for each batch of clothes.

BRAN GOOD CLEANER

For cleansing all kinds of fabrics which would be ruined by being made wet bran has no equal. A velvet gown, for instance, which has become soiled by grease and mud should be well rubbed with bran, taking a fresh supply as each becomes soiled. Then brush the velvet thoroughly with a clean brush, and press by running back of fabric over a hot iron held in an upright position. This will raise the nap and restore much of the velvet's early freshness.

RECONSTRUCTED SOAP.

If you have odds and ends of soap and would like to make a cake, put the pieces into an old cup and barely cover with hot water. Set the cup on the back of the stove, where it will be kept warm. Or if you have a gas range, and the heat is not continual, use a container with a broad enough base to set securely on a radiator. Leave the pieces in the warm spot until the soap is entirely dissolved and is a thick, liquefied mass. It must remain long enough for the water to have evaporated almost entirely. Then pour it into one or more molds, according to the quantity you have.

A small soap dish makes a good-sized mold. An old match box of metal or porcelain is another excellent shaped mold for this purpose. It is important to have the mold symmetrical and of a shape that will make the cake easy to handle. If the soap is made from odd pieces of toilet soap it will be useful for the same purpose, and the shape of the cake and its size is important. The cake should be dainty as befits its use. If the reconstructed soap is for laundry purposes, the mixture can be poured into a small cake tin and be cut into cakes by string when it has hardened.

It may be said in passing that a soap shaker is excellent for small pieces of common soap, but toilet soap is more useful if made into reconstructed cakes.

CRAYON WALL PANELS

Crayon designs on unbleached muslin make very pretty panels for wall ornaments. A pattern is traced on the muslin and is filled in with heavy crayon lines. The design is then placed on a blotter face down and a hot iron is applied to the back. The melts the wax and stamps the colors into the material—producing a very lovely effect.

CONCERNING WOMEN

Mrs. Mahala Huff of Louisa, Ky., now past 105 years of age, is the oldest pensioner on the United States government rolls.

A radio company recently formed in London to sell portable wireless sets has selected Lady Muir Mackenzie a director of the concern.

Unmarried women and widows are admitted to the freedom of the City of London on the same terms with men, but they are suspended when married.

Mlle. Suzanne Blum, recently appointed as one of the 12 secretaries of the Paris Court of Appeals, is the first of her sex to hold such a position.

Though she is past 90 years of age, Mme. Paul Merlin of Evreaux, France, is an ardent hunter, having recently applied for her 46th shooting license.

Gertrude Miller, constable in Lima, O., has more arrests to her credit than any man who ever held the office. She is the only woman constable in Ohio.

Miss Clara L. Morrow, former clerk to the mayor, has been elected mayor of East Palestine, O., being the first woman to fill the executive chair in that town.

AIR IT WELL

Give the bed at least an hour to air before making it. Throw the covers back and remove pillows and quilts. You will enjoy the fresh, sweet feeling a well-aired bed gives.

FOLLOW WITH HOT WATER

When using washing soda to clear the drain in the sink, be sure to follow with a pail of boiling hot water so the soda and grease do not form a soft soap in the drain pipe and close the drain entirely.

RECIPES

Steamed Cranberry Pudding: One cup flour, 3 1-2 teaspoons baking powder, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-3 cup of bread crumbs, 2-3 cup finely chopped cranberries, 1 egg, milk or water to make light dough. Mix in order given, turn into well-greased mold, cover with wax paper and steam 3 hours, never allowing water to come more than 2-3 up sides of mold. Turn out and serve with hard sauce or any other sweet sauce.

Riced Potatoes with Cheese: Two cups riced potato, 1 cup milk, 1 egg, 1 teaspoon salt, 1-2 cup grated cheese, 1-8 teaspoon pepper. Beat milk into potatoes and season with salt and pepper. Add cheese and stir over hot water until cheese is melted. Beat yolk of egg until thick and beat into potato mixture. Beat white of egg until stiff and dry, and fold into mixture. Turn into a buttered baking dish and bake 20 minutes in a moderate oven.

From Small Beginnings

Richard Brome, The Great Dramatist

"A man is no hero to his valet." So goes the old proverb.

In England, many years ago, there was a man who disproved the ancient saying. At that time Ben Johnson was one of the most famous of all writers for the stage. Ben Johnson was the friend and the rival of no less a man than William Shakespeare. About these two great men there gathered a number of lesser lights in the literary world, dramatists who wrote for the stage; university wits; youthful poets; romancers, and happy-go-lucky adventurers. These brilliant men were accustomed to gather together in the taverns of London and there to flash the rapiers of conversation.

Among the men who met together, but not of them, was one Richard Brome. He was not in reality a member of the company, for the very good reason that he was only the servant to Ben Johnson. He was 17 years younger than the great dramatist, who was called "Rare Ben Johnson," and he was 26 years younger that Will Shakespeare of Stratford, the most famous man in all the company. Day after day Richard Brome attended his master, and night after night he followed him to the taverns. There he sat and listened to the lively talk of the men of genius. Richard Brome came of good material, and he resolved that he, too, could be something great if he tried. He began therefore to imitate the work of his master and of his master's brilliant friends. In their company he had cultivated his own wit; he had heard their talk about people and plays, and he had been with them to the theaters. He had, without knowing it, been to the best school for dramatic writing. Who, indeed, would not have been willing to sit at the feet of Ben Johnson and Shakespeare? So Richard Brome began to write plays. He was shrewd enough to write of people whom he knew, of beggars and country people, and he glorified in making his characters real and lifelike, in making them act and talk as he had seen people do. To all this he added the spice of good humor, with such good result that he developed from being a servant to being a dramatist himself. Before he died, at the age of 63, he had written 24 plays and had himself become the friend and companion of the best writers of the lay. It is pleasant to know that the servant who carried the lantern learned to respect both Johnson and Shakespeare and gained the ambition to vie with them in greatness. He never became nearly as great as they, but he did lift himself from the position of servant to that of master and popular playwright.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Andrew Furuseth, who has been reelected president of the International Seamen's Union of America, is generally recognized as one of the most powerful and forceful characters in the ranks of union labor. Nowadays he spends most of his time in the national capital, but for many years his seat of operations was on the Pacific coast, with San Francisco as headquarters. Next to the late Senator LaFollette of Wisconsin, Mr. Furuseth was the man most responsible for the seamen's law passed by the United States congress in 1915. He is a man of great tenacity in support of what he believes to be right, and of much skill as an organizer. During the war with Germany he used his influence as a leader to induce rapid and effective martialing of the marine reserves of the nation; and, like some other men of a radical past, he subordinated his personal and group interests to the national welfare.

Stories That Recall Others

Awful Prospect

Undoubtedly the scolding was justly deserved and perhaps Bert's heir apparent realized he was in the wrong, but as is sometimes the case with small sons, the youngster was in tearful resentment against his mother's words.

Bert says he has forgotten the crime and the punishment but remarks that his son certainly "called" his wife's hand in the following conversation between them:

Son (weeping)—I'm go-uh-going to drown myself.

Mother (unyielding)—Well, son, the river is right over there.

Son (alarmed)—Maybe I'll get runned over when I cross the street going to the river—and then you'll be sorry.

More sobs—they clinch—curtain.

Into That Alley 20 Years

The driver of a sport roadster turned off the main highway into a side-street behind a delapidated Ford.

At an alley the Ford turned suddenly. The driver of the roadster tried to halt and turn out, but found himself boxed, and could not prevent his car from swinging around on the slippery pavement so that its rear end bumped the Ford.

No damage was done to either car, but an elderly colored man leaped from the Ford and dashed over to the driver of the roadster with vengeance in his voice.

"Whaddya mean by bumping my car!" he demanded.

"I certainly couldn't help it," retorted the roadster's pilot. "How did I know you were going to turn into that alley?"

"How did you know I was going to turn down dat alley?" repeated the colored man indignantly. "Why, man, I bin turning down dat alley for 20 years."

The best way to beat a poor carpet is to buy a good one.

Nanny's Next Adventure

It is my gain in every way
If one thing I have learned today.
—Nanny Meadow Mouse.

Nanny Meadow Mouse had learned something. She had learned that in winter time there was a new enemy to watch out for. She had learned that a harmless looking bird might prove to be a dangerous enemy. You see, she had just escaped from Butcher the Shrike.

"I wonder where that fellow came from," thought Nanny, as she watched him catch one of the children of Cully, the English sparrow. "He certainly doesn't belong around here. No, sir, he doesn't belong around here. I think he must have come down from the land of Terror the Goshawk. It is bad enough to have Terror around. I hope this fellow won't stay long."

Nanny had made a very good guess. Butcher the Shrike didn't belong there. But the winter in the north was very severe and so Butcher had come down in the hope of finding easier living.

Nanny felt quite safe down under the snow. She promptly began digging a little tunnel. She didn't know where she was digging to, but it didn't matter much, because she felt pretty sure that sooner or later she would find something to eat. There was the bark of young fruit trees, anyway. She could always be sure of that. She didn't know that when she ate it she was getting in mischief, you see, to Nanny a young fruit tree was no different from any other young tree. That is to say, she didn't know why she shouldn't eat the bark of a young fruit tree if she could eat the bark of young trees or bushes growing wild.

And there they sat, and sat, and sat, for the longest time.

Of course, after a bit, Nanny began to wonder what had become of Danny Meadow Mouse. She was lonesome. She wanted Danny. "He'll never know where I am," thought Nanny. "I do hope Black Pussy didn't catch him. I don't believe she did. Danny is smart. He has fooled Black Pussy before and I guess he has fooled her again. But I would like to know where he is."

So Nanny dug her way up and climbed out on the crust to look about. She couldn't look far because it was just dusk. It was the hour that mice like to move about and Nanny had it in mind to go back and look for Danny. She was sitting close to the trunk of a young fruit tree, trying to make up her mind if it was safe to go look for Danny.

"I believe it is," she said to herself. "That bird that tried to catch me this afternoon probably has gone to bed. I don't believe Black Pussy is around now. I believe I'll run back right away to look for Danny."

And just as she thought this, or said it to herself, she heard a sound right up over her head that made her hold her breath. It was a queer little snap. Nanny didn't have to be told what it was. She had heard it before. She wished now that she was safely under the crust. If she could have stopped the beating of her heart she would have. You see, she knew that right up over her head in that very tree under which she was sitting was Spooky the Screech Owl. She knew that that snapping sound was made by Spooky with his bill.

Nanny shivered and shivered and shook all over; but aside from that shaking she didn't move. She knew better than to move. She knew that as long as she didn't move Spooky's big eyes probably would not see her. But she knew that if she moved ever so little those big eyes, very likely would see her.

And so Nanny Meadow Mouse sat on the snow, close to the trunk of the tree, and up above her, in the top of the tree, sat Spooky the Screech Owl. And there they sat, and sat, and sat, for the longest time. One was wanting with all his might to keep from being that dinner. The other was wanting with all her might to keep from being that dinner.

ACCOUNT OF THE FATE OF GRAND DUKE ALEXANDROVITCH

MOSCOW, Jan. 31—(AP)—What purports to be the first actual authentic account of the fate of Grand Duke Michael Alexandrovitch, who was emperor of Russia for a few hours after his brother Nicholas abdicated in March 1917, and whose disappearance five weeks before the execution of the Romanoffs in July 1918, has always remained a profound mystery, appeared today in a book entitled "last days of the Romanoffs."

The book was written by P. M. Bikov, who was president of the Ural Soviet in Ekaterinburg at the time the Romanoffs were killed. The author relates how a group of five men, whom he describes as "workers in a Ural iron foundry," arming themselves with false check credentials forcibly seized Michael at a hotel in Perm, where he had been detained by the Bolsheviks with his English secretary, N. Johnson. Taking the grand duke to a lonely part of the adjacent woods on the night of July 12, 1918, they killed him.

WINDHAM

DUG WELL DOWN OVER A HUNDRED FEET FOR WATER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WINDHAM, Jan. 31—A. E. Earl of Willimantic has recently completed a 108 foot well on the old Brewer place, in Windham, Jerusalem district, for George Myers.

The well brought in the first water to be had there in a number of years. A well was dug across the road a number of years ago, but water did not hold out.

Two years ago Mr. Myers dug a 23 or 30 foot well further down the lot but this also failed to give a continuous supply of water. The new artesian well is to give a supply of between four and five gallons a minute.

TAXABLE GRAND LIST $22,768,107; GAIN OF $745,403 OVER LAST YEAR

The town of Norwich has a total grand list of taxable and exempt property amounting to $30,152,775, of which $22,768,107 is taxable property of residents and non-residents, while the exempt property of all kinds amounts to $7,384,668, according to the report of the assessors, which was completed Saturday.

The increase in the entire list over that of last year is $1,466,180 and the increase in taxable property is $745,403.

The three assessors, Arad H. Manning, John B. Oat, and Fred G. Prothero, who have been at work for the past month in preparing their report from the lists submitted to them before that time, closed the grand list tabulation Saturday afternoon and signed the abstract book before Judge Nelson J. Allying as notary public.

The work this year has been on a larger scale than ever before as there was an increase of 424 in the number of lists, and besides that the assessors were required to make out lists for all property exempt for other reasons than blind or soldier exempt. This includes 73 lists and takes in school and church property, city and town property, state and government property. Since last year this has increased in valuation from $6,825,760 to $7,009,361. It is required that this class of exempt property be reported in detail every four years, this being the year for such a report.

The assessors sent out 194 notices of increases which they had made in the lists put in by property owners.

In the taxable property the largest increase over a year ago is shown in the value of dwelling houses, which is $397,995, and the increase in number of houses is 133. The valuation placed on dwelling houses is $6,904,756, the largest item in the list.

The next largest gain is shown in the valuation of stores, the number having increased from 425 to 472 and the valuation made a gain of $142,881. Stock in trade shows a gain of $46,031.

Division of property into building lots has raised the valuation in this item by $95,389, while the number of lots has increased from 4,744 to 5,402. This has been accompanied by a reduction of about 450 acres and a decrease in valuation of $12,112 in the classification of land in acres.

While the number of motor vehicles owned in Norwich increased in the past year the valuation for taxable purposes dropped. This, however, occasioned no surprise to the assessors as they expected it to come out that way. Several causes, they explain, contribute towards this result. These include the drop in list prices of a number of makes of cars, the added proportioned reduction in value for many cars because of an added year in the age of the machine, and a change in appraisal value for old cars, many of which drop out of the list because their value as used cars is so low.

This year there are 4,032 machines shown in the lists, taxable and exempt, a gain of 397 over last year. The taxable cars number 3,750 with a value of $1,516,167 as compared with 3,628 last year with a value of $1,544,158. Tax exempt automobiles this year number 272, valued at $127,221, as compared with 261 last year and value of $128,425. Soldier exempt automobiles have increased from $41 to $53 but the value drops from $87,300 to $96,564. Automobiles exempt because owned by the city are the same in number as before, 20, but the value has changed from $25,625 to $30,377.

Minor changes occur in a number of other items in the list. One in which a considerable increase is shown is that of sheep and swine where the figures goes from $362 last year to $1,200 this year. This is accounted for, not by the increase in sheep and swine, but because several poultry farms have been included in this classification for taxation purposes.

There were 120 more lists this year than last to have the ten per cent. addition made to them because the property owners failed to put in a list on time. This was an increase of $100,843 over the ten per cent. item last year.

The following presents some comparisons in the figures of taxable and exempt property in the grand list:

BIBLE STUDENT SPEAKER ADDRESSED AUDIENCE HERE

At the Buckingham Memorial Sunday afternoon, H. H. Dingus, one of the lecturers of the International Students' association, spoke upon the Highway of Life, giving texts from the Bible to show that the way to show that the way to everlasting life is now being made ready.

He said in part: "Our text is found in Isaiah 62:10. It reads: "Go through, go through the gates; prepare ye the way of the people; cast up, cast up the highway; gather out the stones; lift up a standard for the people."

"The highways which men are constructing for purposes of automobile traffic are important. They make possible the full development of millions of acres of food-producing lands which are now partly or wholly idle. They are part and parcel of God's arrangements for distributing food to the billions of humanity who will shortly come forth from their graves in obedience to the Savior's promise.

"But important as are these national roadways which are being designed by our highway engineers and built with consummate skill, the highway mentioned in our text is of still greater importance. It is the highway of life, the way over which myriads of the human family, after being awakened from the sleep of death, may come back into full harmony with God, and obtain the reward of that harmony in the blessing of everlasting life here on earth.

"Nothing could be plainer than that the use of this highway is in the future. Some have thought that it is in the present, because of the statement that "the redeemed shall walk there"; but these should have noticed that the promised way is to be so plain that a fool could not fail to stay on it. But we now have upwards of 160 sects traveling 160 different ways and certainly 159 of them are wrong.

"Moreover, the prophet points out that on this way which is to be opened up shortly, "the ransomed of the Lord shall return." We have seen that all that are in their graves are to return. We have only to couple with this the statement, "He gave himself a ransom for all" to realize that this means that all mankind will return from their graves and come to Zion (come back into harmony with God's arrangement) with songs and everlasting joy upon their heads; they shall obtain joy and gladness, and sorrow and sighing shall flee away."

DOG WAS THE CAUSE OF MAN BEING SHOT

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—(AP)—If a dog shoots a man, that also is news.

A dog owned by James Blusso, a watchman, stretched itself in the corner of Blusso's shanty in Queens county, dislodging a rifle on a table on that it fell to the floor and exploded. The bullet penetrated Blusso's abdomen. Physicians said he will recover.

IMPATIENCE IN TRAFFIC BRINGS MANY ACCIDENTS

At least eighty-two of the 764 motor vehicle accidents which have occurred in Connecticut since November 1st, that were caused by "inattention" of the operator, were attributed to "undue haste" of these operators to get through traffic. This is shown in a statement of the analyses of a total of 3,350 accidents which were reported to the state motor vehicle department within that period.

Impatience of operators at being held up by street cars discharging passengers and by crowds at busy street intersections is ascribed as the cause of many injuries. Operators at the rate of at least one a day learned the truth of the maxim that "haste makes waste," for some have had damages to pay for their hurry and others have been required by the motor vehicle department to surrender their licenses for reckless driving.

Out of the 3,350 accidents reported to the department in November, December and January, 764 were found to be due to inattention of operators. These 764 were subdivided into classes of causes as follows: Misjudgment, 238; failure to see signals, 116; failure to see pedestrians, 37; looking at objects at side of the road frequently with the driver in flirtation, 19; not watching traffic, 167; distraction of driver's attention by other passengers in car, 17; falling asleep at the wheel, 6; adjustment of car equipment while the machine was in motion, 12; loss of control, 31; application of brakes too quickly, 5; caught in trolley tracks, 9; unfamiliarity with road, 4; road under construction, 2; trying to drive while ill, 8; foot slipped off brake pedal, 10.

MRS. HASKELL SAYS MODERN GIRL NEEDS STEADING HAND

"Whatever others say, I am not at all out of patience with the modern girl," concludes Mrs. Juliana S. Haskell, in an interview published in the current issue of Success upon "The Girl Today As I Know Her."

Mrs. Haskell, who is the daughter of Attorney William H. Shields of this city, is Adviser to Women Graduate Students at Columbia university, having offices in Philosophy hall, where she annually meets and talks over with thousands of young women the problems which face them as they come to ask her advice. For this reason she was sought by the interviewer to answer several questions: "What are the problems of the girls of today? Towards what are they building themselves? Are they happy in their new-found freedom? Are they contented with their careers?"

Mrs. Haskell answered that she recognizes a peculiar lack of contentment among the girls now, and she is not talking of the "jazz-mad flappers." However eager they may be for amusement girls are taking their study and their work quitely seriously. Comparatively few of them study for a purely cultural training as they used to. Most of them are preparing themselves for some sort of a career. "And there I believe is the crux of the matter. They are trying to make a career take the place of everything else in life. Don't think I am objecting to careers—self-expression—individualism—or whatever you want to call it. But there is no reason why young women and young men should not achieve that very thing together as husband and wife, and at the same time have each other and a home. If a girl's career involves self-support, that fact in itself should make for an early marriage, since the financial question that so frequently embarrasses a young man is solved."

Concluding that she is not out of patience with the modern girl, Mrs. Haskell ends the interview as follows: "Fundamentally she is as sound as her grandmother—and not unlike her—but under the pressure of swiftly changing circumstances she has become an extremist. Instead of being censured into an attitude of defiance and a complete loss of equilibrium, all she needs is a gently steadying hand until she strikes her own balance and comes to a realization of that which is really within herself."

UNIVERSALISE YOUNG PEOPLE HAVE CANDLE-LIGHT SERVICE

A very impressive candle-light service was conducted by the members of the Y. P. C. U. of the Universalist church Sunday evening, marking the opening night of Young People's week, a period which they devote to activities of their union and a closer study of their work.

The leader for the evening, Miss Hattie M. Fowler, gave an interesting talk on Consecration which was followed by the president, William Huber, extending the right hand of fellowship to Helen Hartigan and Lester Crowell, two new members.

The tables prettily decorated with blue and white, the candles forming the letters Y. P. C. U., made a very pretty setting for the closing service, which was conducted by all present. Each member lighted a candle, by so doing pledging their loyalty to the Union for the coming year

CAPT. WALDO OAT REPORTS WORST TRIP ACROSS OCEAN

Mr. and Mrs. John B. Oat of 101 Cliff street received word, Saturday evening from their son, Capt. G. Waldo Oat, officer on board the Robert Dollar line, that the trip across the Atlantic was the worst he had ever experienced.

According to Capt. Oat, who is a mate on board the liner, passengers had not been on deck for over a week and the officers and crew had been on duty day and night practically all the way across the ocean.

The ship docked at Boston, Saturday, five days behind its schedule and docks at Brooklyn today (Monday). After minor repairs have been made and new cargo and mail taken abroad the ship will leave Thursday for its cruise around the world.

AUTO CASE OF JACOB M. LINICUS CONTINUED TO FEB. 20 AT N. LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 31—Jacob M. Linicus, commercial salesman, residing at Glenwood park, was in the police court Saturday morning charged with violation of the automobile law, the specific charge being that of reckless driving and passing a motionless trolley car while passengers were alighting or boarding the car. The case was not tried, however, but was continued until Feb. 20 The father of the accused, Jacob Linicus, furnished a bond of $1,000 for his son's appearance in court on the latter date.

Linicus was ordered into court by Sergeant Samuel Hick, following the automobile the accused was operating passing a Connecticut company trolley car on Montauk avenue, corner of Sherman street, Friday evening while passengers were alighting. One of the passengers, Miss Agnes Svenberg, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs Victor Svenberg, 28 Evergreen avenue, was struck by the machine and sustained a painful injury, the young woman now being a patient at Lawrence hospital suffering from a fractured right leg, bruises and scratches about the arms and legs and contusions of the head At the institution this afternoon it was stated that Miss Svenberg was resting as comfortably as could be expected.

John J. Brewer, alias John J. Burke, who resides in Norwich, was arrested early Saturday evening by Patrolman Augustus Ray charged with intoxication. He will be in the police court Monday morning. Brewer, who is 54, went to a tea room, 34 Main street, shortly after 7 o'clock and ordered tripe and sauerkraut. After he had been served he dropped the food on the floor and fell asleep. The police were requested to remove Brewer from the eating place and when Officer Ray arrived Brewer was fast asleep and snoring loudly. He finally was aroused and placed in a cell. Brewer was a lodger in the tramp room at the police station Thursday and Friday nights and appeared there each night about midnight. He had been drinking both nights, but was not intoxicated to the extent to warrant his being arrested.

Charles Meyers, colored, was seeking a thrill a week ago. As might be expected, he found it. Charlie had an idea that to be arrested would make a hero of him and it would bring attention to him which he could get in no other way. That deduction from a problem that has bothered wiser heads than Charlie carries around with him, has annoyed bigger men. To get the thrill and be arrested Charlie threw an ice cream sign through the window of a restaurant on Green street. Policeman Clifford grabbed him so quickly that Charlie's breath almost left his body. The "thrill" story was not accepted as absolutely true, so his sanity was questioned and an examination by a board of doctors became necessary. He was confined in jail until that proceeding could be accomplished. It was finished Saturday and then Charlie was fined in the police court for a breach of he peace, when it was established that he was not crazy. He was turned over to the probation officers that he might go to work and pay the fine and the costs of prosecution. He has cost the city a considerable amount to determine whether he was a fit person to be at liberty. There are still an abundance of "thrills" left for Meyers to indulge in and he may seek to find them. People of his make-up are not apt to be easily satisfied. He will probably discover that the police authorities can stand that sort of thing as long as he can provide reason for its arrest.

Mrs. Mary M. Driver, 92 Bird street, Boston, has communicated with the New London police with a view of obtaining knowledge of the whereabouts of her son John N. Driver, Jr., 16, who disappeared from home recently. Since leaving home the boy was last heard of in Hartford. He is described as being about five feet, seven inches in height and weighs about 135 pounds. He has brown eyes, black hair and is medium build. When he disappeared from home he wore a black overcoat, soft hat, dark blue sweater and brown raised trousers.

A fight occured on the Fort Neck railroad bridge of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, early this morning and although one of the principals of the combat was seriously beaten the police have been unable to ascertain the identity of the principals other than the victim and his companion.

Shortly after midnight William Falvey, Clover court and, a former member of the United States Coast Guard, appeared at the office of Dr. Alfred Labensky, Bliseman street, seeking medical treatment for wounds he had sufferedas a result of the fight. Falvey was suffering from wounds about the head and shoulders and a cut in his back indicated that his assailant had used a knife. After treatment Falvey communicated with the police and Lieut. James Sullivan and Patrolmen Augustus Ray and Thomas Lyden started to conduct an investigation. The officers went to the office of the physician where it was ascertained that Falvey and a companion, John Sherlock, residing on a house boat in the rear of 53 Howard street, had started for the boat and had used the railroad bridge as a 'short cut.' When on the bridge, according to Falvey and Sherlock a Filipino sailor had attacked Falvey, the Filipino, it is alleged, having used a club or iron bar on Falvey's head. Falvey was felled and was kicked about the body. At the same time five or six other Filipinos are alleged to have appeared upon the scene and Sherlock, seeing the increased number of forces, started for Bank street to obtain assistance. In the meantime the alleged Filipinos disappeared.

The officers visited the United States Coast Guard academy and from the executive officer there it was learned that but two sailors had entered the reservation within an hour, these being a Filipino, H. B. Riveria and Edward Rowan. Riveria stated that he was walking across the bridge and that he was set upon by two civilians and struck several blows on the face, and head and that when he started to run, he was overtaken by Rowan, whereas had been attacked. Riveria displayed a lacerated eye, which indicated that he had been struck a fist blow and that the fellow wore a ring. The officers visited Falvey at his home and after obtaining his version of the fight, he was conveyed to the aforesaid reservation where he was unable to identify either Riveria or Rowan as his assailant. Falvey and Sherlock did not relate a connected story. This forenoon Sergeants John Cavanaugh and Nelson Smith caused Falvey, Rowan, Sherlock and Riveria to be interrogated at the police station, but nothing tangible in their stories could be gleaned. The investigation will be continued Monday morning.

Nastralia Facchini has returned to his home, Willetta avenue, after having visited several weeks with his mother in Italy.

Stavros F. Peterson has returned to his home, 60 Nathan Hale street, after having spent three months on the European continent. During his stay in Europe, Mr. Peterson visited in Nice, France, also his mother, in Greece.

A dog, the owner of which is unknown, has been killed by Capt. Andrew McCarthy, of the Groton police department, for the animal is known to have displayed extreme vicious anger by attacking children. After the animal had bitten the little son of Mr. and Mrs. John Currier, Thames street, last Thursday complaint was made to the authorities and the animal was dispatched.

Another alarm of fire occurred this evening shortly after 8:30 o'clock when the residence of Charles Elliot, 93 Shaw street, wasthreatened with serious damage. A quantity of soot in a chimney was discovered ablaze, and an alarm was sent in from Box 461, corner of Shaw and Steward streets. The fire was of short duration and there was no damage of consequence.

Patrolman George Labonte is confined to his home, Jefferson avenue as a result of a throat affection.

Three youths, all Brothers and none of them over 13, were taken into custody this evening, immediately after the eldest of the trio had gained entrance to the store of John W. Cochrane, Williams street. The plunder obtained consisted solely of candies of various description.

A man residing near the store obtained knowledge that the boys were at the store and telephoned the information to the Cochrane residence. Mrs. Cochrane then informing the police. Patrolman William Riordan and Patrolman Augustus went to the store. The juvenile thieves had deparated but the officers intercepted them in the rear of the Winthrop school. The boys had the plunder in their possession and admitted to the part that each took in the burglary. The boys were delivered into the custody of Probation Officer Richard W. Mansfield and will be arraigned in the juvenile court during the coming week.

The police broke up a huge crap game late this afternoon and while the gambling was brought to an end, none of the principals in the game were apprehended. The tip that the game was in progress in a garage at Broad and Ledyard streets was received from a resident of the former street. Several officers were sent to the place in the speed car but when they arrived, instead of entering the garage where the gambling was in progress they stopped and conversed with a group of about 20 young men at the approach of the garage, believing that they had been the gang complained against. In the meantime the real gamblers, who were inside the garage, obtained the tip that the police had arrived and they darted by a rear entrance. About 50 of the gamblers made their escape.

Patrolman George Perkins was unable to report for duty this evening, being confined to his residence, 67 Norwood avenue, because of illness.

Complaint was made to the police this afternoon because of the alleged viciousness of the dog owned by S. Jaczinski, 587 Main street. A physician alleged that the dog had bitten one of his patients and the nature of the wounds indicated that the dog was a victim of rabies. The matter was turned over to Dog Warden John Sweeky for investigation.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hoyt, North Adams, Mass., spent the week-end with relatives in New London.

NEW HAVEN POLICE WANT HAROLD L. TERHUNE WHEN FREE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Jan. 31—Harold L. Terhune, of New York, who resided in New London a fortnight last year, long enough for him to negotiate a worthless check, and who is now a prisoner at the county jail will be compelled to face additional trouble when he has worked out his sentence. Saturday the New London police received a warrant from the New Haven police for the arrest of Terhune when he is liberated at the Franklin street jail. The New Haven warrant charges Terhune with fraudulent acts in that city last December.

Terhune, who claimed to be a bond salesman, negotiated a worthless check in the sum of $35 on Robert Rutherford, of Lyme. Immediately afterwards Terhune left New London and went to several cities about the state. Later he went to Washington where he was arrested for fraudulent transactions and with the cases dismissed against him in Washington he was returned to New London for trial. In the police court he received a fine and costs, which will keep him a prisoner at the county jail until some time in March. He will then be re-arrested for the New Haven police had returned to that city for trial.

MYSTERIOUS PHONE CALL SENT IN BY SICK PUPPY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Jan. 31—The story was being told here Sunday of how a state policeman of the Danielson barracks travelled many miles over rough roads from about midnight until 3 o'clock Sunday morning, just to hear a sick puppy dog whine. The case which the officer was conducting was mysterious in every aspect from the outset. Shortly after midnight Miss Catherine Riley an operator at the local telephone exchange, plugged in for a call from Scotland. The only answer to her "number please" was a series of moans and groans, which led her to fear that some one was seriously ill or being attacked.

Sensing this danger the little switchboard girl performed one of those unselfish duties which have often been instrumental in saving lives and property. She called the local police headquarters and Officers Grant, Bombith and Arthur Hurley were allowed to listen to the moaning which could be heard distinctly over the wire. Scotland being out of local jurisdiction Lieut McLean gave orders to notify Constable Dube of Scotland. The latter could not be located and the Danielson barracks was summoned. Officer Merrill H. Keith responded. Awakening residents along the line to determine the location of the telephone being sought the officer finally came upon the right house. He called the occupants from their beds. Beside the telephone was a sick puppy which was moaning audibly. Near it was a telephone receiver which had been thrown from the hook as the animal struggled about in pain.

LABORERS IN VINEYARD FATHER REILLY'S SUBJECT

Yesterday was Septuagesima Sunday, the ninth Sunday before Easter. The epistle read in all the masses in the Catholic church was I Corinthians 9, 24 to 10:5. The gospel was the parable of the laborers in the vineyard, Matthew 20, 1-16. The vestments and altar hangings changed to violet, the color of penitence, in preparation for the coming of Lent, which begins Feb. 17th.

Preaching at the 9 o'clock mass in St. Patrick's church, Rev. John J. Reilly chose the two texts, "Go ye also into my vineyard; for many are called but few are chosen." Having considered all mankind as laborers in God's vineyard, the preacher quoted St. Paul's words, "When I was a child I spoke as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child; but having become a man I put away childish things." He explained the fact that so many men continue to play with childish toys, not sensing that the one great labor in life's vineyard is service for God. The mechanic at his bench, the scientist amid his books, the merchant building up a business, or the man hoarding wealth, too often grows absorbed i nhis particular pursuit, forgetting the one great interest of existence—laboring for salvation and to please the Creator.

"Go ye also into my vineyard" may prove, too, the command of God to certain rare souls which find their happiness only in God's service. To such the Almighty whispers the direct call to serve him at the altar in the convent. The family which God honors by choosing for himself its son for the priesthood, or its daughter for the sisterhood is signally favored by the Master of the vineyard, especially the mother of any child so chosen, set apart for God's special work. The preacher pointed out the duty and the happiness of parents to foster any such evidence of a vocation to the religious life among children, the influence of the mother, the co-operation of the father being most important. There may be cases where parents oppose such vocation considering children merely from selfish motives; though of social advancement, the equivalent of palm; but by contrast the equivalent quoted a verse setting forth the dignity, the supreme honor and the blessedness of the mother of a priest, who has a foretaste of Heaven here on earth.

Father Reilly assisted Rev. Alden B. Calvin who had read the low mass, in giving communion to the usual large number. Organist Henry J. Lee contained accompanied the Junior Choir in the hymns sung during the service.

The rector of the parish, Rt. Rev. Msgr. M H. May, who has been spending several weeks' vacation in Florida, returned Thursday night and read the 7:30 mass as usual Sunday morning.

HISTORIC OLD DOCUMENT PRESENTED TO CHURCH

At the meeting service at the United Congregational church Sunday, Rev. Alexander H. Robert called the attention of the congregation to a document, faded and yellow with age, that had been presented to him by Miss Sarah L. Tyler of 48 Union St., which is of much historical interest and value.

It is the list of contributors to the salary of the pastor of the old Second Congregational church at the time when Rev. Walter Ripley was pastor, about 1794. Names that are historic in the religious and civic life of Norwich are to be found in the list of about 40 or 50 contributors who agreed to make up the pastor's salary of about 126 pounds in English money, which would be about five times that amount in dollars.

Rev. Mr. Abbott will keep the old document in his study.

City Court Sentences Tramps

Four or five men classed as common tramps, arrested Friday in Carpenter's hall, Majestic building, were before the city court Saturday morning. Edward Monahan, 44, a frequent visitor at the court sessions, asked that he be sent to the state farm. He pleaded guilty to being a common drunkard and was sent to the farm for six months. Patrick Connolly, 51, tramp, and James Mulanby, 45, soldier of fortune, went to jail for 30 days. Edward Hackett, 58, and Joseph Bourjois, 65, pleaded guilty to intoxication and were fined $5 and costs each. They went to jail to work out their fines. John Smith, Third Baltic, got 30 days in jail.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Broadway Theatre

In the Keith-Albee vaudeville acts that opens at the Broadway theatre, the names Allan & Jean Corelli in "Unique Feats of Resistance," may be found. They will present a scientific demonstration of muscular control of the body that has baffled and puzzled medical men throughout the World war. Mr. Corelli weighs just 130 pounds, yet he issues a challenge to all Norwich; there is no man of any weight that he cannot life above his head. Local heavyweights are especially invited. He has the knack also of making himself so heavy that he cannot be lifted at all. Challenge is open to all.

There are four other acts that are every bit perfect entertainment.

Reginald Denny becomes the "1925 pioneer" of the open road in "California Straight Ahead," his latest starring Universal-Jewell feature, which opened last night at the Broadway theatre.

In this picture, which first night audiences hailed as one of the star's best, Denny sets forth for a motor trip across the continent in an elaborately constructed trailer. The trailer had been built for his honeymoon, but the honeymoon didn't come off because he showed up late for his wedding and his bride wouldn't marry him because she thought he'd been drinking.

That starts Denny off on a picture packed full of strange situations, mishaps, adventures, thrills and laughs, which makes "California Straight Ahead" one of the funniest light comedies of the season.

He is admirably supported by Gertrude Olmstead as leading woman, who finally agrees to marry the hero because he will not let her do anything else.

The supporting cast includes Tom Wilson, Charles Gerrard, Fred Esmelton, Lucille Ward, John Steppling, Leo Nomas and others.

The direction of Harry Pollard was unusually good, and gave the star every opportunity to display his talent as a fun-maker. Byron Morgan and the director collaborated on the story of "California Straight Ahead."

Breed Theatre

A large audience came, saw, and was conquered here "Romola," Lillian Gish's latest picture, opened at the Breed theatre yesterday for a run of four days. This production, directed by Henry King, is a film version of the famous novel by George Elliot. It is undoubtedly one of the outstanding achievements of an outstanding year in motion picture advancement. For beauty, drama and thrills it stands at the top.

Lillian Gish, as ever, is superb in the title role, and the picture has an added attraction in Dorothy Gish, who is seen with her sister for the first time since "Orphans of the Storm." Ronald Colman, of "The White Sister" fame, is the hero, and William H. Powell is the villain. Others in the cast include Charles Lane, Herbert Grimwood, and Amelia Summerville. "Romola" was filmed in Florence, Italy, the locale of the story, and this authenticity is very apparent. It is an inspiration picture. Charles D. Duell, Jr., president; distributed by Metro-Goldwyn.

Palace Theatre

This afternoon brings to the Palace, a great bill of Paramount vaudeville and a picture you have perhaps already heard about, Fannie Hurst's $50,000 Liberty Magazine story "Mannequin."

Beautiful Dolores Costello, who plays the heroine in James Cruze's new Paramount picture, "Mannequin," really broke into the movies before she ever appeared before a camera.

Miss Costello, who is a daughter of that old film favorite, Maurice Costello, was playing in "The Vanities," in Chicago, when James Montgomery Flagg was preparing to do some magazine illustrations for a story of the movies. Mr. Flagg saw Miss Costello on the stage. She struck him as a good movie type. He asked her to pose for a number of line drawings to go with the story.

It was while she was doing this that she was seen by a Hollywood producer, who was so struck by her beauty and personality that he signed her up.

In four months she appeared in two pictures. Then James Cruze saw her and chose her to play one of the featured roles in "Mannequin," which is an adaptation by Walter Woods of Fannie Hurst's $50,000 prize-winning story.

Tonight brings still a greater bill, in conjunction to the regular show there is going to be a Charleston contest, also five big amateur acts.

The names of the contestants for the Charleston contest appear in the Palace adv. of this paper, and by the number there is going to be some show. If you have any friends that are going to appear you had better go to the theatre and root for them as the judging is going to be done by the audience.

Here is how the contest will be run, tonight there will be two winners picked and next Monday night the same and so on until the finals. The night of the finals a hundred dollars will be awarded the winner of the juvenile class and a hundred dollars to the winner of the adult class.

The contestants that do not win tonight, will be given a chance to appear next Monday night.

In England, in the middle ages, the right of erecting dove cotes, or pigeon houses, was one of the privileges attached to manors, and as such was rigorously protected by law. In Scotland, by a statute still nominally in force, no person is allowed to build a pigeon house unless he owns land of a certain value within two miles of it.

Plaut-Cadden Co. to Award Merchandise

The climax of one of the biggest events ever sponsored by a local mercantile establishment, will take place this evening at 7:30, at the Norwich store of The Plaut-Cadden Co., when this company will distribute the $2,200 worth of merchandise which it is to give away. The distribution will be made by Mayor Milo Waters and representatives of the press, who will be assisted by the officers of The Plaut-Cadden Co. As thousands of people throughout eastern Connecticut have been looking forward hopefully to this event it is expected that a record-breaking crowd will be at the store when the distribution is made.

Palace Theatre

This afternoon brings to the Palace, a great bill of Paramount vaudeville and a picture you have perhaps already heard about, Fannie Hurst's $50,000 Liberty Magazine story "Mannequin."

Beautiful Dolores Costello, who plays the heroine in James Cruze's new Paramount picture, "Mannequin," really broke into the movies before she ever appeared before a camera.

Miss Costello, who is a daughter of that old film favorite, Maurice Costello, was playing in "The Vanities," in Chicago, when James Montgomery Flagg was preparing to do some magazine illustrations for a story of the movies. Mr. Flagg saw Miss Costello on the stage. She struck him as a good movie type. He asked her to pose for a number of line drawings to go with the story.

It was while she was doing this that she was seen by a Hollywood producer, who was so struck by her beauty and personality that he signed her up.

In four months she appeared in two pictures. Then James Cruze saw her and chose her to play one of the featured roles in "Mannequin," which is an adaptation by Walter Woods of Fannie Hurst's $50,000 prize-winning story.

Tonight brings still a greater bill, in conjunction to the regular show there is going to be a Charleston contest, also five big amateur acts.

The names of the contestants for the Charleston contest appear in the Palace adv. of this paper, and by the number there is going to be some show. If you have any friends that are going to appear you had better go to the theatre and root for them as the judging is going to be done by the audience.

Here is how the contest will be run, tonight there will be two winners picked and next Monday night the same and so on until the finals. The night of the finals a hundred dollars will be awarded the winner of the juvenile class and a hundred dollars to the winner of the adult class.

The contestants that do not win tonight, will be given a chance to appear next Monday night.

In England, in the middle ages, the right of erecting dove cotes, or pigeon houses, was one of the privileges attached to manors, and as such was rigorously protected by law. In Scotland, by a statute still nominally in force, no person is allowed to build a pigeon house unless he owns land of a certain value within two miles of it.

The Lighthouse Keeper's Philosophy

Let your light so shine before men that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in Heaven. —Matthew v:16.

Full twenty miles or more at sea,
The Captain and his wife
Maintained the lighthouse lamp for years
A solitary life!
Great ships upon the mighty deep,
And smaller craft at night,
With passengers and precious freight,
Depended on that light.
With constant care they made it shine
Across the sea afar,
When clouds concealed the faithful moon
And covered every star!
One day a crowd of visitors
Arrived, as many do,
Were welcomed, and inspected
The lighthouse through and through.
They noticed all was neat and clean,
"Immaculate," throughout;
And praised the Captain and his wife
For showing them about!
One caller sensed it more than most,
While gazing out to sea;
And tarried when the rest were gone,
Quite meditatively!
He thought of passing ships, and lives,
And dark, and storm, and death!
Of peril on the angry deep!
And fairly gasped for breath!
Then looking in the Captain's eye,
Waving his hand about,
Asked, "What would happen, Captain Burke,
If all your lights went out?"
With scorn as fine as ever put
Ignoble thoughts to rout,
The Captain said, "We are not here
To let these lights go out!
We spend our lives in solitude
To keep them burning bright,
That passing ships may safely sail
However dark the night!"
O Brother, learn this lesson, too,
Master, and make it thine!
Not here to let our lights go out,
But here to make them shine!
—By Rev.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

WEEKLY FINANCIAL REVIEW

NEW YORK, Jan. 31—(AP)—Resumption of the upward movement of stock prices, establishment of the highest level in several years by good prices and the easing of time money rates to the lowest levels since last October, were the most significant developments in this week's financial markets. The renewed movement of sterling and yen exchange towards gold parity also aroused considerable interest.

The recovery in the stock market started after an unsuccessful attempt of bear traders to unsettle the list on selling inspired by the failure of the United States Steel corporation directors to increase the amount of the extra dividend. The ease with which the offerings of bear traders were absorbed led to heavy short covering and a resumption of real operations in oils, coppers and specialties in which favorable dividends and merger developments are believed to be pending.

The advance in bond prices took place in the face of another huge volume of new offerings, most of which were promptly over-subscribed. New 1926 issues to date have averaged well over $100,000,000 a week.

Wheat prices advanced about 5 cents a bushel after eighty erratic fluctuations. Cotton futures moved within extremely narrow limits and closed practically unchanged on the week. The raw sugar market displayed a distinctly firmer tone, and moderate advances were made in coffee prices.

Benac; sub chief ranger, Hormidas Gladue; senior woodward, Wilfred Peltier; junior woodward, John Derosier; senior beadle, Joseph Lamothe; junior beadle, Albert Benoit; treasurer, Frank Durr; financial secretary, Ernest W. EMPLOYER HAS DRINKING TAXI OPERATOR ARRESTED

John Garrish, 24, local taxi driver, was presented in the city court Saturday morning on a charge of driving a machine while under the influence of liquor. At the suggestion of the city attorney the case was continued until Monday morning. Bonds of $300 were furnished.

Garrish was arrested early Saturday morning on complaint of his employer. Garrish had been to the firemen's ball in Jewett City Friday night and was using one of the cabs owned by his employer. On the way home, about 3 o'clock Saturday morning, the machine collided with several trees and was somewhat damaged.

The cab manager went to the scene and after investigating the matter brought Garrish to Norwich and turned him over to the police. The accident happened near Roubd Hill on the Jewett City road.

Call to Women Voters Convention

The board of directors of the National League of Women Voters, of which Miss Belle Sherwin is president, has issued a formal call for the League's seventh annual convention to be held in St. Louis, Mo., from April 14 to 21. Particular interest is centered in the St. Louis meeting, because it was in that city in 1919 that the organization was projected by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt.

How Skinny Kids Gain Needed Weight

Weak, undernourished, underweight boys and girls who are peevish, fretful and sickly need McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound tablets.

Cod Liver Oil would do just as well, but what parent would be so cruel as to give them the horrible nasty tasting, fil smelling stuff, when sugar coated cod liver oil tablets made by McCoy's Laboratories of New York are as easy to take as candy and won't upset their delicate stomachs.

There's more vitamines of the first class in cod liver oil than in anything else and for that reason thin, scraggly, sickly children commence to liven up and take on good healthy flesh after McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets have been taken for just a few days.

Be sure and ask Lee & Osgood Co. or any druggist for McCoy's, the original and genuine Cod Liver Oil Tablet. If you want your delicate children to become strong, robust and active.

For grown-ups they are just as wonderful—one woman gained 15 pounds in five weeks. 60 tablets 60 cents and if they don't put 5 pounds of good firm flesh on any thin person in 30 days, your druggist is authorized to hand you back the money you paid for them.

FOUR WOMEN IN HOSPITAL FROM AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT IN OCCUM

Blinded by the headlights of an oncoming machine, Fred Dugas, 35, of Taftville, ran his Essex coach into a group of young women on the Occum road shortly after 6 o'clock Sunday evening, injuring five, four of whom were taken to the W. W. Backus hospital. The fifth victim was able to return to her home in Occum. Mr. Dugas, driving south, was on his way to Taftville. At a point in the road a short distance this side of Occum, a machine headed north hove into view. The headlights on the oncoming machine blinded Mr. Dugas and in order to give himself plenty of clearance from the approaching machine, he swung to the right towards the trolley track which follows the side of the road.

The next moment his Essex coach had ploughed into the group of young women who were standing by the trolley tracks waiting for a Norwich bound trolley car. Five of them were knocked to the ground and injured. The list of injured:

Miss Alvina Benoit, broken leg; Miss Mary Rose Benoit, broken nose; Miss Frances Blanchette, badly shaken up; Miss Lillian Turcotte, badly shaken up; Miss Alice Fontaine, badly shaken up.

Dr. George Thompson of Taftville was called and a hurry call was sent in by telephone for the ambulance which responded, taking all of the injured girls with the exception of Miss Blanchette to the hospital where their injuries were treated. Constable Louis Paquette of Taftville was notified of the accident and conducted an investigation at the scene. According to the constable there was no evidence of reckless driving on the part of Mr. Dugas who was not held.

One of the accident victims was knocked onto the trolley tracks and narrowly escaped being run over by the trolley car which she had planned to board for Norwich. As the trolley car, leaving Occum at 6 o'clock, was nearing the scene of the accident, Motorman Raymond Carlson got a bell to make the stop at which the girls had been standing. As he neared the stop he had slowed down considerably and noticing a group of people standing in the road, suddenly became aware of the fact that there was someone on the tracks. He stopped his car within a few feet of the auto victim, prostrate on the trolley tracks.

CONSTABLE LAMBERT HURT WHEN TROLLEY HITS AUTO

Gustave E. Lambert, the well known constable and former pugilist, received a broken rib and a bad cut under his left eye Saturday evening about 6.30 when he drove his Ford touring car onto the trolley tracks near the Point saloon directly in front of an approaching trolley car on Boswell avenue. He is a patient at the W. W. Backus hospital and on Sunday evening was reported as resting very comfortably.

Mr. Lambert was driving down Boswell avenue and intended to make the turn south onto North Main St., at the Point saloon corner. As he neared the tracks he saw an approaching one man trolley car, south bound. The motorman, Louis Beckwith, noticed the automobile and slowed down. Mr. Lambert also slowed down and evidently under the impression that the car was going to come to a stop he suddenly drove his machine onto the tracks, just at the same moment that the motorman threw on the power.

Mr. Lambert's machine was squarely on the tracks when the trolley car crashed into the side of the touring car. The ambulance was hurriedly called and Mr. Lambert was rushed to the W. W. Backus hospital where his injuries were treated. His machine, especially the left side, was badly damaged. The constable was unconscious when taken to the hospital and remained so for a long time.

Their opening selection was "At Evening Time," which was followed by "A Little Talk With Jesus." Their voices blended with fine effect and their singing was with pleasing harmony and expression. Two other selections which they rendered were "Look Away To Jesus" and "Steal Away." After the sermon by the pastor, Rev. D. A. Pitt, D. D., the quartette sang "The Old Rugged Cross."

The members of the quartette are: David Merritt Carlyle, first tenor; Rodney Rogers Carlyle, second tenor; Charles Rodney Carlyle, baritone; William Desmond Taylor, bass.

FOUND AUTO WRECKER MILL BURGLARS USED

Metropolitan methods were brought to Norwich Saturday morning when two masked burglars entered the Saxton Co. woolen mill at Norwich Town, tied up the watchman, and tried to drill their way into the safe but without success. They left in an automobile, which it is believed was a wrecker truck stolen Friday night from the Royle garage at Trading Cove.

State Policeman Albright, of the Groton barracks, found the truck abandoned in a side street off Williams street, New London.

Albert Hill, 56, watchman at the mill, was confronted by one of the burglars in the finishing room on the second story as he was making his rounds about 3 o'clock. At the command, "Up with your hands," Mr. Hill dashed his lantern at the burglars and then dashed for the stairway. He heard a revolver shot behind him and ran into the second burglar on the stairs.

The two burglars overpowered him, tied him in a chair, fixed the fires and then went to the office building where they worked on the safe with an electric drill, which they had secured with other tools, from the machine shop of the mill. All the damage they did to the safe, which had no money in it, according to Charles H. Saxton, president of the woolen mill company, was to knock off the combination dial.

Giving up their work on the safe, they tried to get into the garage where Mr. Saxton had an automobile, but in this they were unsuccessful. They then apparently left the mill.

Nothing was known of the burglary attempt until about 4 o'clock, when Earl Hill, who peddles milk, stopped at the mill to see his father as he is accustomed to do each morning. He heard his father calling to him and went into the mill, where he found Mr. Hill tied up and released him.

They notified Mr. Saxton by telephone and he immediately telephoned to police headquarters, where Sergeant John H. Casey took the message and at once let Constable Lucius Fenton, of Norwich Town, know of the burglary. The state police at Groton were also notified and began work on the case with Constable Fenton.

Because of the darkness and the cloths tied over the burglars' faces, the watchman could give but little description of the men except to say that one was tall and the other short.

YANTIC COMMITTEE EXPECTS WORD FROM REV. R. B. DAY

It is expected by the committee of Grace Episcopal church, Yantic, that the matter of the return of the former rector, Rev. R. B. Day, will be settled this month. After leaving Yantic for his home in England, Rev. Mr. Day took a charge in Dorset county, a small but very pleasing church. As a matter of course, he cannot accept the call to return to his Yantic charge until released from this English engagement.

The committee extending the Yantic call is Walter G. Hitchon, chairman, Herbert M. Hitchon, R. V. Congdon and Miss Mary St. John Rudd.

A cable to Walter G. Hitchon announced recently that Rev. Mr. Day was expecting to see him in February. This is all that the committee has been informed regarding Mr. Day's acceptance of the call to come back, but the members are awaiting more definite word from him at any time. During his pastorate in Yantic Rev. Mr. Day was popular with all the resident of the villages, also made many friends in Norwich Town and Norwich.

Saturday night was a big night with Norwich lodge of Moose which had a class of 30 for initiation. Capt. Harry Swatzburg with his new degree team and officers of the lodge exemplified the work in a manner that won general commendation. The new uniforms added brilliancy to the event and the 200 members present were greatly pleased with the way Capt. Swatzburg and his team handled the business of the evening. Music was furnished by the Ideal Radio orchestra.

At 11.30 a buffet lunch of sandwiches, crullers and coffee was served, which had been preceded at 10 o'clock by an entertainment in which W. J. Banfield gave his famous sleight of hand performance. Bernard Wunderlich, who was chairman in charge of the initiation event, was congratulated for his success in assembling such a large class and getting out such a large attendance of the members for the initiation.

AUTOMOBILE BECOMING SCOURGE OF CHILDHOOD

The automobile, in the past ten years, has become one of the great scourges of childhood. In 1915 there were more deaths from measles than from automobile accidents; in 1925 the death rate for the latter exceeded the measles rate approximately seven fold. Ten years ago the combined death rate for the four principal communicable diseases of childhood was about seven times as high as that for automobile accidents, and diphtheria alone caused four times as many deaths as did the motor vehicle; but in 1925, the number of deaths from all four diseases combined does not greatly exceed the death toll of the automobile; and the later, now kills three persons to diphtheria's two.

These facts are a part of a report relating to more than seventeen million industrial policyholders of the Metropolitan Life Insurance company. The statistical division of that company also reports that among these policyholders there were 3,724 deaths from automobile accidents in 1925 as compared with 2,456 deaths from the same cause in 1924 and the death rate rose from 15.9 per 100,000 to 16.7. The death rate from this type of accidents has increased 50 per cent since 1920; has more than tripled since 1915; and is now seven times as high as it was in 1911.

The life insurance company's statistician states that approximately 40 per cent. of these deaths were among children under fifteen years of age and reports that the automobile in 1925 proved to be a greater menace to child life than scarlet fever and whooping cough combined.

The Metropolitan statistical division shows the upward trend of the automobile death rate by comparing it with the deaths from certain other causes for the years 1915 and 1925. In 1915, for example, there were two and one-half deaths from typhoid fever to every one automobile fatality; in 1925 there were almost four deaths in automobile accidents to every one from typhoid fever. The automobile death rate in 1915 was higher than that for diabetes, whereas ten years ago the latter killed three times as many as did the auto. More than one-quarter of all accidental deaths in 1925 were caused by the automobile, which was responsible for only one in every thirteen fatal accidents in 1915. Ten years ago, three deaths occurred in railroad accidents to every two due to automobiles; but in 1925 there were nearly four and one-half times as many caused by automobiles as occurred in railroad casualties.

ASHFORD FOUNDATION PROBABLE AT WARRENVILLE

At the party held at Knowlton Memorial hall, Warrenville, Friday evening about 250 were in attendance, chiefly young people.

A bounteous supper preceded a short business meeting held concerning the proposed Ashford Foundation Of the fifty subscribers needed before proceeding to organization, it was reported that 46 had been secured and three more were added during the evening. It is quite likely that a good number more will join before the formal meeting for incorporation.

It is the plan to form a non-stock corporation under the laws of Connecticut and to establish a fund, the income only of which will be used toward the maintenance and social uses of the Knowlton building, the officers of the Foundation co-operating with the town officials under some plan mutually acceptable. Such a Foundation Fund may be applied to other community benefits as its managers from time to time may decide.

Statement was made of the intention of C. A. Hammond Knowlton to co-operate generously with the Foundation financially and a night letter was read from Asheville, N. C., where Mr. Knowlton is spending the winter, indicating some of his definite plans for co-operation. Further details will be announced when the incorporators meet for organization.

Following the business meeting, Fred H. Bishop a Boston business man, who after many years had come back to the old-home town because of his interest in the plans for the Foundation, was introduced. He is a charter member of Babcock Cornet band, a veteran of the Civil war, enlisting from Ashford. Mr. Bishop is still a fine musician and at 76 holds active membership in a glee club in Boston, and is a very successful business man, traveling in many sections of the U. S.. Mr. Bishop certainly proved a live wire during the evening. He spoke of his experiences in a hospital at Washington during the war, and of his personal knowledge of the afternoon visits to the hospital of President Lincoln when after the burden of cares at the White House, the president would visit the wounded and sick soldier boys and bring them cheer and comfort. His good humor and stories would lighten up his wonderful countenance, and the boys each day watched for his coming.

After Mr. Bishop's brief address, an incident was related of his brother, also a charter member of the band and enlisting from Ashford, now deceased. He returned from the war after an honorable discharge and came back to the home town unexpectedly. He was a fine cornet player and he was carrying his cornet as he came home. As he walked from Warrenville up the Westford road toward his home the house where the Alexander Bassett family now lives, he peered by the roadside about half a mile away and began to play "Home, Sweet Home." Mystified at first his folks at home soon recognized the familiar melody, rushing forth to greet the son and brother.

Rev. T. Hawthorne Jones and Mrs. Jones of Mansfield Center were present as guests, and Mr. Jones gave a most interesting talk on the city of Washington, illustrated by lantern slides. Mrs. Jones told a story or two, and congratulated the people of Ashford on their possession of such a wonderful building for public and social uses.

The floor was then cleared and the dancing was on, with Prof. Lyman's orchestra in lively action. There was an alternating of the old-fashion square dances with the more modern, and the veteran prompter, Alexander Bassett, told the young folks, and reminded their elders, how to do the figures. Somebody let loose a cloud of red balloons and the dancers kept them sailing in the air, making a pretty spectacle. Mrs. E. A. Buck was in charge of the supper with efficient helpers, and the whole affair was a notable success.

MITCHELL RENEWS ATTACK ON WAR AND NAVY DEPARTMENTS

To Tour the Country to "Bring True Condition Straight to the People"—Asserts It Will Be in a More Forcible Way Than He Could Have Done if He Had Remained "Muzzled in the Army"—Will Make Lecture Tour of the Country For Next Three Months.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP)—William Mitchell, private citizen, resumed late today his fight against war and navy management of the national defense.

The former air officer took up the cudgel just five hours after he received official notification that his commission as colonel, U. S. A., had been vacated at his request by direction of President Coolidge. He recalled his efforts to "better conditions from within the service" and declared his intention as a citizen to keep up the struggle for a national defense "organized in a single department."

Mitchell's statement, the first of the kind issued since he attacked the war and navy departments in the celebrated statements he made public in San Antonio last September, which led to his conviction and sentence by a court martial for insubordination, was a bristling denunciation of existing defense policies.

Striking out against "military bureaucracy," he declared, "our government has become one of bureaucratic domination."

At the same time, he announced that he would tour the country for the next three months to carry "straight to the people" a picture of "the true condition of our national defense." This, he said, he could do better as a citizen than "by remaining muzzled in the army."

Army and navy bureaucracies, he declared, "have consistently and purposely misled congress and the people. * * * have manipulated the laws so they can control the armed forces even against the action of the president himself, * * * have coerced, bulldozed and attempted to ruin patriotic officers," and have shaken the land and sea forces in their conception of duty.

Characterizing "the military bureaucracy" as "one of the greatest menaces to our free institutions," he asserted that "the bureaucratic party" was more powerful than the democrats and republicans, more powerful than the influence of any creed or sect or religious order."

The statement failed to disclose Mitchell's future plans. He explained, however, that he intended to visit his old home in Wisconsin upon the expiration of his lecture travels, and within a year or so intended to leave the United States for a hunting expedition into Africa, Mitchell said:

"Every statement I have made has been supported by good and sufficient evidence. Good has already resulted and much more will follow.

"From now on I feel that I can better serve my country and the flag I love by bringing a realization of the true condition of our national defense straight to the people, than by remaining muzzled in the army.

"I shall always be on hand in case of war or emergency, wherever I am needed."

UNUSUAL DOUBLE WEDDING IN THE VANDERBILT HOME

NEW YORK, Fe. 1—(AP)—An unusual double wedding took place on the afternoon of January 7, in the palatial Vanderbilt home in Fifth avenue.

While hundreds of guests were gathered in the great drawing room to await the marriage of Miss Consuelo Vanderbilt, to Earl E. T. Smith, a quiet ceremony was being concluded in an adjoining room to effect the remarriage, in the ritual of the family faith, of her sister, Muriel, to Frederick Cameron Church, Jr., few if any of the guests had the slightest inkling of the unscheduled ceremony.

Confirmation of the report that the two ceremonies—so dissimilar in the staging—occurred almost simultaneously came tonight from an authorized spokesman for Mrs. W. K. Vanderbilt, mother of both girls.

Muriel's re-marriage occurred just a few minutes before that of her sister," the statement said, "and Father Thomas F. Murphy officiated at both."

At the formal marriage of the daughter in Newport, last July, a Protestant minister officiated. Intimate friends of the two families freely discussed the efforts which had been made to stain an agreement for a Catholic ceremony, their failure being attributed to the groom's persistent refusal to agree to contingent conditions.

It is believed that romantic setting of the Vanderbilt home influenced the churches to accede to Mrs. Vanderbilt's wishes and to go through a second ceremony in the form which had carried those of the family for generations.

ACCIDENTS CAUSED BY SLEET COVERED STREETS

NEW YORK, Fe. 1—(AP)—Two persons in New York city lost their lives today and a dozen others were injured in accidents caused by sleet covered streets and icy pavements. Surface cars, elevated train service and vehicular traffic were delayed.

Similar conditions prevailed throughout New York state and southern New England. A chilling northeast wind, accompanied by a sharp drop in temperature last night, transformed an area which previously was sodden with rain into an area of ice and sleet.

A 22-year-old Brooklyn mother, Mrs. Persina Di Ambrosia, was crushed by a skidding motor truck. She saved the baby she was carrying by tossing it to safety just before she was run down. The baby suffered a broken leg.

Mrs. Mary Davis, of Greenwich Village died of burns when an overheated stove set fire to her bed.

At Boston, a motor bus and a street car collided, injuring the bus driver and three other persons seriously enough to require surgical attention.

Providence, R. I., reported four persons injured, two seriously, as a direct result of the storm. From all sections there were reports of minor accidents and slight personal injuries, due to skidding cars and icy sidewalks.

AID TO BREAK UP COAL, MILK AND OIL TRUSTS

NEW YORK, Feb. 1—(AP)—The World Vigilance, Inc., an organization formed for the purpose of breaking up so-called coal, milk and oil trusts, is looking for a man of the caliber of Governor Pinchot of Pennsylvania, to head its committee of natural resources, Dr. Charles F. Gilman announced tonight.

In making this announcement, Dr. Gilman, who is president of the organization, denied an earlier statement attributed to him that Governor Pinchot would accept the post. He said that the governor had not been approached on the matter and might not be, but that he was the sort of man being sought.

PONZI EXPLAINS HIS LATEST PLAN TO ACQUIRE WEALTH

TAMPA, Fla., Feb. 2—(AP)—Charles Ponzi said today he is in Tampa for two reasons, he is waiting to obtain a pardon with restoration of citizenship through the medium of thousands of signatures which he plans to get from visitors at the South Florida fair. Secondly, he is quietly mapping out a campaign to sell a large section of Florida to these people.

Ponzi has been unable to obtain a booth at the fair. When he applied for space, he was informed by General Manager Strieder that all available booths had been leased. Nothing daunted he held a feast at noon today with a number of close friends and informed them he would carry out his intentions whether he had a booth at the fair or not.

Surrounded by his guests, Ponzi discoursed briefly on his latest effort to regain his fortune and pay back about $2,000,000 to creditors.

"There is more than one way to take the skin off a cow," he declared. "To Ponzi nothing is impossible."

Explaining his latest plan to acquire wealth, Ponzi said the idea is to cut up cheap acerage into cheap lots of 25 by 50 feet and sell them for $100, which will allow him to pay generous dividends to investors, who join with him in purchasing the acreage and still leave a margin of profit for Ponzi. He has already bought a tract in Columbia county, he said, and this will be the first piece of real estate he will offer to prospective investors at the south Florida fair grounds.

Ponzi would not reveal the method by which he hopes to catch the attention of visitors at the fair. Although he kept that a secret, several of his close friends ventured the prediction that he will set up a booth on the outside of the ground and near the entrance. The fair will open tomorrow. Then, and only then, Ponzi declares, will the public know his plan.

PLURAL WIVES UNABLE TO REACH AN AGREEMENT

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 1—(AP)—A pacific accord could not be reached privately today between the deserted wife of the late Charles Ward, who died last Wednesday, and the woman with whom he had lived for the last fourteen years, as to which of them was entitled to his body and the privilege of arranging for its burial.

Attorneys, despairing of reaching a compromise otherwise, brought the two women before Judge Frederick A. Bartlett in probate court.

It was held immdeiately that Mrs Charles Ward, West Haven, is the legal wife of the railroad brakeman and that Elizabeth Carter Ward, 157 East Main street, and Ward's two sons born to her, had no standing in court.

Mrs Ward, of West Haven, was given an order to present to Funeral Director Joseph Gorman, 360 John street, which directed that the body be removed at her direction and that of no one else.

Mrs. Elizabeth Carter Ward had completed arrangements for Ward's burial in a plot in Lakeview cemetery. His West Haven wife will remove it to New Haven for burial according to her personal wishes.

The probate court hearing was brief. Attorney Joseph G. Shapiro presented proof of the claim of the West Haven woman, and Attorney Harry Silverstone admitted that his client, Mrs. Elizabeth Carter Ward, was not the legal wife of Ward.

GOV. SMITH WOULD CONSERVE HYDRO-ELECTRIC RIGHTS

ALBANY, N. Y., Feb. 1.—(AP)—Governor Smith, in a special message to the legislature tonight fired a broadside at the state water power commission for a recent report announcing the projected leasing of hydro-electric rights along the Niagara and St. Lawrence rivers to private interests.

"The history of all the grants of water power at Niagara Falls should in itself," the governor declared, "be sufficient to condemn the policy of giving away for small annual rentals these great properties which should be preserved for our use and the use of our children.

"The two great sources of hydro-electric energy are at Niagara Falls and on the St. Lawrence river. Corporations eager to get control of these water powers have been working on the project for years."

Creation of a state water power authority within the conservation commission, to have jurisdiction over preparation of a comprehensive plan for development of the state's power resources, was suggested as a solution of the problem.

NEW YORK PATROLMAN SENTENCED TO ELECTROCUTION

NEW YORK, Feb. 1—(AP)—Patrolman John J. Brennan today was sentenced to die in the electric chair during the week of March 8 for the killing of Samuel Krainin, a glazier, in Brooklyn police station on January 5. The usual motions to set aside the verdict recently returned against Brennan were denied by County Judge McLaughlin.

Brennan shot Krainin when Krainin came to the police station to file complaint of an earlier assault. Brennan's defense was that he was crazed with liquor.

CONTRIBUTIONS FOR OLD TIME STAFFORD FIDDLER

HARTFORD, Feb. 1.—(AP)—John Comfort, 84 years old and almost blind, left the Stafford town farm last Thursday to take part in the finals of the state old-time fiddlers' contest at the Capitol theater that night. Off stage was an microphone, and before Mr. Comfort started to play, the announcer described him briefly for the benefit of the WTIC radio listeners.

Mr. Comfort aroused the sympathy of the audience although he did not win any of the three prizes offered. The old man's plight evidently also moved his invisible audience, for tonight announcement was made from the Travelers' radio station that a number of contributions had been received today for Mr Comfort together with words of sympathy and encouragement.

U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals at San Francesco Upholds Cancellation of Naval Oil Land Leases.

SAN FRANCISCO, Feb. Cal., Feb. 1—(AP)—Edward L. Doheny, oil magnate, today lost his fight in the United States circuit court of appeals to prevent cancellation of the Doheny leases in the naval oil reserves in California.

A petition seeking reversal of the court's recent decision in the case was overruled. Counsel for Doheny was given a stay of execution to enable him to prepare an appeal to the United States supreme court.

The circuit court decision stripped the oil magnate of all his rights to naval oil lands in California under the leases and also cancelled some $17,000,000 in allowances granted by the trial court for work done at Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and in the California fields under the leases.

RAILWAY EMPLOYES ASK WAGE INCREASES

CHICAGO, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Application for wage increases which spokesmen of the railway managements said would exceed, in some cases, 1920 peak rates was filed with the railroads today by the train service brotherhoods.

Officials of the Chicago and Northwestern said that their employes, in filing the application, had announced the same demands were being made today upon all roads of the country.

Meanwhile the railroad labor board had before it approximately 70 submissions for changes in rates or rules. Although the train service brotherhoods and the firemen were involved in a few of these, most came from smaller organizations.

The train and engine brotherhoods conducted the conferences with railroad executives which resulted in proposals for supplanting the board, which are said to be supported by most of the roads and twenty employes' organizations.

Among the standard organizations who have filed wage cases with the board are those of the clerks, telegraphers, dispatchers, and maintenance of way employes. Numerous less known organizations, such as organizations of ship's cooks employed by railway companies, were also represented.

PROVISIONS OF TAX BILL ATTAINED IN THE SENATE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP)—The program of senate leaders for speeding up consideration of the tax reduction bill was jolted today as opponents launched attacks on several provisions.

At the conclusion of a session devoted entirely to debate, during which less than 25 members were on the floor most of the time, a proposal to meet an hour early tomorrow as blocked by Senators Couzens of Michigan, and Norris of Nebraska, republican.

Reiterating that he desired to discuss freely some items of the bill, Senator Norris warned leaders "you aren't going to make any progress if you start the steam roller."

Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, in charge of the bill, then declared he would hold the senate in session tomorrow night until six o'clock. Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking democrat on the committee, asserted if tax reduction by March 15, was to be assured, consideration of the bill must be hastened.

SEEKING NEW TRIAL OF $250,000 ALIENATION SUIT

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 1—(AP)—A new trial of the $250,000 alienation of affections suit of Alice White Shallit of Brookline, Mass., against her mother-in-law, Mrs. Annie R. Shallit of Portland, in which a jury in the Maine Supreme Judicial court today returned a verdict of $7,000 for the plaintiff, will be asked by the defense in a motion to be addressed to the Maine law court.

The motion for a new trial is expected to be based on the contention that the verdict was against the weight of the evidence, and against the law. Special interest is attached to a plea which may supplement this, asking for a re-trial on the grounds of newly discovered evidence, which the defense believes, will show that perjury was committed by several witnesses for the plaintiff.

NEARLY CAUSED FIVE DEATHS BY POISONED CANDY

CHICAGO, Feb. 1—(AP)—A mother's dread of losing her only daughter by marriage was attributed today as a motive that nearly caused the death of five persons by poisoned candy. A box of candy was received by Briggs on Dec. 23 at the office where he is employed. Briggs and several girls tasted the candy but found it unpalatable and some of them were ill for several days, an analysis showed the candy contained poison and ground glass.

New Aircraft Engine Met Fifty Hour Test

Designed and Completed by the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft Company of Hartford.

HARTFORD, Feb. 1—(AP)—In the remarkable time of six months, the Pratt and Whitney Aircraft company, which began last August to design an aircraft engine, has completed the work, built and tested the engine and met all the requirements of the United States navy fifty hour test.

Commander E. E. Wilson, chief of the engine section of the bureau of aeronautics, at the navy department, in Washington, D. C., who came to Hartford this morning to inspect the engine, said that he was surprised to find that such a remarkable task had been accomplished in so short a time. He said that the usual time required to build and test such a machine is anywhere from eighteen months to two years. He complimented the officers and designers of the company highly for the efficiency that they had shown in turning out such a finished product.

Chance Vought, the designer and the manufacturer of all the airplanes used by the battleships and new scout cruisers and on the aircraft carrier, Langley, was also present this morning and expressed his approval of the results of the test. He was warm in his praise of the performance of the new engine. It will be in the machines built by Mr. Vought that the new engine will receive its first tests in the air.

F. B. Rentschler, president of the Aircraft company, said that the completion of the test of the first engine meant that his company would soon proceed with the manufacture of additional engines and that his company would soon be ready to employ more of the highly skilled Hartford labor which had already proven satisfactory for this exacting mechanical work.

SOLDIERS ON GUARD DURING TRIAL OF NEGRO

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 1—(AP)—Lexington slept calmly tonight while khaki clad soldiers marched upon the city. Tomorow Ed Harris, negro, will go on trial for his life, which the state now protects with 1,000 soldiers.

He has confessed to the murder of Clarence Bryant and his two children, and to attack upon Mrs. Bryant, wife and mother of the victims. The state will ask he be hanged.

Meanwhile to protect him, martial law conditions will prevail while he is on trial.

Lexington will be a beleaguered city, insofar as outsiders are concerned. Military orders will be enforced if necessary, with gun butts, bayonets, tear gas—or bullets in extreme cases. Interurban cars, motor busses and private cars will be stopped at the outskirts of the city where triple guards will be maintained throughout the day to avert mob violence.

Business in the hearts of the city will cease. Seven banks in the restricted area about the court house, will be closed and business houses will be devoid of customers.

Tomorrow, thirteen days after he almost wiped out the Bryant family, Harris will be brought here from the Frankfort reformatory where he was taken for safe keeping. Harris is expected to plead guilty.

GASOLINE PRICES RAISED BY SINCLAIR REFINING CO.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(AP) — The pendulum of gasoline prices, which swung upward again, started to climb higher today when the Sinclair Refining Co., announced an increase of one-half a cent a gallon in railroad tank car lots at New York, Philadelphia and all Atlantic coast terminals. The new tank car price is 12 cents a gallon.

The announcement of higher gasoline prices by Sinclair Refining came within a few hours of an advance of 25 cents a barrel in Mid-Contenent crude by the Sinclair Crude Oil Purchasing Co. in which several other companies joined later in the day. Higher crude prices were regarded as inevitable because of the premiums being paid in the Mid-Continent field by purchases in need of oil and the steady increase in crude oil production during the last few months.

Whether other companies will follow Sinclair in raising gasoline prices at this time is problematical. Increases at various points have been announced during the last two months by the Standard Oil Companies of New Jersey, New York, Indiana, California and Ohio, as well as by some independents.

SON IS VISITING FORMER KAISER IN HOLLAND

DORN, Holland, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Profiting by the first day of the abolition of the visa between Germany and Holland, former Crown Prince Federick William of Germany arrived here today and passed through the village to his father's chateau.

The meeting between the former emperor and his son was very touching, for it was the first time in more than two years that they had seen one another. William embraced his son and was unable to master his emotion, but the former crown prince displayed his usual gaity.

Princess Hermine, who had previously made visit to Frederick William at Oels, is reported to have greatly facilitated the reconciliation, which, owing to the prince's attitude in militaristic and monarchists quarters in Germany had been deemed impossible. It is thought, however, that the principal reason for the reconciliation is to be found in the matter of the settlement of the royal properties, which, rumor says, President Von Hindenburg has promised to be favorable to the former royal families.

The police guard around the chateau has been doubled.

STAMPS WORTH $260,000 TAKEN FROM PAWTUCKET P.O.

Four Masked Men Worked For Three Hours and a Half Cutting Through Steel Vault—Had Trussed Up a Night Clerk and Watchman—Largest Robbery Ever Suffered by the Postal Department in New England—Inspectors Declare That Tracing of the Stolen Matter Will Take Some Time.

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Feb. 1—(AP)—Postal officials and police were apparently without a clue tonight to the robbery of the Central Post Office early today. Within two minutes walk of a police station, four armed and masked men worked for three hours and a half cutting through a steel vault after trussing up a night clerk and the watchman, and escaped with the office's complete supply of stamps.

Inspectors sent here from Boston said the loss would not exceed $50,000, but word came from Boston that the chief inspector there placed the loss at $260,000.—New England's greatest postal robbery in history.

Four men whom a waiter described as "tough looking birds" took some food in a restaurant near the post office shortly before the attack was made, and a gasoline filling station employe reported that four men stopped there not long before the raid. The local police were co-operating with four inspectors from Boston and Worcester, and another inspector was expected from Washington.

Park D. Colvin, chief inspector for New England, said that the stolen stamps constituted the entire supply of the Pawtucket office. There were done up in the usual form, 10,000 to a package, and included stamps of every denomination.

"This is the biggest postal robbery that has even taken place in New England," Mr. Colvin said, "but large as it is I am certain that the culprits will be caught. There has never been a major postal robbery anywhere in the country in which those guilty have not eventually been brought to justice."

There was no prospect of immediate arrests, it was stated, as tracing of the stolen matter would take time and there was only a meagre description of the hold-up men.

Three inspectors, (Breslin, Pendleton and Anderson) are at work on the case in Pawtucket it was said here. Inspector Reilly has been ordered to that city from Worcester, and Inspector Sullivan of the Boston office, now in Washington, was ordered by telegraph to report at Pawtucket.

There is a standing offer of $1,000 for information leading to arrest and conviction in any postal robbery, and $1,000 additional if it is proven that weapons were used. A special reward covering the Pawtucket robbery will probably be offered, Mr. Colvin said, but decision as to that will doubtless be made in Washington.

SAVED OFFICERS AND CREW OF A DUTCH FREIGHTER

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(AP)—The wireless raised its voice today above its week-long chorus of distress to tell of another rescue from the Atlantic's unleashed gale.

It sputtered a brief dozen words into the Hamburg-American offices from Capt. Carl Graalfs, of the liner Westphalia, saying he had saved the officers and crew of the Dutch freighter Alkaid.

"Crew of Alkaid taken aboard," he said. "All well. To proceed to New York."

The now familiar refrain of distress was immediately resumed, telling today of one more ship floundering and another sixteen days overdue and lost. It was the fifteenth repetition of that refrain since the gale began eight days ago.

The Westphalia, carrying 248 passengers, was due today, but is not expected now until Thursday or Friday.

The missing ship which figured in today's messages is the British freighter Ryburn, which left Rotterdam on December 28, with a load of coal for Philadelphia, she is sixteen days overdue, and no word has been heard from her since she left Rotterdam.

An appeal was broadcast to ships at sea, asking if they had sighted her during the storm. She had 32 officers and men aboard.

In response to another message, the liner West Inskip had put about and was hurrying to the aid of the Johanne Dybwald, but was 117 miles away and fighting heavy seas.

The Johanne Dybwald called for help from mid-Atlantic, where, she said, she had been "badly smashed" by the storm. She was bound from Barry, England, to Boston.

While the Westphalia was on the way to port with her band of rescued seamen, the Neptune Association met today to plan a welcome for those who negotiated the first heroic rescue of the week.

STORM WAS SEVERE IN NORTHERN NEW ENGLAND

BOSTON, Feb. 1—(AP)—A heavy storm which held this part of New England in its grip since last night had abated somewhat tonight, but not before two men had died of exposure. Trolley and bus lines were badly hampered and hundreds of motorists left their automobiles under cover to add to the burdens of trains, subways and surface lines.

William Taylor, of Rochdale, was found frozen to death near his home and Placide Chaissos succumbed to exposure in the woods near Quincy. A trolley car collided with a bus in the Jamaica Plain district and several persons were cut and bruised. The shore roads in the vicinity of Boston were covered with water when the wind carried the high surf across them.

A small army of workmen labored to clear street car tracks and switches of snow, and many steamers were held in port. The New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad's Cape Cod wires were put out of commission for a time by sleet and ice and commercial lines were used for despatching.

From Portland, Me., came news of the heaviest storm of the season and early tonight 4 1-2 inches of snow had fallen. The mercury ranged from 15 to 20 above and the snow fall made all but the main highways impassable. In Southern New Hampshire storm conditions continued and six inches of snow was reported in many sections of the state.

SMELTING ROOM EXPLOSION INJURED TWO WORKMEN

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 1—(AP)—Two workmen were taken to the Bridgeport hospital and several others were treated by private physicians for minor injuries as the result of an explosion in the smelting room in the plant of the Manufacturers Iron Foundry company, 740 Union avenue, this afternoon.

Those in the hospital are: Joseph Povloski, 41, 277 Jefferson street, possible fracture of ribs, and Louis Roullon, 25, of 74 Seeley street, under observation. The condition of both was said to be good at the hospital tonight.

The explosion was attributed by Fred R. Carstensf, owner of the factory, to the ignition of a gas pocket which had formed in the room, which is called the cupola. Both Povloski and Roullon were knocked violently down by the force of the blast and other laborers, who were farther away, were bowled over.

Employes in other parts of the factory rushed to the smelting room and found Roullion unconscious on the floor and Povloski groaning with pain. The room was filled with smoke. Roullion was rushed to the hospital in a car of one of the employes, and the emergency ambulance, while Dr. Mark Gildea, was called to take Povloski to the hospital.

POSSIBILITY OF PROBE OF ALUMINUM COMPANY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1.—(AP)—A general investigation by the senate of the practices of the Aluminum company of America, in which Secretary Mellon is a stockholder, appeared tonight as a possibility.

Such an inquiry was proposed today to the judiciary committee by Senator Walsh, democrat, Montana, prosecutor of the investigation to determine whether the department of justice has proceeded with due diligence in determining whether the company has violated federal court decrees.

After the committee had taken this proposal under advisement, Attorney General Sargent advised the senate in an "informal" opinion that the justice department was without authority under present law to compel the federal trade commission to furnish evidence in the case which the commission holds to be "confidential."

A senate investigation was discussed both in the senate and house.

Arrangements have been made by the Chamber of Commerce for a novel entertainment to be given in the Windham High school auditorium at 8 o'clock Friday evening of this week. The program will consist of a demonstration of the operation of a telephone switchboard and will be open to the public. The Chamber has secured the co-operation of the telephone company and this demonstration, which has already been given in other cities in the state, has met with favor everywhere. It is pointed out that it assisted greatly to explain to the telephone using public how to make the most of their ... service, and, incidentally, it is highly entertaining and amusing. Twelve persons take part in the demonstration. A miniature switchboard is set up and in the first part of the program the operators show how a telephone call from one subscriber to another is handled. Other operators demonstrate how toll line calls are handled and there also is a complete explanation and demonstration of the so-called A-B service.

Following the demonstration of the switchboard, which embraces explanations of the many phrases commonly used by operators such as "The line is busy," "They do not answer," and others, and the various reasons why these situations arise, a laughable sketch is presented by other actors and actresses taken from the ranks of the telephone workers.

The purpose of arranging this demonstration is to give the public a better understanding of the telephone industry and the vigilance that is maintained in attempting to give the subscriber the kind of service which he deserves. But, primarily, the demonstration aims to impress upon the public the fact that with their co-operation better service can be given to the greatest satisfaction of all concerned, namely the subscribers, the telephone workers and the management of the company.

At the close of the demonstration the experienced operators who participate will remain their places at the switchboard and answer any questions which ... in the audience care to ask. To further lessen the mystery of telephone ... those present are then asked to ... the switchboard installed in the room, accompanying the demonstration is a program of motion pictures which serve well to make it more realistic and interesting. There is an ever increasing demand upon the company for the demonstration and the local Chamber of Commerce was fortunate in securing it at this time.

Mr. Maynard used to play for dances in years gone by but lately has played only for recreation in his home. When he attended a recent performance at a Norwich theatre and heard the New England champion fiddler play, Mr. Maynard came home thoroughly aroused with the thought that he could beat him. He became interested in the contest which was then in formation at Hartford. The piece Mr. Maynard played in the contest Thursday evening were "Turkey in the Straw," "The Girl I Left Behind Me," and "Washing Day."

The old town of Lebanon, which is so rich in historic events, feels herself honored once more by having Mr. Maynard, a citizen of the town, proclaimed the champion fiddler of the state of Connecticut.

WESTERLY

TALKS ABOUT PROPOSED ACCOUNTING SYSTEM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 1—Despite the subsequent record sessions of the Westerly town council, the February meeting on Monday morning, attended by all the councilmen, was one of the longest day time sessions held in many months. As the council convened, following a preliminary session in the ante room, there was some talk of taking action to have another date named when the first Monday in the month, the regular meeting date, fell on the first of the month, so that monthly reports could have more time for preparation. Much of the time was taken up in the discussion of the elaborate accounting system contracted by the former council on which Messrs Fowler and Utter were a committee and for which Council Clerk Whipple said the bill to date for services rendered amounted to $1,905.

Councilman Isaac G. Smith, who with Councilman Moore, were named a committee of the present town council to look into the matter of having the town of Westerly proceed with the continuation of the system, told the councilmen that Town Treasurer James H. Pendleton had been requested to come to this session that his opinion of the system might be learned. Treasurer Pendleton said that he had asked Representative Utter to be present and listen to his opinion as he was a member of the committee of the old council. Treasurer Pendleton told the councilmen that he favored the continuance of the system, provided we can have proper officials to handle it without whom it would be absolutely impossible, and not unless it had co-operation from all the town departments. In his talk with the town solicitor he was of the opinion that present appropriations which were obtained from the freemen of the town, could be distributed in any other manner, provided that they went to the same source as intended, such as street lights and highways, if such a vote was passed at the financial town meeting.

A number of recommendations made by the Wall Accounting firm, Treasurer Pendleton said, could not be made; such as funding debts, as the town had already reached its limit and legislation would have to be obtained from the Rhode Island General assembly. The sureties of Westerly town officers were continued as previously.

Westerly Town Clerk Everett S. Whipple reported that for the year 1925, the records and payments for the reporting of the same as follows: Births 269, $67.25; marriages 96, $24; and deaths 119, $29.75.

Sewer assessment apportionments were voted as follows: Jan. 4, Samuel Fyfe and wife, 17 John street, $90.97; Jan. 19, Evangeline C. Clancy, 14 John street, $187.75; Jan. 22, Margherite and Adele Cellia Bianchi, 23 John street, $132.88; Jan. 25, Ella C. Wilcox, 24 John street, $93.15; Frank Holliday, 34 John street, $58.18 and Jan. 27, John J. King, 33 John street, $93.15 for a total of $656.75.

Simon P. Nichols, John D. Nichols, Charles Shippee, George S. Champlin, Oscar S. Swallow and Edward D. Myrick were voted milk dealers' licenses.

The following reports were received and voted approved, recorded and placed on file:

Dr. Samuel C. Webster, M. D., superintendent of health's report showed: Five cases of contagious disease as follows—German measles 1, measles 1, diphtheria 1, and chicken pox 2.

The letter referring to Vars road, Bradford, was reported as found by Council Clerk Whipple and its reading was voted continued to the next council meeting.

Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown's report showed 3 arrests, of which 2 were for intoxication and 1 for the possession of intoxicating liquors.

Action of Town Treasurer James H. Pendleton was voted approved in the issuing of his notes for $50,000 dated March 1, 1926 and payable Sept. 1, 1926.

The measures reported taken by Custodian Everett E. Whipple of the Westerly Town hall for the installation of an oil heater were considered by the council fathers as a matter of economy.

The plat submitted by John L. and Thomas L. Breen, of Watch Hill, for a development of a section at Pasadena avenue and Breen road, Watch Hill, having the approval of the Westerly Zoning board and the Westerly Highway commission, was voted approved and placed on file.

Similar action was postponed on a plat submitted by the Westerly industrial and improvement society as no profiles were submitted and the required width of highway for town road was lacking.

Mrs. Nicola Trebisacci, 67 Pleasant street, appeared before the council to tell the members about the unsanitary condition of the brook which passed by her property. She said that Solicitor Ferguson had visited the vicinity and Councilman Campbell of the old council also knew of the unhealty condition which existed there. She said that the brook in question which starts near Pond street and crosses Canal street to empty into the river near her premises was a filthy, nauseating dump where the bodies of dead animals were thrown. She said that she paid as much tax as anybody and by reason of the conditions could get but small rent. The doors and windows of her home had to be shut and her children were sickly from the germ laden air as she had been told by doctors. When asked just where her property was located she asked, "Do you know where the Black Coffee House is?" "Oh, yes," said Solicitor Ferguson without hesitation which brought a general laugh from his conferees and then Mrs. Trebisacci said that she lived "across the way." Mr. Ferguson said that state board of public roads grading on High street had sent more water over this section and the complainant said that but slight relief was obtained from the added flow in the brook, for when the water went down conditions remained the same, and that she had asked and had health authorities, Dr. Webster of Westerly and Mr. Talbot of Providence there. Solicitor Ferguson said that Westerly was handicapped in not having a public dump, under which conditions, the offending parties could be proceeded against. Councilman Trainer moved that the matter be referred to the health officer and that he submit a report in writing.

Salvatore Bokataub, 68 Pleasant street, complained to the council that a telephone pole was going to be set in front of his place which would be in the way of his conducting his business. It was voted that he take his complaint to the Westerly Highway commission, which he was told had jurisdiction in the matter.

As a result of the long discussion concerning the adoption of the modified system for town accounting, Councilman Coleman moved, and it was voted that the town accept to be presented to the annual financial town meeting be increased $1,500, making the total budget figure now read $16,150 for town officers, looking toward the provision of a salary of a "clerk of finance," or such name as the office might be called and an additional amount of $500 to care for extra work, to be placed under miscellaneous, to bring up the total to $17,750, the fund from which it was stated the amount could be most readily transferred.

Councilman Trainer thought that a formal vote should be passed either adopting or disapproving the new accounting system. Councilman Smith said that the system had already been installed, he thought by vote, but Town Solicitor Ferguson told him that it never had by any vote of the town council. Councilman Smith thought that Solicitor Ferguson could be looking up what needed authority would be required, when the solicitor said that if a new town officer was to be given "authority" it would be necessary to have legislation. To bring the discussion to a close Councilman Smith said that Treasurer Pendleton's ideas seemed logical, if the council saw fit to go ahead. The following, prepared by Solicitor Ferguson, is to be offered from the Westerly town council, to the voters of the next Tuesday evening Financial town meeting:

"Voted: That the town council be and is hereby authorized and empowered to segregate all appropriations made at the meeting (financial Town Meeting) substantially in accordance with the various amounts incorporated in the Town of Westerly Annual Financial Report for 1925, provided, however, that the amount to be expended be substantially expended for purpose designated in said appropriations."

On motion of Councilman Smith the final budget for action by the electors at the annual financial town meeting was voted amended as follows to take up some of the accounting requirements:

General Government	$ 24,500
Protection of Public Property, Police	17,000
Highways	120,000
Street Lights	15,000
Charities, Hospitals, Correction	7,000

Interest	33,969
Redemption of Funded Bonds	20,000
Payment to Other Civil Div. State Tax	25,000
Total	$ 417,009

It was voted that Mary L. Randall be elected superintendent of Mothers' Aid. Miss Maud S. Price, the former director, declining a re-appointment.

The truck was one which had been used to haul sand for spring use at danger points along the icy roads. Mrs Madison's back and one leg were bruised, but not so seriously as to prevent her from teaching school Monday as usual. Her brother-in-law was unhurt. The Buick car was damaged considerably.

Dividends Regularly for 40 Years

Constant war on waste
Products of first quality
Uninterrupted dividends
Stability of earnings
Small profits per pound on large volume

The life history of Swift & Company's operations is thus briefly summarized.

The chemical laboratory and the constant search for improved methods have reduced waste to a minimum. They have also enabled us to improve greatly the quality of your meat.

Thrift and conservative policies have made it possible to pay dividends without interruption for 40 years, although our profits have averaged only a fraction of a cent per pound of product.

Swift & Company thrift has benefited others beside Swift shareholders. A portion of the gains resulting from thrift is passed along to the producers of live stock and to the consumers of meat. Competition sees to that.

DANIELSON

STORM MADE TROUBLE FOR TELEPHONE COMPANY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 1—Freezing rain that set the walking world to skidding early Monday morning, hail and then snow increasing to old-fashioned volume late Monday afternoon, introduced weather-wise disreputable February to the community. Youngsters reveled in the preversity of the period, while their elders did their best to restrain themselves from making too forcible remarks about a situation that was none too pleasing to them—that interferred too much with their plans for business and forecasted physical discomforts with which they have little or no remaining patience.

The ice storm of the forenoon hours was threatening havoc to wire service companys when a slight change in temperature brought a change to hail. This dilly-dallied along along until after the noon hour, to give place to light and hesitating fall of snow in the early afternoon. Then the rather finicky northeaster evidently prepared to get down to business, and it was snowing right smart just before the sunset hour. More snow fell between four and five o'clock Monday afternoon than has fallen in any similar period this winter. Darkness found about four inches of the alleged beautiful adjunct of the winter blanketing this snug section of southern New England, with promise of plenty more by morning.

There were those who witnessed the change from a freezing drizzle to a good old snowstorm, if one may be excused the "good", with outstanding satisfaction. These were the corporations that furnish light and telephone service to all of the communities hereabouts. The brief ice storm of the early morning was not long in developing trouble for the telephone company. Their wires began to coat with ice and in some cases snapped off, bringing calls for the troublemen. From motorists who arrived here from points east and north, came tales of trees bowed down with the weight of ice that had accumulated upon them and of rather difficult traveling conditions. This situation prevailed for no great length of time. A change in temperature, tough not a great change, brought snow, and with the snow came surcease from the danger of broken poles and fallen wires and, for those who hiked, relief from the danger of doing the Charleston on one's ear.

There may be plenty of snow this morning and it will be accepted in some quarters, as preferable to a crushing load of ice mantled over everything out doors. Not that snow is more to one's liking than green grass and blooming plants, but because it is generally regarded as the lesser of two irritating winter evils.

Levi E. Baker, 28, of Pomfret, died Monday morning at the Day Kimball hospital in Putnam, after having undergone a surgical operation. Mr. Baker was a native of Pomfret and a son of Mr. and Mrs. John Baker. Prior to becoming ill he had been a shepherd on the Cushman farm in Pomfret. He leaves his wife and two children, his father and mother, two sisters, Mrs. James Muttall, of Pomfret, and Mrs. John Lindberg, of Wauregan, and a brother, George, of Goodyear.

Mrs. Emma Caroline Welcher, a native of Stockholm, and a former resident o Danielson, died Monday at the home of her son, John Welcher, in the Black Hill section of the town of Plainfield. Mrs. Welcher had been a resident in the United States for a long term of years, a considerable period of which she spent in this community. Mrs. Welcher was somewhat over 76 years of age.

A new hardwood floor is to be put in the hall of Leo J. L'Homme post American legion, through an arrangement effected between the post and the Brooklyn Savings bank, owner of the building in which the legion has quarters, the former Windham County Savings bank building in Main street. The work authorized will be undertaken in the near future.

A number of years since, by an act of the legislature, land set out to pine trees, a reforesting project, were exempted from taxation for a long period. The rewards in the way of potential lumber resources for that concession are beginning to make themselves manifest. While Killingly took no great degree of advantage of the concession, other county towns hereabouts did so, and some very fine young forest areas have now reached interesting development.

The body of Job Seamans, 78, who died in Brooklyn, N. Y., and who for many years was a resident of East Killingly, is to be brought here for burial. For a considerable number years Mr. Seamans was a member of St. Alban's Episcopal church of this place.

At sunset Monday there appeared little danger of any state highway blockade as the result of the snow storm. State plows were in readiness to keep the highways open to traffic, not a difficult task for these powerful devices unless a storm of extreme severity developed, and there was little indication of that.

Miss Beatrice Maynard, severely injured in an automobile accident a few week ago, has recovered and has resumed her position at the Brooklyn Savings bank.

Mr. and Mrs. Sidney W. Bard and Mr. and Mrs. J. Dyer Potter were at Berlin, this state, Sunday, visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Sherwood E. Potter. At Berlin Mr. Potter is the new treasurer of the Berlin Savings bank. He is a former resident of Brooklyn.

Not a few people mentioned on Monday, with cause, that February has a long established reputation of being anything but a clement month. It introduced itself with all its old-time vigor as a bad actor.

Members of the Killingly board of relief, holding their first meeting of the year on Monday, were not troubled with an army of protestors. It was such a day as would keep a man with grievances about taxes indoors.

It is just about six years ago, it was recalled Monday, that February became so rough as to result in the suspension of trolley service between Danielson and Putnam until spring came, that storm followed severe storms, and that the period is still remembered is about the worst weather-wise in the memory of any but the oldest people hereabouts.

Local manufacturers of cotton textiles, with the exception of certain special lines, assert that their difficulties in marketing their products have not lessened in the past few months. Southern competition on lines that were once staple with cotton plants in eastern Connecticut has forced numbers of mills hereabouts to turn their attention to special textiles not so much manufactured below the Mason and Dixon line.

A delightful time at the first dance, given the past month, brought the demand for the event now planned. An excellent orchestra has been engaged to play.

PUTNAM

MEMORIAL SERVICES FOR CHARLES E. SEARLS

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, Feb. 1—Nearly every member of the Windham county bar was in Putnam today to attend the memorial exercises in honor of the late Charles E. Searls, states' attorney for Windham county. Former Attorney General William A. King, as president of the bar association, presided at the meeting, which adopted resolutions prepared by a committee of which Arthur A. Bill was chairman and which were read by him.

Eulogistic addresses were made by Justice George E. Hinman, Judge Edwin C. Dickinson and many of the lawyers of the county. Justice Hinman's address was scholarly and eloquent, and paid a high tribute to the man who was the acknowledged leader of the Windham county bar for so many years and who held the respect and affection of every one who knew him.

Howard C. Bradford, who succeeded him as states attorney and who was associated with him as a partner for many years, spoke affectionately and feeling in praise of Mr. Searls. He had met him every day for years and he told very graphically of the benefit and influence of that intimate association.

Others who spoke were Charles L. Torrey, a friend of thirty years standing, Eric H. Johnson, Randolph H. Chandler, who was his neighbor in Thompson, where Mr. Searls lived nearly all his life, Judge Harry E. Back of Danielson, Judge E. M. Warner, Arthur S. Macdonald, Irving H. Miron and Former Attorney General William A. King.

The resolutions adopted read as follows:

Charles E. Searls passed away July 14, 1925, and we, his brothers at the bar, voice this memorial of our esteem and affection for him. He was not merely the leader of our bar, he ranked among the foremost lawyers in Connecticut, in some qualities as a lawyer we doubt that he had a superior in the state. Well grounded in the fundamental principles of the law, intellectually so alert that all his knowledge seemed available at command, a man of broad vision and of most effective and attractive address, endowed with these attributes he seemed well nigh invincible before any court; and perhaps the highest tribute that can be paid him is to say he never used those great powers with which he was endowed for other than the enforcement of the just rights of his clients. In every sense he was a great lawyer, and in the practice of his profession he never forgot that his first duty was to see that justice was done, whatever else might result.

The community in which he lived, and the state at large, held him in high esteem for his services in public life. As state's attorney, secretary of the state, senator and representative, and in every office that he held, the people knew that he would do his duty as a faithful public servant. He could have held even higher office had he so desired, but political preferment seemed to have no allurement for him.

We esteemed and admired him in his professional and public work. But after all, it was in the purely personal way that he was nearest to use.

Our regard for him was tinged with personal affection, and we shall miss the kindly greeting, the good comradeship, the ever present geniality, and, above all else, the unfailing kindliness which always marked his association with us, his brothers at the bar. Death called him when ripe in years, but up to the closing days of his life he never seemed old to us who knew him so well.

The secretary will cause a copy of these resolutions to be sent to his wife, and a copy to be presented to the court for record.

PAY TRIBUTE TO JUDGE GEO. E. HINMAN

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 1—A dinner was given at the Putnam inn tonight by the lawyers of Windham county to Justice George E. Hinman, of Williamantic, in recognition of his advancement to the supreme court of the state.

Sabin Russell presided as toastmaster and called upon nearly all of the guests, who spoke appreciatively in honor of Justice Hinman. Attorney General Frank E. Healy of Hartford, made one of the outstanding addresses of the evening. He and the new member of the supreme bench are friends of long standing and he took particular pleasure, he said, in accepting the invitation to attend the dinner.

Foss of Williamantic and many of the Putnam attorneys testified to their appreciation of the honor that had been paid Judge Hinman, while they regretted that he would no longer preside at the local sessions of the superior court.

As a recent court held before Justice Richard Barton of Thompson, judgment was given in favor of the insurance company which is contesting a payment to the Polish family in Mechanicsville, whose daughter was seriously injured by an automobile while on her way to school. He is a man who knows how to bring things to pass and his success in building up churche is phenomenal. He received on one occasion, into Calvary Methodist church in New York, 864 persons, which is said to be the largest number ever received at one time into a protestant church in this country. He has traveled widely through Europe and in the Orient and is an author whose books are widely read. Goodbye Said in Many Ways

In various countries the convention of saying "goodbye" is carried out in different and often unique ways. The parting etiquette in the South Sea Islands is to grasp and shake vigorously one another's necklaces. With the Fijians, saying "goodbye" is quite a ceremony. Men and women carry red feathers which they produce before parting and place in the form of a cross. The significance of this is that, although they must tear themselves away from each other's presence, their paths having once crossed their hearts will forever be in unison.

Here's new dental way to Gums like Coral

Also lightens cloudy teeth remarkably

Accept, please, full 10-day tube of this scientific, film-removing dentifrice, urged by world's dental authorities. Note the difference in your teeth and gums.

• • •

Thanks to modern dental science, it's been found that teeth seldom are naturally off color. Most often they are simply coated with a dingy film which ordinary dentifrices do not successfully clear off. That's why brushing fails you.

Run your tongue across your teeth and you'll feel that film now—a slippery sort of coating. It absorbs discolorations from food, smoking, etc. It invites germ growth, tooth decay and gum troubles. For health's sake and for beauty, you must remove it.

Today, in place of using an old-type dentifrice, get the film-removing paste called Pepsodent which dental authorities now so widely urge. You'll find, to your own surprise, that your teeth gleam like jewels, that your gums are of a healthy, coral tint—your smile gleaming and attractive.

Obtain Pepsodent at your druggist. Costs only a few cents. Or send coupon for 10-day tube free to try. Do this for your own sake.

THE S. O. S. CALL

The practical joker is to be found in unexpected places. There are times when he may be regarded as harmless, but there are others when he is entirely out of place and deserves to be punished for his work.

Nothing which such a joke does causes more indignation than the sending out of an S. O. S. call by radio. This indicates a ship in distress and not only causes great anxiety on the part of those ashore and interested in the vessel from which the call is supposed to come, but starts all vessels off their course to render whatever aid may be possible.

Some may be able to see a joke in such misinformation. Heedless of the effect of it they must have their laugh at the credence given to it by others and are of course entirely unmindful of the fact that every such false alarm develops skepticism in the future. There is no justification for such conduct. It is simply a development of that fake cry of "Help!" by a person seemingly drowning who begins to laugh as soon as he sees several rushing to his assistance, but who never figures that through the joking over such a matter the person who really needed help would be allowed to drown because no credence would be given to the sincerity of the call.

The S. O. S. call should never be used unless there is sufficient reason for it. It is supposed to deal with serious emergencies and as long as it is duly respected it will get full response whenever and wherever used. Let it become common place and before a captain has had a chance to respond to many fake calls he will become disgusted and pass them all by, treating the worthy and the unworthy alike because he is unable to distinguish between them.

Those who try to get a laugh on someone through the misuse of the S. O. S. call should be placed where they have time to reflect upon the seriousness of their act.

MAINE SEEING LIGHT

Whatever may have been the idea of Maine when back in 1909 it passed a law forbidding the exportation of electricity, it is quite evident that a decided change in sentiment has taken place or is taking place within that state concerning this very question.

When such an organization as the Associated Industries of Maine adopts resolutions to the effect that the law is "wrong in principle, unfriendly to other states, provincial in character and inimical to the business and community life of Maine" and urges the legislature to bring about a repeal of the law at its first opportunity there is pretty good evidence furnished that Maine is feeling the harmful rather than the beneficial effects of such legislation.

Maine was actuated in its law making by the desire to preserve its natural resources for Maine interests. It figured that it would attract industries to that state because of the chances for cheap power, especially since it would be impossible to get the benefit of such power elsewhere. The purpose was to prevent any power development unless there was a demand for such power within the state.

If we are to judge solely by the resolution just adopted it failed to work out as expected and its shortcomings are not only recognized but admitted. Entirely frank is the criticism made. That it comes rather close to representing the sentiment of the state is to be gained from the fact that it was only a short time ago that Maine authorized an elaborate power development at Passamaquoddy bay where it is hoped to generate electricity through the rise and fall of the tide. But Maine also seems to have become aware rather belatedly that this water power development which it is blocking does not mean that such a resource can be stored up for future use. Delay in this instance simply means waste. Water that has gone down the stream is lost and Maine has not only been stunting its own growth but standing in the way of others. The Associated Industries are trying to set it right.

RELEASING THE BAD AND DANGEROUS

Because it has been decided by the board of parole of New York state to release Virginius Mayo from prison after serving a part of his minimum sentence there is a demand by the Brooklyn Eagle that it be revoked and the governor is called upon to take action.

Mayo was convicted of bigamy in a case which had no extenuating circumstances. He is a man of money and did his utmost to escape any penalty and now it is planned to release him after serving eight months. There is no surprise that such action is meeting with protest, for it is not the first instance of similar character that has brought the parole board to public notice and condemnation.

Only a few days ago it paroled a man with a criminal record who had been under indictment for murder and turned him loose upon the public after only a part of his sentence for another crime had been served, and previous to that it was roundly condemned because of the leniency which it displayed to a notorious labor leader. Protests against the work of the board resulted in a change in its membership but the effect of the governor's action doesn't appear to have been for the better.

There is no wonder that there is a demand for the elimination of the parole board in New York state. It has been properly condemned as the result of its work, but just how much can be expected from the appeal to the governor to revoke the action of the board in the Mayo case is uncertain in view of the recent action of the governor in interfering with the execution of two young men who had been convicted of murder and sentenced to death and such action upheld by the court of appeal. In having their sentences commuted to life imprisonment they are of course hoping that the parole board will release them in a few years.

But it is apparently not the parole board alone which is responsible for dangerous persons being allowed to prey upon the public, if we can judge by the confession of a dying Illinois convict who has confessed to killing three in that state last December, admitted that several other killings could be attributed to him including two in New York state and who admitted that he has been released after serving a year in a criminal insane asylum in New York state.

TREATY WITH TURKEY

The last session of congress failed to ratify the treaty with Turkey. Whether the present congress will do any better remains to be revealed. There has been disposition to hasten action thereon and certainly the methods employed by Turkey in an endeavor to bring about action is not such as to improve the situation.

It is a question however that should get more than a cursory examination. There has been a change in the government of Turkey. A new steady has been negotiated with that government, now located at Angora instead of Constantinople and the point is whether for the sake of establishing treaty relations it should be ratified or whether ratification should be refused. It is desirable to know whether the treaty is all that could be expected under the prevailing conditions.

If there is no treaty relationship established between the countries we can anticipate a continuance of the treatment that has been displayed in the recent past where American products were made to pay a higher duty than those of other countries, and which action, it was strongly intimated, was due to the fact that we have failed to act upon the treaty.

That discrimination caused a protest but it was countered with the claim that it might have been avoided had the last congress acted on instead of delaying the treaty. Apparently the same argument holds good at the present time to which might be added the statement that it rests with us to decide whether the undesirable features of the negotiated treaty are such as to warrant the continuance of a treatyless situation. The whole matter deserves mature thought.

ABUSE OF PRIVILEGE

There is bound to be much sympathy with the protests which are made in Washington against the manner in which the attaches of foreign countries misuse their privileges in the national capital. The trouble is, of course, with the abuse of diplomatic immunity. Representatives of other countries are supposed to do about as they please and in so doing they disregard rules and regulations that govern other people.

This has been brought to light recently through the manner in which they display utter disrespect for parking and speed regulations in Washington. When they are called to account or when an officer makes inquiries preparatory to an arrest they flash the claim of diplomatic immunity and drive away. That the district commissioners should make protest to the state department regarding such cases is certainly justified.

The diplomatic representatives and attaches are extended privileges which are not allowed the general public, but that does not mean that they should be abused or that such attaches should so disregard rules and regulations of Washington as to operate against good government and safety. It may not be that they will be punished but it lies within the power of the government to have them recalled, which of course would not add a shining star to their record. Those who abuse privileges have a right to expect no more.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WASHINGTON, Feb. 1—It had been understood that Gov. and Mrs. Trumbull would be white house guests at the congressional reception, but they were not in the city and are expected to attend a state dinner at the white house later instead.

Congressmen Tilson and Merritt, together with Shell Fish Commissioner Howard W. Beach, of Connecticut, appeared before the sub-committee on appropriations today urging $15,000 be devoted to the study of shell fish problems by scientists especially as relating to oyster culture and how to meet the problems that confront oyster growers in defending the beds from the menace of foes that prey on oyster beds.

The committee was favorably impressed by the arguments offered and suggested that the men interest talk the matter over with Director of the Budget Lord. This they did later in the day, Tilson acting as spokesman, and so ably was the case presented that Director Lord expressed approval and undoubtedly the sum of $15,000 will be provided in the budget. Accompanying the Connecticut men were several interested in the oyster beds of New York, Virginia and other states. It is proposed that the sum appropriated will be expended by the bureau of fisheries under direction of the department of commerce. The appropriation is not for oyster health research or pollution but entirely for protection of oyster beds from enemies of the sea.

The reception at the white house given by President and Mrs. Coolidge was perhaps the best get-together of all types of American political leaders and followers that has been seen here for a long time. In the first place, not less than 3,000 persons were present, practically all of whom were closely connected with Washington political life, either in their own right, or as members of a high political family, 48 states were represented. The cabinet, senate and house headed the list; diplomats were absent, having previously been honor guests at a reception given expressly for them. Whole delegations, with the women of their families, passed in front of the President and Mrs. Coolidge, who extended pleasant greetings to each. Many men from military ranks were included, among them the numerous members of congress who served in the World war. Two persons, veterans of the Civil war, were prominent among the distinguished guests. They were Major Clarence Stedman, of North Carolina, who this week celebrated his 87th birthday, and is a member of congress from the state from which he enlisted as a Confederate soldier in the Civil war. Chatting with him for a long time was Captain Warren, now senator from Wyoming, father-in-law of Gen. Pershing, and who served in the Union army in the Civil war. Warren and Stedman are now the only men in congress who served in the Civil war, although a number of door keepers at the capitol have fine Civil war records on either the Union or Confederate sides.

A brilliant party stood behind the receiving line, among them were Vice President and Mrs. Dawes, Speaker and Mrs. Longsworth and Floor Leader and Mrs John Q. Tilson, of Connecticut. A notable incident of the reception and one that showed the thoughtfulness and courtesy of both President and Mrs. Coolidge, was the way they returned to the receiving line, after the hour for their departure from the room had come. Apparently all had been received and the hour set for the close of the reception had arrived, when an aid rushed up saying a number of guests had been detained on the way by some sort of motor tie-up, and were just entering the gates. The President and Mrs. Coolidge returned to the blue room, and in a few minutes up stairs sprinted a group of distinguished persons, setting a pace for speed that did not change till they were almost in the presence of their hosts.

Speaking of Major Stedman, and his 87th birthday, the expressions of affection and respect accorded him by his colleagues were notable in house annals. Floor Leader Tilson, of the republicans, and Floor Leader Garrett, of the democrats, united in making the occasion one of great pleasure to the old major, Tilson making the leading address, and presenting his record to his colleagues in one of the best and most eloquent short speeches made in congress this year.

"It's the early bird," &c., &c., and this time it was the New England bird that got the coveted distinction of being honor guest at one of the president's get-together breakfasts at the white house. It came about this way. The president had invited Speaker Longworth, Floor Leader Tilson and the republican steering committee of the house to breakfast with him at 8 o'clock. That is a very early hour for Washington to conform to, but Tilson, mindful of his early training and sound New England habits of thrift and punctuality, was the first to arrive at the white house. Then followed members of the steering committee one by one, till all but Longworth had arrived. Breakfast begun, and Tilson automatically became honor guest in absence of the speaker whose early training was of a more luxurious sort than that of the floor leader whose home is in Connecticut. As a result, Longworth got to the white house just as the last griddle cake, with plenty of Vermont maple syrup, had been served.

Little Talks on Thrift

MISERS

The newspapers frequently relate instances of those who die amid scenes of the most abject squalor, yet they are found to possess considerable sums of money.

There have always been misers and no doubt there always will be. The miser is an example of unwise saving. It is indeed unfortunate that thrift and miserly practices should be associated in the minds of so many persons.

This is due somewhat to the fact that so much has been said about thrift merely from the standpoint of saving, without profiting out at the same time that the proper use of money is just as important as putting it away.

Sometime ago the United States Treasury Department estimated that the hoarded money in this country amounts to more than $400,000,000. There are 8,000 persons definitely classed as misers with $44,000,000 hidden away in secret places.

Among our foreign population it is estimated that 2,000,000 hoard $225,000,000 of their earnings. In rural districts there is much hoarding, the amount being estimated as high as $125,000,000.

Those who assume to teach thrift, should make it plain at all times that saving money does not mean hoarding; that thrift means the elimination of all kinds of waste; that thrift means progress, which can only come through the rightful use of money.

Profitless marches on, despite the misers and spendthrifts. It is those who save intelligently and spend prudently that civilization owes most of its progress.—American Thrift Society.

UPSETTING HIS DIGNITY

The pretty kindergarten teacher sighed as she opened the large box on her desk and disclosed a lovely baby doll to the gaze of the teacher, Miss the first grade.

"O-oh! What a peach!" exclaimed the latter, lifting the doll from the box.

Immediately the wide blue eyes opened and a faint but unmistakable "Mam-ma" was emitted from some intimate part of the doll's chest.

"Did you hear that?" exulted the first-grade teacher. "Just as plain. Sounds like a real live baby. Won't the kiddies be tickled, though!"

The pretty kindergarten teacher smiled a bit ruefully. "Well, I hope somebody gets some joy out of the old thing. The way I feel about that doll, I'd just like to slam it down good and hard and choke that mamma cry!"

The first-grade teacher eyed her in surprise. "Why, Gloria! Of all the vicious things! What did this poor little doll ever do to you, anyway?"

"Enough," affirmed the pretty kindergarten teacher. "You mightn't think that a harmless, innocent doll baby could instigate such a villainous plot, but she did.

"Remember," she went on, "my introducing you to a tall, good-looking chap the other day——?"

"That big, dignified lawyer from down south? I'll say I remember. We girls thought he was just the classiest thing we ever lamped, honest. Where does he come in?"

"It's not where he comes in—it's where he went out—pronto!" laughed the pretty kindergarten teacher with just the suspicion of a sob in her voice. "I met him about a month ago at a party and he's been rushing me ever since. Maybe I wasn't crazy about him, too!"

"You would be crazy if you didn't fall for a being like that. Why, if I ever get my hands on a classy piece of masculinity like him I'll never let go. Don't tell me you've lost him, Gloria!"

"Just that, my dear. He's been calling on me at the rate of three nights a week ever since we met. One of those stern, determined kind, you know. Told me the first time he came to the house that he was going to keep right on coming, and nothing short of a cyclone could stop him. Of course, he didn't say it just that way. He's very dignified and precise in his language. I thanked my stars every night that I really can speak English, even if I don't always use the knowledge.

"Well, he got real chummy in a week. Showed me pictures of his mother and dad and said that he was going to have her write me an invitation to partake of her southern hospitality. His mother is one of those real colonial dames, heaven help you if she ever caught you swinging from the back gate or wearing knickers!

"As for his dad! Southern colonel type, you know. Tall as his son and just as straight. Although Charles said he was 65 on his last birthday.

"Of course, Charles himself isn't as stern as all that. But I was mighty careful not to do anything undignified just as straight, although Charles said forgive your murdering him than he'll overlook you're making him feel foolish.

"And yesterday after school I decided to go downtown to pick out the toys for the kids' party. Charles drove me down and helped me shop. He bought the doll. And then, because it was early, we drove out to his club with the doll and all in the back of the car.

"He introduced me to a number of his friends and we had a wonderful time. We all drove back together, and several of the men came in his car. Of course we had to move the toys out of the way. Well, they wanted to know what it was all about, but I didn't tell them because Charles didn't, and I thought maybe he wouldn't care for them to know. But this doll wasn't to be slighted that way. Just as he picked up the box a lingering 'mam-ma' came wailing out! You can imagine the rest. Charles turned all the colors of the rainbow, and I haven't seen him since."

And then the pretty teacher turned to confront a tall, dignified man who stood in the doorway of the schoolroom with a merry twinkle in his eyes and a big pasteboard box in his arms. But this time the contents were long-stemmed red roses.—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Thomas Corwin a Great Orator.

In 1847 Thomas Corwin, a senator of the United States, made one of the most remarkable orations that has ever been pronounced in the senate chamber. He spoke against the war with Mexico, and recounted from history the story of retributive justice that has been told again and again.

"Has Prussia no atonement to make?" he said. "You see this same Napoleon, the blind instrument of Providence, at work there. The thunders of his cannon at Jena proclaim the work of retribution for Poland's wrongs; and the successors of the great Frederick, the drill-sergeant of Europe, are seen flying across the sandy plains that surround their capital, right glad if they may escape captivity or death."

"The weakest hand in Mexico," he warned, "may call down against you a Power in the presence of which the iron hearts of your warriors shall be turned to ashes."

"The entire oration is full of poetry and of fire. It is one of the most fervid, most rhetorical orations. Nevertheless, the orator himself, who drew so lavishly from the fields of history for his illustrations, was a self-educated farm boy. Like Abraham Lincoln, Thomas Corwin was born in Kentucky. He was brought up to hard work on an Ohio farm, where he had to take his part in all the work of the farm. There was something in the race-stock of that day that made real men. Thomas Corwin did his farm work well and faithfully but he found the time to study. He was determined to gain an education at all costs. It was no easy task for him to find the time to study, but he found it. He studied hard until he had gained the rudiments of an education, and then he turned his attention to the study of law.

Associating himself with an old lawyer who was accustomed to say: "That feller has it in him! You'll hear from him!" he mastered his subject and won his place at the bar. From the very first he had a ready tongue, a quick wit and a most unusual oratorical power. Such a man was eagerly sought for office. As representative, as governor of Ohio, as senator in the United States senate, Thomas Corwin commanded attention. Like the sturdy farmer that he had been, he fought for the right as he saw it, and struck hard blows. The world needs many such men.

CHILD TRAINING

Seven Deadly Words.

Ethel Clark Bickel.

A group of young mothers were chatting together, and as invariably happens, they began to tell the funny little sayings of their children.

"I surely had a good laugh at Billy the other day," remarked one of the mothers. "He had a bag of candy and kept urging his Aunt Helen to take some. Finally I inquired why he was especially interested in Aunt Helen and why he didn't coax the others to take some of his sweets instead of always passing it to Aunty. 'Well, you see, Muvver,' Billy answered, 'when I pass it to Aunt Hewen, she nesser takes any, she jus' thanks me and gives it back!'"

The incident just told occurred a couple of years ago, and Billy is now beyond the baby-talk stage, in fact, proudly marching off to first primary, daily. I visited with his mother one day not long ago, and as usual, we fell to talking of Billy, who has always been a favorite of mine.

"I'm rather worried about him," she confided, "he's getting so selfish! Lately, I've noticed it in so many little ways."

Then she went on to tell me how generous Billy had been as a little fellow, a fact which I, myself, had often noted. "Really," I said, "I used to have to guard him or he'd give away all he had. He divided his pennies, meant for his bank, among all the children in the block, and he was so generous about sharing his toys, candy and everything!"

Our minds play us odd tricks at times. While she was still speaking, a picture flashed before me of that other day when we all sat chatting, and she had related Billy's funny remark about the candy. "When I pass it to Aunt Hewen, she jus' thanks me and gives it back." That was what he had said. And, thereon hung the secret of Billy's developed selfishness. A naturally loving, giving child, gradually he had been made selfish. Oh no, it was not Aunt Helen alone who had been guilty. It was his grandmother, his "granddaddy," all his uncles, aunts and older cousins. He was the only child among many relatives, and they all doted on him. Instead of accepting anything without reason he offered, as they should, they usually said, "No thank you, dear, you keep it." No seven words could be more deadly to the generous impulses of an only child, or to any other.

I told my friend of the trials I had passed through with my little daughter. She, like Billy, was by nature generous, and I had been determined that she should remain so. Often I had heard it said, "An only child always grows up to be selfish." "Betty shall not be so," I had decided. So I took particular pains that anything she offered should be accepted. Not only did I practice this myself but her father did likewise, and I similarly instructed her relatives. "No matter what she offers you, take it," I told them. "Let's try to keep her unselfish." When they seemed about to fair me, as they did at times, I silently signaled. Betty, as a result of this practice, is a generous child."

"We're going to institute a change," Billy's mother told me later, laughing, but very much in earnest. "The next person who says, 'No, thank you Billy, you keep it, is going to get into trouble with me!"

ENTRANCE FEE REQUIRED FOR S. I. A. A. BASKETBALL MEET

GREENVILLE, S. C., Feb. 1—(AP)—In the annual basketball tournament of the Southern Intercollegiate Athletic association to be held in Greenville, with Furman university as host, March 1-4, a departure from the regular order of S. I. A. A. basketball tournaments has been decreed.

Only 12 teams will be permitted to enter and as a guarantee of good faith an entrance fee of $50 will be required. In previous seasons withdrawals at the eleventh hour have caused confusion and authorities believe posting of a forfeit will bring the quintets to the starting line. The guarantee will be refunded on the arrival of the teams.

The six South Carolina members of the S. I. A. A. will be permitted to enter the tournament but only one from each of the other states represented by colleges holding membership. These states include Kentucky, Tennessee, Florida, Mississippi, Louisiana, Georgia and Alabama.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

The Despair of Nanny Meadow Mouse

I hope, Dame Fortune, you may spare
The hopelessness of real despair.
—Nanny Meadow Mouse

Nanny Meadow Mouse sat close to the trunk of a tree in Farmer Brown's young orchard and shivered with fear, because in the top of that very tree, Spooky the Screech Owl was sitting. She hadn't seen him, but she didn't have to see him to know he was there. She had heard the snap of his bill and that was enough. She was dreadfully frightened, but at the same time she felt reasonably sure that if she kept perfectly still long enough Spooky would fly away without seeing her. There was no reason to despair and Nanny didn't. She knew it was largely a matter of patience.

So Nanny sat motionless, close to the trunk of the tree, and right up in the top of the tree above her Spooky the Screech Owl sat motionless. The advantage was with Nanny, because she knew that Spooky was there, while Spooky didn't know that she was there. Spooky was thinking about a fat meadow mouse dinner and wondering where to get it; and right down below him that fat Meadow Mouse was perfectly aware of what Spooky was thinking and was doing her best to keep from furnishing him that dinner.

It seemed as if jolly, round, red Mr. Sun hardly had gone to bed behind the purple hills when gentle Mistress Moon flooded all the land with soft light. It was almost as light as day there in the young orchard. After a bit Spooky flew away, but Nanny didn't know it. Like all members of the owl family, Spooky's wings make no sound when he flies. They are silent wings and Spooky could pass so close to you as almost to brush your head, but you would hear no sound. It happened that when he left that tree he flew in a direction which made it impossible for Nanny Meadow Mouse to see him; so she supposed he was still in the top of the tree.

By and by she saw something moving on the farther side of the young orchard. At first it seemed nothing more than a moving shadow. But Nanny long ago learned to be suspicious of moving shadows. She knew that they were likely to have claws or beaks or both. She kept her eyes fixed on this moving shadow. It wasn't a shadow she was watching. No sir, it wasn't a shadow she was watching. Who do you think it was? Well, it was some one who has a big tail and is very proud of it. It was Reddy Fox. Yes, sir, that is who it was—Reddy Fox.

H. Cady

Nearer, nearer, nearer, came Reddy

If Nanny had been frightened when she had discovered that Spooky the Screech Owl was in the tree above her she was doubly frightened now. Reddy was running back and forth, this way and that way, and she knew just by watching him that he was hunting for Meadow Mice. He was drawing nearer and nearer. What should she do? What could she do? She didn't know. So she did nothing. That is a very good plan when you don't know what to do.

Nearer, nearer, nearer came Reddy. Poor Nanny Meadown Mouse! If she would see her; at least that is what she thought. Of course she could climb that tree and so get out of Reddy's way. But she didn't dare climb the tree, for she thought Spooky was in the top of it, and she would simply be climbing right up to furnish him that dinner he wanted. Do you wonder that Nanny Meadow Mouse was in despair? You know despair means to be without hope. Nanny couldn't see that there was any hope at all. She was sure that Reddy would find her. It was only a question of whether she would rather be a bite for Reddy Fox or a dinner for little Spooky the Screech Owl. Of course she didn't want to be either.

With eyes popping out of her head, or at least looking as if they would pop out of her head, Nanny watched Reddy come until he was only a short distance from her. Then he sat down with his back to her.

A Little Out of Place

There is occasional levity in most things—with the possible exception of death. At least as serious a place as an executive meeting of an important board is not lacking in a little mirth.

At the last meeting of this board where there is a divided opinion different views were expressed thick and fast from across the table. In spite of it all one in attendance sneezed. He tried to prevent the situation but he made no headway. He turned to one member and said it was a queer turn of events to give vent to a sneeze in a meeting of that character.

The one addressed was too serious to see the joke and replied, "Affairs like this are not to be sneezed at."

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE MADE FOR FATAL AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT

Arthur E. Dunmire of 311 Williams street, who was driving the automobile when the machine turned over on Quaker Hill, Nov. 22, 1925, and Ray Nelson of Uncasville was killed, was arrested Monday by state policemen on the charge of manslaughter. He was released under bonds of $2,500 for presentation before the Waterford town court.

Nelson was a passenger in the car that Dunmire was driving, which got away from the control of the driver in going down the hill and when it turned over Nelson was crushed under the car. Dunmire was the most seriously injured of the four occupants. He and James Elwood of 21 Walker street, New London, were taken to the hospital there, the latter only slightly injured, but Dunmire's injuries kept him in the hospital until last Monday. Roy Nelson, a brother of Ray, and Floyd Frier, both of Uncasville, were in the car but escaped with minor injuries.

An investigation by State Policeman Kenerson, who arrived on the scene shortly after the accident, resulted in the manslaughter charge being made against Dunmire. This is the second accident in which he has been concerned while driving an automobile and in which others than himself have been injured.

ASKS $20,000 DAMAGE IN BREACH OF CONTRACT CLAIM

Suit for $20,000 breach of contract and failure to perform has been brought against Max Rabinovitch by Lena Rabinovitch, both of this city, over an alleged failure by Max Rabinovitch to sell 250 shares of the White Star Clothing Co., of this city. The suit is returnable before the superior court in March.

The writ and complaint in the case is as follows:

1. On January 13, 1926, the defendant, Max Rabinovitch, executed and delivered to the plaintiff the following written offer and agreement:

Norwich, Conn., Jan. 13, 1926.

Mr. Lee Roy Robbins,
Norwich, Conn.

Dear Sir:

I hereby offer Lena Rabinovitch the sum of $30,341.08 for 250 shares of stock of the White Star Clothing company.

I also agree to sell 250 shares of the stock of the company for the sum of $30,341.08.

In case of a purchase by me or a sale by me consummated before the end of the fiscal year, the vendee of said block of stock shall be entitled to any profits earned on said stock through the year, and the vendee shall bear the loss, if any.

The sale of said block of stock shall of course include any interest any stockholder has in the lease between the White Star Company and the owners of the building in which the business is carried on.

I also want it clearly understood that in the event you acquire my shares I will make no agreement not to engage in business in this territory.

Very Truly Yours,
MAX RABINOVITCH

P. S. These offers will expire and terminate on Jan. 21, 1926.

2. On said Jan. 13, 1926, the defendant owned 300 shares of said stock of said White Star Company and claimed to control and to be able to deliver 50 additional shares then in the possession of his wife, Elizabeth Rabinovitch.

3. On Jan. 19, 1926, the plaintiff tendered $30,341.08 to the defendant and demanded delivery of said 250 shares of stock.

The defendant then refused and still refuses to deliver said 250 shares of stock, or said 200 shares in his hands, to the plaintiff.

5. The plaintiff is still ready and willing to pay the defendant said sum of money.

6. Said 250 shares of stock represent a one-half interest in said company and are reasonably worth $50,000.

The plaintiff claims:

1. A decree for delivery or that title to said stock be otherwise vested in her, or

2. If the court finds that the defendant is unable to deliver the 50 shares in the possession of his wife, then a decree for delivery of the 200 shares upon a pro-rata basis.

3. If the court decides upon relief No. 2, proportionate damages for the failure to deliver said 50 shares.

4. If the court decides that specific performance is not feasible, then $20,000 damages for breach of contract.

$4,000 IN JEWELRY AND BONDS STOLEN AT NOANK

Jewelry and bonds valued at $5,000 was stolen from the residence of Latham Space of Noank some time Saturday night when the house was broken into during the absence of the Space family, according to a complaint made to Sergeant Gifford Gorgas of the Groton state police barracks Sunday morning.

Leaving the house early in the evening to make a visit the Spaces returned shortly after 1 o'clock to find the house broken into and ransacked from cellar to attic. Much jewelry including a valuable watch, was taken in addition to miscellaneous bonds valued at about $4,000.

The state police are investigating the complaint but had not obtained any clue to the guilty person Monday.

RESERVOIRS MADE GAIN IN MONTH OF JANUARY

Six storms in January gave a rainfall measurement of 2.10 inches, according to the records of the water office and while this is less than normal for January it enabled the two city reservoirs to make gains in the water they contain. Each reservoir gained about two feet after the heavy storm of the 19th. On the 27th Fairview reservoir stood at 2 feet, 11 inches, below full pond and Stony Brook was 11 feet, 8 inches below full pond.

Stopped Runaway Horse

Herbert Campbell of the Motor Mart, 321 Main street, performed his part as gracefully as a cowboy from the wild and wooly west Monday. While occupied in some manner in the building on Main street, he saw a horse hitched to a wagon tearing up Main street and without consideration for himself rushed into the street and grabbed the bridle of the horse; bringing him to a stop. Although the horse dragged Mr. Campbell for about 10 feet before he was under control, Mr. Campbell escaped without a scratch.

Miss Prentice Improving.

Miss Dorothy Prentice, who recently underwent an operation for appendicitis at Backus hospital, is making steady recovery and there is a possibility that she may be able to return this week to her home on Washington street.

DRIVER'S CASE TRANSFERRED TO LISBON COURT

Charged with operating a machine while under the influence of liquor, John Garrish, 28, of this city, was presented in the city court Monday morning before Judge Arthur F. Libby. The accident, which resulted in the arrest of Garrish, happened in the town of Lisbon, which attorney for the accused argued is outside the jurisdiction of the local court. Garrish will be presented in the Lisbon justice's court and in the meantime the charge against him will remain in the local court records until the case has been disposed of by the Lisbon court.

John J. O'Malley was presented on a charge of intoxication. O'Malley was on December 4th last sentenced to six months at the state farm for inebriates in Preston. O'Malley, it seems left the farm for a week end visit at his home here. He got "liquored up" and became boisterous Sunday night and his arrest followed. He was quiet enough in the police station but once in his cell he became very abusive to the officers who arrested him.

Supt. Franklin S. Wilcox and an attendant from the state farm appeared in court and took O'Malley back with them. O'Malley claimed that he had a job to take in Providence, and was planning to go there.

Two men paid fines with costs for intoxication. Michael Allasavitz, 30, was presented on a charge of hitting a man on the head with a bottle, in a fight at the Falls. It took seven stitches to close the wound in the man's head. The case was continued until today (Tuesday).

The case against Albert V. Pelletiere, a barber at 106 Thames street, was also continued until Tuesday. He is charged with violation of the liquor law through actual sale. Pelletiere was arrested Monday morning by Officer Charles Smith of the local police force.

CONSIDER COUNTY WORK IN ASSOCIATION LINES

Monday evening at the local Y. M. C. A. several of the men interested in the town and county branch of the Norwich "Y" met at supper time in the association dining room, and after lunch, a discussion of town and country work was held. President James C. Macpherson made brief remarks. William G. Park of Hanover, chairman of the county committee of the Norwich association, acted as chairman, L. G. Bates of New Haven, county state secretary, was present by invitation, and outlined the various programs pertaining to town and country work; Mr. Bates talk was very instructive and the group of men present listened with marked attention. Repcesentatives were present from Hanover, Baltic and Versailles. The Norwich association was the host of the occasion which was genuinely profitable, and will doubtless enhance the interest in this special work lately taken over by the local Y. M. C. A.

PROGRESSIVE SUPPER BY UNIVERSALIST YOUNG PEOPLE

In continuing the observance of young peoples week, the Young People's Christian Union of the Church of the Good Shepherd held a progressive supper starting at 6:30 at Miss Villa C. Bussey's 22, Hamlin street, where fruit cocktail was served. Tomato Bisque was eaten at Miss Hartie Fowler's on Main street and after the salad course at Miss Bertrice Green's, 18 Fowler avenue, the happy party wended their way to the church where Miss Helen Harrigan, Miss Betty Pike, Sherman Barker and Miss Alice and Miss Dorothy Parsons served stuffed roast pork, mashed potatoe, celery and cranberry sauce. Dessert at Miss Laurice Foster's on Crescent street was in the form of ice cream and wafers. A marsh mallow roast and games followed.

WORST DAY OF WINTER FOR AUTOMOBILE DRIVERS

A sudden drop in the temperature early Monday morning converted streets and highways into veritable skating rinks. Rain had fallen a good part of Sunday night and the falling mercury covered streets and highways with glare ice that made automobile driving treacherous during the early morning hours. Chains were of little use on hills and machines not equipped with chains found it almost impossible to make even an average sized hill. Cars slid in all directions for several hours until a light fall of snow had covered the icy streets and highways providing some traction for the wheels.

Early morning autoists, in a number of cases, slid sideways, backwards and forwards on the icy streets. It was practically impossible to tell which way machines would head. One local man in attempting to make the turn from Thames street into West Main street, suddenly found himself sliding around on the ice and came to a stop headed up West Main street. He negotiated his machine to the curb and decided it would be wise to put on his chains. Several drivers turned completely around on Broadway and a number had difficulty in climbing Broadway hill. Union street was treacherous and drivers who had occasion to use that street very wisely drove down the hill in second or low.

West Main street hill was extremely slippery as were Jail Hill and Fox Hill, for a while, and even machines with chains found it hard work to climb these hills. The New London-Hartford turnpike, the Military highway, the Norwich-Westerly road and other highways were dangerously slippery for a time, until the light snow fall had covered the glare ice and provided some traction. A number of bad accidents were miraculously avoided through careful driving.

Monday morning a Standard Oil truck slid down Laurel Hill and into the wall erected on the east side of the bridge. Had it not been for the wall the truck would probably have gone over the embankment and into the river. The driver, Louis Stevens of 16 Denison avenue, New London, who had Frank Overton of that city with him, felt the truck getting away from him as he came down the hill. Instead of risking going over the Laurel Hill bridge he tried to swing the truck into Talman street, but landed up against the stone bulkhead, which saved a 75 foot plunge into the river. The tank had a full load of 1,500 gallons gasoline in it, the whole weight being about 5 tons but the wall stood the shock, losing only a few pieces of stone that were knocked out. The damage to the truck was about $500 and it also dented the mudguard of an automobile that was standing at the curb.

On the Military highway especially in the vicinity of Gales Ferry machines were sliding all over the road. Several drivers found it impossible to make the steep hill in that vicinity.

All in all it was a bad day for drivers, about the worst of the winter. In Norwich Street Commissioner John C. Donovan had a gang of men at work until the o'clock Monday morning, keeping the streets open to traffic. The Connecticut company sent trolley cars over their lines at intervals throughout the night in order to keep their trolley tracks free from ice and sleet.

MADE INSPIRING ADDRESS TO MEN'S BIBLE CLASSES

Rev. O. F. Bartholow of Mt. Vernon, N. Y., where he is the leader of a men's Bible class of 2,500 members, made an inspiring address Monday evening at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church at a mass meeting for men's classes under the auspices of the Everyman's Bible class of the church. The attendance included representations from men's classes in other churches in the city, New London, Baltic, Mystic, Gales Ferry, Versailles and South Manchester.

Rev. Myron E. Genter, district superintendent presided, and the speaker was introduced by Rev. Frank W. Gray of Rockville.

The Mt. Vernon pastor spoke upon "Men and the Church," describing what a wonderful transformation had been accomplished in the life of every department of his church by the success achieved with the men's class, which he said was the result of personality plus organization.

The gathering rose and applauded Rev. Mr. Bartholow as he concluded his stirring address and it was decided to appoint a committee to carry forward the inspiration of the meeting by the organization and affiliation of men's classes. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. Dr. A. Pitt of the Central Baptist church.

A social hour in which doughnuts and coffee were served was held in the Sunday school room after the meeting adjourned.

CHANGE IN REQUIREMENTS BY NORMAL SCHOOLS

Notices have been sent to boards of education in the state concerning a change in the entrance requirements to the Connecticut state normal school for the class entering next September. Of the new entrants it will be required that foreign language units, when offered shall be two in any one language. This change is of importance at this time, as the state board of education points out in its communication, as it has a bearing on the courses taken during the second semester at the high schools by those who contemplate entering normal schools next September.

It is advised that high schol principals critically examine the courses chosen by students having normal training in mind in order that these students may not be disappointed when they come to offer their credits or present themselves for entrance examination in foreign language work. Entrance examinations will be held at each normal school on June 25 and 26 and August 24 and 25.

The goal set up by the state board in 1922 that by September, there should be a normal prepared teacher in every vacancy in the elementary schools in the state, is in sight, Commissioner A. B. Meredith stated. In 1920 the percentage of normal graduates who were beginners in ninety-five small towns was twenty-three, whereas in 1925 this percentage had climbed to eighty-seven, an increase of 278 per cent. Of the 157 vacancies in these schools in 1925 all but twenty were filled by normal school graduates and these are but four towns in which they do not employ such graduates.

MOVING PICTURE SHOWN TO CROWD AT Y. M. C. A.

An impressive and pleasing service was held at the large gymnasium of the Norwich Young Men's Christian Association on Sunday afternoon at 4 o'clock. Not only was every available seat taken, but many were obliged to stand during the service. The meeting opened with the singing of "Rock of Ages Cleft for Me," after which Secretary Edwin Hill read the Scripture and offered prayer. This was followed by a well rendered vocal solo by Hugh Kinder, who also played piano music for the entire service. The first half of the notable moving picture feature, "If Winter Comes" (six reels) was shown. This picture has already made its deep impression in England and America, and has been shown in many of the churches of the country; preachers are loud in its praise, as a screen story that carries with it a distinctly uplifting impression, and the showing Sunday justified its renutation, and doubtless many of the large audience were helped by the lesson portrayed on the screen.

The general secretary made very brief remarks, calling attention to the audience that into every life sooner or later, there comes the wintry experience, that is, every life has its problems, its perplexities, its shadows and sorrows; we can expect experiences that are hard to bear, but there is a way to meet these things successfully and that way is to link our lives with the great Almighty God, who has promised to help us to face even the hardest trials of life with calmness and serenity. God has never failed us if we but trust Him, and He never will.

Lewis R. Church, E. J. Fritz and Emery Davis acted as ushers of the meeting. Next Sunday the last half of this remarkable feature picture will be shown.

SUSIE SPENDS WEEK BATTLING WITH SEVERE CASE OF MEASLES

Poor Susie is sure having her share of troubles and during the past week was taken ill with the measles much to her disgust and therefore her letter this week is rather short. She writes as follows:

Dear Sports Editor: I got 'em. And believe me, I got 'em good and plenty. I got the darned things from little Willie who brung 'em home from school. Yep, its them pesky measles. If you ain't never had them things don't get 'em but run like the devil when you see anybody what's got 'em. Willie got 'em at school an' he was took sick with 'em but Ma said I had 'em once so there weren't no danger of gettin' 'em again. I got a lota faith in Ma, but never again. I hung 'round Willie an' readed books to him an' made him as comfy as I could like the good sister what I tries to be.

When anybody tells you you can't have them measles but oncet you tell 'em they is got 'bees in their bonnets 'cause I knows better an' right now I is the horrible example. Well, I'm gonna tell you 'bout them measles an' how I was took sick with 'em. About ten days ago I felt kinda tired an' my bones ached an' I thought it was the effect of that skatin' lessons but it ain't. I thinks I gotta cold an' I coff like freight goin' up hill. Well, that night I drinks some good hot ginger tea and puts a plastar of lard and pepper on my bosom an' goes to bed. Well, next mornin' when Ma comes in to get me up to go to work she looks at yours truely and remarks, "My Gawd, Susie, you is got the measles." And I says "My Gawd Ma, don't say sich words, tell me you is spoofin' me." But Ma gets the lookin' glass an' says kinda tragedy like, "Sees for yourself." I grabs that handglass all frettin' to learns the worst. Well I takes one look and that's a plenty 'cause sees I ain't no adv. for no beauty cream an' I don't got no skin what you like to touch like that feller Otto what works down to your place.

"Ma, I says, you ain't told me the truth, I ain't got the measles I has got a measle." And believe me I is right 'cause I'm one big measle from head to feet an' I don't look like the way Willie looked when he had 'em. A few spots here an' there, I se covered. Well, Ma says I gotta have the doc so she calls him up an' he comes up. He gives me some terrible tastin' stuff an' says I gotta stay in a dark room. Well, I stays all cooped up for a coupla days an' then I asks Ma if I can't have somethin' to eat and she brings me some soup, chicken or near chicken I guess is nearer right. Well, I had so much chicken soup in the past week I hate to look a good respectable hen in the face now an' I think I'm growin' wings and pinfeathers.

Well, while I'm sick the boy friend sends me up some flowers but I can't see 'em but they smells pretty good. Well, the boy don't show up none at the house for four or five days 'cause he says he's pretty busy but I guess he's 'fraid of them measles. When he comes up I makes him read to me and it's him whats writin' this letter 'cause if his spellin' ain't so good its mine you know what's the matter. He tells me all the gossip of the week so's I'm still keepin' up with the affairs in the Rose of New England.

He tells me that Hayes' lunch cart ain't been moved yet of which I'm glad. He says that Lion's show "That's That" was good an' went over big of which I am also glad 'cause them rehearsals what I saw didn't give no promise.

He tells me a funny one on Oney that fat feller what tried to play ball in them twilight league last summer. You know the feller I mean, the feller what is as wide as he is tall and it's easier for him to roll than walk. Yep, that's him. Well, it seems the other night Oney gets to sleep up in them Eagles rooms an' the fellers black his face an' he walks down town into a restrant an' the boys all give him the raspberry. Some feller asks Oney if he is goin' to be a actor an' Oney gets mad. Gosh, I bet he looked funny all right.

Say did ya see that pitcher in a Hartford Sunday paper about Washington Square 75 years ago. Gosh watn't that funny. Them fellers what put that pitcher in the paper musta let the office boy write them words under it 'cause it says "Washington Square, Norwich 75 Years Ago" an' then when you look at the pitcher the first thing you sees is a big electric light with a lotta big electric wires. My old man sees it an' laughs right out loud 'cause he remembers back that far an' all they had was gas lights and not very good gas lights at that. Ain't it funny how fellers on a big paper like that can be so dumb but I suppose they think 'cause they is big city fellers us folks down here in the sticks will swallaw anything. I bet if the office boy didn't right them words under the pitcher it was Bobby Byrnes what usta live here. That ain't all, they had a nother one a coupla weeks ago about a thunder storm in November and in the pitcher the leaves was all on the trees and they ain't the kindas trees what hold their leaves all winter. Such things is ridicular according to the way I thinks.

Well, I gotta take some more medicine an' go to sleep.

Hopin' you don't get no measles I remain yours as ever.

HELEN WILLS WINS SECOND RIVIERA TOURNAMENT

CANNES, France, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Helen Wills, American's woman tennis champion, emerged victorious today from her second Riviera tournament by defeating Mlle. Contostavos, one of France's ranking stars, in the first round of the Gallia tourney, 6-2, 6-3.

Thus the California girl has met and defeated within the past two weeks the best women players on the Riviera with the single exception of the great Susanne Lenglen. Her victory over Mlle. Contostavos today was her second in the Metropole tournament last week she defeated her 6-3, 6-4; in the course of triumphant progress through the event, to the finals of which she won from Mlle. Didi Vlasto.

Miss Wills played just well enough this morning to win without being extended, but she did not display the spirit marking some of her earlier matches on the Riviera. The soft lobbing game adopted by her opponent in the first set appeared to worry the American champion. While she was also bothered by Mlle. Contostavos' insistence upon playing an overhead game in which Miss Wills is not at her strongest.

Sullivan An Easy Victor.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Steve "Kid" Sullivan formerly junior lightweight champion, won an easy decision from Georgie Barbuc, Lewiston, Me., tonight in a slow ten round bout.

Sullivan weighed 131 1-2, Barbuc, 129 3-4.

In a ten round semi-final bout, Joey Silvers, New York 126, won the decision from Cuddy de Marco, Pittsburgh 137.

STECHER THROWS PADDUBNY IN ONE HOUR AND 38 MINS.

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(AP) — Joe Stecher, of Dodge City, Neb., claimant of the world's heavyweight wrestling championship defeated Ivan Poddubny of Russia in what was advertised as a title match here tonight. Stecher scored the lone fall after one hour 38 minutes and 47 seconds of wrestling with his deadly scissors, combined with an arm lock.

The Russian wrestler frustrated all attempts by Stecher to clamp on his famous scissors for more than an hour and a half but once the title claimant locked his feet across Poddubny's body it required but seven minutes to apply the arm lock and pin the challenger's shoulders to the mat.

Poddubny, known in grappling circles as "the Russian Lion," claims an undefeated record in 25 years of wrestling, his defeat tonight by Stecher being the first in his career. The Russian entered the ring weighing 248 pounds while Stecher tipped the scales at 213. Stecher found this weight advantage a decided handicap and it was not until he had tired the Russian sufficiently to wear him down that he was able to apply the finishing hold.

In the semi-finals match Stanislaus Zbyszko, of Poland, former champion, defeated Charles Leppanen, of Finland, with a headlock in 17 minutes of wrestling.

Y. M. C. A. SENIOR QUINTET LOSES HARD GAME TO COAST GUARD ACADEMY FIVE

In a fast tussle the Coast Guard Cadets of New London defeated the Y. M. C. A. Seniors on the "Y" court last night by the score of 39 to 16, thereby adding another notch to their string of victories. At half time the game stood 19 to 10, with both teams working hard to jump ahead, but as the latter part of the game progressed it was clearly evident that the visitors had the edge on the locals.

MISS BROWN—MRS. MALLORY WIN THEIR FIRST MATCHES

NEW YORK, Feb. 1.—(AP)—Playing the first indoor competitive match of her career today, Mary K. Browne, former national women's tennis champion from Santa Monica, Calif., triumphed with difficulty over the severe stroking of Florence Ballin, of New York, in the opening round of the annua Heights Casino invitation tournament, 6-3, 6-4.

Miss Browne's usually steady outdoor game suffered a sharp decline in the transition to the indoor courts of the Casino.

With the score tied at 4-all after Miss Browne had lost on her own service, Miss Ballin weakened and the California star seized the opportunity to clinch the contest in straight sets.

Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, also a former champion and a winner of the Casino tournament last year, drew a first round bye and scored easily in her second round match against Mrs. Edward Raymond, of Scarsdale, N. Y., 6-2, 6-1. Other seeded players to advance were Miss Martha Bayard, of Short Hills, N. J., who defeated Miss Edwina Cruickshank, of New York 6-3, 6-0, and Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere, of Boston, who eliminated Mrs. J. E. Bailey, of New York, 6-1, 6-2.

In other first round matches, Mrs W. M. Sheldon, Boston, defeated Mrs P. L. St. John, New York, 6-2, 6-4; Mrs. De Forest Candee, New York eliminated Miss Gertrude Dwyer, New York, 6-0, 6-0; Miss Rosamond Newton, Boston, won over Mrs. F. F. Schmitz, New York, 6-0, 6-2; Miss Adele Cragin, New York, eliminated Miss Jessie Gott, New York, 8-6, 8-6, 6-4.

FLAYS THOSE WHO WOULD CRITICIZE AMERICAN ATHLETICS

BOONVILLE, Mo., Feb. 1.—(AP)—The "destructive minded" critics who are "fearful" of the results of the tremendous growth of athletics in America were criticized tonight by Major John L. Griffith, big ten commissioner, in a speech at the dedication of Kemper Military Academy's new gymnasium.

"Many who decry athletic over-emphasis are jealous," he said, "because there is not like over-emphasis for certain other things dear to the hearts of those who lament.

The estimated receipts at American football games last fall was from $10,000,000 to $20,000,000, he said, while the American people spend $800,000,000 a year on cigarettes, and $50,000,000 for chewing gum.

The boys of today, said Major Griffith, devour the sports pages of newspapers, and aspire to become Red Granges instead of Diamond Dicks, as in his own boyhood days. "I am not disposed," he asserted, "to believe that many boys are spoiled, by newspaper praise. Neither am I unduly alarmed because now and then a college star drops out to play professional football. I have known some very fine men who played professional football a season or two. But they soon learned they could go farther in law, engineering or business than they could in professional football and so dropped."

DANIELSON FIVE TO CLASH WITH JEWETT CITY WEDNESDAY

Wednesday evening at Jewett City the fast traveling Danielson Town Team will attempt to administer another licking to the Jewett City Pros. It will be remembered that Danielson won the first encounter between these two teams by ten points at Danielson a few weeks ago. There is no doubt in the minds of the Jewett City fans of the result of the tussle if the Pros display the same brand of basketball as they did last week against the Webster Kaceys. In last week's game the passing, guarding and shooting of the Pros was all that could be desired and if they can only repeat this week a victory is practically assured, though in justice to the Danielson contingent it must be said that Danielson team is one of the best in Eastern Connecticut, and Jewett City will have to exert themselves to the utmost to be returned the winner.

In Blakley and Reeves Danielson has two of the most sensational forwards that ever trod the boards and to date no team has succeeded in halting these two sons of Mercury, the rest of the Danielson line-up and the complete Jewett City starting list will be in tomorrow's paper.

The preliminary will bring together two local teams, the newly organized Crescents and the Clerks, whose chief bid for fame lies in their landslide victory over the P. O. Square tribesmen last week.

The referee stopped the 32-round contest after Thomas had been knocked down 11 times and Ketchell had been sent to the mat seven times. Thomas fought three other battles with Ketchell. He defeated Honey Melody, one of his last battles was with Jack Twin Sullivan.

Thomas real name was Joseph Daly, was born in Beverly, 39 years ago. His parents went to California when he was two years old and he remained there until after he had begun his ring career, when he returned east. He is survived by a widow and one son.

PROGRAMME BY BARITONE PLEASES MUSIC ASSOCIATION

Wellington Smith, baritone, appearing in song recital Monday evening at Slater hall almost before the February meeting of the Norwich Music Association, brought out an attendance of most of the members although the evening was so uninviting. The singer gave his audience a delightful evening, rendering his selections with understanding and a decided sense of vocal ease and using his remarkably smooth mezzo voce with discrimination. In the first group of songs he impressed with a knowledge of the text and in the second group he conveyed the varying moods in a distinctive manner, full of character. The Negro Convict Song was repeated by request. In the Russian songs the singer was at his best. The interpretation and rhythmical effect were thoroughly in keeping with the Rachmaninoff inspiration.

Mr. Smith responded to several encores, among them The Little Rock, (John Barnes wells), Irish Love Song, (Lang), You Better Ask Me, Duna by McGill and Il Nelge by Rachmaninoff. Mrs. Edna Smith was the accompanist and was at all times in sympathy with the singer, and deserves special mention for her rendition of the difficult accompaniments.

The programme was given as follows:

Invocazione di Orfed ..... Perini
Kommt dir Manchmal ..... Brahms
Amour d'antan ..... Chausson
Laisez en paix "Anacreon" ..... Gretry

UNCAS PAPER BOARD SOLD FOR $250,000

A bid of $250,000 made at public auction, the lowest sum which the receiver was empowered to accept by order of the superior court, accomplished the sale of the Uncas Paper Board Co., property at Thamesville, Monday afternoon. There was a large attendance but the bid at which the sale was made was the only one for the property as a whole. The purchaser is Henry G. Kerry, of Montreal. The bid on his behalf was made by Attorney Frank L. McGuire, of New London, who stated that the plant would continue in operation. Mr. Kerry is an owner of paper mills in Canada. Stanton Briggs was the auctioneer.

The property, which carried insurance of $1,200,000 was appraised on April 23, 1925, at more than $1,000,000. The real estate consists of seventeen acres of land with mill buildings, ten tenements, one large superintendent's residence and 1,000 feet of dock frontage on the Thames river. Three railroad sidings pass through the property.

The sale was ordered by the superior court which instructed Receiver Frank W. Browning not to accept less than $250,000 for the property. The receiver was empowered to call for two classes of bids, first receiving bids for the entire property and equipment as a whole, and second by selling the property and equipment in lots or sections.

Mr. Kerry's bid was the only one received for the property as a whole. Under the second plan of selling, two bids were received, one for $5,000 and one for $200.

NEW LONDON, 191 MAIN ST., NORWICH, WESTERLY

BUILDING OPERATIONS IN NORWICH

The month of January proved to be the smallest month in several years according to the number of building permits granted by Fire Marshal Howard L. Stanton. During the first month in 1926 there were only six building permits issued at the office of the fire marshal, and the total valuation placed on the new buildings by the applicants is $7,650 which is far below the real worth of the buildings.

There were two permits for new frame houses granted, two permits for new frame garages, one permit for a new frame greenhouse and one permit for alterations to a present brick building.

The first three weeks in January saw only three permits granted but during the past week there were three permits granted by Fire Marshal Stanton. The building permits were as follows:

To William J. McNeely to erect a frame garage on Freeman Ave., for Harry Hargraves. The garage will be 11 x 16 feet and of frame construction. The roof will be covered with composition art shingles.

To Frank J. Laroux to erect a frame and glass greenhouse on North Main street for Philias Gladue. The greenhouse will have a stone and concrete foundation and will be 8 x 18 feet with an A roof. The heating will be by hot water.

To Ben Gwasdoff to erect a 2-story 2-apartment house on Mechanic street for himself. The work will be done by day labor. The house will be 32 x 40 feet with garage attached. There will be five rooms and bath in each apartment. Piazzas are to be built in both front and rear.

REAL ESTATE SALES AND MORTGAGE LOANS

During the past week there were six sales of real estate as compared to 14 sales for the same week in 1925. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $48,159 and $31,000.

There were 11 sales of real estate in New London during last week, one sale less than during the corresponding week a year ago. The mortgage loans for the respective weeks were $42,729 and $44,606.

Building Permits in State

Building permits were issued during the week in the several Connecticut cities to the number of 144 for new construction to cost $713,507. In the corresponding week of 1925, 115 permits were issued, and in 1924, 154 permit. The cost of new construction for the like week of last year was $384,663. and in 1924, $768,430.

Building in 1925

Reports of nation-wide building surveys covering the year 1925 concur in an estimate of $6,500,000,000 as the total of construction costs, verifying the many predictions early last year of a record-breaking period. The report of S. W. Strauss & Co., of building permits issued and plans filed in the leading centers of the country, which is based on reports from 891 cities comprising 18 per cent. of the population in all places of 5,000 or more, places the volume of building in the United States during the year at the above figure as compared with an estimate of $5,750,000,000 made for 1924 by that company a year ago. In the 891 centers which represent about 27 per cent of the entire population of the United States, the volume of construction officially reported was $4,451,959,830 compared with $3,740,791,486 in 1924, a gain of $711,168,354 or 19 per cent. These centers in December, 1925, reported a volume of building construction 15 per cent. greater than for December of the previous year. Larger gains were revealed in the 26 building cities which reported permits issued amounting to $2,761,070,793, a gain of 31 per cent. for the year. New York for the first time in the city's history, registered a billion-dollar building year.

NEW LONDON

Plans have been figured for a residence for Henry Kaiser, 23 Avery court, to be erected on a new street being developed on Pequot avenue, the new street being known as Guthrie place. The house will contain eight rooms. It will be of Dutch colonial design, frame construction, with an improvements.

The foundation is being constructed by day labor for the store and tenement building at 1344 Pequot avenue for Gordon Crossley. The contract for the carpentry work has been let. The remainder of the work will be done for the owner by day labor. As previously reported, the building will contain a store on the first floor and a four-room tenement above. A retaining wall for the sidewalk, 96x10 feet, is also being constructed.

The permit has been issued to Minicci Bros., 45 Pacific street, for a dwelling at the corner of Pacific street and Ocean avenue. The house will contain two tenements, provided with the usual improvements. It will be 36x36 feet, of frame construction and will cost about $8,000.

Architect Frank L. Foster, of New York, has been commissioned to prepare plans for the residence to be erected on Pequot avenue, for Theodor Bodenwein, 42 Nathan Hale street. Further details regarding the house will be published later in these columns.

Plans for the store and apartment building to be erected for Charles E. ENGINEER FRANK M'COLMON DIES SUDDENLY ON TRAIN AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 1—Frank McColmon, 50, of 189 Lombard street, New Haven, a locomotive engineer in the employ of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, died suddenly aboard a passenger train at the Union station, this forenoon.

McColmon was a freight engineer and finished his run in Worcester early this morning. He then boarded a passenger train to "dead-head" to his home. When the train arrived in New London about 6 o'clock McColmon did not alight, but remained in a seat in the smoking car. When a train boy with sandwiches appeared McColmon made a purchase and hardly had started to eat the lunch when he was observed by passengers to collapse in his seat. Several went to McColmon's assistance, but he was unconscious if not dead, for when he had been carried to the baggage room and a physician summoned it was found that the engineer had expired. Medical Examiner Charles Kaufman was summoned and after he had conducted an investigation the physician pronounced McColmon's death as having been caused by heart trouble stating that the man had died immediately following the sudden attack.

COAST GUARD SAILORS WERE JUSTIFIED IN FIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 1—The police continued their investigation today of the fight that occurred on Shaw's cove railroad bridge early Sunday morning, when William Falvey, Clover court, was severely beaten, receiving severe bruises about the head and a slight cut in the back. From the information in possession of the investigators, Sergeants Nelson Smith and John Cavanaugh, the officers are inclined to believe that Falvey and his companion, John Sherlock, residing on a house boat, rear of 58 Howard street, precipitated the fight and that United States Coast Guard sailors were those who administered the beating to Falvey. The officers are of the opinion that the sailors were attacked as they passed over the railroad bridge and that the bluejackets were forced into the battle. Edward Rowan, one of the sailors, who was attacked was almost positive in his assertion that Falvey attacked him and but a few minutes after H. B. Riveria, another sailor, had been attacked. It is now believed that no prosecutions will result.

Tomorrow will determine the punishment Sylvia Wells, colored, will receive for her felonious assault upon Mazie Williams, an alleged procuress for a house located at 29 Hill street. A couple of males, one of them the tenant at the Potter street house where the Wells girl was sheltered were detained as witnesses of the assault. They are to appear in court tomorrow also. So the court will have the opportunity to clean out the entire augean stable when the cases come up. The Williams woman has a long police record of a varied sort, and of a vile nature. She is married, but she has been convicted of offenses enough to stamp her as a character that the city would be well rid of, without. Whether the Williams woman will be turned over to the federal authorities to be dealt with under the Mann act or whether she will be bound over to the superior court for discipline is not known nor will it be till the police court has had the evidence presented to it and Judge Prince has passed upon it. That the whole gang will be sent to prison is probable.

Drunks and bummers furnished business for the police court this morning. They came to the notice of the police late at night and were placed where they would not disturb others for a while.

John J. Brewer who said he had worked for the American Woolen company at Norwich, was begging in the street, but before officers could get the parties from whom Brewer had solicited money he got into a ten room on Main street where he ordered food and then dropped into sleep. The restaurant management asked the police to take him out. This they did. Brewer had not paid for his food. Then it developed that he had been a lodger at the police station a couple of nights. Tripe and sour kraut comprised the food John had ordered and he had them in his pocket when he was taken into custody. He was fined and that penalty took him to the county jail for a stay of two weeks, or more. He was quite drunk when arrested.

Henry L. King, an employe of the New England Transportation company, came here on a vessel and then turned from water to booze. He was found drunk on North Bank street and was taken to cover. He admitted his offense, but as he had employment he was allowed to seek it on suspension of judgment.

Newton Mosier, an employe of the Thames shipyard, just got drunk, he said, and was picked up by the police. He was absolutely honest in his admission which won lenieny for him and he was allowed to tackle the job he had abandoned to indulge in drink.

Robert Murphy was fined $5 for intoxication. That sum and the costs were more than Robert could raise so he went to jail. He too, claimed he was employed at the American Woolen company plant at Norwich.

Joe Parkeskie, a sailor of the coast guard service, and Cornelius Sullivan, became involved in a fight. They couldn't explain any more about their experience. They were fined and managed to raise the money to settle.

The week started with the most disagreeable weather of the winter. Rain fell during the night and that was followed by snow that froze on the walks, so that pedestrians moved in slippery places as soon as they started out for business or work today. A drizzle continued after that, so that conditions were exceptionally unfavorable for going about. The absence of wind was the only favorable condition that confronted outwof-doors busy folks.

Alfred H. Highmore has sold a building lot on Gorten street to John G. and Isabelle Austin.

An automobile owned and operated by Adrian Murray, 31 Jefferson avenue, and a machine operated by Harry Calande, 14 Warren street, were in collision this afternoon on Garfield avenue, corner of Connecticut avenue. Both cars were damaged and Murray and Calande suffered bruises and contusions. Calande did not possess an operator's license and he was ordered to appear in the police court Tuesday morning by Patrolmen Frank Linehan and Augustus Ray, who were assigned to investigate the crash. Murray was operating his machine easterly on Connecticut avenue. As the car was crossing Garfield avenue, Calande's machine and travelling in a southerly direction, appeared. Just before Murray's car had crossed the intersection, Calande's car crashed against Murray's auto, causing the former car to be overturned. Passing autoists went to Calande's assistance and he was removed from the capsized car, but instead of being seriously injured he had suffered only severe bruises.

James Yates, United States Coast Guard destroyer Cummings, local section base, No. 4; William Davey, West Mystic; James Elliott; 16 Konomoc street; Matthew Sullivan, 70 Union street; Francis Karl, Mystic, and Francis Walters, 349 Pequot avenue, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Association hospital, were dismissed Sunday and today.

It was disclosed today that the Charles H. Tiedeman corporation, Boston, which concern Saturday acquired the property, 202-206 Bank street, from Daniel F. and James E. Moran, is a real estate concern and purchased the property through speculation.

Miss Ada Ferri, 17, died at the residence of her parents Sunday night, death ending a brief illness of pneumonia.

The continued case of Charles Palmer, Mystic, charged with negotiating a worthless check, was nolled in the Groton town court this forenoon by Judge Cornelius C. Costello upon Palmer's agreeing to pay the costs of the case, $12.75. It was brought out in court that Palmer tendered a check upon the Hartford Battery Manufacturing company, of Hartford, but it was represented that the check should not be negotiated until such agreed time that Palmer had made deposit to take care of the check. Instead the check was deposited and was returned as being worthless. The nolle of the case was made possible by Palmer making payment of all incumbrance, including the face of the check and expenses.

Albert Aickolz, chief petty officer, stationed at the submarine base, and residing in this city, drew a fine of $50 and costs for operating his automobile while under the influence of liquor. Aickols was taken into custody Sunday night by State Police Officer Joseph J. Bobnick.

William J. Smith, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Smith, 102 Montauk avenue, and Miss Catherine Finn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Timothy Finn, 97 Jefferson avenue, were married this morning at 8 o'clock at St. Mary's Star of the Sea church, the nuptial ceremony being performed by Rev. Timothy M. Crowley, rector of the church and in the presence of a large circle of relatives and friends of the contracting couple. Hugh Smith, brother of the groom, was best man and Miss Agnes O'Neill, attended the bride. Following the ceremony, Mr. and Mrs. Smith departed upon their wedding tour and upon its conclusion will reside at 102 Montauk avenue. Mr. Smith is employed in the division accountant's office of the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad.

Miss Beatrice Tobine, 28 Summer street, employed as clerk at the Hotel Mohican, is confined to her home by a severe attack of tonsilitis.

Alfred H. Pollock, Montauk avenue, departed today for an extended western trip in the interest of the Corticelli Silk company.

TALK OF FINANCES FOR PERMANENT CITY STREETS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 1—At the council meeting this evening the city manager directed the attention of the members to the provision of a fund that shall be used for the construction of permanent streets. He referred to the fact that water-bound macadam streets did not give the best of satisfaction. He told the council the matter was one that might well claim attention with a view to bringing about a change. He said there was a constant demand for better streets and for more streets and that now that an auto was owned by almost every family, the demand was increasing. He suggested that his recommendation should be referred to committees that perhaps a decision might be reached so that permanent streets might be provided for during a period of years and a way might be found for financing the plan either by a bond issue or an appropriation each year.

Councilor Whiton called attention to the fact that in many cities of quick growth the property directly benefitted is paying a portion of the cost of permanent streets. He suggested that the matter might be viewed from that standpoint in New London and that the cost of construction of such streets might be charged over against property benefitted, not that the cost should be a burden but that it could be extended over a term of years. He suggested consideration of the starting of a fund from which could be borrowed such sums as were necessary to do the work. He said that loans for this very work could be made from this fund. The suggestions were referred to the finance committee and to that on public works.

The Pequot Realty company deeded land to the city for improvements to be made at Pequot avenue and Lower Boulevard. The deed was accepted and the thanks of the council were extended to the donors.

The council voted to take away the public sign post from the rear of the municipal building and that such notices as are posted upon it shall be displayed from a bulletin board in the lobby of the municipal building.

A movement was begun to take from the board of selectmen, duties that now fall upon them and that they shall be performed by a change to the council or the city manager. The change is to be made by ordinance.

A recommendation was received for the construction of a storm sewer in Coleman street at a cost of $15,900. Councilor Streeter opposed the plan and declared that the city had no right, in his opinion, to expend money for the improvement of private property, which, he declared, was his opinion of this undertaking. He voted against the scheme with the other members of the council favoring it. The mayor said the council was not expending money of the city but was to do work for which the abutting property owners would pay. The council voted to lay sewers in Coleman street and contiguous strets at a cost of $46,600, which cost is to be assessed against abutting property owners and property benefitted by the sewers. It was decided to lay sewers on Pequot avenue at a cost of $36,770, which amount will be assessed against the property benefitted.

The mayor inquired why the cost of the sewers there was double what it was in other sections and was told that the depth of the trench was 17 feet during much of the distance and that the trench must be shored up all that distance. There was rock to be encountered also and that added to the cost of the work. The cost of the work is estimated at $4.86 a foot. The city manager represented that the previous cost of $1.20 a foot front was by no means adequate to the performance of the work now.

Councilor May asked that more light should be provided near the Thomas Hose house, and said that recently there had been a hold-up in that vicinity. Councilor Scott reminded him that the so-called white way had been extended past the spot referred to and that the darkness was imaginary.

Councilor May also asked for the improvement of the highway in Seward street and was told that the matter had been brought up at a recent meeting and was referred to the city manager. It was the intention of that official to report on the matter more fully later.

The applications for building permits at the meeting were for garages, except in one case where a permit to erect a bungalow was requested.

TAX RATE FOR TOWN OF WINDHAM IS 14 MILLS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 1—After a brief debate of the advisability of raising the tax rate this year, a 14-mill tax, an increase of two mills over last year, was levied on the grand list of the town of Windham at a special meeting, held tonight. The list as compiled by the board of assessors amounts to $17,377,410 and this will be reduced by nearly $150,000 after the board of relief has completed its work and all the exemptions of ex-service men are taken. The budget for the year calls for $304,200. H. Clinton Lathrop made the motion for a 14-mill tax and it was seconded by Robert H. Fenton and others. Eugene J. Randall said that the time was inopportune to increase the tax rate and he asked that it be deferred until next year but the 15 citizens present voted in favor of the original motion. Mr. Randall then moved that one mill of the tax be applied to paying off the floating indebtedness of $275,000 and the motion was adopted.

Miss Selectman Ernest C. Chesbro was moderator of the meeting and Clerk Fenton read the warning. The meeting opened at 8 o'clock and lasted but eight minutes. The receipts from the 14-mill tax will place the town in a position to pay off on the principal of its debt for the first time in many years. There are also receipts from school tuition from neighboring towns, for children attending Windham high and the grammar schools, which amount to about $40,000 and an income from personal taxes, cemeteries, rents and miscellaneous items which represent nearly the amount of the budget.

The average young man finds it easier to get a wife than to get the furniture.

Miss Christine Burdick, of Boston university, is at home for a week.

Travel was made precarious in this borough Monday, as a result of the storm. Busses making their regular trips were held up somewhat during the day, arriving and departing behind their regular schedules.

A lecture which deserved a much larger audience was given in Academy hall Saturday evening by Frederick Vining Fisher. His subject was "Ultimate America" and with the assistance of 250 slides he pictured the wonders of western America, and the rapid growth of cities on the Pacific coast. He predicted that the great southwest would be the seat of the American of the future.

Mr. and Mrs. Maurice F. Childs were in Hyde Park Saturday attending the funeral of a relative.

Louise M. Lawton, who is studying music in Boston, was home over Sunday.

Harry W. Ruthhauser left Monday for Boston, where he is to enter Northeastern university.

POETRY

Arguments in Vermont

The folks in Vermont, they manage all right,
By workin' all day and workin' all night;
By sweatin' and sawin' and doin' without
All the extrias that others are talkin' about.
That's how they amount!

They make hay by the sun; they make hay by the moon;
The wives and the daughters all stir to the tune
That, if they quit raisnest in never their backs
They'll get up an' hustle around to their tracks
That's how they amount!

In blueberry time there are Frank and Dill
Who are up and away to the blueberry hill,
With husband and brother and all the young brood
To get "their" in time while the pickin' is good.
That's how they amount!

They dicker and barter away for them berries
With all the old Jehnnies and Samsies and Jerrys
And then when they can't beat them down any more,
They drive on to Coshen and buy them for "four."
That's how they amount!

If they'd only keep these blueberries all,
They'd last them all Summer and all the next Fall,
But no, we must sell 'em and git the top price.
Sure thing! We'll git more if the weather hangs nice!
That's how they amount!

It's not them, dear readers, they're so awfully smart.
That they all have more dough than they've kindness of heart.
It's because they hand on to the pennies, by gum!
And drink Yankee cider and do without rum.
That's how they amount!

Now, Daniel, you're way off bout this Vermont "sumption;"
To me and to others it may be persumption,
All the "sumption" there is tho', is plain as your sight
Those lightwads hang on to they "moneys" all right!
That's how they amount!

I'm one of the crowd, and I'm tight as the bark,
You can talk all day long and till long after dark
But I'll pick and I'll save and I'll clutch all in sight
And plunk it right daoun in the bank before night.
That's how we amount!
—Neil Richardson, in Rutland Herald.

The Garden Where There Is No Winter

Behold the portal; open wide it stands,
And the long reaches shine and still allure
To seek their noble depths serene secure.
And watch the waters kiss the yellow sands
That gentle winds stir with their sweet commands;
These stately growths from age to age endure,
These splendid blooms glow in the sunlight pure,
These wondrous works of human hearts and hands.
Over the charmed space no storm may rest.
The gloomy hours avoid the magic bound.
Homa dwells here, Vergil, and all the blest
Whose perfumed color lights Time's mighty round;
Pluck the fruit freely, reader, and partake,
God wills it—for the enchanted Soul's fair sake.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Lady—Have you a nice creepy book?
Clerk—Yes, ma'am, are you a bookworm?—Columbia Jester.

Professor—Now this plant belongs to the begonia family.
Visitor—Ah, yes, and you're keeping it for them while they're away.—Dartmouth Jack-o'-Lantern.

"What advantage is there in living where nobody at all knows you?"
"You can give your right name."—University of Pittsburgh Panther.

A Boston man says he can extinguish a flame by drawing a violin bow over a tuning fork. After all, maybe old Nero was trying to put Rome out.—Nashville Banner.

"Mary, can you tell me why I am like a hen?"
"No, dear. Why is it?"
"Because I seldom find anything where I laid it yesterday."—Good Hardware.

Where is the manager's office?
"Follow the passage until you come to the sign reading 'No Admittance.' Go up stairs till you see the sign 'Keep Out.' Follow the corridor till you see the sign, 'Silence,' then yell for Him."—Princeton Tiger.

"It was a most wonderful contest," the soprano said. "My voice filled the hall, didn't it?"
"Indeed it did," answered her bosom friend. "I saw several people leaving to make room for it."—Le Rire.

Parishioner—"I believe St. Paul was prejudiced."
Priest—"What makes you say that?"
Parishioner—"Well, he wrote letters to the Romans, didn't he? Why didn't he write to the Protestants, too?"—

A French scientist has discovered a means of extracting and harnessing electricity in trees. He connected a copper plate attached to a tree and another plate buried in the earth, with a galvanometer, a delicate instrument which measures the strength of weak currents of electricity, and obtained a record of the current passing through the tree. With three trees connected in the same way the power was increased, the experiment, with a like result, being continued until twenty trees were linked up in this fashion. The scientist then placed two copper plates in the earth, about six feet apart and with the current thus obtained lighted a small electric lamp. Whether the idea can be extended to be commercially worth while has yet to be determined.

Broad Theatre

It is a singular fact that most of the great successes on the screen and on the speaking stage have been made by those who commenced as children, or, we may say, were "caught early." As to the screen, this applies particularly to Lillian and Dorothy Gish, both of whom began as children and learned the art by slow and careful processes. And it is doubtful if the art of acting, either for the screen or the speaking stage, was ever properly learned in any other way.

It was only a few years ago that Mrs. Mary Gish, after the death of her husband, took her two blonde-haired tots to New York city and obtained work for them in the old Biograph studio. It was fortunate that the two youngsters, Lillian and Dorothy, came under the guiding hand of so masterful a director as D. W. Griffith.

Out of this experience came, for Lillian in particular, such triumphs as were hers in The Birth of a Nation, Hearts of the World, Broken Blossoms, Way Down East, Orphans of the Storm, The White Sister, and now Romola, which is an inspiration picture distributed by Metro-Goldwyn, now playing at the Breed.

Broadway Theater

There came to the Broadway theater yesterday a perfect combination of vaudeville and pictures that went over with a bang!

A native son of Norwich returns to this city after an absence of seventeen years to give his townspeople a thrill in his novelty gymnastic offering. He is Alfred O. Phillipp of the act Alfreda & Jeanette. Many will recall this son of Norwich who has made good wherever he has appeared. His father is Theodore Phillipp. It was a real joy to see how his training in this city has helped him along on the road to success.

Flo Crystal and Jimmy Anderson in a comedy de luxe is the second Keith-Albee attraction. Each line sparkles with humor and the songs are delightfully rendered.

The music lovers will surely enjoy Madeline Patrice and Joe Sullivan in "An Interlude of Melody." Both instrumental and vocal offerings are above the usual.

Jack Copes and Cramer Hutton in "Two Nuts Doing Nutting" were a riot of fun. Theirs is that every favorite kind of comedy which is generally termed "nut" or "hokum."

The closing offering by Allen & Jean Corelli in "Unique feats of resistance" was as pleasing as it was mystifying. How is it possible? was the question that went around and around the audience. It is truly a scientific enigma as to how these two slight built people have such wonderful control over their muscles. Medical men are invited to see them.

Not only does "California Straight Ahead," Reginald Denny's latest Universal-Jewel starring production, now at the Broadway theater, provide its audiences with more than the usual quota of laughs, but it also presents many valuable suggestions to ambitious motorists. Most of the action of the picture takes place in and about an elaborately constructed motor house in which Denny is supposed to make a transcontinental trip. The conveyance, built at the Universal City shops, is complete from bath to radio set, with wireless telephones, a tiny kitchen and all the appointments of a popular home.

We advise all local theatregoers not to miss this program.

Sour Stomach
"Phillips Milk of Magnesia"
Better than Soda

Instead of soda hereafter take a little "Phillips Milk of Magnesia"—a teaspoonful in water any time for indigestion or sour, acid, gassy stomach, and relief will come instantly.

For fifty years genuine "Phillips Milk of Magnesia" has been prescribed by physicians because it overcomes three times as much acid in the stomach as a saturated solution of bicarbonate of soda, leaving the stomach sweet and free from all gases. It neutralizes acid fermentations in the bowels and gently urges the souring waste from the system without purging. Besides, it is more pleasant to take than soda. Insist upon "Phillips." Twenty-five cent bottles, any druggist.

MARKET WAS IRREGULAR

NEW YORK, Feb. 1—(AP)—Higher call money rates apparently inspired sufficient selling in today's stock market to check the rising tide of prices. Closing quotations disclosed considerable irregularity, both the rail and industrial averages hardly sound although several specialties were marked up one to nearly twelve points. The reduction in the volume of trading was attributed in some quarters to the disposition on the part of many large traders to await the publication of the figures on brokers' loans before extending their commitments.

Two of the most interesting developments of the day were the approach of sterling exchange to within a 1-16 of one cent of gold parity, the highest rate since the early days of the war, and the advance of 25 cents a barrel in mid-continent crude prices, but neither exerted any influence on stock prices. As a matter of fact, most of the oil shares lost ground, indicating that the advance had been widely discounted. Foreign bonds, however, were firm, new high records being established by several issues, including United Kingdom 5 1-2s.

Most of the standard industrials lost ground. U. S. Steel common showed a net loss of 1 5-8 at 133 1-4. Baldwin dropped nearly a point to 129 and American Can closed 1-2 lower at 227 1-2 after selling as high as 229. Net losses of a point or more also were recorded by such representative rails as New York Central, Rock Island, Reading and Union Pacific, and Chesapeake & Ohio dropped over 3 points to 179 3-4.

Wood specialties again attracted widespread speculative attention because of the publicity given to reports of huge combines in that field. South Porto Rican Sugar soared over 12 points to a record high at 146, closing within a point of the top. Great Western Sugar closed 3 3-4 higher at 102 1-4, and net gains of a point or more were recorded by Postum Cereal, California Packing, Lard Baking B and White Rock.

Motors enjoyed a temporary outburst of strength on buying influenced by reports that January car sales had exceeded expectations. General Motors was run up to 129 3-4, the highest price reached this year, and Chrysler moved to 137 7-8, where it was up 1 5-8 on the day. Hudson closed fractionally lower at 111 after having touched 116 3-4. Nash Motors was run up from 534 to 541 1-2 on relatively few sales.

Other specialties for which there was a good demand included Brooklyn Edison, Dupont, Famous Players, American Brake Shoe and Foundry, Continental Can, Gold Dust, Peoples Gas and Twin City Rapid Transit.

Otis Elevator, which was listed last week, was traded in for the first time and an orderly market developed between 19 5-8 and 20 1-2.

Passing of the Pacific Mills dividend for the first time since 1883 probably inspired selling of American Woolen, which closed 1 5-8 lower at 38 1-2. American Smelting and Refining, Central Leather, Beechnut Packing, Fox Film, National Biscuit, Remington Typewriter and Woolworth also showed pronounced weakness.

Commodity markets were fractionally active. Active wheat futures showed a moderate recession after an early display of strength. Cotton showed little change in quiet trading. Raw sugar futures were 1 to 5 points net lower, and coffee futures showed declines of 2 to 24 points.

Call money renewed at 4 1-2 per cent, advanced to 5 and thence to 5 1-2, closing at the top. The rise was generally attributed to the heavy calling of loans by banks in connection with first of the month requirements.

Foreign exchanges moved within narrow ranges and irregular limits. Belgian sterling ruled around $4.86 1-2 and cables eased to $4.86 1-2 after the opening displays of strength. The French francs were slightly lower at 3.73 cents. Reserved heaviness developed in Polish zloty, which dropped 10 points to 13.80 cents.

TAFTVILLE

There was an attendance of almost 800 Saturday evening at the carnival given by the Army and Navy club and the Sacred Heart church in Parish hall. For an entertainment there were two boxing bouts which pleased the patrons of the carnival. The Army and Navy club orchestra played for the dancing, which continued until midnight.

Today (Tuesday) being the Feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, sometimes called Candlemas day, there is to be a special service at the Sacred Heart church, for the blessing of the candles to be used at the church and among the parishioners for the coming year. The service commemorates the presentation of the Christ-child in the temple when He was forty days of age.

Miss Helen C. Aberg has returned to the Willimantic state normal school after spending several days at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Axel L. Aberg of North Third avenue.

Harold Cady of South B Street has resigned his position with the Ponemah mills.

WAS LAST SURVIVOR OF BURNED STEAMER

Charles Mitchell, who has been ill since soon after Christmas suffering from rheumatism and complication of diseases, died at his home in Hill Lane, Old Lyme, Saturday morning about 10 o'clock, as the result of a shock. He is survived by his wife, who was formerly Miss Ella Morris, one son, George Mitchell and several granddaughters, all of Old Lyme. Mr. Mitchell is the last survivor of the steamer New London which ran between New London and Norwich many years ago and was burned in midstream off Montville with a loss of several lives, including Mr. Mitchell's brother, Wallace Mitchell.

George E. Wright's Early Days.

Mrs. E. A. Moriarty writes The Bulletin as follows:

The very sudden death of the well known and highly esteemed George E. Wright, of Norwich, and Hartford, calls to mind that at the early age of three months his mother passed away and his father being an invalid, the infant was taken to the home of the late Gardner Smith, of Norwich Town for care, and later adopted as one of the family, and cared for as a son and loved brother.

January Arrests at Low Figure

January arrests by the Norwich police made one of the smallest monthly records for some time, the total being 68. The following were the causes:

Intoxication 30, breach of peace 4, frequenting gambling place 11, non-support 4, violations of motor vehicle law 14, deserter 1, insane 1, violation of liquor law 2, burglary 2, keeping gambling house 1.

Be sure to get real Resinol

If you want to get rid of eczema, pimples or some other distressing skin condition, insist upon obtaining Resinol Ointment in the original package. It is put up in opal jars, two sizes only—1¾ oz. and 1½ ozs. Preparations similar in name or appearance and those offered as or for Resinol are not "just the same as Resinol." Many of them have little healing power, and may even be dangerous to use.

SEWER ASSESSMENTS LAID BY COMMITTEE OF COMMON COUNCIL

The principal business transacted at the January meeting of the court of the common council Monday evening in the council chamber, was the laying of assessments against property holders for benefits for and by the construction of two sewers recently completed. The sewers for which the assessments were laid are the ones from Lake street playground to Hickory street, in Hickory street from Baltic street to North street, in North street from Hickory street to East Baltic street, in Pratt and in Brook streets and the sewer in Geer avenue and in Summit street from Geer avenue to Carpenter street. The committee, Alderman Henry Gebrath, Councilman Nicholas J. Spellman and Councilman Maurice Looby presented their report along with the assessments laid and the reports were accepted as submitted. The assessments are payable to the city treasurer on or before April 1st.

The council meeting was called to order at 8:15 o'clock by His Honor, Mayor Mills R. Waters and according to custom, the minutes of the previous meeting were accepted without reading. Petitions were received and disposed of as follows:

From, J. J. Corkery, et. al., for a light at the intersection of Fowler avenue and Main street, or the removal of the present light, located about 100 feet east of the street intersection, to the street intersection. Referred to the police committee with power.

From Rhineholdt Thoma, et. al., for a light at the top of the hill on Lorenzo street. Referred to the police committee with power.

The auditor's report on the accounts of the cashier of the water department was received, accepted and ordered printed in the council journal.

The fire commissioners reported that the petition of E. T. Rogers, et. al., for a fire alarm box on Pratt street has been granted and the box installed. The box number is 213. The commissioners also reported that another new box has been installed on Main street, near Palmer street and Fox hill. The number of this box is 66.

Alderman Russell F. Smith stated to the council that the fire commissioners realize that more boxes are needed in the city and that they will be installed as soon as the money is available. The commissioners' report was accepted.

The monthly reports of the city treasurer and the street commissioner were accepted after which the council proceeded to hear the reports of the sewer assessment committee. The reports were read by City Clerk Weston C. Pullen and were accepted without change.

Resolved, That the said sums of money to be paid by the persons aforesaid, respectively, be and they are hereby ordered to be paid on or before the 1st day of April, A. D. 1926, to the treasurer of the City of Norwich, who is hereby authorized to receive the same for the purpose of paying the expense of said sewer.

Resolved, That notice of the foregoing assessments and order of payment be given each of the parties named therein in the manner by law provided on or before the 15th day of March, A. D. 1926.

Your committee have viewed the premises assessed and considered all the objections made by various parties in interest at the hearing held January 4th, 1926 and believe the foregoing to be as fair an assessment to the property owners in question as can be made in view of the great cost of the sewer, to wit: $50,856.49; the total amount of the assessments in the foregoing resolutions being $7,360.09, a very small portion of the cost of the sewer, the usual assessment to the property owners being two-thirds of the cost of the sewer, which in the case of this sewer would have been $33,904.33

The basis of the assessments in the foregoing resolutions is $2 per front foot one hundred feet deep. On the westerly side of Pratt street an assessment for only thirty feet is made against both the McCone and Mary Golkowski properties due to their fronting on the street beyond the end of the sewer. On the easterly side of Pratt street the Bruck property being of little depth and having been assessed before on Boswell avenue is given a substantial reduction as are the DeNicolo, Connell and to some extent the Vigilante property on account of ledge. On this side of the street the Sodelli property is given a substantial reduction on account of being low and beyond the end of the sewer. On North street two of the Wischnewski lots, the Speed Evans lot, the W. A. Fields lot, the Bolz lot, the Korenkiewicz lot, the Plunkett lot, the Margaret S. Dodd lot, the Romansky lot, the Vecchiarino and the A. L. Fields Estate lot, are given reductions below the base rate on account of their being either low or rocky and in the case of the Dodd and Plunkett lots on account of their having also paid prior assessments on account of the Boswell Avenue sewer. The Jakubowski and Konikowski lots on North street beyond the end of the sewer have been given a nominal assessment, being very low and the connections made from them to the sewer being of doubtful value. On Hickory street the Kivellehen lot being very rocky is given a nominal assessment and the Ready and Mary M. Dodd lots are given substantial reductions due to prior assessments on Baltic street and Boswell avenue respectively. On Brook street the Galkowski, Moriarty and Lebansky properties were each given a reduction of $50 on account of the fact that they are each somewhat distant from the sewer. The Sabrowski lot on Pratt street and the Shore lot on North street are not assessed in the foregoing resolutions because of the provisions against assessment in their respective deeds to the city of a sewer right across their respective lands.

The following assessments were laid for the Geer Avenue sewer:

Southerly Side of Geer Avenue

Dennis Sullivan, John J. Sullivan, Loretta E. Sullivan	$100.00
M. E. Maguire and Eliza B. Maguire	50.00
Ludwig Dierman	50.00
Katherine Cook	50.00
Elizabeth L. Schuler	50.00
Axel E. Johnson	75.00
Eunice J. Brown	50.00
Eva B. Tefft	50.00
Aleck Sienkowski and Josephine Sienkowski	80.00
Wladyslaw Jablonski	40.00
Louis Gresser and Julia Gresser	120.00
Ralph Hayman and Elizabeth G. Hayman	40.00
John Leirich	75.00
	$865.00

Northerly Side of Geer Avenue

Jennie F. Joslyn	43.30
Lula M. Davey	50.00
Christian E. Baer and Emma Baer	72.00
Oscar Silverman	72.00
Axel E. Johnson	164.00
John Senetski	122.00
Joseph and Catherine Schauffhausen	60.00
Aleck Sienkowski	78.00
Frank Piekowski	60.00
Anthony Kirchner	80.00
Eleanor Scatoni, easterly half of lot	20.00
	$809.30

Westerly Side of Summit Street

Lawrence H. Tefft	36.36
John H. Tefft	38.38
Leon E. Taylor and Elizabeth M. Taylor	40.40
	$115.14

Easterly Side of Summit Street

Clarence Sholes	50.00
Henry C. Montle	50.00
	$100.00

RESOLVED, that the said sums of money to be paid by the persons aforesaid, respectively, be and they are hereby ordered to be paid on or before the 1st day of April, A. D., 1926, to the treasurer of the city of Norwich, who is hereby authorized to receive the same for the purpose of paying the expense of said sewer.

RESOLVED, that notice of the foregoing assessments and order of payment be given each of the parties named therein in the manner by law provided, on or before the 15th day of March, A. D., 1926.

The base rate of the assessments in the foregoing resolutions is, $1.00 per front foot one hundred feet deep. On Geer avenue the Sullivan and Joslyn properties have been given substantial reductions below the base rate because they are much lower than the grade of Geer avenue and the Scatoni property has been assessed but for twenty feet, the lot being beyond the end of the sewer. Other lots not one hundred feet in depth or less in width towards the rear than the width of their street frontages, have been given proportional assessments.

Deeds to Land for Streets

The public works department submitted a deed of two tracts of land in the vicinity of Sturtevant street from Gilbert S., and Leona S. Bowers to the city of Norwich, the land to be laid out as public highways and the streets to be known under the same names they had as private highways. The deed was read to the council by the city clerk and a resolution accepting the deed was adopted.

Claim Because of Fall

A claim was received from Helen L. Johnson, No. 99 School street for injuries received in a fall on Court street, January 22, which claimant alleged due to the defective condition of the street. Claimant suffered a dislocated right shoulder, contusions and bruises. Brown and Perkins and Josiah Greenstein, acting as attorneys for the claimant, both claims being for the same fall.

Mayor Waters announced his appointments for city assessors for the ensuing year, Tax Collector Harold T. Robinson, Alderman Patrick F. Sweeney and Councilman Nicholas J. Spellman. The appointments were approved by the council.

Departmental bills were approved as follows:

Fire department $6,381.52; park dept. $234.54; public works dept. $9,425.58; cemetery dept. $472.81; gas and electric dept. $47,489.82; police dept. $5,661.54; water dept. $5,729.27; Deep River Reservoir $39,529.11; finance dept. $3,690.04.

The meeting was adjourned shortly before 9 o'clock.

GOT RELIEF FROM RHEUMATISM AT LAST

Spent more than $100 for remedies before help was found

How an obstinate case of rheumatism was given relief by a simple home treatment is told by a man in Los Angeles, California, who suffered for years with rheumatic pain in the feet and back.

"I spent more than $100 for liniments and medicines in twenty-four years," he writes. "Then I used Sloan's Liniment and it gave me complete relief."

And it is amazing—the quick, genuine comfort that Sloan's gives to even the most long-standing rheumatic aches. Sloan's doesn't just deaden pain—it helps your body to throw off the cause.

No need to rub even. A little Sloan's patted lightly on—and a healing tide of fresh, germ-destroying blood begins tingling through the aching place. Before you can believe it, the pain, swelling and stiffness are relieved. Try it! All druggists—35 cents.

NORWICH TOWN

"The Call, the Claims and the Conquests" of the Church, with Scripture references in Acts, Hebrews and Thessalonians, was the theme of the Young People's Christian Endeavor society of the First Congregational church, at its meeting Sunday evening in the chapel.

Miss Marion L. Bailey was leader. Prayer was offered by the pastor Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey. During the meeting Rev. Charles E. Reeves spoke on "What the Church Claims of Us." This meeting marked the beginning of Christian Endeavor week, of which there will be general observance all over the world. Announcement was made that at the meeting next Sunday evening contributions would be received toward the $100,000 fund being accumulated for the benefit and life-long care of Dr. and Mrs. Francis E. Clark. This eventually will become a trust fund for World Wide Christian Endeavor purposes. Dr. Francis E. Clark, D. D., LL. D., better known as Father Endeavor Clark, was the founder of Christian Endeavor, having organized the first society in February, 1881, in Portland, Maine. Father Endeavor Clark, who retired at the convention in Portland, Oregon, in July 1925, had the distinction of being president of the United Societies of Christian Endeavor, and the World's Christian Endeavor union.

Russell Taylor, one of the products of Christian Endeavor once said: "Induce young men not only to do right, but to fight against wrong." It is a wonderful work for the Young People's societies which are getting together in the work of the Lord, studying Christian Endeavor and learning how to make the world better. More good is derived from a gathering of twelve sincere and consecrated members, than from a large congregation which does not enter into it with the same spirit and loyalty. In its enormous membership involving many societies and unions all over the world, many young people have derived wonderful influences from the spiritual side of Christian Endeavor.

Rev. Daniel A. Poling, D. D., of New York, was successor to Father Endeavor Clark upon his retirement.

The Norwich Town Congregational C. E. society was organized during December 1884, at first being called the Society of Christian Service. About a year later, it changed its name to its present title. This society was formed through the influences of Rev. Theodore Weitzer then pastor of the Norwich Town church. Herbert L. Verrington was the first secretary and Thurston B. Bonney is reputed to have led the first meeting. Since then many have joined steadily increasing the membership. Although many have died during the past forty-two years, and many have located in other cities; the active membership at present is about thirty, with eleven absent members, thirteen associate members, and two absent associate members.

When the twenty-seventh international convention of Christian Endeavor was held in Buffalo, N. Y., in August, 1919, numbering 3,000 delegates, the Norwich Town Congregational society was represented by the largest number of delegates from Connecticut.

At the Sunday morning worship at the First Congregational church, the minister Rev. Gurdon F. Bailey preached an impressive sermon on "Keeping the Faith." The text was II Timothy 4:7. I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith. Emphasis was laid on the last line of the verse, "I Have Kept The Faith." An invitation was extended the men of this parish to attend the Bible Class at Trinity Methodist Episcopal church. For the mid-week service of conference and prayer of the Congregational church, the theme will be "The Reality of a Divine Revelation," with Scripture references in Romans.

The Home Missionary society of the Congregational church is planning to serve a supper during this month in the chapel. Mrs. David M. Dean is chairman of the supper committee.

In his Sunday morning sermon at the First Methodist Episcopal church, the pastor Rev. James B. Aldrich preached from Isaiah 55-7. Let the wicked forsake his way, and the unrighteous man his thoughts, and let him return unto the Lord, and He will have mercy upon him; and to our God, for He will abundantly pardon.

For his evening sermon Rev. Mr Aldrich preached from Matthew 5-14. Ye are the light of the world. A city that is set on a hill cannot be hid.

This was preceded by the Young People's Christian Endeavor service, in charge of Mrs. George Manning. "The Call, the Claims and the Conquests of the Church," was the theme.

This was also the first meeting of the C. E. contest, under the direction of Mrs. Richard Carter, which is taking place during this month.

The January business meeting of the Methodist C. E. society, was held Friday evening in the vestry the president Mrs. Carter presiding. Plans were outlined for an informal Valentine and donation party in the vestry, also at a later date for an "Old Folks' Concert."

Miss Florence M. Brown, chairman of the social committee was in charge of the hour for sociability, during which light refreshments were served.

Rev. James B. Aldrich, attended the opening sessions Monday, of the Norwich District Ministerial association, comprising Methodist ministers, being held at Trinity Methodist church, Norwich. Rev. Mr. Aldrich will also attend the meeting today (Tuesday).

Today (Tuesday) the Feast of the Purification or Candlemas day, mass at the Sacred Heart church, Norwich Town, will be at 7:30 after which the candles will be blessed and distributed.

A former Norwich Town resident, Allen Kinney of Providence, visited his relatives here Sunday.

All day Monday, most tedious and changeable weather prevailed until about five o'clock in the afternoon, when the variety storm subsided. Commencing in the early morning there was a drizzling rain, which, when the mercury dropped somewhat, changed to an ice storm, later developing into a thick snow flurry. Following the ice-storm, which added to the already slippery highway, the ground freezing as a result of the rain the previous night; the state road was given a covering of sand by the employes of the state highway department under direction of Supervisor Henry T. Gorman, greatly to the relief of automobile drivers.

WILLIAM M. WOOD SUICIDES BY SHOOTING; FORMER PRESIDENT AMERICAN WOOLEN CO.

Committed Act at a Lonely Spot Above Flagler Beach, Fla.—Placed Barrel of Revolver in His Mouth and Fired—Ill Health Given As Cause—Had Been Guest For a Month at Hotel Ormond, With His Wife.

DAYTONA BEACH, Fla., Feb. 2—(AP)—William Madison Wood, 63, millionaire, former president of the American Woolen company, Andover, Mass., and for the past month a guest at Hotel Ormond with his wife, committed suicide at a lonely spot above Flagler Beach this morning by placing the barrel of a revolver in his mouth and firing.

Ill health was given as the cause for his act. At the time of the suicide, Mr. Wood had been accompanied in his automobile to Flagler Beach by his valet and chauffeur.

Leaving the car with an excuse that he wished to take a short walk bordering the road at that point, Mr. Wood was gone for only a few minutes before the report of the gun was heard and the servants rushed to the scene to find him dying.

Finding his employer desperately wounded, the chauffeur returned to the hotel Ormond for Mr. Wood's personal physician, A. D. Griffin, but Mr. Wood died soon after he had fired the shot into his head, Dr. Griffin said.

Mrs. Wood, who is in delicate health, had not been notified of the death of her husband tonight.

Mr. Wood left his hotel this morning, accompanied only by the two servants, giving his physician an excuse in order that the latter would not join the party.

About eight miles above Flagler Beach, near Fox Cut, Mr. Wood stopped the car, stating he wished to walk into the bushes along the roadside.

Soon after he had disappeared from sight of his two employes, the shot was heard.

The valet, Augustine Frederickson, had been in Mr. Wood's employ for 25 years, while the chauffeur, Joseph Hamilton, had been in his service for the past six years.

Mr. Wood, reputed to be a multi-millionaire, was formerly president of the American Woolen company at Andover, Mass.

WOOD'S SUICIDE ATTRIBUTED TO THE DEATH OF HIS SON

SHAWSHEEN VILLAGE, Mass., Feb. 2—(AP)—The picture of an old man broken in heart and health by the sudden death of a son was uppermost in the minds of William M. Wood's friends and associates tonight. His suicide in Daytona Beach today recalled the death of his son, William Wood, Jr., in an automobile accident in Reading over two years ago, and the part his namesake played in his later career.

It was the younger William who brought his father in closer touch with the mill workers than ever before. He watched him in matters of social welfare affecting the employes, got him to extend insurance benefits, and to organize summer camps and was instrumental in the building here of the model community for the workers in nearby Lawrence.

Mr. Wood adored William, every one thought, and after news of the fatal accident came he failed noticeably and was never the same man again.

His sensitiveness was one of Mr. Wood's most marked characteristics. He disliked to have himself mentioned in print and was correspondingly susceptible to praise. Visits to his house from delegations of workers greeted him as a demonstration of their friendship and the attitude of the mill people toward al mwas one of his greatest encouragements in the work as president.

The reason for Mr. Wood's resignation from the presidency, a year ago last December, followed by that of his son, Cornelius as vice president and the succession to the leadership of Andrew G. Pierce, was never fully known. He has been seriously ill three months. Before at his summer home in Cuttyhunk, but improved greatly, and the formal statement that he had resigned on account of ill health could not prevent a general impression that there were other factors in his action.

Mr. Wood was an ardent boxing fan, and he and his son William were often seen at bouts in Lawrence, where they always had seats at the ringside. Through his private secretary and intimate friend George Wallace he also became interested in the games of soccer and wickets.

Establishment of a dairy farm which produced milk for the workers was one of Mr. Wood's innovations for the conversion of Shawsheen from a simple village for the mill employes. Through the labor department he conducted a summer camp for undernourished children at Boxford, and these fine youngsters of the mill families had the special care of trained nurses and specialists.

Sketch of William M. Wood

The romance of the poor boy who rose to wealth and commanding position was strikingly exemplified in the life of William Madison Wood. The son of humble immigrant parents, he became, as president of the American Woolen company, a dominating figure in the woolen and worsted manufacturing industry of the country. It was through his aptitude and ambition shown as a boy in a mill office and as a youth in various departments of mill work that he won the opportunity to serve as superintendent of a large mill, and eventually to head the largest woolen manufacturing corporation in the world.

Wood's father, a native of Santa Maria in the Azores, came to this country as a cook's assistant on a whaling vessel. His name was Jacinthe, but not long after his arrival he took the name of Wood. A little later he married a young woman who had come from Fiores, another island of the Azores group. They established their home in Edgartown on the island of Martha's Vineyard off the southern Massachusetts coast. There William M. Wood was born April 6, 1863.

The father became steward of a little steamer plying between Edgartown and New Bedford, and the family soon moved to the latter place. Wood attended the grammar school and had entered high school when his father died. The mother and two sisters needed support, and Wood got a job in the office of the Wamsutta Mills in New Bedford. He showed such promise that Andrew G. Pierce, head of the corporation, took a personal interest in the boy. After three years in the office he spent three years at the machines and then was advanced to the agent's office.

He had gone ahead rapidly when he accepted a chance to enter a banking house, but after a brief experience there he returned to mill work. Six years of increasingly important duties in Fall River led to his choice as superintendent of the Washington Mills in Lawrence, which had been taken over for debts by Frederick Ayer of Lowell.

The poor boy already had risen far. He was made welcome in Mr. Ayer's home and after a brief courtship he was married to the manufacturer's daughter.

In 1900 a merger of many of the woolen mills in the east was consummated and Mr. Ayer became president of the resulting American Woolen company, while Wood was made treasurer. Within a short time he succeeded to the presidency. Other mills were taken into the combination from time to time until the company had approximately 40,000 employes in New England and New York.

Wood built in Lawrence, where the company had 15,000 workers, the Wood Worsted Mill, the largest of its kind in the world. Later he built in the neighboring town of Andover a settlement of model homes for mill workers, known as Shawsheen Village. Here he gave employes of the corporation the opportunity to purchase their own homes on a system of monthly payments and provided a bowling green, soccer grounds and other opportunities for recreation.

While emphasizing at all times his desire for friendly relations with the corporation's employes, he could not

HUMMEL'S SON CLAIMANT SEEKS TO RESEMBLE ABE

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 2—(AP)—Henry D. Hummel, South Portland bake car driver, today began to grow a moustache as part of his campaign to prove that the late Abe Hummel, New York lawyer, was his father. To enhance a resemblance to the older Hummel, already declared by friends of the South Portland man to be remarkable, he will endeavor to produce the counterpart of the bushy moustache which was one of the lawyer's characteristics.

Accompanied by his counsel, State Senator Frederick W. Hinckley, the younger Hummel will go to New York to attend the funeral of the lawyer who died in London two weeks ago. Senator Hinckley said he was informed that the body would reach New York tomorrow and that the will would be opened immediately after the funeral.

Hummel today found in the attic of his South Portland home a steamer trunk of ancient vintage which bore many foreign labels with the initials "L. H." He said the initials were for his mother, Lelia Hummel formerly Lelia Farrel of Portland, a singer, who died when he was five years old. He said that from his earliest days, he was told this was the trunk used by his mother when she went abroad with her husband, Abe Hummel, and their little son.

In New York Hummel and his attorney hope to interview a woman who was employed as maid to the young man's mother at the time of his birth in New York. In a letter this woman told Hummel that she knew all about his case and would gladly assist him in every way possible in claiming his father's estate.

CLAIMS SHE IS NATUAL DAUGHTER OF CAPT. BEACH

HARTFORD, Feb. 2—(AP)—Mrs Florence Beach Coleman, of New York, has filed suit for $50,000 against Mrs. Amelia g. Beach, widow of, and executrix of the estate of the late Captain Henry Ledlie Beach, prominent Hartford business man and social leader. Mrs. Coleman alleges that she, is the natural daughter of Captain Beach and a creole woman, Mary E. Asher and that the $50,000 which she seeks was promised to her by Captain Beach, who said he would leave her a bequest of that amount if she never revealed the identity of her parents during his life time.

Mrs. Coleman claims that on the death of her mother, May 1, 1903, Captain Beach, at that time head of H. B. Beach and Son, requested her to leave Hartford and keep secret the identity of her parents. She claims that in consideration of her agreement to this he promised to leave ghter $50,000 in his will.

Captain Beach dropped dead July 26, 1924, and left a will in which no mention was made of Mrs. Coleman. On September 9, 1924, she presented a claim of $50,000 to Mrs. Beach as executrix of the estate and on January 19, 1925, this claim was disallowed, according to the complaint.

DEATH OF FORMER SENATOR ARCHIBALD M'NEIL, SR.

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 2—(AP)—Among the many telegrams received by the family of former Senator Archibald McNeil, Sr., who died this morning at the age of 83, were two from prominent statesmen of the country. One was from United States Senator Pat Harrison of Mississippi, democratic leader in the senate and the other from former United States Senator David I. Walsh, of Massachusetts. A large number of other messages of condolence were received.

The funeral of Senator McNeil will be private being attended only by the immediate family. Friends may view the body and pay their respects at the home tomorrow afternoon, between 2 and 4 o'clock.

With Mrs. McNeil at the time of his death were his widow, and his three sons, former Senator Archibald McNeil, Jr., Kenneth and Roderick McNeil, who were all summoned home from Florida. They arrived but a short time before McNeil died.

Japan Corrects Railway Figures

TOKYO, Feb. 2—(AP)—The rail department of the Imperial Government railways of Japan today gave out figures correcting a recent statement regarding purchase of American rails. In an Associated Press dispatch of December 2, 1925, it was stated that "only one small rail order has been placed in the United States since 1923 by Japan." This mistake was due to an error of an interpreter.

PLANNING HYDRO-ELECTRIC PROJECT AT WINDSOR LOCKS

HARTFORD, Feb. 2—(AP)—A plan to construct a $200,000 plant, pending the ultimate development of a $6,000,000 hydro-electric project at Windsor Locks, was brought out at a hearing today before the public utilities commission on the request for permission to merger six Connecticut Power companies under the name of the Northern Connecticut Power company. The concerns proposing to merge are the Connecticut River company, the Northern Connecticut Light and Power company, Thompsonville Water company, Stafford Springs Aqueduct company, Northern Connecticut Power company, and the Somers Electric company. Control of all these companies was recently acquired by the J. G. White Engineering Corporation of New York.

Criticizing a refinancing plan of the merging companies as of "a type lately become the subject of much criticism," Samuel Ferguson, president of the Hartford Electric Light company, strongly opposed the merger. He declared there was so much of a speculative nature in the proposals of the company that it is questionable whether the public, as users of gas, water and electricity should be forced to contribute towards such an enterprise.

"If the speculative part of this venture," he said, "is a sound business risk, it can be financed without having to lean on the earnings of the non-speculative companies. If, on the other hand, it is not sound, it should not be allowed to lean upon them. The purchaser of these companies is the G. White Engineering corporation, which company is directly interested in doing the construction of the contemplated hydro development and therefore may supposedly be expected to advocate the construction even if to others it might not seem so clearly to justify the cost."

OF INTEREST TO MOTORISTS IN THIS STATE AND MASS.

HARTFORD, Feb. 2—(AP)—Massachusetts and Connecticut have abandoned a reciprocity arrangement by which owners of commercial motor vehicles located with fifteen miles of the state boundary line in either state, by the payment of a $2, had been allowed to operate them in the other state without regard to the time limit fixed by each state for non-resident automobile owners.

In 1925 a statutory change in the definition of "non-resident" in the Massachusetts law made the continuance of the arrangement impossible. The Connecticut motor vehicle department announces that it has no alternative but to follow the same policy as that of Massachusetts.

Consequently, owners of all Massachusetts commercial motor vehicles operated in Connecticut more than fifteen days in the year, not necessarily consecutive, are being required this year to pay the full fee for a regular registration in this state as well as in Massachusetts. Massachusetts makes the same requirements of Connecticut commercial cars.

The 15 mile limit provision of both states remains in force so far as pleasure cars are concerned.

DISCOURAGES EXCESSIVE SPECULATION IN LAND

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(AP)—Excessive land speculation is the only little cloud on the 1926 business horizon in the opinion of Irenee Du Pont, president of E. I. Du Pont de Nemours & Co. Such speculation in Florida has spread elsewhere, he said, and is likely to continue further. "If this should grow unreasonably, it probably would interfere with the delicate balance of the economic structure," he added. "The increase in values of a considerable part of Florida real estate is well warranted, but undoubtedly much land there is now selling too high. In the United States we see no top-heavy stocks indicative of over-production in any specific line."

GROOM HAS 20 GRANDCHILDREN TWO GREAT GRANDCHILDREN

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(AP)—Simon Singer, 75, who has 20 grandchildren and two great grand-children was married tonight to Mrs. Fannie Erenfield, 72. It was the groom's third marriage. He has been a widower six months, and said he has known his present bride three months.

OBITUARY

Dwight W. Bowles

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Dwight W. Bowles, 61, secretary of the tentative organization of the International Press Foundation and son of the late Sam Bowles editor of the Springfield, Mass., Republican, died here this afternoon.

Death was caused by a hemorrhage of the brain, which followed a stroke suffered by Mr. Bowles late yesterday. Mr. Bowles is survived by a widow and a small son. Funeral arrangements have not been completed.

George M. Kendall

LEOMINISTER, Mass., Feb. 2—(AP)—George M. Kendall, whose skill in the culture of a vegetable difficult to grow brought him the title of "Cucumber King of New England," died today of pneumonia. He was 83 years old.

Not only did he grow cucumbers extensively, producing each year many prize-winning specimens, but he was recognized as an authority on the subject and widely consulted. He traveled to all parts of the United States to plan the location and type of cucumber vines, and was regarded as an expert on the preparation of soil for the culture of the vegetable and the care of the plants.

On October 10, 1923, Mr. Kendall and his wife celebrated the 60th anniversary of their marriage. Mrs. Kendall died a short time ago.

Troops Guard Negro On Trial for Murder

Harris Tried in Lexington, Kentucky, Yesterday and Sentenced to Be Hanged.

LEXINGTON, Ky., Feb. 2—(AP)—Ed Harris, negro was tried and sentenced to be hanged here today protected by approximately 1,000 members of the national guard, the greatest peace-time mobilization of Kentucky state troops in years. The negro had confessed to slaying Clarence Bryant, his two children and wounding and attacking Mrs. Bryant, and when asked after conviction today what he had to say, replied, "I brought it on myself and I didn't fight the case."

The troops, backed by machine guns and whippet tanks, were ordered out by Governor Fields to prevent possible repetition of mob violence that cost half a dozen lives here six years ago when a few guardsmen tried to halt a mob. They left directly after the trial and a contingent of them carried Harris back to the state reformatory at Frankfort. He is to be returned here Friday, March 5, to be hanged.

Harris, who was also known as John Henry Jones, in his confession after his arrest, which was made short by George Blanchard, negro, said that he had killed Bryant, the two children and Mrs. Bryant after attacking her.

He had shot her twice but she recovered enough to drag herself to a neighbor's and name her assailant. A quarrel over a trade started the trouble with Bryant, he said. The state elected to try Harris on the attack charge and the trial lasted but 16 minutes as no defense was offered after Harris pleaded guilty.

Several blocks around the building were under strict guard of the soldiers with banks and business houses closed during the trial. No strangers were allowed to enter the city during the day or last night. The trip from Frankfort early today and the return within little more than an hour after the trial were uneventful.

EXPLAINATION BY N. Y. FEDERAL RESERVE BANK

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(AP)—Policies of the Federal Reserve bank, of New York, in dealing with domestic credit conditions are uninfluenced by its relations with the Bank of England, officials of the reserve institution asserted in their eleventh annual report issued today.

"The arrangements between the Bank of England and the Federal Reserve bank of New York," said the report, "involve no commitment as to the policies to be pursued by this bank in dealing with domestic credit conditions. While it is the intention of this bank to exchange information fully with the Bank of England and to avoid any unnecessary action which would be detrimental to the maintenance of a free gold market, the Federal bank of New York and the Bank of England are both absolutely free and uncommitted to any action whatever relative to discount rates."

In view of sterling's close approach to parity, considerable interest was aroused by the bank's first official announcement that no use had been made of the $200,000,000 credit placed at the disposal of the Bank of England last spring for a two-year period in connection with England's return to gold payments.

The repayment, within a period of two years, of such portion of the credit as may be used by the Bank of England is guaranteed by the British treasury under the terms of the gold standard act passed by the parliament early in May, 1925," said the report. "This guarantee protects the Federal Reserve banks against any governmental act which might operate to restrain the Bank of England from meeting its obligation, by the shipment of gold or otherwise."

OPENING SESSION OF BRITISH PARLIAMENT

LONDON, Feb. 2—(AP)—The new session of parliament was opened today with pageantry which varies but little from year to year, but is always a brilliant and attractive sight.

In the diplomatic corner of the house of lords sat the American ambassador, Alanson M. Houghton, and beside him Mrs. Houghton was an interested observer of the scene. The presence of the German ambassador, Dr. Sthamer, was an indication of European reconciliation. The soviet's accredited representative was also present, though Russia still remains apart from the family of nations.

The British prime minister standing at the bar of the house of lords in plain morning clothes, appeared in striking contrast to the brilliant uniforms around him.

The speech from the throne dealt with the various important questions facing the British government, the achievements of the past few months, such as the Locarno security agreement, the Italian debt settlement and the decision with respect to Mosul, on which the government is endeavoring to arrive at a settlement with Turkey.

Both houses quickly settled down to regular business. One question put to the government elicited the statement that the government had no intention to appoint a committee to inquire into the film industry.

FAVORS PARTICIPATION IN PHILA. SESQUI-CENTENNIAL

HARTFORD, Feb. 2—(AP)—Connecticut's participation in the sesqui-centennial at Philadelphia this year was urged by former Governor Frank B. Weeks this afternoon, at a meeting called by Governor John H. Trumbull to consider the subject. Some 40 citizens from various parts of the state were present. Mrs. Weeks and Miss Katherine B. Byrne are the state's representatives on the national commission.

Governor Trumbull said that the 1928 legislature appointed a committee to consider the matter of the state's representation at this anniversary but while it was understood to have reported at the 1925 session no copy of that report can be found. He said that if Connecticut should participate it would be necessary for the board of control to make a special appropriation as the general assembly failed to provide a fund.

L. R. Meisenhelder, director of exhibits at the armor, was present at the meeting and urged that Connecticut be a participant in the several exhibition departments.

Action by Senate on Tax Reduction Bill

Vote 1 Per Cent Increase of Corporation Tax and Repeal of the Capital Stock Tax.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 2—(AP)—Repeal of the capital stock tax and an increase of one per cent in the present 12 1-2 per cent corporation levy to balance this action was voted today by the senate in disposing of its first controversial item in the tax reduction bill.

The proposal, which was recommended by the finance committee, divided the senate on party lines, democrats voting almost solidly against the increase in the corporation tax, which was approved 43 to 35. Repeal of the capital stock levy, however, was then approved, 75 to 4.

Although other fights are in prospect, this is expected to prove about the only one along strictly party lines. Before the day was over, both parties had divided among themselves on the question of surtax reduction, the "regulars" of each supporting a cut in the maximum rate from 40 to 20 per cent, while others on both sides of the aisle contended for a higher maximum rate applying on the higher incomes.

With a vote apparently near on the important surtax schedule, a recess was taken until tomorrow, when Chairman Smoot of the finance committee, in charge of the bill, announced he would keep the senate in session for another six hour day in an effort to speed up action on the measure.

Another move looking toward speeding up will be taken tomorrow by the finance committee, which will meet to consider more than 40 amendments to the bill which have been submitted in the hope that some agreement can be reached to avoid lengthy discussion.

Voicing the opposition of democrats to the proposed increase in the corporation tax, which the bill would make effective on corporation incomes of 1925, Senator Simmons of North Carolina, ranking democrat of the finance committee, argued it was unfair to make the increase retroactive since the repeal of the capital stock tax would not become effective until June 30 of this year.

Senator Smoot replied that the change would not force corporations to pay any more taxes this year than they would under the present law, and insisted if the corporation levy were not increased as proposed, the provision would cause a $60,000,000 loss to the government this calendar year.

Seven republicans, Fess, Ohio; Frazier, North Dakota; McMaster, South Dakota; McNary and Stanfield, Oregon; Moses, New Hampshire, and Weller, Maryland, voted against the increase in the corporation levy.

Three democrats, Bruce, Maryland; Kendricks, Wyoming; and Sheppard, Texas, voted with the republicans for the increase.

Those voting against repeal of the capital stock tax were: Fess, of Ohio; and McMaster, of South Dakota, republicans; Wheeler, democrat, Montana; and Shipstead, farmer labor, Minnesota.

MRS. MARSHALL ASSURES HUSBAND OF HER LOYALTY

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2—(AP)—David L. Marshall, slayer of Anna May Dietrick, 35 year old milliner, January 16, was held today without bail by a coroner's jury, to await action of the grand jury.

Shortly afterward Marshall's counsel asked for a writ of habeas corpus to determine whether he shall be released on bail pending his trial. The writ was signed by Mrs. Marshall as "the best friend of the defendant." Judge Davis set next Friday for a hearing on the writ.

The request was perfunctory, but it afforded opportunity for the first reunion of Marshall and his wife since the chiropractor confessed to the crime ten days ago.

Mrs. Marshall announced yesterday she would stand by her husband, although she had been previously quoted as declaring she would have nothing more to do with him. She was taken to meet her husband at the city hall today by Abraham Wernick, Marshall's attorney. The meeting was dramatic. As the prisoner, manacled to the wrist of a deputy coroner, appeared at the doorway of the coroner's private office, Mrs. Marshall embraced him and whispered assurances of her loyalty while the deputy turned away his face. Marshall held her with his one free arm and asked her to "bear up," that "everything will be all right, as long as you believe in me."

CONDEMNED SMUGGLING OF LIQUOR INTO UNITED STATES

LONDON, Feb. 2—(AP)—The smuggling of liquor into the United States by British subjects was severely condemned today in a largely attended meeting in the church house under the shadow of Westminister Abbey. The meeting was held to frame a response to the appeal recently sent abroad by the American Citizens' committee of one thousand. An official touch was given the occasion by a letter from Sir Austen Chamberlain, the foreign secretary, indicating entire sympathy with the purpose of the gathering.

The Bishop of London, who presided, said the meeting was not called to express any views about prohibition, but he added that he thought the British people had been told a great many manufactured lies from across the ocean about prohibition. There is not the slightest doubt, he said, that the industrial output of America has increased and public health improved.

"You cannot drink anything of those silly little fools who swagger at dances with brandy flasks. That's mere bravado," he said. "You have to look at the great broad effect upon the whole nation."

TO MAKE ADVERSE REPORT ON PINCHOT'S COAL BILLS; COAL CONFEREES ADJOURN

Action Taken by House Committee on Mines and Mining of the Pennsylvania Assembly—One Bill Proposed to Make Anthracite a Public Utility—The Other Provided For State Regulation of Production and Control—Third Attempt to End the Anthracite Strike in Joint Conference Was Unsuccessful—Adjourned Without Date on Motion of the Operators.

HARRISBURGH, Pa., Feb. 2.—(AP)—The house committee on mines and mining of the Pennsylvania legislature, after a public hearing today, voted to report with a negative recommendation the administration bills for control of anthracite mining.

One bill proposed to make hard coal a public utility, and the other provided for state compacts to regulate production and sale.

COAL CONFERENCE ENDS WITHOUT MAKING PROGRESS

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 2.—(AP)—The anthracite wage conference adjourned shortly after 7 o'clock tonight without date. No agreement for settling the strike was reached.

The operators today submitted two proposals seeking to end the suspension and the miners presented a plan. All were voted down. The operators then moved an adjournment without date, subject to the call of Chairman Alvan Markle. The motion was seconded by the operators and the third attempt to end the strike in joint conference came to an unsuccessful end.

In a statement after the conference broke up, President John L. Lewis, of the miners, said:

"The anthracite situation is no longer a strike, it has become a lockout."

"The conference adjourned without day on motion of the operators," said Mr. Lewis, "under the circumstances the mine workers could not but accept their decision to remain no longer in conference."

"The mine workers' representatives called this conference in the hope that some basis of agreement could be reached. The plan of Mr. E. J. Lynett, publisher of the Scranton Times, suggested in effect an extension for five years of the wages and conditions of employment which existed prior to September 1. The mine workers accepted the spirit and purpose of the Lynett plan and the operators refused to do so unless the mine workers accepted also a periodic and continuous arbitration in the industry.

"In a further effort to reach an agreement the mine workers suggested the acceptance of the Lynett plan for a two year period. This also the operators refused.

"Each of the several propositions of the operators made to this conference including those of today required the acceptance of the principle of arbitration as a condition precedent to the making of a wage agreement for any length of time."

Major Inglis said: "The record of today's meeting speaks for itself, and leaves very little for us to say. From that record it appears that Mr. Lewis not only rejects arbitration, he rejects everything. He rejects a proposal that the men shall go back to work at the old wages until next year. He rejects a proposal that our differences be referred to the board of conciliation with an appeal, if necessary, to Hon. Charles E. Hughes. Following this, with wages fixed until the end of March, 1927. He rejects our proposal that the board of conciliation, functioning as it has for twenty-three years, shall undertake to decide the terms of a contract. Mr. Lewis asserts that there will be no necessity for a wage adjustment in the next five years, but he will not permit even a man like Justice Hughes to make a finding on the subject, if there is a disagreement in negotiations.

"Not only from our own ingenuity but the thought of scores of earnest men have been devoted in recent weeks to devising some formula that would meet Mr. Lewis' demands. We thought we had done this in the proposals submitted today. Many others, outside of the industry, have made the same attempt, only to encounter the same objections on Mr. Lewis' part to anything that limits his power to bring about deadlocks, call strikes and then take the position that they shall be ended only on his own terms, without regard to reason or to justice.

"No immediate question of wages or employment remains at issue. We are faced only by the blind determination of Mr. Lewis to impose his will upon us, our employes and the people of this country."

DENY DESIRE TO START NEW REVOLT IN MEXICO

SAN ANTONIO, Texas, Feb. 2—(AP)—Announcement today by the department of justice office here that a group of Mexican political refugees was working actively toward fomenting another revolution in Mexico was met without stout denials by the exile leaders.

Repeating the statement he made to the Associated Press last night, R. Esparza Martinez, prominent figure among the De La Huerta sympathizers here, declared their only object was to discredit the Calles government and that no resort to arms was contemplated.

Against this assurance, however, was the statement of Gus Jones, in charge of the justice department's San Antonio office, that some thirty Mexican revolutionists had planned to dynamite trains in Mexico and that an order for an electrical dynamiting machine had even been placed.

ITALY RECOGNIZES NO WAR DEBT TO FRANCE

ROME, Feb. 2—(AP)—It was announced officially today that the Italian government does not recognize that Italy owes any way debt to France. This announcement came in connection with publication of Premier Mussolini's speech at a cabinet meeting praising the work of Count Volpi, minister of finance, in the negotiations for funding Italy's war debts to the United States and Great Britain.

It is stated, moreover, that Italian experts who have been studying this question find that Italy is really France's creditor in regard to war financing, involving reciprocal expenses of the war years.

In any case it is generally held here that any sum Italy may owe France is insignificant compared to the debts owed America and England.

PAWTUCKET P. O. ROBBERS PROBABLY PROVIDENCE MEN

PAWTUCKET, R. I., Feb. 2—(AP)—A clue which indicated, in the opinion of Postoffice Inspector J. J. Breslin, directing the investigation of the $268,000 robbery at the Pawtucket post office, that the "four tough looking birds" are Providence men, was uncovered tonight by him when he traced one of the three acetylene tanks, left behind by the crackamen to a garage in Lonsdale, two miles north of this city.

He learned from the garage owner, whose name he withheld, that the tank was leased to him last October by the Rhode Island Welding company and was stolen soon after.

This fact, Inspector Breslin pointed out, indicates that the robbers, who he suspects use Providence as their base, made the biggest post office haul in New England's history only after months of planning.

SUBMARINE T-3 TOWED SAFELY INTO KEY WEST

DEBTS MUST BE SETTLED TO STABILIZE THE FRANC

PARIS, Feb. 2—(AP)—The inter-allied debts must be settled and greater stability must be given the French government before the franc can be stabilized, Premier Briand told the chamber this afternoon. He was answering the radical deputy Dubois' demand that the financial debate be postponed until the government had brought in a complete scheme for stabilization of French money.

The instability of French ministries, the premier went on to say, was regarded abroad with apprehension. The French people also would have more confidence and help ease the financial situation if they were assured that the government could last long enough to deal with the grave problems Fradon had to settle.

M. Briand, in his most velvety style, replied to the attacks on the government's bills in a way that drew cheers from all parts of the house, except the communist and socialist benches. He admitted that there were good things in the finance committee's project, but regarded it as having too remote an effect.

"We need money; we need it, not for next year, or for six months hence," he exclaimed, "we need it now. The government bills consequently are preferable, because they assure an earlier increase in the cash at the disposal of the treasury."

BELGIAN STEAMER RESCUES CREW OF NORWEGIAN SHIP

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(AP)—The hungry Atlantic was cheated of its prey again today. The fifth time since it loosed its ferocious gales nine days ago.

A brief radio message from the Belgian liner Arminco this afternoon said she had taken off the entire crew of the sinking Norwegian freighter Joseanne Dybwad. The Dybwad cried for help yesterday, about 700 miles east of Halifax. The West Inskip had reported she was on the way to help, but was 117 miles away, and fighting high seas. It was not known the Arminco had entered the fight until she announced her victory.

The message said only that none of the crew was injured, and that the Arminco was standing by until the Dybwad sank, as she is directly in the passenger traffic lane, and a menace to navigation. The Dybwad is believed to have had a crew of about 25 men.

Last night the 325 passengers of the Royal Mail liner Araguaya were taken off after that vessel had gone aground near Sixmgeue, Bermuda. The ship later was floated again, the passengers returned, and she resumed her course to New York.

The British steamer Ryburn, 16 days overdue arrived today at Philadelphia.

HAVANA, Feb. 2—(AP)—One United State sailor was killed and another seriously injured during a clash today between Cubans and enlisted navy men at Boqueron, a small village near the United States naval station of Guantanamo bay. No Cubans are reported to have been seriously injured.

A dispatch to El Mundo, from Guantanamo says the affray is attributed to an excess of strong drink. The marine guards did not obtain the names of the American victims.

EVOLUTION IS SUPPORT TO CHRISTIANITY

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 3—"I am convinced that the theory of evolution is true" said Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock in the sermon preached at the local Congregational Church Sunday morning on the topic "God's Enemy or God's Evidence" His thesis was that the belief in evolution as outlined by scientists more sound insomuch as those holding puts them in the best position to judge its validity are as one in accepting it as the explanation of how life has developed. Among the opponents of evolution there is not a single scientist of repute. There is no zoologist, no geologist, no botanist, no astronomer, no anthropologist, no scientific man of any sort represented in the group of opponents, which are, he said, in every case men who by ignorance of scientific principles and methods are least able to judge the validity of this hypothesis. Rev. Wheelock quoted from Professor Henry Fairfield Osborne of Columbia, who asserts that no living naturalist, known to him, differs as to the truth of evolution. In the sense of the ascent of all extinct and existing forms of life, including man, from an original and single cellular state.

The repeated statement of representatives of religion that one cannot be a Christian and at the same time accept the theory of evolution the preacher termed as a falsehood which must be faced squarely and frankly. Many of the great saints of the world, he said, have lived and died without even so much as a suspicion of the existence of this explanation of man's development and many more such instances will happen in the future and he pointed out "it is nowhere written that except a man become persuaded of the truth of evolution he shall in nowise enter into the Kingdom of Heaven."

Rev. Wheelock then went on to relate the findings of great scientists which serve them to verify the theory of evolution. Notable among them was the finding of fossils in the rocks which show the gradual development of living things and that life has always been rising from simple to complex, from low to high. Not one single form of life has ever been found out of its proper order in this ascending scale. Also there was that other group of facts that is equally convincing in that the bodies of human beings are full of structures for which there is no apparent use and which are unquestionably left-overs from an earlier state when they were useful. He called to mind the remnant of a tail at the end of man's backbone, muscles for moving his ears, and the skin, a useless and dangerous appendix and tonsils and in all some seventy bones or muscles of no present use.

"If God made man just as he is, complete at one stroke, then there is no reasonable explanation. But if man has among his ancestors those in whom these organs were fully developed and to whom they were useful and necessary in the life they lived, that explains them all. "As Darwin said in the closing words of the ascent of man," he continued, "we must acknowledge, as it seems to me, that man with all his noble qualities, with sympathy which feels for the most debased, with benevolence which extends not only to other men but to the humblest living creature, with his god-like intellect which has penetrated into the movements and constitution of the solar system—with all these exalted powers—Man still bears in his bodily frame the indelible stamp of his lowly origin. We may not like to be reminded of it, but the fact remains as Walt Whitman put it, Man is stuccoed all over with quadrupeds.

"And what then is the bearing of this theory upon religious faith? I believe that rather than being an enemy of religion the theory of evolution is a positive support for religious faith. Professor William B. Patten, under whom I personally studied biology and who now teaches evolution at Dartmouth, has summed the matter in these words. 'It seems to me that for young and old, for high-brow and low-brow, the study of evolution makes life more significant and more beautiful. It makes God a more imminent reality. It helps us all to understand the purpose of life and how to accomplish it.' After all the greatest thing that Evolution gives to us is a more beautiful and nobler conception of God. It throws a new light on his creative patience. It makes us more hopeful about the nature of man.

The old teaching has been that human nature is of itself sinful and weak, that man started with every advantage and having willfully disobeyed God's commands, passed on the taint of his corrupt nature to all his descendants. That puts a curse on the whole human race. It does not allow us to expect very much of human nature and it might very well make us pessimistic about the attempts being made to outlaw age-long human evils such as intemperance and war. But, on the other hand, if as evolution teaches man did not begin at the top, but at the bottom, if instead of falling from the heights to the depths, he began at the bottom and has been climbing steadily and persistently ever since, does not that make a tremendous difference in our attitude toward human nature? Does it not cause us to hope that man will continue to climb with courage and persistence. We can believe that God has planted within the breasts of human nature some beneficient instinct that makes him climb toward the highest. As Henry Drummond said many years ago, "Evolution indeed—it was long before the world, it teaches us, it seems to us the story of the race—who tries to rise." Indeed the longer God took in create the spiritual nature of man, the greater its value would seem to be. The longer the process the more valuable the results; that is a law that runs all the life. And it is precisely because I believe that God took an infinity of time for producing the soul of man that I am helped to believe that the soul of a man is of infinite value."

"The charge that evolution is a direct attempt to get rid of God," said Rev. Mr. Wheelock, "is an absurd statement and far from the facts. Evolution really leaves God just where it found him. It has nothing to say about origins. It merely attempts to describe the process of development realizing that a process does nothing by itself but is merely the method of an power that uses it. As a Christian I am free to say that to me it seems practically proven that Evolution is God's chosen method and not His enemy, and that those who seek to suppress the teaching of the evolutionary theory will in the end be shown as fighting against God. Although, as I previously stated, I do not think that belief in the hypothesis is necessary for salvation. Let them who seek to club the theory of evolution out of existence remember the wise advise of Gamaliel to the orthodox of his day, "Now I say unto you refrain from these men and leave them alone; for if their counsel or work be of men, it will be overthrown but if it be of God ye cannot overthrow them: lest haply ye be found even to be fighting against God."

WESTERLY TAX RATE FIXED AT 25 MILL RATE

WESTERLY, R. I., Feb. 3—Moderator Lewis Stanton called the annual financial town meeting to order in the Westerly town hall Tuesday evening shortly after 7:30 o'clock for the purpose of ordering a tax to be levied and assessed on the ratable property of the town and to fix the rate of the tax.

Action was also to be aken by the electors of the town of Westerly, qualified to vote upon any proposition to impose a tax, the rate for the previous year having been a 25 mill tax. The tax rate voted for the year 1926 was 25 mills and the 5 per cent discount previously allowed for taxes paid before Nov. 1st will not be given, but the penalty of 12 per cent interest for over due taxes remains.

Reports of various town officers, and departments were presented by the official or department head and followed the usual procedure of being received, approved, placed on file and ordered printed.

As recommended by the Westerly town council in the revision of budget figures made at the regular February council meeting, the following were voted:

General Government	$ 24,500
Protection of Public Property, Police	17,000
Highways	120,000
Street Lights	15,000
Charities, Hospitals, Correction	7,000
Education, Day School	145,000
Education, Nights Schools	500
Miscellaneous, Pub. Shade Trees, Adv	9,000
Interest	33,000
Redemption of Funded Bonds	33,000
Payment to Other Civil Div. State Tax	25,000
Total	$ 417,000

Its adoption was moved by Representative Utter and seconded by Treasurer Pendleton.

To enable the Westerly town council to place in more general operation the new system of town accounting, the following was voted: That the town council be and is hereby authorized and empowered to segregate all appropriations made at the meeting (Financial Town Meeting) substantially in accordance with the various amounts, incorporated in the Town of Westerly Annual Financial Report for 1925, provided, however, that the amount to be expended be substantially expended for purpose designated in said appropriations."

Its adoption was asked for by Treasurer Pendleton and seconded by Thomas Perry.

Moderator Stanton asked if it was necessary to name a special committee for the expenditure of the $1,000 town of Westerly advertising fund Daniel F. Larkin, chairman of the Shore Development committee, of Westerly, was voted the committee.

It was voted to approve the action of the Westerly town council, in remitting to Charles F. Hickox the amount of $78.38, the same being the amount assessed by mistake against the estate of his mother, Abby H. Hickox, in 1925.

The formal tax vote passed was that of setting $2.50 on each $100 worth of personal and real estate and $.40 on each $100 worth of ratable intangible property, the levy to be made on the June 15 at 12 o'clock noon and to be certified on or before Feb. 1, 1926, for the town clerk to issue his warrant to the Westerly tax collector. The tax is to be paid from the 15th to the 31st of October, 1926, with a 12 per cent per annum interest charge added thereafter and the taxes collected paid over to the town treasurer. The same action was taken relative to pole taxes of $1.

The town treasurer was authorized to issue his notes not to exceed $300,000 payable within one year signed by the town treasurer and countersigned by the town clerk.

On motion of George B. Utter, seconded by Charles F. Berry, a vote was proposed that the board of highway commissioners be given authority to incur indebtedness not to exceed $50,000 for the purpose of making changes in Union street from the junction of Union at Broad street to the junction at Main street. James Rae questioned the procedure. Town Solicitor Ferguson stated that it was legally impossible for the town to make it tonight and it was drawn on the theory to give the board of highway commissioner's power to incur indebtedness. Mr. Utter said that if an appropriation vote was to follow he would withdraw it, and action seconded by Thomas Collings. A motion to adjourn was made and seconded, but not put as Solicitor Ferguson asked for delay.

Solicitor Ferguson then prepared another vother which requested the representative of the general assembly at the 1926 session to obtain such legal authority as would permit the town of Westerly to hire money or issue notes to provide money for the construction or reconstruction whenever a financial town meeting votes the appropriation for that purpose. This vote was moved by Mr. Utter and seconded by Charles F. Berry. Michael D. G. Papalia suggested that Union street be taken out of the vote. A division of the house by voice was unsatisfactory and Moderator Stanton called for a rising vote, and the vote was declared adopted 40 to 18.

The school nurse was in schools in this region last week and Supervisor Floyd was a visitor last Friday. Shortly after 9 p. m., Friday the younger Newton girls glanced from the window and discovered a blaze on the south side of Westminster Hill schoolhouse. Charley Colburn cried "Fire!" and rushed to the scene followed by the others. Harry Helstrom, janitor, staying with the Moodys next door, brought water and an axe and a lantern. The schoolroom was found densely filled with smoke while the stove was nearly cold and contained but few live coals. The one pail of water and the axe prevented the fire from entering the schoolroom.

If a patient is not able to pay anything, the nurse may be called, just the same. She cannot prescribe for a patient, for it is against the state law for any nurse to prescribe for a patient. She may advise, but a physician must prescribe. The Metropolitan Insurance Co. pay for all its weekly intermediate and group insurance policy holders' calls by the nurse. DANIELSON

DIVORCED HUSBAND NEVER SAW HIS SON

DANIELSON, Feb. 2.—Mrs. Mary I. Harrison left here Tuesday afternoon to return to her home in Brooklyn, N. Y., after having obtained on Monday, in the superior court at Putnam, a divorce from her husband, Benjamin R. Harrison, who for years has lived on a farm in an isolated section of the eastern part of this town, about a mile north of Dark Lantern hill. The decree was granted on the ground of desertion.

Mrs. Harrison charged in court that the desertion occurred on November 6, 1906. Harrison left New York and located in New Haven. He went away from New Haven after a time and all trace of him was lost. Through a queer turn of circumstances, Mrs. Harrison discovered through her daughter's interviewing one of Mr. Harrison's sisters a few months ago that he was living in the eastern part of the town of Killingly and presumably married to another woman.

Mrs. Harrison sent detectives here and their visit was followed by the arrival of Mr. Harrison's daughter, who as a motion picture actress has accumulated fame and fortune. With ample evidence on which to bring an action for divorce, Attorney Arthur G. Bill was retained to represent Mrs. Harrison and the case presented to the court in Putnam Monday afternoon. The action was uncontested.

Speaking of the circumstances that brought her so unexpectedly into this section of Connecticut, Mrs. Harrison discussed on Tuesday matters pertaining to the divorce action and to Mr. Harrison, against whom she exhibited no bitterness, though a great deal of regret over the domestic tragedy in their lives.

Mrs. Harrison said that Mr. Harrison is highly cultured and before he left her was rated one of the most able and efficient lithograph artists in New York. He stepped out of a very promising place in life to go away back in the country on a farm and has remained there for years, something Mrs Harrison asserted she is unable to comprehend.

Mrs. Harrison, a splendid, cultured woman, spoke with pride of their son, now about 19 years of age and a student at the Staunton Military institute in Virginia, which he will leave this summer to enter the United States Military Academy at West Point. This son was born a few months after Mr. Harrison deserted his wife, and the father has never seen the youth, now standing over six feet in height and a splendid specimen of young manhood.

Mrs. Harrison and Miss Harrison left here Tuesday afternoon for New York. Prior to leaving the daughter had a long interview with her father at the office of Attorney Arthur G. Bill, but the nature of the matters they discussed was not revealed. Mrs. Harrison did not see her former husband.

All deposits made this week in the savings department of the Danielson Trust Co., will draw interest at the rate of 4 1-2 per cent. per annum from Feb. 1.—Adv.

2:30 p. m. Question box.

A. For the purpose of answering any questions left unanswered in the morning together with those that have come to mind as a result of Mr. Cole's talk.

How would you like a motor trip from Danielson to Providence for 67 2-3 cents? It is available if you are interested, not in too great a hurry and are careful about saving your pennies. The trick can be turned by taking a coach of the Connecticut company from Danielson to Central Village, the cost here is two tokens or 16 2-3 cents, and getting on the Norwich-Providence 50-cent line, as it may be called here for purposes of convenience, and paying the full charge for the ride between Norwich and Providence. Taking advantage of the present plethora of coach service in this territory, that arrangement will land you in Providence for a fraction over 67 cents.

Some time since mention was made in this column of the old days when the trolley fare between Danielson and Providence was 50 cents, and the suggestion made that rate cutting by coach lines might again bring a duplication of that low-priced transportation era. It seems near at hand.

The public is not likely to concern itself over the question of whether any coach line can make money or break even carrying passengers at such low rates of fare. It is apt to be in high glee, however, over opportunities of riding such distances for comparatively small sums of money.

Carpentering, plumbing and heating wanted. The cost of labor per hour is lower than you have been paying. Tel. 340, Danielson, Conn.—Adv.

Coach lines operating through Danielson between Providence and Hartford and competing against each other are standing pat on the fare schedules put in force the past month, when reductions were announced. The fare in the past few weeks on that section of the route between Danielson and Providence has been clipped 50 cents to an even dollar. That's not so bad, but it hardly matches the Norwich-Providence rate.

Danielson lives in hopes of lower fares, nevertheless. Much water remains to go over the dam, observers will tell you, before prices become stabilized—as they must eventually become, in the meantime some interesting developments as to rates may be anticipated and if one wants to ride cheaply on can go to Providence via Central Village and Moosup.

Upon its arrival here from New York at 3:51, Tuesday afternoon, the body of Job. F. Seamans, a former representative of the town, was taken to St. Alban's church, where funeral services were conducted by Rev. Leonard R. Richards. A delegation of members of Moriah lodge, A. F. and A. M., of which Mr. Seamans was a past master, attended. The body was entombed at Westfield cemetery, where the Masonic committal service was conducted by John R. Mariand, master of Moriah lodge. Six past masters of the lodge acted as bearers—D. Fred Kenworthy, Alvan J. Hall, L. S. Ingalls, Walter Anderson, Burdette C. Hopkins and Frank E. Kennedy. A. F. Wood was in charge of the funeral arrangements. Burial is to be at East Killingly in the spring.

Mr Seamans was a former grand master, in 1885, of the grand council of Connecticut and at the time of his death was the third oldest man in Connecticut who had held that office.

PUTNAM

PUTNAM COURT HEARS SEVEN DIVORCE CASES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. —Seven divorce cases were heard in superior court in this city Monday by Judge Edwin G. Dickenson. Decrees were granted in the following five:

Florence G. Stephens vs. Edward L. Stephens, Gertrude W. Tewgood vs. Henry Tewgood, Mary E. Noble vs. William S. Noble, Mary I. Harrison vs. Benjamin R. Harrison, Edward H. Davis vs. Florence M. Davis.

Mrs. Mary Harrison was given a divorce from Benjamin R. Harrison because of desertion. They were married thirty years ago. Her home is in Brooklyn, N. Y., where they lived when he left her in 1906, and she did not hear from him or of him until 1934. Then she learned that he was living in Danielson, Conn., with another woman.

Her daughter, Miss Helen Harrison, testified that she had visited her aunt in Hartford in 1924, and while there was told that her father was living in Danielson. She went to the latter town, inquired where the Harrisons lived, and upon calling at the place was greeted by a woman who said that she was Mrs. Harrison. She asked to see Mr. Harrison and when a man responded to a summons she recognized her father.

Their evidence was corroborated by a New York detective who visited Danielson in November, 1925, and by Sheriff C. E. Ayer, who said that he had known the Harrisons for some years, and that the woman claimed that her name was Harrison.

Florence G. Stephens asked for a divorce from Edward L. Stephens on the grounds of adultery and the testimony warranted the court in granting the decree and the custody of their nine year old son. She is now living at Oakland Beach, R. I. Attorney Harry E. Back, of Danielson, was her counsel.

Mrs. Gertrude W. Tewgood, of the town of Killingly, told of her unhappy married life when she had to provide for herself and part of the time for her husband, and to pay the fines that were imposed on him a number of times for intoxication. She finally left him in August of last year. Decree granted.

Mary E. Noble was married to William A. Noble on October 11, 1920, and he deserted her on December 19, 1920. They have never lived together since and he has provided nothing for her support. Decree granted and the restoration of her maiden name.

Edward H. Davis asked for a divorce from Florence M. Davis. They were married in 1892 and seven children were born to them. She left him in August, 1922. He has seen her once since then but not to talk to her. He lives at Chaplin where he is highly regarded. Decree granted.

After hearing evidence in the application of Sylvester L. Tarbox from Carrie May Tarbox, both of Plainfield, Judge Dickenson announced that he would reserve decision, in the suit of Nettie E. Burton against James A. Burton, of Sterling, the case was continued until the next term when the court will ask for further evidence.

For Head Colds

THERE are many ways to treat a cold in the head, but only one DIRECT way, and that is with vapors that can be inhaled.

The easiest and most satisfying way to get these vapors is to snuff a little Vicks VapoRub well up the nose, or melt a little in a spoon or tin cup and inhale.

The medicated vapors reach immediately into every corner of the air passages, soothing and healing with every breath.

For other forms of cold troubles just rub Vicks over the throat and chest at bedtime. It is then the body heat which releases these vapors.

PLANNING FOR THE FUTURE

It has been long and fully understood that experience counts. This is true in most any line of endeavor, and there has been excellent proof of this established by a large lumber company in a midwestern state.

In this day and generation much has been said in behalf of waste elimination and the conservation of supply. Particular stress has been laid upon the timber situation for while there was a time when the lumber industry might plunge headlong into the woodlands without regard for the future that situation does not prevail today. While we are looking out for present needs we have the best of reasons for doing some solid thinking concerning the future.

This western lumber company has gone through this very experience. It bought up a large acreage and started in to make a clean job of the cutting as it went along. This proceeded until some figuring was done and it could be seen about how long it would be before the forest land would be exhausted and when that time came there would be nothing more to cut A little thought along this line re- A little thought along this line re-reforestation work. Thus while it is stripping certain areas it is now engaged in setting out an equal number to new trees, and by the time it gets through cutting its large acreage of timber it will have a new forest ready to be tapped. That is a sound policy and one which is getting more and more recognition.

The experience of that company is no different than that of many others but it is to be noted in this instance that when it was shown what the inevitable outcome of its first policy would be it lost no time in correcting it. The wisdom of acting while there is time and before the supply is exhausted cannot be too fully appreciated. The example of this lumber company should be followed by many others, while the kowledge that the timber supply of the country is dwindling should be an incentive for the development of new forests to meet the situation.

BORDERLINE LICENSES

There is an agreement between states that pleasure cars may go from one state to another without obtaining a license in each state unless the stay in another state is to be for a long period. Much the same sort of an agreement has been maintained relative to commercial cars, but the provision has been that those living within 15 miles of the border on either side might obtain a license to operate the entire year in the neighboring state for a fee of $3 paid to that state.

Such an agreement was subject to cancellation on the part of any state and it is that coures that was followed by Massachusetts last year. Inasmuch as it abandoned its plan of permitting those in this state near the Massachusetts line from getting a special license in that state it could not be expected that Connecticut would continue to extend special favors to the Massachusetts residents along the Connecticut line. It is a case now of those driving commercial cars into the adjoining states more than 15 days a year taking out a full license in both states.

It is not surprising that complaints and in quiries should be received from Massachusetts concerning the action on the part of Connecticut in stopping the issuance of such licenses. There doesn't appear to be any good reason for the change but it is probably an eyeopener to them to learn that the reason for the change rests entirely with Massachusetts. Reciprocity isn't usually all one sided, and when one side withdraws from an agreement the other can hardly be expected to continue it. From the inquiries being made concerning the change it would appear to be one with which all who live along the Connecticut boundary in Massachusetts are not familiar, and no better satisfied than they are enlightened. The change doesn't end an understanding between the states, for that continues even under the new law, but it is a case where both states are governed by the legislative enactment of Massachusetts. There is still similar treatment accorded in each state to commercial car owners, but on a different and more costly basis.

AFTER NEW RECORDS

Great distances have been covered, great heights have been reached and great speed attained by aeroplane but none of these records is such as to encourage others from accomplishing something greater. They are in fact under constant attack and there is no reason to expect anything different for a long time to come.

Within the last few days much interest has been manifested in the attempt by Lieutenant Macready at Dayton, O., to establish a new altitude record. It was not his first endeavor in this direction for he has already established a reputation as a high flier and if all goes well mechanically there is confidence that he will soar to heights not previous reached.

In his latest undertaking the failure of a supercharger to meet the requirements made it necessary for him to descend but not until he had gone higher than he had ever reached before, although several thousand feet under the record mark set by a French aviator. That he is not discouraged should be well understood. He will make the most of his experience as a part of his preparations for further assaults upon the record. He has the courage, determination and ability to succeed and there is strong reason for believing that he will. But should he succeed in reaching 40,000 feet above the earth, or higher than any other aviator has been it isn't to be supposed that it will remain unbeaten very long, although the higher the elevation reached the greater are the difficulties involved.

Of course the harder the undertaking the keener the interest in the attempts for new records, but with new and better equipment, new and better engines and new and better means of overcoming the climatic conditions involved in such flights the chances of success are increased. Some idea of what has to be anticipated in the way of climatic conditions is furnished by the thermometer reading which showed he had been flying part of the time where it was 90 degrees below zero. One has to like it to voluntarily indulge in such performances.

COSTLY STRIKE

That the conference of the coal miners and operators should have adjourned without date and without accomplishing anything discloses no more than was anticipated when the gathering was arranged. It means that stagnation is to continue in the coal fields, losses will continue to pile up and consumers will continue to get better acquainted with substitutes.

What the strike has costs thus far is of course uncertain for it reaches out into many directions, but it has cost too much whatever the sum may be. That it isn't small can be realized from the estimated loss of more than $142,000,000 in wages by the miners, $90,000,000 by the railroads while the loss to the operators depends upon the profits that would normally have been received from the 52,000,000 tons of anthracite that should have been but have not been mined in the past five months. But to that must also be added the hole which the miners have been making in their savings and the loss sustained from the demoralized business throughout the coal fields. And these losses are not going to be recovered.

The demands of the president of the miners had got to the point where old tactics had to be abandoned. The lack of public support for the demands and the resort to other fuel have weakened the miners' position, while the insistence of the operators for the arbitration of differences in order to prevent the stoppage of production in the future has been open to the interpretation of being in the interest of the public.

Certainly the consumer has suffered enough from coal strikes and it might as well be determined now whether it can expect an annual holdup or common sense relief in the future. The cost of the strike is enormous but it may as well be decided once and for all rather than have the consumer subjected to yearly shortages of fuel and increase in price.

CHILDREN IN PHILIPPINES

When it has been suggested that there was opportunity for American dollars to be put to good use in the Philippines there have been those in the islands who have raised their objections, or worked to bring about new laws that would prevent it. It will be interesting to note whether there is the same attitude displayed concerning the movement for the raising of $2,000,000 in this country to take care of 18,000 children in the islands who are in need of assistance.

These children are the offsprings of American soldiers or settlers who have died, disappeared or returned to the States. They are in a deplorable state of dependence and the situation is certainly one which does not augur for their welfare. The longer they are neglected the worse the situation becomes. An organization in the islands has endeavored to deal with this situation but it has operated under handicaps and is far from being able to cope with the problem. Under the circumstances an appeal to this country for contributions from those interested in helping humanity comes as a natural course of events and from the endorsement which is given to the cause by Governer General Leonard Wood there is good reason for believing that there will be a generous response. The goal is not unreasonable considering the problem that is faced. The American Guardian association should have no difficulty in getting a hearing and funds.

THE PROBLEM

"Life is funny, isn't it?" remarked the flanneled youth, solemnly, as he propped his tennis racket against the veranda railing and slid into a wicker chair beside the lady he addressed.

The lady was gray haired and handsome and evidently a friendly person, for she closed a volume of Yeats over one finger and regarded the youth smilingly. "Yes, isn't it?" she agreed. "Particularly in the summer."

"Oh, absolutely," said the flanneled youth, assuming what he considered a mature scowl. "What I always say, don't you know—a man always feels—er-sort of—well, a bit above himself at these summer resorts. What I mean with the moon and all"—he trailed off into unhappy silence.

"Yes?" said the handsome lady, sympathetically.

The flanneled youth regarded her for several moments with an earnest gaze, fingered his tie nervously and recrossed his legs twice. "Say, Miss Larkyn," he finally burst out, "you're a regular sport an' all—now I'll put it to you, how does a fellow know whether he's engaged or not, what?"

"Mmmm," said the handsome lady, soberly. "I believe there are no set rules on the subject. Curious, too, isn't it? I think a treatise would be most helpful. But you see, without knowing the circumstances"—she raised her eyes with a successfully innocent inquiry.

"Yeh, of course," said the flanneled youth, slumping dejectedly. "Last night after the dance, an' they played that 'Chocolate Soldier' waltz, too, out in the moonlight—oh, dash it all, how's a man to tell about girls, anyway? I ask you. Here she comes now, goin' to play golf with that dried fig, Perkins. Say, I'll see you later—thanks awf'ly."

The flanneled youth stumbled to his feet and disappeared around a corner just in time to avoid a face-to-face encounter with a slip of a thing, feminine, who slid into the chair he vacated.

"Hello, Larkyn," said the slip of a thing, cheerfully. "Yeats again today? Chuck it, there's a dear, because I saw Freddy talking to you and I want to ask you something."

"Shoot," said the handsome Miss Larkyn, with a twinkle.

"Thanks," said the slip of a thing, gratefully. "You're a regular old brick, you know. What I want to ask you, did Freddy say anything about me?"

Miss Larkyn raised one eyebrow and tried to scowl with the other, but without success.

"Don't mix your face up that way," advised the slip of a thing, calmly. "A person doesn't know whether you're going or coming. And, besides, it's a perfectly permissible question. You see, Freddy and I got into a jam last night, rather. Sitting out the last dance on the side veranda. The moon was frightfully spiffy and the music—well, you know how it is yourself. First thing I knew Freddy was squeezing my hand and saying something washy, but upon my word I don't know what he said or what I said, because Aunt Ida came out just then."

The slip of a thing fetched a deep sigh. "Isn't it the edge!" she remarked, with annoyance. "Freddy acted so queer this morning that I'm horribly afraid he thinks I'm engaged to him or something. Now what do you know about that?" Her eyes were pools of wonder.

"Do you like him?" inquired Miss Larkyn, feeling her way carefully.

"Of course I like him," said the slip of a thing, still calmly. "Shouldn't have danced with him if I didn't. But engaged to him? Piffle! You tell him, will you?"

"Positively not," stated Miss Larkyn, firmly. "There he is now, out by the boathouse. Freddy! Oh, Freddy! Come here a minute—something to say to you."

The slip of a thing jibbed a bit as the flanneled youth approached, but headed into the wind again instantly.

"Hello, Freddy," she challenged, lightly. "I was just telling Larkyn about our flirtfest last night and that I hoped you weren't takin' it too seriously."

The flanneled youth nodded.

"S'll right, s.d," he said, pleasantly. "I was woodrin' about that myself, you know. I'll sort of figured I'd either get married or get me a car this summer. An' I saw a pippin of a roadster down at the shop this morning, so I guess it's just as well. Thanks awf'ly, Miss Larkyn. C'mon out for a swim."—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

James B. Pond, the Typesetter Introducer of the Great.

If you wish to read an interesting book, read "The Eccentricities of Genius," written by Major James B. Pond, who became a national character in his management of a great lecture bureau, and in his conduct of lecture engagements for the great. The story of Major Pond's own life is much more fascinating than the story of many much more famous people. In many ways Major Pond bore a charmed life. In 1863, during the Civil war, where he gained his title, he was one of 118 men who were suddenly and heavily attacked by superior forces and 101 shot down, and Major Pond being one of the 17 whom bullets could not injure.

In his active service in the Civil war Major Pond had many other narrow escapes, though no other more dramatic than that at Baxter Springs. He was only a boy when, as a wondering typesetter seeking to make a living and at the same time to see the country, he wandered out onto the little known regions of Kansas, then in the murderous throes of the struggle that preceded the Civil war. There the boy-printer met that gleaming-eyed, long-bearded fanatic, John Brown, who, with his tall sons and their long rifles was beginning the war ahead of time. Major Pond became a close associate with John Brown of Osawatomie and set type on the paper that was published in the interests of anti-slavery. The lad was only 21 when he heard of the wagon trains that were setting out for the Rocky Mountains. He left his type-setter's case, washed his hands of the printer's ink, and set off, rifle in hand, thus becoming a pioneer. He jogged along, and was one of the first to settle down in what is now the great city of Denver. Then it was only a beautiful site in the mountain land. After the hard service in the Civil war Major Pond accumulated enough money to set up in the conduct of a lecture bureau, first in Boston and later in New York. The fighting spirit of the man who had lived with the fiery-hearted John Brown, who had journeyed with the early settlers of a great region, and who had known the utmost severity of battle, made his lecture bureau an unparalled success. He scored what may be called low success and aimed at the topmost round. He sought out the very greatest men in the world, engaged them as lecturers and personally conducted their tours. He became their intimate friend. Accordingly his book is a most remarkable revelation. Major Pond made himself into a typical American hero and business man.

Stories That Recall Others

STORIES THAT RECALL OTHERS
Know Your Own Children

Mr. K. was stressing the point that many modern parents scarcely knew their own children and told this story.

A mother had occasion to spend the evening out with friends. She left the children at home with her husband with the usual instructions to put them to bed at 8 o'clock. When she came home she inquired: "Did you have any trouble with the children in getting them to bed?"

"Only one of the boys," he said. "He kicked and yelled, but I finally got him quiet and in bed."

The next morning it developed that the boy who had objected so strenuously was not his own son but a neighbor's boy.

Tip for Mothers

Harry has a small son named Richard who has many friends. After many pleadings on his part his mother consented to have a dinner for a number of the boys. The affair was most satisfactory until the feast was over and everyone had pushed back from the table.

"Now, fellows," then said Richard, "what do you say if we take up a collection and buy mother something?"

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Today is the 54th birthday anniversary of Dr. Alexander Meiklejohn, former president of Amherst college, who has just been appointed professor of philosophy at the University of Wisconsin. He was, like President Schurman, of Cornell, and President Patton of Princeton, born outside the United States, at Rochedale, England. At the age of eight years he accompanied his parents to America. He was graduated at Brown university in 1893, and became an instructor there four years later. He chose philosophy as his teaching field and soon attracted attention in educational circles. In 1901 he was made dean of Brown university and continued in that position for eleven years, until called to the presidency of Amherst college in 1912. In 1923 Dr. Meiklejohn resigned his position at Amherst as a result of criticism that his views were too liberal.

CHILD TRAINING

A Successful Parent

Helen Gregg Green

"I know I have not been what the world calls successful," one of my husband's friends confided to me, "but my son will be."

"You are naturally brilliant, everybody admits that, Throck," I told him, "and Junior has the same keen mind."

"You are evading the issue," Throck laughed. "You think it would hurt to say, 'No, you have not been a success!' it wouldn't hurt. I know it, and I know the root of the trouble. I shall see that Junior does not have that same handicap!"

"But what handicap did you have, Throck?" I asked, surprised. "You had a most indulgent father who encouraged you in everything you ever wanted to do."

"He encouraged me in most things—yes. But he did not teach me the joy of work! In fact, when I was about twelve years old, when the natural desire for real work is very strong, I begged to be allowed to work like the other fellows', but Father would not allow David or me to lift a finger. 'You'll have responsibilities enough when you're older. This is the playtime of your life!' he insisted."

"He meant well," I interrupted.

"Yes, no doubt. But when David and I faced the responsibilities of life and tried to buckle down to work it was too late. Already I am beginning to install in Junior the love of work. There's nothing like it to compel concentration and protect a lad from the dangers of idleness. Of course it must not be overdone, but that's what a dad is for—to be a 'guiding hand', to see that these character-building 'doses' are given in just the right proportions."

"What is Throck doing now?" I asked, all interest.

"Well, you know he's only ten. But he's editing his own newspaper, is a 'regular errand boy' as he calls it, for three of his mother's friends and during the summer vacation he delivers papers, sells magazines and helps Mother with the housework. You should see his paper! It has taught him to be systematic and business-like; best of all, he's learning how to meet people," and the father's face lighted with pride.

"And what does he do with his money?" was the next question.

"We leave that entirely to him." Throck replied, "and he's learning the value of a dollar. Most of it he saves—he has quite a bank account—the rest he spends carefully or gives away where he thinks it will do the most good. He discriminates very well for a little fellow, too."

"Well, Throck," I said smiling, "I know one thing, you're a most successful parent! And being a parent is really the biggest, best job of all."

Why Reddy Missed Nanny

A bite's a bite, however small;
'Tis better far than losing all.
—Old Mother Nature.

Now, how would you like to be in such a place as Nanny Meadow Mouse was in? There she was, with Reddy Fox sitting with his back to her just a little way off, and all the time thinking that Spooky the Screech Owl was sitting in the top of the tree above her. Spooky wasn't there, but so far as Nanny was concerned it was just as bad as if he had been there. You see she thought he was there. Poor Nanny! She was wholly in despair. She couldn't think of any way that she possibly could escape. Not knowing what to do, she did nothing; and, as so often happens, doing nothing was the very best thing that she could do.

There sat Reddy Fox with his back to her. When would he turn around? When he did, would he come straight over there where she was? If he did, what should she do? "I'll climb the tree," thought Nanny.

But Reddy didn't turn around. She saw him suddenly prick up his two black ears. She saw him stretch his head up as high as he could, and she knew that he was watching something. In a moment he actually stood upon his hind legs. It was quite clear that Reddy saw something at a distance which interested him. He was standing up that he might see better. A moment later he dropped down on all fours and, crouching low, ran swiftly across the young orchard toward the stone wall on the farther side. There he crouched behind the old wall and very slowly and carefully raised his head until he could peep over.

Nanny Meadow Mouse saw all this, but she didn't even wonder what it meant. Her heart was too full of thankfulness for her to think of anything else. She had been in despair and now hope once more filled her. It was a wonderful feeling—that feeling of hope. No one can know what that feeling is until they have been in despair.

Nanny sat perfectly still, for she still thought that Spooky the Screech Owl was in the tree above her. She sat with her eyes fixed on Reddy Fox. Suddenly Reddy leaped over the stone wall and she lost sight of him. But a moment later she saw someone else leap over the old stone wall from the other side and come racing through the young orchard. It was Peter Rabbit.

Right past Nanny Meadow Mouse raced Peter

My how Peter was running! Lipperty-lipperty-lip, lipperty-lipperty-lip ran Peter; and behind him, running quite as fast, was Reddy Fox. Peter was headed straight for where Nanny Meadow Mouse sat, but Nanny didn't think of that. She forgot everything else in her interest in that race. "Run, Peter, run!" she kept saying over and over under her breath. "Oh, Peter do run!"

MOREt MORE hqb's-pUlnl fdkll

Peter did run. Never had he run harder or faster. There was need of it. Reddy Fox was gaining. Nanny could see that. Peter himself could see it. You know Peter can see behind him without turning his head much if any. That is the reason his eyes are set so far back. It is rather necessary that Peter should be able to watch behind him. Most of Peter's dangers come from behind.

Right past Nanny Meadow Mouse raced Peter, lipperty-lipperty-lip. A moment later right past Nanny raced Reddy Fox. Nanny nearly died of fright. Anyway, she felt as if she did. Reddy passed so close that that big tail of his almost touched Nanny. But he didn't see her, and he didn't have time to smell her; he was too intent on catching Peter Rabbit for anything else. He thinks a Meadow Mouse very good eating, but it isn't very filling compared with a fat Rabbit. Reddy was after a Rabbit dinner and he meant to have it. That is why he missed Nanny Meadow Mouse.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

Little Talks on Thrift

Thrift Consists of Three Things

It is well to have impressed on us the fact that thrift means more than mere saving. This is true especially at this time because in recent weeks much has been said in the newspapers and elsewhere in behalf of savings.

Tremendously powerful and useful agencies have been expending special efforts along these lines.

It is well to have these activities.

But it is to be borne in mind always that too much economy is not thrift any more than is too much spending.

False economy, carried to the point of hurting the delicately balanced adjustments of business, means eventual waste. Loss of trade by the retail merchant means loss also for the jobber who in turn passes it on to the manufacturer. The result is unemployment, a form of waste undesirable for all.

Thus under-standing can, if carried to excess, produce unwholesome economic conditions that are as distressing as over-spending.

Too much spending means at once a waste all along the line.

It leads to over-expansion and speculative activities which continue in their natural cycle until they end in business depression.

True thrift consists of three things—prudent saving, judicious spending and wise investing.

It is not possible to lay down universal rules to be followed in these matters. But it should be remembered at all times that thrift means progress. Fraud losses have reached a figure in excess of one billion dollars a year because thousands of persons, having learned to save, have not learned how to spend and invest with prudence.—American Society for Thrift.

Miss Patten, whose residence for nearly 50 years was in Middletown, died in a Norwich hospital last Friday after a long illness.

Elizabeth Frances Patten was born in 1843, the daughter of John and Elizabeth Williams Patten. The family was originally from the Mystic section of Stonington. It could trace descent from those who came over in the Mayflower.

Moving from Old Mystic the family settled in Colchester and there Miss Patten and her sister, who were later to maintain the famous preparatory school in Middletown, were born. Miss Elizabeth received her education in the town schools and later attended the Bacon academdy. From there she went to Fort Edward's institute and prepared herself for teaching.

Upon graduation in 1870 she found employment at Gilead in Waterford and after a short time obtained a position as an instructor in the High school at Saganaw, Mich.

In 1878 she was invited to come to Middletown to teach in the then famous Middletown seminary, of which Rev. B. F. Smith was principal. Five years later, and a year after Miss Anna Carlyn Patten, her sister, came to Middletown, Miss Patten negotiated with Principal Smith to take over the school. The negotiations were successful and the famous "The Misses Patten school", for boys and girls in preparation for college, was established.

The Misses Patten found the old building unsuitable for their educational institute. They obtain the building at the Corner of High and College street, which was to be the home of the school until it closed in 1912, and until the sisters found it worth while to sell to the Faculty club of Wesleyan university.

The success of the school was marked but it was found necessary to close the school when the health of Miss Elizabeth began to fail. Later when the property was sold they moved to Mystic and occupied the old homestead where the Pattens of previous generations resided for centuries.

Miss Patten is survived by a brother and a sister living in Mystic.

NON-TAXABLE PROPERTY INCREASES IN NORWICH IN LAST FOUR YEARS

In the last four years since the itemized list of non-taxable property in Norwich was previously reported by the board of assessors, there have been some increases in this class of real estate, as is shown by the list just completed and reported by the assessors. Four years ago the total of non-taxable property was $6,325,760. This year it is $7,009,361.

Most of the valuations remain the same as they were four years ago, but the following changes are to be noted in the list. The Central Baptist church list is increased from $105,000 to $106,000, Grace Episcopal church at Yantic from $7,500 to $9,000 and the Norwich District Parsonage Corporation, which owns residence property on Williams street, from $2,500 to $3,500.

The erection of the new school by St. Joseph Roman Catholic church has resulted in a valuation raise from $40,000 to $60,000 and the building of the new St. Mary's Memorial church has raised the valuation there from $97,000 to $142,000 while there is an increase from $12,500 to $13,300 for St. Nicholas Russian Orthodox Greek Catholic church.

In valuation put on property owned by city departments there are increases. Because of new apparatus and the new fire station in Joseph Perkins road, the fire department property is raised from $143,560 to $210,500. The property of the gas and electric department is increased from $1,177,340 to $1,334,560, while street department property valuation is raised from $140,000 to $170,620. Acquisipark property owned by the city has raised this valuation from $89,500 to $121,500. The assessors had difficulty in securing valuation figures from the water department, but it was put in at $1,276,593. Four years ago the figure was $1,510,000.

Improvements at the tuberculosis sanatorium, which is state owned property, have raised this valuation from $135,000 to $204,000 and the town of Norwich school property valuation has been increased from $450,165 to $624,185 because two new school buildings have been built in the last four years.

At the Backus hospital, where a new nurses' home has been built, the valuation has been increased from $182,150 to $247,825 and at the Norwich Free Academy, where building additions have been made, the increase has been from $415,000 to $460,000. The valuation on the United Workers property has been raised from $28,100 to $47,658 and the Young Men's Christian association from $37,500 to $100,000.

New items in the list of non-taxable property are Norwich Free Hebrew Institute $7,500; Missionary Society of Connecticut $5,000; Salvation Army, Inc., $15,000; American Woolen Co., $3,000; and Polish National Catholic Church of the Divine Providence $500.

The second play, entitled "School Days" was given by Okiza Camp Fire Girls. The audience laughed gaily at the antics of Baby Brother, who came to visit school, at Harry, the fat boy "whose mother wanted him to sit with the girls 'cause the boys were too rough," at Philipina the Italian girl, and at all the rest of the class.

The third play was entitled "The Bachelor's Dream," and was given by both the Pequot and Okiza Camp Fire Girls. This was a very pleasing sketch of a bachelor dreaming of the different girls he had given his heart to during his life time.

FOR SUPERIOR COURT ON MANSLAUGHTER CHARGE

On the charge of manslaughter, Arthur E. Dunmire, of 311 Williams street, New London, was bound over to the superior court when he was presented before the Waterford town court Monday night. Bonds were set at $2,500, which were furnished for Dunmire.

The accused man was the driver of an automobile in which Ray Nelson of Uncasville was a passenger on the night of Nov. 22, 1925. The car upset on Quaker Hill and Nelson was pinned under the machine and killed. Three other men in the machine suffered injuries and Dunmire was so seriously hurt that he has been in the hospital until about a week ago.

In the Waterford court a bond of $5,000 was asked by the state police but upon recommendation of Prosecuting Attorney J. James Floyd, the bond was fixed at $2,500 in view of the fact that Dunmire is still under medical care and would not be able to raise more than the $2,500 bond.

SAILORS APPEAR IN NORWICH CITY COURT

Four sailors, members of the crew of the U. S. S. Cummings, now in port at New London, were presented in the city court Tuesday morning, one on the charge of driving a machine while under the influence of liquor and the other three on charges of intoxication. They were four of seven sailors arrested by the local police late Monday night after a chase through Thamesville to the city line. The driver of the machine, a Chrysler, cut the beacon at Thames square to the left and Officer Frank Gwicudowski blew his whistle for the driver to stop. He kept going and Sergt. Matthew Delaney and Officers Dunion and Fraser joined with Officer Gwicudowski in a chase after the machine.

Stanley Wilk, 25, was presented as the driver of the machine. The case was continued until Wednesday morning, in order to give him time to secure money to pay the fine which the court will impose on him for driving while under the influence. Bonds were set at $500 which he could not furnish and he was locked up to await disposal of his case today (Wednesday). John F. Sheehan, 21, George Barrett, 31, and Sverd Ungerman, 24, who were in the machine, were fined and paid $5 and costs each for intoxication.

Angelo NeSota was presented on a charge of being "incorrigible". His case was continued on probation which Judge Libby had imposed on the boy a short time ago following the break at the Pearl street school house.

A fine of $200 and costs was imposed on Albert V. Pelletire, North Thames street barber, on a charge of selling liquor. He was also given a ten day jail sentence, suspended. He took an appeal to the common pleas court and furnished bonds of $1,000.

The evidence of the sale was procured for the police by Richard Smith of No. 62 Main street who it was testified went into the barber shop, bought a drink and a small quantity of "hooch" to take with him.

Michael Allasavitz, 30, charged with hitting Mike Pietroszewicz over the head with a bottle, inflicting a bad cut, Saturday night and who had been locked up since his arrest Sunday, had his case nolled Tuesday morning. It was learned that the complainant made a mistake in picking out Allasavitz as the assailant. It is now understood that another man is responsible for the cutting and a search is being made to apprehend him.

COURT IS TO DECIDE WHO HIT PIETROSZEWICZ

Mike Pietroszewics who was hit in the head with a bottle in a fight at the Falls Saturday night took the police up there after a doctor had stitched up the cut and pointed out Michael Allasvitz was accordingly arrested and Allsabitz was accordingly arrested and kept in a cell as he could not get bonds. Tuesday morning when the case against him was brought up in the city court, a woman witness swore positively that Allasavitz was not the bottle wielder and his accuser was not sure who it was. The woman said the man who hit Pietroszewicz was Alex Rincavitz, who works in a mill in Jewett City. The court discharged Allasavitz and a warrant was made out for Rincavitz, who was arrested in Jewett City for the Norwich police by Deputy Sheriff Dolan. Officers Charles Smith and Luke Riley brought Rincavitz here Tuesday afternoon and he will be presented in court this (Wednesday) morning.

Mr. Fraser was operating his car up North Main street and was turning the beacon to go up Central avenue, while the Woodmansee car was coming down North Main street. BANQUET AND ENTERTAINMENT FOR CHURCH WORKERS

The annual entertainment of the church workers of St. Patrick's parish was delightfully carried out Tuesday evening at the Wauregan hotel with a spirit which made the event a "family gathering," as it was designated by several of the speakers. A banquet and social evening was tendered to trustees, collectors, choir members and others by the pastor, Msgr. M. H. May and his assistants, Rev. Myles P. Galvin and Rev. J. J. Reilly, in appreciation of the zeal and efficiency with which they have filled their parts during the year this recognition being an annual custom in the parish.

Seventy were seated at the tables, with Msgr. May in the place of honor at the head table, where he said grace after Father Galvin who was toastmaster had asked all to join in singing America.

The Ideal orchestra played during the banquet and Walter La Fontaine was the song leader, calling on groups of the choir members to render special numbers, much to the pleasure of the gathering. Valentine favors were at the places with fancy caps for all. Floral decorations added to the attractiveness of the tables.

Assuming his place as toastmaster, Father Galvin expressed his own appreciation of the services rendered by the church workers in assisting him while Monsignor May was away in Europe last summer and more recently in the south.

In closing he presented Msgr. May, who responded with warm hearted praise for his clerical assistants and for the lay members, than whom he said there was no more zealous band in any diocese. They sustain the arms of the priest and make possible whatever success is attained and they will have God's blessing in their work for God and country.

The church workers rose and applauded Msgr. May as he concluded his hearty expression of appreciation, giving him a rising vote of thanks.

Rev. John J. Reilly, curate in the parish, was the following speaker, charming his hearers with his graceful expression of thanks on behalf of himself and Father Galvin. He referred with praise to the wonderful work that had been done by the choir under an organist that is "just as good as the best in the diocese," and spoke with pride at the welcome home that the parish gave to Monsignor May when he returned from Rome with honors conferred by the pope.

He closed with commendation for the church workers who put their zeal for service into practice and declared that serving the church will not be without its reward.

Henry J. La Fontaine, organist at the church for several months past, was next called upon for a song, but before he responded he expressed his thanks to Msgr. May for the assistance given in carrying out plans for the new choir and for the way they had responded with enthusiastic support.

Mr. La Fontaine gave a delightful rendering of a musical setting of Joyce Kilmer's poem, "Trees."

The remainder of the evening was devoted to dancing. The plans which provided for the pleasant gathering were carried out by Fathers Galvin and Reilly, with the assistance of John P. Corcoran, to whom the several speakers of the evening made reference in appreciation of his helpfulness.

CONSCIENCE KEPT HIM FROM LIQUOR TRAFFIC

WATERBURY, Feb. 3—(AP)—Claiming that his conscience troubled him and caused him to refuse to engage in illegal liquor traffic, Peter Kondrotas is defending a suit for $1,000 damages brought by Joseph Lokes and now being heard before Judge Alfred C. Baldwin and a jury in superior court.

Lokes is suing on a note of $950. He alleges that Kondrotas bought his pool room two years ago and gave a note, but has refused payment on it. Kondrotas asserts that he gave the note in buying Lokes' saloon on Bank street. A week later his conscience troubled him because he knew it would be violating the law if he sold liquor, he claims. This caused him to refuse to go through with the deal.

FAVORITES SCORE EASY TRIUMPHS WHILE BOSTONIANS HAVE DIFFICULTY

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(AP)—Tennis in the annual Heights Casino women's invitation tournament today ran the scale of easy triumphs for favorites to hard-fought and exciting struggles for five Boston entries. Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere, of Boston, Mary K. Browne, of Santa Monica, Cal., and Martha Bayard, of Short Hills, N. J., were among the eight players to reach the quarter-finals of the singles.

Mrs. Corbiere encountered unexpectedly keen opposition in the second round from Mrs. B. F. Briggs, of New York, but the seeded Boston player finally triumphed in two hotly contested sets, 6-2, 7-5.

It remained for Mrs. W. M. Shedden to score the outstanding Hub victory of the day, however, coming from behind in a long and vigorously played three-set match, she eliminated Mrs DeForest Candee, of New York, 7-5, 3-6, 6-3. Mrs. Candee lost the first set after opening with a 5-2 lead, saved the second by recovering from a tendence of wildness and then tired under the Boston woman's net attack in the closing set.

This match was exceeded as a test of endurance, however, by a first round doubles contest of brilliant rallies between Mrs. Edward Raymond and Miss Florence Ballin, of New York, and Mrs. Frank Godfrey and Mrs. W. Trumbull of Boston, the Boston team won 6-4, 8-6, 11-9.

Miss Browne, former women's outdoor champion, was never in danger in her second round match with Miss Rosamond Newton, of Boston, winning by 6-1, 6-2.

In other second round matches, Miss Bayard defeated Mrs. H. Stuart Green, of New York, 6-2, 6-0; Mrs. Frederick M. Letson, of New York, won over Mrs. T. S. Sturgis, New York, 6-1, 6-1; Miss Caroma Winn, Mountain Lakes, N. J., eliminated Miss Dorothy Blodgett, Boston, 6-0, 6-2; Mrs. H. B. Kaltenborn, New York, won from Miss Adele Cragin, New York, 6-1, 6-2.

Other first round doubles results were: Mrs. Corbiere and Miss Bayard, defeated Mrs. T. S. Sturgis and Miss Newthon, 6-3, 6-2; Mrs. Candee and Mrs. S F. Weaver won from Mrs. F. L. St. John and Miss Edwina Cruickshank, 6-4, 2-6; Mrs. Theodore Sohst and Mrs. J. E. Bailey won from Mrs. W. M. Shedden and Miss Dorothy Blodgett, 6-4, 1-6, 8-6.

MISS WILLS WINS HER TWO MATCHES WITH EASE

NICE, France, Feb. 2—(AP)—Helen Wills invaded Suzanne Lengien's territory this afternoon, and in her debut on the courts of the French star's home club, participated in two one-sided victories, paired with C. F. Aeschlimann, the Swiss star, the American champion passed easily through the first two rounds in the mixed doubles in the Nice tournament, thus gaining the quarter-finals.

Mlle. Lengien also won two matches today with the greatest ease, not losing a single game.

Miss Wills and her partner dropped only one game in winning their double victory. They defeated Mlle. Neveu and Captain Christie in two love sets and then overwhelmed Miss Evelyn Woods and Mr. Caulfield, 6-0, 6-1.

The combination of the California girl and the Swiss star proved highly pleasing to Riviera tennis fans, as it presents an exceptionally powerful attack, featured by Miss Wills' hard driving and Aeschlimann's brilliant net play.

Experts agreed after watching today's matches that Miss Wills and her partner should give Mlle. Lengien and Baron Henri De Morpurgo the stiffest kind of battle when they meet in the mixed doubles finals at the end of the week, as it is now generally conceded they will.

COOPER LEADS FIELD IN SOUTH-CENTRAL TOURNAMENT

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 2.—(AP)—Harry Cooper, Kansas City professional shot into the lead in the South-Central open golf tournament here this afternoo , scoring a 33-34 for a 67, and a new course record that gave him a total of 138 for the day, in the 72 hole medal play.

Al Espinosa of Long Beach, Calif., came next with 70-70—140, trailed by Bobby Cruickshank of Chicago with 141, who in turn was followed by John Rodgers of Pittsburgh with 142. Rodgers made 68 in the morning round but was unable to keep up the pace in the afternoon making a 74.

Cooper gave his gallery a thrill on the 18th hole in the afternoon, when he hooked into a pond. He waded into the water a foot deep, hit the ball accurately and was just off the green in two.

His approach was virtually dead to the pin and he holed out for par four. Cooper finished the round four under par, having birdies on the second, fifth, eighth and ninth holes.

Leaders at the end of the second round were:

Harry Cooper, Kansas City, 138.
Al Espinosa, Long Beach, Calif., 140.
Bobby Cruickshank, Chicago, 141.

WILL HAVE LITTLE TIME TO PREPARE FOR HIS RACE

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(AP)—Adrian Paulen, Holland's champion middle distance star, is racing toward America on the Olympic, to participate in the Millrose A. A. games at Madison Square Garden, Thursday.

Two days overdue because of storms on the Atlantic, the Olympic is scheduled to enter quarantine at 6 o'clock tomorrow night but it was not known whether the boat will dock them or be held up until Thursday morning.

In the event Paulen is unable to land before Thursday he will be forced to compete in the Percy D. Haughton international 600-yard race against the champions of Norway, Canada and America without even a workout.

DANIELSON EXPECTS HARD BATTLE WITH TAFTVILLE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 2.—The Taftville Crescents come to Danielson Thursday night to figure with the Danielson Town team in what should be one of the best games of the winter. Here are two teams that give promise of staging some fast basketball, and it is a game awaited with exceptional interest. Both teams are contenders for the championship of Eastern Connecticut, and neither will be put out of the running for that honor without the gamest kind of effort to win it.

The Crescents have a reputation for speed, team play and individual starring qualities that make them a very formidable organization. That they have all these good qualities makes them interesting opponents for the Danielson Town team, about which there is much to be said relative to their class. In Blakeley and Reeves Danielson has about as speedy and nifty a pair of forwards as one will find in any portion of the state. Keech at center is a tower of strength for Danielson and in its guards, Poirier and Godreau, Danielson has a sturdy pair of lads with plenty of speed and a keen knowledge of the game. Poirier's working in holding the classy Normandin to two baskets in a recent game against Jewett City is evidence of his ability and there is much to be said for the capabilities of Godreau. All of this is what makes the fan relish with keen anticipation the meeting of Danielson and Taftville in Danielson's town hall on Thursday evening.

GORMAN DEMANDS $500 PLUS EXPENSES TO COMPETE

DETROIT, Feb. 2—(AP)—Charles Gorman, amateur ice skater and winner of the St. Johns amateur championships last year, has demanded $500 and expenses to compete here this week in the international amateur championship races, Julian Fitzgerald, past president of the International Skating union announced tonight.

Fitzgerald, who is in charge of the championships here, made public a telegram purporting to come from Gorman at St. Johns, in which Gorman said that for $500 and expenses, he would race against time only.

Replying, Fitzgerald told Gorman that if he cared to take part in the races here he must come on the same basis as the others, and must compete. Amateurs are allowed only their expenses.

Fitzgerald said that the demand for payment as made in the Gorman wire constitutes a breach of the amateur rules, and probably will lead to an investigation.

NUTMEGS AND "Y" EMPS CLASH THIS EVENING

This (Wednesday) evening at the "Y" gym the Nutmeg's five will clash with the fast "Y" Emps quintet in what should be as fast a basketball game as will be seen in many moons in this section.

For the "Y" the following will probably take the floor: Center, Pascouche; forwards, Lambert, Ludlow and Barber; guards, Brown and Falcone. These boys should give the Nutmegs a hard tussle throughout the entire contest.

The Nutmegs will send the following into the fray: Center, Pingree; forwards, Capt. Segal and Brauman; guards, Jab Burns, Bergaron and Carden. Miller, W. Burns and Couture will be on hand in case of emergency.

The game will start at 7:30 p. m., sharp.

OFFERS $25,000 FOR MATCH BETWEEN ZIVIC AND MULLIGAN

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(AP)—William Ames, of Clifton, Mass., manager of Tommy Milligan, English welterweight, announced today the receipt of a cable from London, guaranteeing 5,000 pounds, the equivalent of about $25,000, for a 20-round match between Milligan and Jack Zivic of Pittsburgh, at the Olympic A. C., London, during the latter part of March.

Ames said he was prepared to accept the terms if Zivic's manager was willing. Negotiations for a title match with Walker, started by an English promoter, were abandoned when Milligan lost a decision to Zivic in a recent match.

COULON-DARK CLOUD BOUT POSTPONED INDEFINITELY

State Boxing Commissioner Thomas E. Donohue put his official foot on the proposed Coulon-Bradley bout to be held at New London, next Thursday night and told the promoters that it was all off for the time being. Just why this bout which had stirred up no little local interest, was called off could not be learned as the commissioner could not be located. Tuesday afternoon Commissioner Donohue told New London newspapermen that the bout was off because of some irregularities concerning the bout but other than this little is known.

Local people are disappointed as several hundred fans from Norwich and Taftville intended to be present at the bout and some had even bought tickets for the affair.

N. Y. COMMISSION STARTS INVESTIGATION OF RICKARD

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(AP)—Investigation into Tex Rickard's reported negotiations between Gene Tunney and Jack Dempsey for a heavyweight title match, was started today when the state athletic commission questioned Rickard regarding his dealings with either of the principals or their representatives.

Asked by Chairman Farley, whether he had signed Tunney for a match with Dempsey in violation of the commission's edict against the champion, Rickard refused to answer on the ground that any statement on his part would be embarrassing to his business affairs.

Failing to obtain any satisfaction from Rickard, Farley said the investigation would be continued and if the real facts of the case coincided with the reports, Rickard would be disciplined When asked what form the discipline would take, Chairman Farley replied:

"We'll cross that bridge when we come to it."

Rickard also refused to discuss the affair, referring all inquiries to the commission.

Following its usual procedure in cases of fouling, the board suspended Bushy Graham, Utica, N. Y., bantamweight, for 30 days for fouling Tommy Ryan at Buffalo, N. Y., last night.

BASEBALL OWES MUCH TO JUDGE LANDIS AND SUPREME COURT SAYS SEN. PEPPER

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(AP)—Organized baseball owes much of its present-day success to two outstanding factors—the supreme court's decision that it is "safe" and the engagement of Kenesaw Mountain Landis as its chief arbiter.

This was the declaration tonight of United States Senator Pepper, of Pennsylvania, before the golden jubilee dinner of the National league, marking the close of the fiftieth year of baseball's oldest organization.

"Most people do not realize," said Senator Pepper, "that we owe the continued existence of the National league and of organized ball to an historic decision by a great umpire."

"There was a moment a few years ago when the question was whether organized baseball was safe or was not," he asserted, pointing out that its status faced a test under the country's anti-trust laws.

But the supreme court, he recalled, ruled that organized ball was "safe," a "decision that saved the national game."

"Organized ball is not inter-state commerce because the output of the player's skill is not a commercial activity," he said.

"The anti-trust laws have no application, the Major leagues, the Minor leagues, the world's series, the reserve clause, the player's contract—all these are the component parts of a system which has stood the first fire test of legality and has been triumphantly vindicated."

The senator paid tribute to John A. Heydler, president of the National league, "who worthily maintained the standard of sportsmanship set by John Tener and his predecessors," and also to "the strong men of the American league, headed by their captain, courageous Ban Johnson."

Messages From Pres. Coolidge

Messages of greeting from President Coolidge, Premier Mackenzie King, of Canada, and Chauncey M. Depew, were read tonight at the National league's golden jubilee dinner by John A. Heydler, president of the senior baseball circuit.

"Your league is one of the leading exponents of our national game," said President Coolidge's message, "anything which tends to interest the youth of the country in participation in a wholesome athletic sport is to be encouraged. Please extend to those present, my greetings and best wishes."

Regretting his inability to attend because of official duties, Premier King expressed his appreciation for the invitation extended him and added: "I trust you will convey to those present my sincere wish that the function may be in the fullest sense a success."

"No one dreamed fifty years ago that baseball would conquer the world," said Mr. Depew's message. "Its success is the triumph of healthy and inspiring sport. It has added to national and international good will and prompted good fellowship. May its golden jubilee be followed by a glorious century."

BABE RUTH TO GET GO TO CAMP THIS WEEK

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(AP)—After conferring today with Miller Huggins at Yankee headquarters, Babe Ruth, who will leave this week for St. Petersburg, Florida, to begin training for the baseball season, said he never felt better than he does now.

"I am down to 217 pounds," said Ruth, "and will take off about 10 more pounds in the south. I am not predicing how many home runs I will make, but I am going to work hard, mighty hard, to regain some of the prestige I lost last year."

"I am not through and I expect to have several more real good seasons before I retire. I know the fans are with me and that alone is going to make me work harder this year than I ever did before."

DEMPSEY SAYS HE WILL FIGHT WILLS LABOR DAY

KEY WEST, Fla., Feb. 2—(AP)—Jack Dempsey will meet Harry Wills, the Black Panther, in a title bout on Labor Day, The Key West Morning Call will say tomorrow in publishing an interview with the champion who was in the city today en route to Tampa from Havana.

"Fellows, I am going to give you a 'scoop'," Dempsey is quoted as saying. "I'm going to fight Harry Wills on Labor Day."

Continuing The Calls story will say: The place where this much-talked about title match will be held has not been decided upon, according to the champion, who declared that he was not the least bit skeptical about holding it, even in Madison Square Garden.

If arrangements for staging the bout in the east fall through, Floyd Fitzsimmons, the promoter, will scout about for a location in the west.

SAGE WILL BE COACH OF DARTMOUTH ENDS

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 2—(AP)—Henry Sage, one of the star wing men of last year's unbeaten Dartmouth football team, returned to college today and will coach the ends on the varsity eleven next fall. He will succeed Eddie Lynch, who has been appointed an end coach at the University of Minnesota.

JEWETT CITY PROS AND DANIELSON CLASH TONIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 2.—This Wednesday evening at Bijou hall, Jewett City, Danielson, claimants of the Eastern Connecticut basketball title, will attempt to take the locals into camp. Danielson having won the first game a few weeks ago are determined to take the second encounter, so as to win the series. The Pros, after a slump of three straight games came through last Wednesday night and defeated Webster and if their playing equals last week's performance chances for a Jewett City victory are very bright.

Jewett City will use her regular lineup, namely, Benjamin and Normandin, forwards; Blake and Barry, guards, and Harry Mills, center, a combination that is hard to beat, if in good form.

Danielson will use the following men: Blakely and Reeves at forwards; Keech at center; Porier and Smith guards, the same team that defeated the Pros before. In the preliminary the Crescents, a newly organized team, will attempt to start the whirlwind attack of the Clerks. Both these teams are from Jewett City and the rivalry is keen so a lively game should be the result.

P. A. throws pipe-peeves for a loss

AND the bigger they are, the harder they fall, as Shakespeare or somebody said. You can prove this beyond question with a jimmy-pipe and a tidy red tin of Prince Albert. Any time. Anywhere. As a matter of fact, tackling pipe-grouches is P. A.'s regular business.

Cool and sweet and fragrant, P. A.'s wonderful smoke comes curling up the pipe-stem, filling your system with a new brand of pipe-pleasure. You smoke . . . and smile! For the first time in your life, you've found the one tobacco that scales to your blueprint of bliss.

Morning till midnight. Slow or fast. No matter how you feed it, P. A. never bites your tongue or parches your throat. Those important items were taken care of in the original plans by the Prince Albert process. That's why they call P. A. the friendly tobacco.

Right in your neighborhood is a store where they hand out jimmy-pipe joy in the familiar red tin. Take yourself there now and tell the man you want a tidy red tin of P. A. Learn from experience why millions call "P. A." the most important letters in the smoke-alphabet.

P. A. is sold everywhere in 2oz. red tins, pound and half-pound tin humidors, and pound crystal-glass humidors with sponge-moistener top. And always with every bit of bite and parch removed by the Prince Albert process.

NEW LONDON P. S. OPERATOR ARRESTED-VIOLATION OF HIS PAROLE CHARGED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 2—Louis Ramisetih Jr., 706 Bank street, a well known public service operator, was taken into custody this afternoon by Patrolman Braxton Hill, charged with violation of his parole. He was made a prisoner at the police station, but later was liberated when Arthur J. Messer, Summer street, qualified on Ramistella's bond for the appearance of the accused in the police court Wednesday morning.

Ramistella was arrested several months ago charged with violation of the prohibition law. At that time he pleaded guilty, was fined $200 and costs and was given a suspended jail sentence of 10 days. About six weeks ago, Ramistella was transporting liquor and the automobile, a touring car he was using for that purpose, was held up by the police of Stamford. Ramistella drew a fine and was sentenced to 30 days in the Bridgeport jail for the latter offense. Ramistella was liberated last Saturday and returned to New London. As the conviction in the Stamford court constitutes a violation of parol the taxicab driver was re-arrested today.

MANAGER HOLT'S POLICY OF HIGHWAY WORK FAVORED

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 2—Should the city act upon the recommendation of Manager Holt and inaugurate a policy that will provide a section of permanent highway each year, the experience will be expensive at the start, but in a few years the city will save money, in that repair work will be reduced to the minimum. In sections of the city where Belgian blocks were laid some 20 years ago, there has been practically no expense for maintenance. Methodist street was laid in cement during the term of H. L. Armstrong as mayor, and since then—some 20 years—that highway has not cost the city a dollar for repairs. That sort of street work can be duplicated with the manifest result that when the streets are once provided the cost of maintenance is reduced to its lowest figures.

New London has rid itself of the presence of Sylvia Wells, the woman who slashed Mazie Williams-Downey with a razor at the home of William Matthewson, Potter street, a fortnight ago, and the city may be rid of Mazie, if she continued in the business in which she has been engaged for several years. Mazie is a woman of more than 50. She came from the hospital to accuse her slasher and brought with her a face that resembled lattice work so thoroughly was it decorated with plaster. The women are colored. The Wells girl was brought here to lead a life of shame and to earn money for the Williams woman, but she tired of the treatment she received and left without ceremony, as soon as she could get her fur-bordered coat and her other belongings together, going to the Matthewson house. There she was pursued by Mazie in an effort to bring an attractive a "boarder" back to Hill street. But Sylvia would not return. This brought on an open row. The women finally squirmed into the kitchen while they fussed and there upon a cupboard was a razor. Both grabbed for it. Sylvia getting the grab. She started to use it claiming that Mazie had the intent to take her life, if the former had secured the razor. So the defense became one in which the claim was made that the girl was defending her life. There was no one to contradict that defense, so the crime could not be proven and the complaint was nolled. But Sylvia was charged with being a lascivious person and she pleaded guilty. The prosecutor told of the character of Miss Wells and classed her as the consort of men of all nations. For that immoral character she was fined $50. She raised the money and settled, with the understanding that she was to do this or serve a term of six months in jail. She had a "friend" at hand who produced the money needed. The Williams woman was fined $75 as the harborer of a lewd woman and for keeping a house of ill fame. She too had the necessary money to settle up. The man who brought the Wells woman to New London is serving a term of six months in jail as a procurer. He was a train hand and is understood to have depended for compensation for his services upon the earnings of the woman he secured for the Williams house.

Henry Calende, who came here to work at the Bloom mill on Jefferson avenue, probably concluded that he could get the best of the state of Connecticut if he delayed the purchase of a license to operate his automobile. Perhaps he would have been right in his deduction had he not been concerned in an accident yesterday when his car hit the machine of Adrian Murray. When that collision happened Calende was told to show his license. He could not do this, so he was prosecuted. His experience cost him about $25 and he will have to pay the cost of repairs to the Murray machine.

Raymond L. Davis, a young railroader, was charged with assaulting his wife. He was drunk when he committed that offense or he probably would not have struck her. Nor would he have smashed things in his home. When he did that his wife asked for his arrest. She secured that and he was in court today. Mrs. Davis did not seek legal punishment of her husband, but she asked the court to see that he was kept from annoying her in the future. She prefers to earn her living rather than be the wife of a man who abuses her and who does not support her except in the most indifferent way. He was given a suspended sentence, on condition that he would refrain from annoying his wife henceforth.

Selectman Henry Latham, of Groton, has moved from Noank to the Gray farm, Center Groton, having recently purchased the property.

Daisy L. Clarke and Florence K. Crandall have sold a building lot, corner of Bentley avenue and Westerly Place, Ocean Beach, to Rachel Pearl Meyer. The price was about $8,000.

Anna and Casey R. Spersky have sold a house and lot on Elinman street to John A. Ahles. Peter Aerenas and Speros [illegible]. The price paid was $12,000.

Mary J. Rogers, trustee of the estate of H. Stennett Rogers, has sold the dwelling house, 24 Woodbridge street, to Archibald S. MacFarlane.

An automobile truck, A Pierce-Arrow, owned by a Boston concern, was struck by a Groton & Stonington trolley car on Thames street, Groton, last night. The truck was damaged and was put out of commission.

Frederick Edgerton, librarian at the New London Public library, found a pigeon encased in a box on the platform of the library entrance this morning when he appeared at the place to begin his duties. The pigeon was delivered to the police station, but was not harbored there long, being liberated.

Lee Barr, 13 North Bank street, complained to the police last night that a suit of clothes belonging to him and valued at $35, had been stolen by Philip Gauthier, 13 Cherry street, Fall River, Mass. Barr declared that the clothes, which were stolen last Saturday, had been loaned Gauthier about a week ago when Gauthier desired the use of the apparel as he was intending to call upon a young woman friend. He returned the suit, but Saturday evening when Barr was absent from his room, it is alleged, Gauthier entered the place and stole the apparel.

Following the fight on the New Haven railroad spanning Shaw's Cove early last Sunday morning, when William Falvey, of Clover Court, was beaten after he is alleged to have attacked coast guard sailors, Patrolman Thomas Lyden in passing through Smith street shortly before midnight, was informed by a sailor, that he had been molested by civilians on the bridge. The officer, with Lieut. James Sullivan, Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman George McCaskey, went to the bridge, but did not find any loiterers there. The officers also made a search of Hamilton, Smith, Walbach, Goshen and Howard streets, but were not successful in locating the alleged annoyers of the sailor.

Miss Marjorie Starr, of 121 Hempstead street; Perry Osborn, Mystic; Alfred Baldwin, 427 Bant street, and Miss Ida Burch, patients at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital, were dismissed today.

Her friends in New London hear little of late regarding the widow of George Parsons Lathrop—Rose Hawthorne Lathrop—except in connection with her magnificent work for the cancerous poor at her convent, Rosary Hill, Hawthorne, N. Y. Within the month the "Counselor," writing in the Catholic Transcript, the official organ of the diocese of Hartford, has been considering this brilliant daughter of the great Nathaniel Hawthorne, as a poet. Especial attention has been paid to the volume of her poems entitled, "Along the Shore." It is stated that Mrs. Lathrop was born at Lenox, Mass., where her father lived when he was engaged in his best work, notably of which was writing his "Wonder Book" and his "House of the Seven Gables." Her husband, George Parsons Lathrop, attributed his own conversion to the Roman Catholic faith to the example and conversation of John Boyle O'Reilly. He explained his wife's conversion as due to "the unconscious influence of those good Sisters of Boston who had taken her to their hearts in a time of illness. The Transcript quotes Mrs. Lathrop's "Greater World," "A Song Before Grief," "Zest" and "The Lost Battle." In last week's issue, The Transcript devoted several columns to Mrs. Lathrop's husband, who was born in Honolulu while his father was a practicing physician and United States consul, August 25th, 1851. He died in New York, April 19th, 1898. He received his education in New York and Dresden, Germany, returned to New York, studied law, and finally decided on a literary career. In a visit to England, in 1871, he met Rose Hawthorne, youngest child of the great American novelist. They were married in September of that year. His wife was as much of a poet as he was; as The Counselor says, "They were like the Brownings in that respect. It would be hard to tell which was the better poet. But Rose Hawthorne has since become more famous as a religious than as a poet." In 1895, Lathrop became associate editor of The Atlantic Monthly. Lathrop was also a novelist. The Transcript quotes his "Keeman's Charge," among his best poems, "The Song Sparrow" and others. He died at the age of 46. Those who knew the Lathrops during their term of residence in New London recall them in their devotion, full sympathy, and brilliant intellects—an unusual and exceptional pair. The widow who entered the Sisterhood after her talented husband's death is engaged in such work as will have an influence for mercy which never can be measured.

Mrs. Thomas Wheeler and infant daughter, patients at Home Memorial hospital, were able to return to their home, Poquonoc Bridge, today.

David Almy, employed at the Capitol theatre, complained to the police last night that a thief had stolen 42 tickets from the box office. Sergeant John Cavanaugh was assigned to the case and his investigation revealed that a sailor had visited the box office while it was closed, but succeeded in thrusting his hand through the window opening where tickets are passed out and removing the stolen tickets from a roll. After securing the tickets the sailor distributed them among children, who were loitering about the playhouse lobby. The sailor could not be located.

Willard L. Haslup, a member of the crew of the United States Coast Guard destroyer Mojave, stationed at this port, and Miss Mildred M. Parrill, Wheeling, W. Va., were married Monday evening at the parsonage of the Methodist Episcopal church, the nuptial ceremony being performed by Rev. Charles R. Spaulding.

Mrs. David Uebelacher, New York, recently married has concluded a brief visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Cyrus W. Brown, Broad street.

Miss Mildred Burdick, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick E. Burdick, 4 Terrace avenue, is confined to her home by a severe attack of scarlet fever.

Three New London youths will be arraigned in the Waterford town court next Friday evening charged with breaking and entering the summer cottage on the Niantic river pond, Waterford, owned by Stavros F. Peterson, 60 Nathan Hale street, although it is possible that the charge will be amended when the young men are arraigned. The youths were taken into custody last night by Constable Frank Peabody. Henry C. Chappell, this city, qualified as surety on the bonds of the trio. The boys, it is alleged, entered the cottage during the absence of the owner in Europe, and besides upsetting the place, stole several articles of value.

Patrolman George Perkins, who has been absent from duty a week, having been confined to his home, 67 Norwood avenue, because of knee trouble, resumed his patrol tonight.

Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Robbins B. Stoeckel today caused the operator's license of Thomas Connors, 21 Berkley avenue, to be returned to the owner.

Clerks in a Bank street store appear to be over-anxious in the daily suspension of business, so much so that it is frequent that articles that are displayed on the sidewalk during the day are not placed in the store at closing time. Twice within four days patrolmen have found stock belonging to the store either on the sidewalk or in the store entrance some time after the store has been closed for the night. This evening Patrolman Frank Philopena in making his initial rounds discovered a hatchet and a four prong iceman's pick in front of the store. The goods were brought to the police station where they will be held until tomorrow when they will be turned over to an employe of the store.

The Waterford fire department last night received a check for $10 from Mrs. Hattie May Holt, Great Neck, the contribution being in the way of an act of appreciation of work by the department, when a fire threatened the destruction of her home three weeks ago. The reception of the money was announced at a regular meeting of the company last evening, at which time it was also announced that another $100 payment had been made on the town's pumper. The meeting also resulted in the following officers being seated: Chief, A. J. Perkins; foreman, Frederick N. Dimmock; first assistant foreman, Owen Perkins; second assistant foreman, Norman Carlson; secretary, F. C. Parker; treasurer, Frederick W. Jacques. Trustee for three years, Charles Beckwith; entertainment committee, William Burgess.

The fire department was called out at 9.15 o'clock this evening when a large quantity of smoke was discovered issuing from the three story brick structure, owned by Turello Brothers, 575-587 Bank street and occupied by business places and residences. With the smoke entering the street, a still alarm was sent to fire headquarters and Deputy Chief Thomas Shipman and the Niagara Hose company and Allen Hook and Ladder company responded. When entrance to the cellar of the building was obtained and where the supposed fire was located, it was revealed that some one had permitted the flue pipe to drop from the chimney and allow the smoke from the furnace to enter the building. No damage resulted.

The annual banquet and dance of Rev. George Deshon assembly, Fourth Degree, K. of C., will be held at the Mohican hotel on February 23.

The following committee has been appointed to arrange for the banquet and dance: Peter J. Moriarty, chairman; hotel committee, M. L. O'Connell, David Connors, T. J. Sullivan and P. J. Lynch; speakers' committee, Col. H. S. Dorsey, Mayor William C. Fox, C. C. Costello, J. A. St Germain, Francis LeBlanc, Harry J. Kennedy, John J. Daly; printing committee, John H. Macdonald, George F. King, Thomas Moran, Peter McInnis. The committee has secured an excellent speaker for the occasion.

P. Markham Kerridge, son of the Rev. and Mrs. Philip M. Kerridge, of Post Hill place, led the grand march with Mrs. John P. Thomas of New York at the opening dance last night of junior prom week given by the class of '27 of Trinity college, Hartford. Mr. Kerridge was also a member of the committee on arrangements. Miss Virginia Wemple of Broad street was among the dancers. The affair was in the form of an oriental bazaar and was carried out in artistic detail.

The cast of characters was as follows: Madge Allerton (a thoroughbred from New York), Miss Emilie Bugbie; Dora "Cupid" Hammond (who should have lived when knights were bold), Miss Edith Field; Mrs. Alpharetta Truesdale (proprietress of "Restmere"), Miss Gertrude Thayer; Arabella Brown (from down Maine way), Miss Maria Turrin; Beth Karson (from the west), Miss Helene Percival; Dulcie Leyland (from Virginia), Miss Rebecca Gager; Miss Omega Tooms (a little off on Abyssinia), Miss Jessie Foot; "Corney Farrall (a product of the newly rich), Miss Ruth Hurd; Hannah Marah (a puzzle), Miss Ruth Shaw; Andrew (Miss Toom's only confidant), Capt. Lord D'Marcy? The play was full of humor, and held the close attention of the audience until the various mysteries were solved.

Proceeds of the play are to be used toward the fund for purchasing a piano for the chapel.

Miss Elsie Thayer, teacher in the Hartford High school, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. R. Louis Thayer.

Dr. and Mrs. Ralph Thayer attended the funeral of Mrs. Thayer's father, Mr. Caldwell, in Hazardville last week.

ANNOUNCEMENTS.

Life of Martin Luther in Moving Pictures

On Sunday, Feb. 14, at 2 p. m., the life and time of Martin Luther will be shown at the Breed theatre under the auspices of the Luther league of the German Lutheran church.

This picture will be presented to acquaint the public with the history of the Protestant Reformation. It will be of interest and educational value not only to Lutherans but to members of all denominations.

Tickets may be obtained from members.

Coming to the Breed

The "Phantom of the Opera," the Universal super-thriller coming Sunday to the Breed Theatre, is said to be the biggest picture ever produced by Universal, surpassing even The Hunchback of Notre Dame in splendor and in magnitude, according to Carl Laemmle, the producer.

It is claimed that twenty acres were covered with seventy enormous sets for the super-film, including a correct replica of the great Paris Opera House, which was built over a steel skeleton like a modern skyscraper, the first time in the history of motion pictures that that steel construction has been used for a movie set.

The vast subterranean passages, five stories deep, with a lake at the bottom, were built in the base of a big hill known as Mount Laemmle at Universal City.

Chaney is supported by Mary Philbin, Norman Kerry, Snits Edwards, Gibson Gowland, John Sainpolis, Virginia Pearson, Arthur Edmund Carewe, Edith Yorke, Anton Vaverka, Bernard Siegel, Olive Ann Alcorn and a cast numbering thousands. Rupert Julian directed the picture. Edward Sedgwick was supervisor and supplementary director.

Demonstrating Brunswick Panatrope

The first public demonstration of the Brunswick Panatrope in Norwich will be conducted Friday evening at 8:30 at the Community house by the Hanover-Curland company, which extends a general invitation to the public to attend the demonstration without charge.

The Brunswick Panatrope reproduces music solely on the electric principle. It in no way resembles the phonograph except in the use of a needle. A magnetic pickup takes the vibrations off the record and generates a very weak electrical current. This current, in its weak state, is carried to a series of radio tubes and is greatly amplified. The powerful amplified current is then carried to the Panatrope cone where for the first time the electrical vibrations are converted into musical sounds.

Only with electricity, because of its ultra-sensitiveness, has it been possible to detect the lower and higher band of notes, all the fine overtones and harmonics essential to real, satisfying musical tone. The "lost chords" have been restored. Every note from the low bass of the organ to the shrill pipe of the piccolo is now plainly audible. The musical picture is rich and complete.

A wealth of beautiful tones, buried in thousands of phonograph records but never heard because the phonographic diaphragm is not sensitive enough to bring them out, can now be brought to life by this new instrument.

Operating on electrical principles, the Panatrope has abolished the hampering limitations of mechanical diaphragms, horns and other impeding mechanisms. But this is only a beginning, for Brunswick is now bringing out electrically engraved records far superior to the mechanical form of record.

It is interesting to note that the name "Panatrope" is evolved from the ancient Greek "pan" meaning all and "trope" meaning musical scale. So "Panatrope" signifies "all the musical scale" from lowest bass to highest treble.

The Panatrope is also combined in one cabinet with the Super-Heterodyne Radiola which now employs the same super-sensitive electrical principle of tone reproduction discovered for the Panatrope. Such a combination offers, through the Radiola, the current programs on the air, and through the Panatrope, cherished treasures of fine music whenever desired.

The Panatrope is operated from the house electric circuit. Any radio set can be plugged in the Panatrope and through the Panatrope cone obtain all its fine qualities of tonal reproduction.

Founders and Patriots to Meet

The annual meeting of the Connecticut Chapter, Daughters of Founders and Patriots of America, will take place on Friday, Feb. 19, at New Haven Lawn club on Whitney Ave., the president, Miss Mary Whittlesey, of New Britain, presiding. After the usual reports and election of officers, luncheon will be served to which members may invite guests. Later there will be an informal talk by Prof. Richard Swan Bull, director of Peabody Museum. After adjournment, those present will have an opportunity to view the valuable collections in the new museum which is directly across from the Lawn Club.

TOO MANY KNEW THE SAME TRICK

Sir Thomas Lipton tells a good story about people saving pennies at the expense of their fellows.

A popular village priest in France was to receive a barrel of wine for his personal use on his birthday. Each of the wine growers was to bring a bottle and empty it into the barrel.

On the appointed day peasant after peasant marched up, and plunging the nozzle through the bunghole poured in its gurgling contents. When the last contribution had been made, the priest drew from the barrel to drink the health of the donors. To his amazement, and the chagrin of the peasants, the glass contained but clear water. Each wine grower had assumed that all the others would bring wine.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre

The opening qualifying contest of the Charleston contest was the most successful affair of its kind that has ever been put over in Norwich. The only difficulty the management had was in trying to give all the contestants a chance, and this naturally cut down the time on a number of local boys and girls who were unable to get in all their steps. Next Monday night the number will be limited to twelve and three winners will be picked by the audience to compete in the finals. All who competed last Monday except the winners can try again next Monday night.

The children's contest will be moved to Saturday afternoon. The town of Norwich probably has as many young Charleston dancers as any other town in the state, judging by the number of applicants. All children under 16 who intend to enter Saturday afternoon should leave their name at once at the box office. The same cash prizes will be given on Saturday afternoon.

The Old Fiddlers' contest for the championship of eastern Connecticut starts this Thursday night. A number of applications have been received and the management advises that the total number will be divided into three weeks. Two winners will be picked every Thursday night who will appear in the finals; $200 in cash prizes will be given in the contest also.

Fannie Hurst's $50,000 prize winning story Mannequin is the current picture attraction, and four exceptionally fine Paramount vaudeville acts. A comedy and Aesop's Fables are also included in the program.

Coming to the Palace

Possibly the biggest announcement ever made by a local theatre is the coming Sunday of John Barrymore in The Sea Beast, which is now playing in Warner's theatre in New York at prices up to $2. This theatre, which ordinarily runs pictures for only a week, has installed this production for an indefinite run, and it seems to be the opinion of the management that this picture will be able to stay at this theatre until next September. The critics in all the New York papers all agree that it ranks with two other big productions that are making history on Broadway, and is certainly the best thing Barrymore and Warner Bros. Film Co. have ever done. The story is from Moby Dick and goes back to the old whaling days in New Bedford. The Palace will have the premier showing in Connecticut. The management is to be congratulated for its courage in bringing to Norwich a picture that must have cost them a pretty penny and for establishing the precedent of showing a big production day and date with New York city.

PAN-A-CE-A
Puts hens in laying trim

You can feed as you will, care for as you may, but until your flock is in trim to lay, eggs will be scarce.
Just add Poultry Pan-a-ce-a with every 50 pounds of mash or one tablespoonful to every 20 hens once a day.
Then watch the change come over your flock, see the combs and wattles begin to turn red. Listen to the song, scratch and cackle.
That's a sign of getting ready for business.
Remember, you buy Pan-a-ce-a like this: for 100 hens, the 12-pound package; 60 hens, the 5-pound package; 200 hens, the 25-pound pail; 500 hens, the 100-pound drum.
You feed that package, all of it, on the more-eggs-or-no-pay way.

POETRY

There's Music on the Hillside

There's music on the hillside
White Winter's choral throng
Has earth and air a-tingle
With wild and vibrant song!

Shrieks, yells, excited laughter
Go ringing down the glen,
Proof perfect Winter's children
Are on his hills again.

Toboggans, sleds, devices
Of quaint design appear;
Each partner in the revel
Youth holds forever dear.

Age, trotting at the fireside,
Stands ready to agree
No epigram could equal:
"What fools these mortals be."

Age seems, somehow, forgetful
Of winters long ago
When love was born on hillsides
Thus carpeted with snow.

Dear days and nights of boyhood
Ere we were bloodless men;
Their girl-sleds at the bottom
We pulled them up again!

She trudged along beside you,
Mine climbed with me, I know;
Life must be dull in countries
Devoid of girls and snow!
—William Herschell in Indianapolis News

The Winter Bread Line

When zero weather comes around
And sharp blasts sting like poison arrows,
I sweep the snow from off the ground
And scatter bits of food for sparrows.

I do not hold in high regard
These saucy feathered importations,
Yet, when they call at my back yard,
I can't resist their supplications.

All other birds, as autumn comes,
Sing "Au Revoir, the Cold Might Hurt Us,"
And pack their pipes and reeds and drums,
Ascend in flight, and thus desert us.

Not so the city sparrows; they Remain right here for friendly visits;
When I exclaim, "It's cold today,
They chirp in cheery answer, "Is it?"

At least it sounds like that to me;
And, once their luncheon they're forsaken,
They thank me from our backyard tree—
Or else I'm very much mistaken.
—Detroit Free Press.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Sheem—What are your habits at night?
Heem—Pajamas!—Yale Record.

He—How do you keep your youth?
She—I don't let him near the freshman women.—Stanford Chapparral.

Spouse—John, what time is it?
Slightly Inebriate—I can't tell. There's two hands on this darn watch and I don't know which to believe.—Brown Jug.

I was arrested for driving a car too slowly.
You mean too fast, don't you?
No, I was in an auto I was stealing.—Le Journal Amusant.

Minister: So you saw boys fishing on the Sabbath? Did you try to discourage them?
Small Boy: Yes, sir; I stole their bait.—Good Hardware.

"Well, old man, what are you doing these days?"
"Oh, I'm selling furniture."
"And what furniture have you sold?"

MARKET WAS FIRM

NEW YORK, Feb. 2—(AP)—Relaxa-tion of call money rates, testifying to the passing of the strain incidental to month-end settlements, was followed by a slightly firmer price tendency in today's stock market. Both the rail and industrial averages showed mod-erate gains on the day, but a number of specialties were marked up 3 to 7 points on buying influenced by special developments.

Trading showed a marked contrac-tion in volume. This was attributed to the waiting attitude adopted by sever-al large traders, pending further light on the trend of spring business and the publication of the figures on brok-ers' loans, which is expected this week. The unusually heavy volume of new offerings during the last month also is believed to have diverted funds which ordinarily would be invested in listed securities.

Rails, which turned sluggish in re-sponse to the recent increased wage demands of employes, started to pick up when a heavy foreign demand for Canadian Pacific sent that stock up over seven points to 159 3-4, the high-est price since 1923. Union Pacific mov-ed up nearly 3 points to 149 3-4 and then eased slightly, and Southern Pacific showed a net gain of 1 1-4 at 103 3-4. Atlantic Coast Line closed 3 points higher at 242, but most of the other changes in that group were frac-tional.

Standard industrial improved slightly. United States Steel common and Baldwin closing fractionally higher at 132 3-4 and 126 1-2. Oils failed to make much response to reports of further advances in crude oil and gasoline prices.

Bullish demonstrations were again staged in the motors but the higher prices invited large offerings of stock, and, in most cases, the earlier gains were materially reduced. Mack Trucks held up surprisingly well, closing four points higher at 143 3-4, or only 1-4 below the top. General Motors showed a slight fractional loss at 127 3-4 after having crossed 129 and Hudson recovered a net gain of 1-2 at 111 1-2 after having sold at 113 7-8.

Talk of an extra dividend sent Tex-as Gulf Sulphur up over four points to 131 1-2, the highest price since the stock was listed five years ago, and Freeport Texas, another popular sur-plus stock, crossed 57 for a gain of 1 1-8 points. Other outstanding strong spots among the specialties were American Brake Shoe, American Ex-press, American Ice, American Tobac-co issues, American Zinc preferred, Cerro De Pasco, Cuba Company, Great Western Sugar, National Biscuit, Peo-ples' Gas, Remington Typewriter, Unit-ed Drug, United Fruit, United States Hoffman Machinery, Westinghouse Airbrake, and Woolworth, all up 2 to nearly 7 points.

Commodity markets were generally dull with price changes unimportant. Wheat futures pointed upward on re-ports of unfavorable weather in the Argentine, and higher Liverpool quo-tations. Cotton fluctuated within ex-tremely narrow limits, closing un-changed to four points lower. Raw su-gar and coffee futures showed nomi-nal advances.

Call money renewed at 5 per cent., dropped to 4 1-2 before noon, and thence to four, closing at the bottom figure. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Sterling exchange hovered close to gold parity in the early trading, but eased slightly later in the day, de-mand bills ruling around 4.86 and cables around $4.86 1-2. French francs pulled just under 3.75 cents. Dutch gro-sen were firmer around 40.11 cents, but Polish zloty broke another 16 points to 13.75 cents.

TAFTVILLE

Rev. John Malley, junior assistant pastor at Sacred Heart church, has been assisting Rev. Frederick M. Cohalan, of St. Mary's Memorial church in Greeneville, this week, in the absence of Rev. William A. Keefe, pastor of that church.

The general committee in charge of the activities of the Men's club of the Taftville Congregational church, met Monday evening at the home of the secretary-treasurer, E. Tracy Clark, of North Third avenue.

The regular monthly meeting of the Taftville Social and Football club, was held Monday evening in the clubrooms at the Ponemah house. There was a large attendance and President Allan Bogle presided. The clubrooms are undergoing repairs, because of the damage caused by the recent fire in the building.

Following close upon the Feast of the Purification of the Blessed Virgin Mary, comes the Feast of St. Blain, which is to be observed today (Wednesday) at Sacred Heart church. The throats of the parishioners are to be blessed directly following the masses in the morning and at 7 in the evening, as is the custom on this day each year.

The Artisans met Monday evening in their rooms in the St. Louis hall building, on Dion street.

After being confined to his home for several weeks because of an injury, Thomas Watts, of North Third avenue has returned to his work.

The monthly meeting of Ladies' auxiliary A. O. H., was held Tuesday evening at their rooms in Parish hall.

Miss Mary Tecza, of Norwich avenue, is enjoying a vacation of several weeks.

An attractive pre-lenten wedding took place Monday morning at Sacred Heart church, when the pastor, Rev. U. O. Bellerose, united in marriage James Joseph Fitzgerald, of 262 Franklin street, Norwich, and Miss Beatrice Dupont, daughter of Mr and Mrs. Arthur Dupont, of North B street, at a nuptial high mass. The church was filled with relatives and friends of the young couple. Following the ceremony at the church, a dinner for sixty guests was served at the home of the bride's parents. There was a large display of wedding gifts, testifying to the high esteem of the numerous friends of the ridal couple who wish they much prosperity in their married life.

FOR ITCHING TORTURE

Use Antiseptic Liquid Zemo

There is one remedy that seldom fails to stop itching torture and relieve skin irritation, and that makes the skin soft, clear and healthy.

Any druggist can supply you with Zemo, which generally overcomes skin diseases. Eczema, Itch, Pimples, Rashes, Blackheads, in most cases quickly give way to Zemo. Frequently, minor troubles disappear overnight. Itching usually stops instantly. Zemo is a safe, antiseptic liquid that may be applied at any time, for it does not show.

Ask your druggist for a small size one or large bottle $1.00.

LOCAL POLICE MAKE CLEANUP IN LIQUOR HAUL ON YANTIC STREET

A squad of local police headed by Sergeant Matthew Delaney made a cleanup in a liquor raid early Tuesday evening at the house, No. 246 Yantic street, occupied by Stanley Kuscak and family. The police suddenly swooped down on the house and seized a quantity of moonshine, beer and a still. It was about 7 o'clock Tuesday evening that the police paid an unexpected visit to the Yantic street house where they found evidence in plenty that the occupants were making moonshine. They seized a five gallon wooden keg with faucet attached, half filled with liquor strongly resembling moonshine and of more than ordinary alcohol content.

The raiding squad also found and seized two cases of bottled beer, 48 bottles in all, a two gallon glass jug half full of alcohol and a two gallon earthenware jug containing a quantity of "shine." Found in the house were a makeshift still, made out of a copper wash boiler with a still attachment on the cover, a large wash tub, which had evidently been used in the manufacture of liquor, and two large barrels of mash.

The still, moonshine and beer were taken to police headquarters where they will be used as evidence against Kuscak who was arrested and held under $1,000 bonds on a charge of violation of the liquor law. Kuscak is husband of Victoria Kuscak, the woman who was arrested January 22nd on a charge of violation of the liquor law. In court the Kuscak woman was fined $200 and costs and given a jail sentence of 90 days.

After the sentence had been pronounced counsel for the woman raised the question as to whether she should be committed as she was nursing a two months' old child. It was pointed out that the child needed the mother and that if the woman had to go to jail the child would have to be taken to jail along with her. After taking the matter under consideration Judge Arthur F. Libby, later in the court session, suspended the jail sentence for a year.

The police squad which so successfully conducted the raid on the Kuscak home Tuesday evening comprised Sergeant Matthew Delaney, and Officers William Sharvan, Patrick Shahan, Charles Perry and Patrick Murphy.

REV. ARTHUR CARY ADAMS IN HIS MISSION FIELD

Rev. Arthur Cary Adams, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Adams of East Great Plain, who is the latest of a long list of Norwich people to enter the foreign mission field reached his station at Johannesburg, Natal, South Africa, on Dec. 20, according to a letter from him which reached his parents about four weeks later. He was sent out under the American Board and is secretary at the Bantu men's social center.

On the way to the mission field, Rev. Mr. Adams left New York Nov. 4 on the Steamer Mauretania and arrived in England, Nov. 10. A few days later he continued his journey on the steamer Kenilworth Castle stopping at Madeira, Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, and East London. This voyage took about three weeks and was very rough. At Cape Town, Mr. Adams was very delightfully entertained by Consul and Mrs. Crofts, who have a beautiful home at Clairemont. Mrs. Crofts was Miss Ruth Henderson of Greeneville before her marriage. Mr. Adams arrived at Durban, Dec. 6. Here he was met by Dr. and Mrs. McCord and Dr. Taylor, who held an American flag in their hands to attract his attention. Mr. Adams was entertained by Dr. Taylor, who is a medical missionary, and has charge of a native hospital with Dr. McCord. Mr. Adams spent two weeks in Durban attending a conference and visiting mission stations in the open country around Naples. The mission has a hospital and nurses training school as well as out-stations, where he gave talks by the use of an interpreter.

From Durban he went on by train to Johannesburg, where he has taken up his work. Part of this is to leave motion films each week at the different gold mines, to entertain the natives. The natives are not allowed on the streets in Johannesburg after dark without a pass. Mr. Adams will study the Zulu language, and says in one of his letters that he can make himself understood, but it is impossible to cover up the fact that he is an American. There is something about Americans that cannot be concealed. The prices for food, clothing, etc., are very high. One should be pleased that he is living in America when he observes the low state of education and the backwardness of the people in the district in Africa where he now is, he writes. He visited a Mohammedan mosque and was very much interested in watching the Mohammedans at prayer. They bend and bow while praying and he wrote it would take one to be an athlete to go through the ceremony.

ASK LAND OWNERS' AID FOR ROAD BEAUTIFICATION

Co-operation of property owners whose land adjoins trunk line highways will be sought by the state highway department in its survey of the possibilities of road beautification. It is planned to suggest to land owners where trees or shrubbery would improve the appearance of this highway that they plant such growth on the edge of their property lines, and to take up with the owners of woodland property abutting some of the roadways the matter of permitting a row of trees to remain standing on the edge of the property, when the owner decides to cut down the woodland.

The road survey will also include a study of the type of beautification best suited to areas where tobacco plantations reach to the highway lines.

It is not the intention at present to establish nurseries to provide for tree growth, it was said Monday at the highway department. The state plans to specify what type of growth is best suited for particular roads and to have the work done on contract by competent foresters and landscape workers.

Care must be taken, the department points out, not to interfere with existing sight lines at curves and intersections, and this will require special types of improvement in each situation.

Commissioner John A. Macdonald expressed the opinion that there are many volunteer plantations along the highways which are quite attractive, and that the first activity of the state in any road beautification program should not be the actual attempt to plant along the highways, but principally an attempt to conserve that which the roads already possess, but in the absence of authority for pruning, spraying, etc., the activities must be along the lines of planting.

PRIZE ESSAY CUP GOING TO THE PORTER SCHOOL

Because a former Norwich resident, Robert Porter Keep is head of the famous school, there is local interest in the fact that the Brooks-Bryce foundation is to present a prize essay cup to the Porter school in Farmington on Thursday night. Among the speakers will be Miss Mary E. Woolley, president of Mount Holyoke college; D. A. Casey of the Australian commissioner's office in this country, and Mrs. Brooks Aten, founder of the Brooks-Bryce foundation.

The cup has been awarded the school and is not to become the possession of any particular student there. But the winner of an essay contest which is to be held annually, will have the honor of having her name engraved on the cup. The first contest is to be held next year.

The Brooks-Bryce foundation is to dictate the title and general subject matter for the essays each year.

It takes us a lifetime to learn that we are our own best friend and worst enemy.

PRESIDENT OF MACY'S PRAISES L. J. CHAMANSKY

In the January issue of "Sparks," a monthly periodical published by the co-workers of the R. H. Macy Co., is a signed editorial by Jesse Strauss, president of the R. H. Macy Co., which will be of local interest inasmuch as it concerns Louis J. Chamansky, a former resident of Norwich and one who has a great many friends here. This is what Mr. Strauss has to say:

As the members of the organization have doubtless heard, Louis J. Chamansky will, on January 31st, retire from active business. He will not, however, entirely sever his connection with us, for he has accepted election to the board of directors of the corporation which will keep him in close touch with its affairs. Mr. Chamansky has been an important factor in the business for over thirty years as buyer, department manager, member of the council, president of the twenty-five year club—to mention but a few of his activities.

When I came to Macy's in 1896, Mr. Louis J. Chamansky was buyer and manager of the woman's outer garment departments. He had come to Macy's about a year previously from Porteous & Mitchell of Norwich, Conn. with a training and experience in a smaller field which well prepared him for the larger opportunity offered by our organization. At that time the Macy business in his lines was comparatively small and unimportant, and had been done largely on a succession of job lot purchases which produced spasmodic sales, but which could not conceivably lead to a soundly foundationed regular and permanent business. Mr. Chamansky appreciated the weakness of the policy of his predecessor, and counseled and directed a change from which has developed the present most satisfactory group over which he has presided.

In the development of the larger volume, Mr. Chamansky, who had himself been a keen and wise buyer, was compelled to assign to others the details of the purchase of merchandise, but he always found time to keep in touch with vendors and markets.

In 1905 the direction of the under garment departments, through the retirement of William M. Chase, was also undertaken by Mr. Chamansky. Since that time he has supervised all of the women's garment departments and has made of them all outstanding successes.

When, in 1914, after the death of our father and the retirement of our uncle, my brothers and I deemed it necessary to have assistance in the general direction of the organization, the council was formed. Mr. Chamansky became a member. He has contributed in ample measure to the growth of Greater Macy's, for as readers of "Sparks" doubtless know, to the council falls the task of solving many of the problems of the store.

Some three or four years ago Mr. Chamansky was not in very good health. He wanted to retire, but we prevailed upon him then to postpone leaving us until he could turn over his responsibilities to a successor who would carry on and build on the solid foundations that he had laid.

I am sure that all of the members of the organization will join me in wishing Mr. Chamansky the greatest measure of happiness and health in the leisure that he will have, and which he so fully deserves.

REPORT LUNG SURGERY GROWING IN FAVOR

It was brought out at the meeting of the medical officers of the state tuberculosis sanatoria on Monday at Uncas-on-Thames in this city, that the great surgeons of the country, whom the tuberculosis experts in recent years have been depriving of the care of cases of bone and glandular and peritonial tuberculosis, as not requiring surgical, but rather the open-air treatment, are beginning to have their revenge.

After years of study and many failures not only in this country, but everywhere in civilization, the more eminent surgeons are becoming, through repeated successes, confident of their ability to cut into tuberculous lungs and to evacuate tuberculous pus; in other words, to treat all abscesses of lung tissues as they would treat abscesses in any other part of the body. This necessitates, however, the removal of large sections of the bony structure of the chest and the manipulation of the most vital organs of the body.

Attempts to perform this operation have in the past cost many lives, but lately the technique has been so perfected that the great surgeons are getting in touch with the medical staff of sanatoria in the hope of finding cases which are suitable for thoracoplasty, as the operation is called.

The chief paper at today's meeting was read by Dr. Hugh B. Campbell, Superintendent, of Uncas-on-Thames, the local sanatorium reviewing recent changes in the higher appreciation and regard into which lung surgery has come.

Dr. Campbell and his assistants, Drs. Urquehart and Berenger, also presented a paper on the relation of diabetes and tuberculosis. The claim has been made that the results from administering insulin to diabetics, who also have tuberculosis, have been very unsatisfactory. At the meeting today several patients who had received insulin were presented and their cases described and discussed. Two cured patients were shown who had only diabetes, but who had been sent to the sanatorium with a straight diagnosis of tuberculosis.

FORMING COUNCIL OF CHURCH GIRLS' WORKERS

At a meeting held Monday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Albert C. Freeman on Union street preliminary plans were laid for the formation of the council of girls' workers of the Protestant churches of the city. The object of the council will be to promote interest in work with girls of the 'teen age, and to develop better fellowship among them.

A second meeting will be held in about two weeks when the council will be definitely organized. Teachers of church school classes, leaders of girls' groups or anyone interested in girls will be eligible to membership. Representatives of six churches were present at this meeting and a larger representation is expected to attend the next one.

REQUIRE CONN. REGISTRY FOR NON-RESIDENT COMMERCIALS

In 1925 a statutory change in the definition of "non-resident" in the Massachusetts law resulted in the abandonment of a reciprocity arrangement between Connecticut and that state by which owners of commercial motor vehicles located within fifteen miles of the state boundary line in either state, by the payment of a $3 fee, had been allowed to operate them in the other state without regard to the time-limit fixed by each state for non-resident automobile owners.

Consequently, owners of all Massachusetts commercial motor vehicles operated in Connecticut more than fifteen days in the year, not necessarily consecutive, are being required this year to pay the full fee for a regular registration in Connecticut as well as in Massachusetts. This is due to the fact that Massachusetts now makes that requirement of owners of Connecticut commercial cars, and the Connecticut law is reciprocal with respect to so-called fifteen-mile limit registrations. The Connecticut motor vehicle department, under the circumstances, has no alternative but to follow the same policy as that of Massachusetts.

The fifteen-mile limit provision of both states remains in force so far as pleasure cars are concerned, however. The alteration of the arrangement with Massachusetts has resulted in the receipt by the Connecticut department of many inquiries as to why Connecticut is not issuing special fifteen-mile-limit registrations this year to Massachusetts commercial car owners.

TEN SUSPENDED FOR DRIVING UNDER INFLUENCE

The weekly list of operators whose licenses to drive automobiles in Connecticut have been suspended for one year for driving while under the influence of liquor was given out Tuesday at the state motor vehicle department as a part of the effort to reduce this highway menace. There are ten names on the list. The case of one was appealed. The department statement advised people to notify the department or the police in case they should see any of the suspended drivers operating motor vehicles. The list is as follows:

Lyman Clark, Agawam, Mass., Ernest Kerr, Forestville, Edward J. Lardner, Kensington, James F. Lillis, Waterbury, Peasley D. Mattison, Seymour, John H. Moore, Norfolk, Theodore E. Nichols, Milford, Mike Serbinovsky, Watesbury, Harrison A. Simms, Elmwood, Leo Torsay, New Britain.

SELECTMEN FILL VACANCY ON BOARD OF RELIEF

The board of relief has begun its session in the assessors' room at the court house to receive and act on complaints and protests over assessments laid by the board of assessors and will be in session daily, except Sunday, for three weeks.

Robert G. Swanton was on Tuesday appointed a member of the board by Conrad Pepin, one of the regularly elected members, failing to qualify. The other members of the board are James C. Fitzpatrick and Francis Belque.

A number of property owners have already appeared before the board with their protests over the figures put upon their property in the grand list by the assessors.

AMERICAN WOOLEN CO. FIRST TO OPEN NEW STOCKS

Showings of women's wear fabrics for fall are not likely to be held before the last week in this month or early in March, according to statements made by selling agents Tuesday. The American Woolen company which has Norwich branch mills, as heretofore, is expected to be one of the first concerns to open, but present indications are that its showing is at least three weeks or more away. There is no reason for an early opening of any of the fall lines it was pointed out, as there yet remains much spring business to be placed and the cutters-up have no desire to make early advance orders of any great size.

FINDS THE VOLSTEAD ACT HAS INCREASED DRINKING

Rev. Dr. James Empringham, National Secretary of the Church Temperance Society of the Episcopal Church Asserts the Society Will Work For Modification of the Volstead Act—Nation-Wide Survey Has Convinced Him That The Volstead Act Had Undone Fifty Years of Educational Work Against Alcoholism—Dr. Empringham Was at One Time Superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(AP)—A campaign for modification of the Volstead act to legalize the use of beer and light wines in order to save the young people of the nation, was announced today as the new policy of the Church Temperance society composed of the clergy and lay members of the Protestant Episcopal church, by the National Superintendent of the society, the Rev. Dr. James Empringham.

He declared a personal survey made throughout the United States for last 18 months had convinced him "it was impossible to legislate morals into the people," but that the campaign of education would eventually bring about that result.

Dr. Empringham said that a voting questionnaire sent last October to 30,000 members of the society had revealed an "overwhelming majority in favor of modification to legalize light wines and beers" and a return to the campaign of education along temperance lines conducted by the society prior to 1916.

Dr. Empringham, who was at one time superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League of New York, said a nation-wide survey of prohibition enforcement had convinced him that the Volstead Act "had undone the temperance societies' 50 years of educational work against the use of alcohol."

Speaking at a meeting of the Episcopal clergy of New York, he asserted that prohibition had: "Increased drinking among young people; discouraged the consumption of wine and beer and increased the demand for distilled liquors which today are made poisonous, had brought about disrespect for all laws and is class legislation, discriminating in favor of the rich."

The national secretary said he had made a report of his findings to the clergy of the Episcopal church of New York over the protest of Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon league who requested him by telephone, telegraph and mail to withhold it, saying that it would show that prohibition had failed.

"I started out a year ago Dr. Empringham said, 'to gather material for a pamphlet to show that prohibition was a success. I haven't finished that pamphlet. My survey behind the scenes of enforcement in Chicago, the south, Baltimore, Philadelphia and other cities showed me that I had been a darned fool to give up a good church and a big stipend to make the world better overnight.'

"We thought that a law would be better than education to stop drinking. I admit that we made a mistake.

"No law is of any value unless you can get public sentiment generally behind it. Unfortunately the states were asked to decide the matter during the excitement of the war when we were asking the people to conserve grain to win the war. Forty-six of the 48 states tumbled over each other in a rush to ratify the amendment. The question was never referred to the individual voters. Now that the war spirit is over I am satisfied that a referendum would show the majority of the people opposed to any such drastic prohibition."

The work of the temperance society on behalf of prohibition has been carried on since 1916, Dr. Empringham declared. In 1917 a referendum of its members showed a majority favored prohibition in some form or other. A recent canvass of the membership which resulted in the change of policy showed an "overwhelming preponderance" favored modification of the Volstead Act.

The society is nation-wide and is composed of Episcopal clergy and laymen, numbering 31 bishops among its patrons, vice presidents and national directors.

The Rev. G. A. Carstensen was elected president today to succeed the Rev. James W. Chalmers.

Dr. Empringham, who is a former national vice-president of the Anti-Saloon league, said that the Episcopal church had fought for prohibition believing that policy would decrease intemperance. One year ago he commenced the national-wide survey in the hope of being able to prove that prohibition was an improvement over the old licensing system.

Stating that he was a life-long abstainer and an ardent beliver in prohibition, Dr. Empringham said it humiliated him to confess that "prohibition has made the situation worse instead of better," adding that the law has resulted in the discontinuance of the teaching of scientific temperence by temperance societies.

He said the Volstead act should be modified "in the interests of temperance and morality," adding that the society was planning a campaign to that end.

"I am familiar with Europe," he continued. "I saw more drunken people in dry America in the last six months than I ever saw in wet France. If the money now spent in a futile attempt at enforcement were added to the revenue we might have from beer and wine and one tenth of this were spent to educate the people in scientific temperance it would be more effective."

The society's change of policy began to take definite form last month, according to Doctor Empringham, with the election to the presidency of the Rev. G. A. Carstensen of the Hoy Rood Episcopal church.

Dr. Carstensen tonight said he had withheld acceptance of the presidency until the directors of the society agreed to two propositions which he laid before them. First, that the prohibition attitude of the society must be in line with the general principles of the social service commission of the church. Second, that each member of the society should be free to hold whatever opinion regarding prohibition he chose.

Commenting upon the activities of the Anti-Saloon league, Dr. Carsensen said he had found "that their methods are not distinguished by meticulous regards to limits imposed by facts." He added that the effects of drinking had been more pronounced during the past five years, in his opinion, than any time during the preceding 45 years.

"It seems to me that this is an excellent time for those who believe in strict enforcement to obey the law, and for those who seek a modification to work and urge for the legalizing of light wines and beer," he said.

"I saw Bishop Manning last Friday. He congratulated me on my election and told me to 'hop to it.'"

Bishop Manning could not be reached tonight.

Commenting upon the way in which the society intends to go about its campaign for temperance education Dr. Empringham said:

"The 18th amendment itself sounded the death knell of prohibition, because we all quit. The W. C. T. U., ourselves and others stopped our educational work because we forgot that you cannot legislate morals. We hope that all other societies will look facts in the face, acknowledge the truth, and begin again, as we are going to do, the work of educationg the nation to scientific temperance."

DRY AGENTS DENIED AN OPPORTUNITY TO PROTEST

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—(AP)—Representatives of the Anti-Saloon league and other prohibition organizations were refused opportunity by the justice department to present protests against reappointment of federal judges, marshall and district attorneys in Alaska, a senate judiciary sub-committee was told today by Dr. Clarence True Wilson, secretary of the Methodist board of temperance, prihibition and public morals.

Assistant Attorney General John Marshall, who handled the appointments, refused an audience, Dr. Wilson said, and then denied the delegation access to the attorney general, saying that such an interview would "only mess the whole thing up."

"Not in China or even South Africa or anwhere else in the world," Dr. Wilson said, "will you find as wide open conditions as flourish unrebuked in Alaska at the present moment. A moral cleansing is necessary, but it cannot be had under the present judges, district attorneys and marshals."

VOLSTEAD LEGAL ADVISER OF "DRY" ADMINISTRATOR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—(AP)—Andrew J. Volstead, author of the prohibition law, conferred today with Assistant Secretary Andrews, the treasury's chief prohibition enforcement official, in connection with "certain discussions of laws and regulations present and future, and the preparation of arguments in certain alcohol permit cases."

The former Minnesota representative in congress, who is now legal advisor to the prohibition administrator in Minneapolis and is conducting a fight on body-rub alcohol, was asked to come here by Mr. Andrews, but the latter declined after the conference to make any statement on the matters discussed.

Relative to the product of certain companies manufacturing body-rub alcohol, Mr. Andrews explained that the formula to which Mr. Volstead previously had objected was discarded some time ago and that the new formula for that preparation was adequate in every way. It was unnecessary, Mr Andrews added, to discuss this phase of Mr. Volstead's visit because the matter had been straightened out.

QUALIFIED DENIAL MADE BY WAYNE B. WHEELER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3 (AP)—Wayne B. Wheeler, general counsel of the Anti-Saloon League, tonight denied statements made by the Rev. Dr. James Empringham, national secretary of the church temperance society of the Episcopal church, in announcing the decision of his organization to work for modification of the Volstead act.

"I did not telephone to Dr. Empringham," he said. "I did request him by written communication to withhold the report until we could be heard and give them reasons why the law should not be modified. I did not say that their report would show that prohibition had failed, because no truthful report can show this."

PROHIBITION ADMINISTRATOR TO COVER MORE TERRITORY

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(AP)—Announcement of a large addition of territory and an increase in the scope of his duties, to include the control of industrial alcohol, was made today at the offices of John A. Foster, prohibition administrator for southern and eastern New York.

Simultaneously, a part of the New York prohibition force was moved to Philadelphia, leaving only 90 men to cover this district, it was stated.

The additional area assigned to Mr. Foster's territory includes all of New Jersey, Connecticut and ten counties in Pennsylvania. In addition to his enforcement duties, the new order made Mr. Foster responsible for the control of the alcohol situation, including denaturing plants and industrial alcohol permits.

FOOTPRINTS WERE NOT ACCEPTABLE EVIDENCE

PORTLAND, Me., Feb. 3—(AP)—Footprints in dust failed to carry weight as evidence of unlawful possession of liquor in superior court today and Justice Chapman directed a verdict for James Walsh of this city at the conclusion of the state's case against him.

Deputy sheriffs testified that Walsh was the maker of a beaten path over a dust-covered hall way from his door to a cleverly constructed liquor cache in a stairway.

Approved Germany's Entry Into the L. of N.

Vote Taken by Foreign Relations Committee of the Reichstag.

BERLIN, Feb. 3—(AP)—The foreign relations committee of the reichstag today approved Germany's unconditional entry into the League of Nations, and thus cleared away the last internal political obstacles to Chancellor Luther and Foreign Minister Stresseman reaching the goal set in the Locarno deliberations.

Special dignity was lent to the reichstag's meeting by the presence of the entire cabinet, which had solicited the committee's vote as a matter of courtesy and loyalty, although already fully empowered by the reichstag to apply for league membership. All the parties, except the Fascisti, the German nationalists and the communists, joined in approving the cabinet's foreign political course and voted down the opposition's boistarous attempts to dela its application.

FINANCIAL MEASURE BY FRENCH DEPUTIES

PARIS, Feb. 3—(AP)—The first battle of the financial measures passed by the chamber of deputies today made it obligatory for every person in France having an income to declare the amount under oath. The number of such declarations, it is estimated, would be about 20,000,000, and strict application of this law would mean a complicated mass of documents.

The article had no sooner been voted, however, than afterost began to exempt a considerable number of workers and farmers from its provisions.

M. Doumer, the finance minister, declared it would be impossible to apply such a measure without mobilizing a small army of additional functionaries. The government rejected the proposition, but the chamber adopted it in principle after a debate, in which it was pointed out that there would be a great difference in the value of oaths thus taken "because a majority of the people having incomes are unbelievers."

The debate on the articles of the finance committee's measures began with article 58, a concession to the socialists, who are the authors of this part of the programme. This refuted to the state becoming co-heir with direct descendants in inheritances. The socialists demanded a vote on this measure as a guarantee before giving their support to features of the project which were less acceptable to them.

By a vote of 301 to 235 the chamber decided to continue the financial discussion tomorrow.

ATTACKS THE COURTS SUFFOLK COUNTY, MASS.

SPRINGFIELD, Mass., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Frank A. Goodwin, Massachusetts registrar of motor vehicles, speaking before the Woman's Republican club of this city, tonight, renewed his attacks on the courts, particularly those of Suffolk county where he said the disposition of cases was "a disgrace to any civilized community."

"And when I say this," he said, "I want to make it clear that the superior court is included."

Mr. Goodwin recommended that the power of the judges be increased to allow them to forestall technical delays, to admit any evidence that they thought material, and to comment to the jury about the evidence. He recommended that the power of the courts be limited, however, in the discretionary disposal of cases.

"Case after case now in the hands of Attorney General Benton for investigation show habitual thieves and bandits allowed to go free repeatedly after being convicted," he said, "only to be arrested again for similar offenses and again allowed to go free."

JUDGE IS ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF MANSLAUGHTER

LEBANON, N. H., Feb. 3.—(AP)—Under the care of two physicians at his home here, Judge Fred A. Jones of the Lebanon municipal court was placed under technical arrest today on a charge of manslaughter. The warrant was issued in connection with the death of Mrs. Mildred Presley of Lebanon, whose body was found on the icy surface of a stream after Judge Jones' automobile leaped a 25 foot embankment near Hanover last Friday.

Deputy Sheriff H. B. Rood, who served the warrant, said that Judge Jones was confined to his bed and was suffering from a wrenched back which he received in the accident. County Solicitor Clark Frost announced that a hearing on the manslaughter charge would be held next Friday.

An autopsy on the body of Mrs. Presley, conducted last Saturday by State Pathologist Charles H. Duncan of Concord, revealed only slight bruises. The stomach and other vital organs were sent to Concord for further examination.

CONFIDENT THEY HAVE FREDERICK G. BEALE

MIAMI, Fla., Feb. 3—(AP)—Confident that they have the real Frederick G. Beale, wanted in New York state for the substitution of a grave-looted corpse for his supposed body in an alleged insurance fraud, police here are holding him incommunicado in the county jail and awaiting New York state officers who are on the way here.

They have notified that a party is on the way to seek extradition of the prisoner.

Arrest of the prisoner on a charge of body stealing recalls an attempt to collect $100,000 insurance, which had been made in favor of Mrs. Beale, the insurance companies refused payment and succeeded in having the body under Beale's car identified as that of James H. Davis, who had been buried in a cemetery at Hancock, New York.

WILLIAM M. WOOD TO BE BURIED AT ANDOVER, MASS.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., Feb. 3—(AP)—The body of William Madison Wood, former president of the American Woolen company, who killed himself in a lonely stretch of woods near here, tonight awaited removal to Andover, Massachusetts, where burial will take place Sunday. Other funeral arrangements are contingent upon weather conditions.

Mrs. Wood, who had been at a hotel with her husband since January 2, will accompany the body. With the widow will be her secretary, Miss Ella Smith, of Clarksburg, West Virginia, and Dr. A. G. Griffin, of Andover, who had been Mr. Wood's personal physician for years.

Barges Broke Away In Northwest Gale

Eight Men Reported Drowned During Snow Storm Off Sandy Hook.

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Feb. 3—(AP)—Eight lives were reported lost and three barges were known to have foundered on the north Jersey coast tonight in a snow storm and 60 mile north east gale that overtook small shipping bound for New York.

Two barges broke away from the tug Thomas Howard off Scotland light ship at eight o'clock, according to a wireless message received by coast guardsmen. Each was manned by four men and one sank immediately, the other coming ashore later at Sandy Hook. No trace of the crew of this barge, the Phoenix, was found by Captain Elwood Butler who got to the scene with a boat crew.

The barges were loaded with coal and were bound to New York from Delaware breakwater.

Superintendent Rasmussen of the fifth coast guard district said that a number of other tugs and barges were unaccounted for in the storm.

SESSION OF GRAND LODGE OF CONNECTICUT, F. AND A. M.

HARTFORD, Feb. 3—(AP)—The grand lodge of Connecticut, Free and Accepted Masons, in annual session today voted to increase the revenue for the support of the Masonic home in Wallingford by increasing the tax on initiates, and affiliates from other states to $20. While the per capita tax of which $2.15 goes to the Masonic home, remains the same, a special assessment of $1 a member for five years was voted that will go to the Masonic charity foundation.

The erection of a new hospital; the continuing increase of residents in the home, which now number 270 and the consequent increase in expenses are causes for the need of increasing the revenue.

The sum of $500 was appropriated for the work of the National Masonic Tuberculosis Sanatoria association in New Mexico.

Advocacy of a laundry at the Masonic home at Wallingford was contained in the report of Fred A. Verplanck of Manchester, president of the board of managers at the annual meeting of the Masonic charity foundation tonight at the Masonic temple.

TO RAISE $2,5000,000 FOR PEACE CARILLON TOWER

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—(AP)—A drive will be started soon to raise $2,500,000 for a 350 foot national peace carillon tower with 54 bells, to be erected on a site in Washington yet to be chosen.

A local committee has been organized and the Nation Carillon association, incorporated here, already has under consideration a design for "a magnificent tower" by Paul P. Cret, architect of the Pan-American building here and the Memorial Arch at Valley Forge, Pa.

The tower would stand as a "great national memorial in commemoration of the sacrifices and ideals of America in the World war," and the bells would be played at weekly concerts and on all great state occasions.

The project has been endorsed by the General Federation of Women's clubs, which will help set up state organizations to handle contributions.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—(AP)—Sharp reductions in the income surtax rates, including a slash in the maximum rate from 400 to 20 per cent., were voted today by the senate in accepting the schedule written into the tax reduction bill by its finance committee.

The total tax reduction thus voted was estimated at $122,000,000 for this year, the committee having increased the total over that approved by the house to the extent of $23,000,000 by providing for greater reductions in incomes between $26,000 and $100,000, where the maximum would take effect.

HOPELESSNESS, GLOOM AND DISTRESS IN COAL REGIONS

With the Principals at Conferences Determined to Have Their Will, 158,000 Miners Remain Idle—Bankruptsies Have Been Frequent and More Are Feared—In Territory Where Nature Has Given an Abundance, Thousands of Homes Are Without Coal—Women and Girls Are Among the Pickers Over Old Piles of Culm.

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 3—(AP)—Miners and operators today buckled on their armor for a fight to the finish in the strike in the Pennsylvania coal fields, now in its sixth month.

The disruption of the latest peace negotiations left the two sides as far apart as the poles. Statements breathing determination not to recede from the positions taken, especially on arbitration, were issued during the day by President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers of America, and Major W. W. Inglis, chairman of the operators' negotiating committee. Major Inglis and his associates departed for their homes today, but the principal miners' officials remained here.

Tonight there was not a ray of hope in the gloom enshrouding the hard coal regions, where 158,00 miners have been idle since September 1, many of them suffering hardships. Many towns in the 500 square miles affected have felt the blight of industrial paralysis. Bankruptcies have been frequent of late and more are feared. Hard coal is practically unavailable in many thousands of homes in the region and the old piles of culm are being searched over and over again for the precious "black diamonds" among the slate and rock. Women and girls are prominent among the pickers.

William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, a former secretary-treasurer of the United Mine Workers was in Philadelphia for a few hours today in relation to the affairs of the defunct Producers and Consumers bank, a labor institution, but he did not confer with former colleagues. He declined to discuss the strike situation, saying it was "too serious and critical," and left for Washington tonigh.

Mr. Lewis in his statement, blamed the break-up of negotiations on Samuel D. Warriner, president of the Lehigh Coal and Navigation company, and head of the anthracite operators conference. He said that Mr. Warriner dominated the situation and "demanded his pound of flesh from the other operators." He characterized the operators' negotiating committee as "Punch and Judy members."

Mr. Lewis has repeatedly urged the participation of Mr. Warriner in the strike negotiations, asserting that the sub-committee headed by Major Inglis was not clothed with full authority. This statement has been flatly denied by the operators.

The miners, Mr. Lewis said, have gone to the extreme limit in their proposal for a settlement without accepting arbitration offered by the operators and were prepared to "protect their rights to a decent living, whether it takes another month or another year."

Major Inglis' statement ridiculed the assertion of Mr. Lewis, made after the break-up, that the situation was no longer a strike, but a lock-out. "I am not apprehensive that any one will take this statement seriously," he said. Mr. Inglis also challenged Mr. Lewis' statement that the miners would never accept compulsory arbitration by saying that "we never even suggested he should."

MOVE FOR GOVERNMENT INTERVENTION IN COAL STRIKE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 3—(AP)—New moves for government intervention in the anthracite suspension were launched today in both the senate and house, but neither got anywhere.

Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, offered a resolution requesting President Coolidge to invite the committee of anthracite miners and operators which broke off their conference yesterday to meet at the white house.

Immediate consideration of this resolution was blocked by Senator Jones, republican, Washington, who said if there was a remedy for the coal strike situation, congress should supply it and not pass the buck to the president."

In the house, Representative Boylan, New York, democrat, circulated a petition under which the interstate commerce committee would be discharged from consideration of his bill to authorize the government to seize anthracite mines during an emergency.

A majority would be required to bring the Boylan bill out of the committee and before the house for action.

In pressing his resolution, Senator Copeland asserted it was zero weather in New England but there is plenty of coal in the white house.

CHILEAN STEAMSHIP HAD $10,000,000 CARGO OF GOLD BARS

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(AP)—The Chilean steamship Teno, a modern treasure ship, stalked by the shades of buccaneers and Spanish galleons, today completed a voyage across the Spanish Main and docked in Brooklyn. In her holds were $10,000,000 in gold bars, brought from the once pirate haunted shores of Chile.

The consignment, from the Banco Central de Chile, of Santiago, to the National Bank of Commerce, was said to be the largest gold shipment ever brought to this country from South America, and the largest private gold transaction on record.

Piracy still has to be considered along the coasts of South America, a representative of the shipping company said, and every precaution was taken to guard the treasure ship. The gold was stowed away in a concrete safe, built especially for the trip, and a strong guard was maintained on the ship when putting out from her home port.

The ship was greeted at the dock in Brooklyn by five armored cars, each manned by a driver and four armed guards. The treasure was transferred from the ship in 276 heavily-bound boxes, each containing about $35,000 in bullion. Each time the ship's crane swung a netful of these boxes over the side, there was approximately $700,000 in the load.

Each man who guarded or drove the armored cars was bonded for $5,000,000. In addition, a large force of plain clothes men and police helped to convey the shipment from the dock to the National Bank of Commerce.

The gold was shipped here in connection with the formation recently of a new central bank in Chile, it was stated.

FORMING COMBINATION OF TWO FOOD COMPANIES

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(AP)—Negotiations were approaching completion tonight for the acquisition of the California Packing Co., by the Postom fornia packing Co., by the Postum Cereal Co., which will result in a combination of food companies with total assets of more than $250,000,000.

Banking interests identified with both properties spent the day in conferences in an attempt to agree upon terms of the merger. Reports were current that California Packing shares would be taken over by the Postum Co., on a basis equivalent to $175 a share, the price touched by the stock today on a rise of more than 8 points. The deal may involve an exchange of 1 1-2 shares of Postum for each share of California Packing.

Completion of the merger will make the Postum Cereal one of the largest distributors of food products in the country. The company recently has pursued a policy of expansion through its acquisition of the Jello business and that of the Iglehart Flour Co.

GOVERNMENT DEFEATED IN BRITISH HOUSE OF LORDS

LONDON, Feb. 3.—(AP)—The government was defeated in the house of lords today when a vote of 85 to 33 was recorded in favor of a motion by Lord Cranmore and Browne to appoint a committee to examine the pledges given by the ministers between 1920 and 1923 regarding the completion of the Irish land purchase and report whether these pledges had been fulfilled.

The government opposed the motion, but the nominal defeat has no political significance; some of the members criked jokingly "resign!"

NO FUNERAL SERVICE FOR ARCHIBALD McNEIL, SR.

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 3—(AP)—Following strictly the plans outlined before his death, Archibald McNeil, Sr., prominent in civil affairs for over fifty years and a politician of national prominence, who died at his home early Wednesday morning, was looked upon for the last time at his home, 1000 Fairfield avenue, this afternoon.

From 2 o'clock to 4 o'clock, hundreds of friends and business acquaintances visited the home today to pay their last respects to Mr. Neil, whose body lay in state in the music room. But in accordance with Mr. McNeil's own plans, made to the last detail before his death, there was no funeral service and no outward signs of mourning or sorrow. There was no music, no clergyman, and no eulogies were spoken.

The family, consisting of his widow and three sons, Archibald, Jr., Kenneth and Roderick, were forbidden to dress in black clothes and bore their loss with no apparent grief all according to their husband's and father's wishes.

Shortly after 4 o'clock the body was taken to the rooms of Funeral Director J. T. Banks, where it will be kept until tomorrow morning. At 9 o'clock the body will be taken by automobile to Fresh Pond, Long Island, where it will be cremated. The ashes will be placed in an urn and will then be sheltered in a niche in the Fresh Pond crematory.

The body will be accompanied to Fresh Pond by two sons, Kenneth and Roderick, which was Mr. McNeil's wish. The top of the casket will also be left open until the crematory is reached, in accordance with the last requests.

More than 100 telegrams arrived this afternoon from all parts of the country expressing sympathy.

LECTURER CHARGED WITH SEDITIOUS UTTERANCES

BROCKTON, Mass., Feb. 3.—(AP)—For the first time in the memory of court officials in this city a defendant appeared in district court today to answer to a charge of blasphemy. The warrant was sworn out under one of the old "blue laws" of Puritan days which had not been invoked here in modern times.

Anthony Bimba of Brooklyn, N. Y. A Lithuanian lecturer, was the defendant. He was charged with seditious utterances. He pleaded not guilty and was held in $1,500 bail for a continued hearing February 10.

Members of the Lithuanian Citizens club of this city, the complainants, alleged that in a lecture delivered in the Lithuanian National hall, January 29, Bimba advoated the overthrow by force of the United States government and said the only flag he recognized was the "red flag." It was also that he denied the existence of the diety.

HALF INTEREST IN GEM THEATRE IS SOLD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 3—Israel J. and Bernard E. Hoffman of New Haven consummated the purchase of a half interest in the Gem theater, Wednesday, the transaction being considered one of the most important in some time. Plans for extensive remodelling and renovations were announced, included among the additions being a marquese to be installed at the entrance. The theater will close later this month while improvements are being made. The Hoffman brothers are the heads of the Hoffman Theatrical Enterprises and at present control twelve theatres in seven cities in Connecticut not including a new $500,000 theater now being constructed in New Britain. The Gem becomes the fourteenth playhouse on their circuit.

John R. Pickett, the pioneer motion picture manager of eastern Connecticut, and successful manager of the Gem since its opening in September, 1913, will be retained as manager. The Gem theater was built in 1913 by the late Arthur Dorman and at that time was one of the finest in the state. Mr. Dorman died in July 1918. The three heirs to his estate were, Mrs. Delima Caillouette, John R. Pickett and John T. Ashton. Until 1921 the playhouse was operated under the direction of Administrator T. J. Kelley. In that year Samuel Campner, of New Haven, purchased the title interest owned by Mrs. Caillouette.

In 1907 Mr. Pickett and John F. Hurley took over the old Spiritualist church on Bank street and remodelled it. It became the Scenic Temple motion picture house and in 1919 Mr. Dorman, then a resident of Woonsocket, R. I., purchased practically all of the Pickett and Hurley rights. Mr. Pickett continued as manager and it was through his advice and assistance that the Gem theater was built. The Scenic Temple is at present in a newly remodelled condition and is owned as a synagogue by the Congregation Sons of Israel.

BOUND OVER TO THE SUPERIOR COURT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 3—Mrs. Emma Welcome, 65, of Andover was taken into custody and brought before the Mansfield town court at noon Wednesday to answer to a charge of theft of chickens from Joseph Guryan, of Eagleville, sometime during the last Christmas holiday season. The woman pleaded not guilty to the charge but she admitted that she knew that her son by former marriage, Henry Kelleher, and Mrs. Lillian Ouelette, the twenty year old mother of his child, had committed the thefts at the time. On the strength of this evidence Mrs. Welcome was held as an accessory to the fact and bound over to the next term of the Tolland county superior court. Justice of the Peace George H. Andrews ordered the bond for $300 which the woman could not furnish and she was taken to the Tolland county jail by State Policeman Harrison Hulburt of the Stafford Springs barracks.

From the Welcome household, which is now vacant four children, three girls and one boy, were committed to places where their morals would have the proper incentives. Henry Keller is now confined in the Springfield, Mass., jail where he is awaiting trial for stealing a Ford sedan from that city on January 11. The machine was sold to a junk dealer in this city for about $25. Mrs. Ouelette, who formerly resided in Willimantic, is at the Tolland county jail to be brought up for trial on a charge of the theft of chickens. The young mother has two children. A girl, Ora, 4 years of age is the daughter of the woman's husband, Wilfred Ouelette, who has been in the U. S. Army for some two years. The boy, Victor Louis Ouelette, is the son of Henry Kelleher, according to Mrs. Ouelette. According to evidence which has been brought out since the arrest of Kelleher for the theft of the automobile, the conduct of the Welcome household has been anything but complimentary to the members and especially to Mrs. Welcome, who was regarded as the head of the family. When the elderly woman took her son and his common law wife into her care she apparently did so with a view of gaining an easy-living. According to the young Ouelette woman, when she was arrested some time ago, Mrs. Welcome acted as her coach in the art of thievery. When Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink and other officers were investigating the theft of household goods to which Mrs. Ouelette admitted her guilt, it was said that Mrs. Welcome attempted to hide some of the stolen property from the officers.

The board of selectmen of the town of Andover met and after an investigation of affairs committed all four of the young children. The two oldest girls were sent to the Long Lane farm for girls in Middletown. The four year old Ouelette girl was turned over to the town of Windham and First Selectman Ernest P. Chesebro found a place for her with Mrs. Frink of Windham Road. Mrs. Mary Gladue of Main street, this city, mother of Mrs. Ouelette, took the latter's son in charge. The child was born on April 15, 1924.

She Could Never Have Done It With Piles!

Bless the American girl who has glorified all the sports! She makes a pretty picture in the water, and is a plucky swimmer, too. Piles are unthinkable for active women. If you have them, you ought to know this simple thing to do!

At any hour or moment that you have the least distress or discomfort from piles, use a simple Pyramid pile suppository—and go happiness your way! The moment that painful, irritating and badly protruding piles respond at once to the soothing suppository applied in perfect privacy. But bear the name in mind, Pyramid is the one every druggist has, usually the only one he will sell his patrons. Pyramid is marvelous. Why suffer another single half-hour with painful piles?

Sixty cents the box, the world around. But for proof, a free box plainly wrapped will be sent those who write Pyramid Drug Co., 200 Pyramid Bldg., Marshall, Mich.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON CHAMBER FAVORS NEW BUS LINE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 3—Seeking after ways and means to get regular motor coach transportation between Goodyear and Danielson, a project of establishing a new line out of Goodyear via Maple street into Danielson, thence to Brooklyn, West Wauregan, Central Village, Moosup and Elmville has been discussed and likely would be favored by the Danielson Chamber of Commerce. This is but one of the methods that might be employed to get Goodyear such transportation as it is in the interest of Danielson to help obtain for that community of the town.

The special attractiveness of such a new route as is herein mentioned lies in its giving not only regular service between Danielson and Goodyear, but also service for West Wauregan and services without walking any considerable distance for residents on the Plainfield side of Wauregan. On the proposed coach line there is service at present between Danielson and Brooklyn and on the trunk line between Wauregan and Central Village. Coach Lines also operate on through routes between Central Village and Almyville. There is no service on the route between Danielson and Goodyear or between Brooklyn and Wauregan. It is not unlikely that more will be heard about this project in the not distant future. Efforts of the Chamber of Commerce to have the Connecticut company maintain a service between Goodyear and Dayville and between Elmville and East Killingly have not produced definite results as yet. Meanwhile the subject is of live interest to Goodyear and East Killingly people, and little less so to business interests in Danielson.

In addition to its efforts in behalf of additional transportation facilities, the Chamber of Commerce is concerning itself with possible opportunities to bring new industries to town. There are two such prospects at the present time.

A booklet setting forth the advantages of Danielson and other parts of the town of Killingly for industrial enterprises is being prepared and will be ready for distribution in the not distant future. Copies of the booklet will be put out at the big textile show to be held in Boston in April and may be sent at any time to prospectives who might be interested in bringing their concerns to this town.

The Chamber of Commerce is showing commendable enthusiasm and activity in these early days of 1926, and hopes to accomplish a great deal for the benefit of the town during the course of the year.

Wednesday afternoon at one o'clock in the church at Abington a funeral service for Levi Baker of Pomfret was conducted by Rev. Y. C. Wain. During the service Mrs. Arthur Gallup sang Sometime We'll Understand, and Face to Face. Burial was in the Grove cemetery at Eastford. The bearers were four brothers-in-law of the deceased, Allen Bennett, Walter Bennett, Charles Bennett and Wilmer Bennett. Louis E. Kennedy was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Meeting Tuesday evening the directors of the Danielson Rod and Gun club elected the following officers and committees for 1926, the directors having been elected at the annual meeting of the organization about the three weeks ago: President, L. S. Ingalls; vice president, Frederick E. Bitgood; secretary-treasurer, Harold B. Atwood; field captain, Charles E. Franklin; executive committee, L. S. Ingalls, Harry E. Magoon, William M. Franklin, Charles E. Franklin, William Nuttall; rifle committee, Ira A. Warren, Charles Hale; game committee, William M. Franklin, Mortimer Marlor, John B. Bassett, Armand Heneault, James Moran; membership committee, Sidney Perry, Fred Swan, William Kinder, Armand Heneault, J. Dyer Potter; entertainment committee, Henry Lague, John E. Bassett, Roland Boulaine, Wellington Bitgood, A. P. Woodward; grounds committee, Charles Franklin, William Nuttall, George Nuttall; handicap committee, George Nuttall, L. S. Ingalls, Harold B. Atwood.

Announcement was made Wednesday that the club has inaugurated a membership drive, opening immediately and continuing to July 1. It is intended to build a much larger membership than the 350, or there-a-bouts, now in the organization. Individual club members will seek new members, and prizes are to be awarded the three most successful solicitors. The first prize is to be a fishing rod; the second a pair of rubber boots, the third a reel.

This year all of the members are getting upon payment of their annual dues a year's subscription to the Connecticut Sportsman, a publication subsidized by the state fish and game commission and containing a great deal of information about birds, fish and game and related subjects, including reviews of what the state is doing in this department.

The club has voted to give 10 per cent of its membership dues this year to the New England Grouse association, an organization that is seeking to raise a fund of $10,000 to be expended in making a scientific study of the causes of such diseases among ruffed grouse as wiped out thousands of these birds throughout New England the past year.

During 1926 the club will carry on the re-stocking work that has been such a beneficial feature of its activities since its organization. It will distribute thousands of trout next summer after the closing of the trout fishing season and also will liberate such pheasants and other game birds as are allotted to it by the state. Trap shooting will again be featured in the months to come.

In seeking new members the club has especially in mind a broadening of its activities in the interest of all who love to go abroad with rod or gun. The service it renders is really in the interest of every hunter and fisherman, and the clubs seeking to impress upon all of these people the desirability of their becoming members and directly aid in making hunting and fishing yield more abundant returns and better sport than would be possible if there were no Rod and Gun club.

While the weather wore a decided frown last Monday night it did not seriously interfere with the regular meeting of Killingly Grange. Mrs. A. E. Withington is spending a few days in Washington, D. C., where she went with friends.

It seemed Wednesday afternoon, when another northeast snowstorm set in that the backbone of winter still contains considerable rigidity.

Because he formerly came to this town for an occasional visit to the mill of the American Woolen company at Elmville, there was very considerable interest in Wednesday's report of the suicide of William M. Wood in Florida.

Over in Rhode Island there is a revival of the effort to have the state build a new trunk line from North Scituate, westward to the Connecticut line near East Killingly. This route has been in the road building program of Rhode Island for some time and the hope is that it may be built this year. Connecticut, too, has plans to meet this route and run a trunk line through Killingly via Dayville and Goodyear to meet the Willimantic-Putnam trunk line in Pomfret. This is an old stage coach route.

Kingsbury of Danielson are sisters of Mr. Tripp's.

WATER COMMISSIONERS REPORT ON IMPROVEMENTS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 3—The board of water commissioners of the city of Putnam, Herbert J. Smith, Alexander Gilman and Chester M. Elliott, have presented to the city council, a detailed statement of the improvements that are considered necessary, and an estimate of the cost which will approximate $150,000.

The matter was discussed at some length at the meeting of the council Tuesday evening and was then laid over until the next meeting. The recommendations were drawn by a hydraulic engineer of Boston who is thoroughly familiar with local conditions and the needs of the water department.

The three main divisions of the proposed plan of improvement are the changing of the storage facilities, or rather adding to them, by the building of a reservoir, at an estimated cost of $117,000; the replacing of mains in the business section at an estimated cost of $22,500, and the laying of larger mains on Mechanics street in the neighborhood of the Putnam Foundry plant. The probable cost of this is figured at $11,000. James Low, the police agent, testified he purchased liquor of Walker at 8 o'clock on the evening of December 31st and paid $1 each for two bottles and that at 10:30 the same evening he returned with two other local men and purchased two additional quarts. Officer Urquhart was the next witness for the state, and testified to receiving the evidence from Officer Low.

Walker took the stand and stated that at the time the alleged sale took place he was in Westminster, which testimony was corroborated by John Borgeson and Edward Green; Lawyer Back requested an adjournment to secure more witnesses to corroborate this testimony.

Walker was fined $200 and sentenced to 30 days in jail on one charge of selling and on the charge of possession with intent to sell he was fined $100 and sentenced to 30 days in jail. The case was appealed and will come up at the next session of the superior court.

BETTER THAN CALOMEL

Thousands Have Discovered Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets are a Harmless Substitute

Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets—the substitute for calomel—are a mild but sure laxative, and their effect on the liver is almost instantaneous. These little olive-colored tablets are the result of Dr. Edwards' determination not to treat liver and bowel complaints with calomel.

The pleasant little tablets do the good that calomel does, but have no bad after effects. They don't injure the teeth like strong liquids or calomel. They take hold of the trouble and quickly correct it. Why cure the liver at the expense of the teeth? Calomel sometimes plays havoc with the gums. So do strong liquids. It is best not to take calomel. Let Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets take its place.

Headaches, "dullness" and that lazy feeling come from constipation and a disordered liver. Take Dr. Edwards' Olive Tablets when you feel "logy" and "heavy." They "clear" clouded brain and "perk up" the spirits. 15c and 30c.

Why, Uncle Jim! You look ten years younger!

"When I saw you a couple of months ago, I made up my mind you were getting old. At least you looked it."

"Yes, Billie, and I felt old. No appetite, couldn't sleep nights—one day just like another, and none of them any good. I knew constipation was at the bottom of it, but it seemed the more laxatives I took the worse I got. Then one day I saw Nell giving Nujol to my little grandson. The doctor had prescribed it for the baby, but I found out it's just the thing for old fellows like me, too.

"I tell you, Billie, it keeps me feeling fine all the time. My appetite's back and I sleep like a child. If I look any younger, Nujol gets the credit."

Nujol helps Nature in Nature's own way

Middle age brings on a decrease in the natural lubricating secretions in the intestine. Then you need Nujol. It supplies the deficiency of the natural lubricant. Medical authorities approve Nujol because it is gentle, safe and natural in its action.

Constipation is dangerous for anybody. Nujol is safe for everybody. Nujol simply softens the waste matter and thus permits thorough and regular elimination without overtaxing the intestinal muscles. It is not a medicine.

You can take Nujol for any length of time without ill effects. It should be taken regularly in accordance with the directions on each bottle. Unlike laxatives, it does not form a habit and can be discontinued at any time.

Ask your druggist for Nujol today and begin to enjoy the perfect health that is possible only when elimination is normal and regular.

KENTUCKY'S FINE EXAMPLE

Kentucky has taken a highly commendable stand against lynching and if more discouragement of a similar character was held out in the lynching states there would be greater respect for law and less inclination to mob rule.

There was nothing whatever about the atrocious crime committed by a negro named Harris that called for leniency. There was everything that called for the full penalty of the law. It was one of those cases that might be expected to arouse the lynching spirit, and it did. Had it been possible to have gotten hands on the accused there were enough ready to end his life. But this situation was recognized by the authorities and they wisely decided that the time was ripe to demonstrate that the law could and would deal with the situation. With troops called out, tanks brought into use and guards placed not only at the jail and courthouse but along the way, Harris was placed on trial. He admitted his guilt and it required only a matter of about 16 minutes for the jury to hear the accusation, receive the plea, get the charge of the judge and bring in a verdict of guilty. Harris admitted that he was responsible for his predicament and was sentenced to be hanged.

This means that he will pay the supreme penalty for his act, and the entire case stands out as an example of how preferable it is to have such cases dealt with under the provisions of the law than to have a few or a mob take control of the situation and deny an accused a hearing. In this instance the guilt was clear cut. There was no question about it, but there are frequently cases where just because a man is black he is considered to be guilty and is strung up to the first cross arm regardless as to whether he is guilty or innocent.

Full credit must be given to Kentucky for the manner in which it has acted in this case. If that attitude was manifested in all states under like circumstances there would be none of the deplorable cases which reflect so seriously upon law and order as maintained in those states and there would be no call for a federal anti-lynching law.

WHY NOT PREVENT?

As is the case everywhere following a destructive fire, Taunton is taking an account of the situation following the burning of the Taunton inn and giving thought to the steps that need to be taken to deal more effectively with such a situation in the future. Taunton, like other cities, must give serious consideration to this problem and when the chief of the fire department declares the people must realize the need of additional fire fighting equipment so that the department can cope with any serious fire he has full regard for the conditions which have existed there in the past and which will remain unchanged unless a different attitude is displayed.

There is a very strong disposition to place entire confidence in the efficiency of a fire department. There may be certain justification for that if a department is adequately equipped, but even then a fire department cannot do the impossible.

While Taunton may have good and sufficient reason for increasing its fire department equipment, for the department must continue to be called upon for fires which are certain to develop whether small or large, it would seem to be a time for doing some real serious fire prevention work in that city The Taunton inn has gone up in smoke It might have done the same thing with a better equipped department, but certainly it would be reasonably safeguarded in the future should the new building which is to be constructed on the site of the burned one be built of fire proof material. This seems to be a matter which ought to get some consideration quite the same as fire department requirements.

Whatever property there is of an inflammable character in Taunton it is entitled to protection from a fire department equipped in accord with the demands to be made upon it, but the time has come when too serious consideration cannot be given to perventive work and some of the best of that lies in the building of structures that will not burn, especially if they are public buildings.

TOLL FOR BRIDGE COSTS

Between Camden and Philadelphia there has been constructed a large highway bridge for the purpose of taking care of the heavy traffic between the two cities, which has always been carried by ferries. The construction was undertaken following legislation by the states of New Jersey and Pennsylvania but as the work progressed it became evident that New Jersey was going to insist upon tolls while the sentiment in Philadelphia was strongly against such action. New Jersey insisted it was part of the preliminary understanding and maintained that it was only because of such a plan that it endorsed the project.

The bridge is, of course a costly one and the insistence of the state of New Jersey that the accommodation furnished by it justifies whatever charge may be made, and so insistent has it been in that point that it has finally been approved by the Pennsylvania legislature.

This attitude is no different than prevailed in this state a few years ago when tolls were collected on several bridges to pay the cost of construction or maintenance. The added facilities provided will be sufficiently appreciated so that those who use the bridge will be glad to pay the toll, whether it happens to be larger or smaller than that charged by the slower and inadequate ferries. It is another case of service rendered and there are not many cases where that is done that recompense isn't figured somewhere.

Whether there shall be a collection of tolls after the bridge has been paid for through bridge fees is something which the states have yet to decide. The day of the toll bridge for revenue has gone quite the same as the toll road but the idea that those who demand and use such facilities as the new bridge affords should pay for them quite the same as they maintain ferries is one that many states have applied with good results. It is far better that those who use the bridge should pay for it than to tax those who will never see it for its construction.

DEALING WITH MEXICO

Diplomacy cannot accomplish much more where there is a spirit of good feeling than when ill will is cropping out every instance. For some little time there has been evidence of the latter in connection with the diplomatic relations between this country and Mexico While the Obregon government remained all went well following recognition When the Calles government took hold of the helm there was evidence of a change and instead of getting better it has developed more friction.

This government maintains that the agreement entered into with the Obregon government whereby it was stipulated that no retroactive or confiscatory land and petroleum laws would be passed is binding on the present government, but the Calles government seems to think otherwise in spite of the fact that it has gotten the benefit of that promise made to this government and now seeks to repudiate it.

The stand of Mexico does not make a good impression here or with other countries. The reaction to its viewpoint is not complimentary to it. It indicates that it is impossible to place any dependence upon a Mexican government from one regime to another. An agreement made today may easily become a scrap of paper tomorrow.

But recently there have come from Mexico City intimations that there was a disposition on the part of the Mexican authorities to get down to real diplomatic discussions with the American ambassador. This may possibly indicate a change of heart or better feelings. If it does some of the difficulties of coming to an understanding may be cleared away The Calles government cannot afford to disregard the common sentiment shown by other countries against its stand.

DISARMAMENT DELAY

Even though the conference that was called for this month at Geneva was only a preliminary one, at which it was intended to prepare the program to be discussed at a subsequent disarmament conference, it was nevertheless regarded as of much importance since there would be displayed the general tendency of the various nations. There was evidence of a common desire for such a gathering The spirit of Locarno seemed to have cried out for action.

Because there has been a postponement of the conference for a matter of three months may not have any serious effect and yet there are bound to be conjectures concerning the reasons for it including and beyond those which have been offered. Naturally the question is bound to be asked as to whether there has been a cooling of the desires that existed when the conference was first considered or called

If, of course, there are those countries which are not ready now to even consider a disarmament program it would of course be futile for one to be held, but it was only a short time ago that this country was given to believe that all that was needed to have the gavel fall was the participation of the United States. Did some countries in indicating their approval of the idea depend upon this government to refuse to participate and thus upset the plan? From the sudden decision to postpone the preliminary conference some such idea is bound to be entertained until shown to be incorrect, regardless of the explanations which have been offered Perhaps the unsettled dispute between Switzerland and Russia is as good an excuse as any At any rate Uncle Sam cannot be charged with upsetting the conference by failure to display interest.

ORDERING LUNCH

There are times when the fondest of mothers would subscribe to the theory that all boys should be kept in barrels from 7 to 21. Some of them would go even further and believe passionately that life would be a fairer thing if their progeny should never learn to read, think or talk. There is no doubt that the wisp of a woman marshalling William, aged 8; Edgar, 6, and Althea 4, into the downtown restaurant loved her children, yet when she left there was a gleam in her eye which should be in no adoring mother's orbs.

Edgar—"I'm goin' to read every page and I'm gonna have what I want—you said we could order what we wanted, didn't ja, mother? Say, didn't ja? I'm gonna—"

William (with cold finality)—"Yuh can't read a thing but cat, rat, sat and things like to and be and am—can he, mother? I can read everything. I can read porterhouse steak and ice cream and—

Althea (trebly)—"I wanta dwink! I wanta dwink! I wanta—"

The lady (with bright, restrained sweetness)—"We're all going to have something nice, only you must be quiet and polite in public!"

William (disgustedly)—"Oh, I know whachu going to say when you begin let-me-see! You'll say puffed rice and baked apple or some old thing like that! I want veal loaf! Say, canna have veal loaf mother? Mother, you said—"

Edgar (flatly)—"I donwant veal loaf! Say, mother, do I hafta have veal loaf just because Bill wants it? Just because he thinks he's so smart do I hafta have what he wants when I want—I want choclut ice cream and—"

Althea (with trembling lip)—"I want veal loaf, too, mother. Can I have veal loaf—"

The lady, shortly—"Hush! All of you! The very idea! Why, I suppose there's no reason why you can't have veal loaf, only you have it at home and I thought something different—"

William—"Oh, I'm going to have something different, too! What's euchered figs mother? Eighty-five cents—I want euchered figs—"

William (banging back his chair and pushing away with his feet, nearly upsetting a passing waitress)—"Aw, you said we could have what we wanted and when I ask for what I want you say I can't have it! You said we'd have a good time downtown and then you won't let me have—"

Althea—"I want bran muffins—bran muffins, /br—"

The lady—"Darling, you had bran muffins for breakfast! You don't want them again! Let's have—"

Althea (beating the table with a spoon and shrieking)—"I want bran muffins! An' gingerbread! An' apple sauce! An'—"

The lady (holding Althea down in her chair with one hand and managing the menu with the other)—"We'll have the veal loaf and tomato salad and cinnamon toast and milk—"

William—"Aw, do I hafta drink milk when I'm downtown? I donwanta have old milk! I want—"

Edgar—"Aw, do I hafta have tomatoes? I don't like tomatoes! I donwant veal loaf, mother! I want fried chicken."

Althea—"I want fwied chicken, mother! If Eddie has fwied chicken I want fwied chicken—"

William—"It's no fair for them to have fried chicken if I have veal loaf, mother, and you said we'd have veal loaf—"

The lady (desperately, grabbing a waitress)—"Bring us some veal loaf and rolls, quickly, please! Something to get them started and then I'll tell you what else!"

Althea—"I want bran muf—"

William—"Say, can't I have them funny figs? You said mother—"

The Lady (to the interested waitress) —"And cocoa all around, and one bran muffin and one euchered figs and two fried chicken. And chocolate ice cream. Oh, I guess I don't care for much of anything—bring me some tea and toast! My goodness, if I ever get you three home I'll never take you downtown again till you're gray headed, any of you!"—Chicago News.

From Small Beginnings

Jules Cheret, the Columbus of the Poster Art

"Pretty fine picture!" said the man who was looking at a poster placard on an advertising board. "It's a real work of art, isn't it?" said his companion. "Yes," went on the first speaker, "Look at the drawing! Look at the fine color scheme! The whole conception, from start to finish, is good! The men who do this work today are real artists!" "Of course! They have to be! The public wouldn't stand for anything else," replied his friend.

"That's where you are wrong," said the first speaker with much energy. "It isn't the public at all! It's the man himself every time. Look at the daily newspapers. There isn't one of them that prints cartoons that doesn't once in a while, print drawings that a child can make! And there are plenty of crude posters, too. It was only a few years ago—right in your own lifetime—that there were no good posters at all. Remember the circus posters you used to see when you were a boy! Weren't they a 'scream?'

Then he proceeded to tell about the beginning of art in the making of posters. It came about in France Jules Cheret was the Christopher Columbus of the good poster. He was a nobody at all, just a young fellow who happened to get a job working for a lithographer—one of those men who make great, glaring blaring posters of the circus variety. He was a workman—didn't even know how to draw—but he wanted to know how, and so he kept trying and trying until at last he had taught himself how to draw really good pictures. Then he began to teach himself the art of combining colors. Of course the crude, glaring posters he helped to make grated on his sensitive eyes. He said "Why not make artistic posters?" So he set to work and began to make such posters as the world had never seen before, posters with excellent drawing; posters with beautiful, soft, charming color effects; posters with appeals to the poetic imagination. It was a new thing. it took France by storm.

The young man who had done an ordinary thing extraordinarily well became famous through all France. Later he developed into an artist who made far better pictures than mere posters, but his real greatness came from his having done an ordinary, commonplace thing in a way that was worthy of the highest praise. That is one of the secrets of all greatness.

...es That Recall Others

Willie Improves on Instructions

The teacher wanted some plums to give an object lesson during school hours and calling one of the small boys, she gave him ten cents and sent him to the store to buy them.

"Before you buy the plums Willie," she cautioned, "you had better pinch one or two to make sure they are ripe."

Little Willie flitted away. Soon he came back and smilingly put the bag on the teacher's desk.

"Oh, thank you, Willie," said the teacher, taking the bag. "Did you pinch one or two as I told you to do?"

"Did I?" was the gleeful response. "I pinched the whole bagful and here's your ten cents."

Looking Ahead

Mary formerly taught school in another state and frequently has something amusing to tell about conditions here. It was necessary to obtain a teacher's license in that state and not a little amusement was caused by some of the letters concerning them, showing that even the children must be amused at their teachers sometimes.

The prize commenication is believed to have been as follows: "I have a life license. Will you please tell me how I can renew it?"

Reddy's Sudden Return

Surprising 'tis and passing strange
How fickle fortune loves a change.
—Old Mother Nature.

Nanny Meadow Mouse nearly died of fright Anyway, she thought she did, which I suppose amounts to the same thing. First, Peter Rabbit had raced past her; then, almost at Peter's heels, Reddy Fox had raced past; and so close had he passed that his big, bushy tail had almost touched Nanny. It was all over in an instant. It was all over almost before Nanny realized what had happened. When she did realize that Reddy Fox had passed so close to her without discovering her she gave just the tiniest sigh of thankfulness. Then, as she recovered from her fright, she once more thought of Peter Rabbit.

"Oh, run, run, Peter, do run!" she kept saying over and over to herself, just as if she thought Peter could hear.

But no one needed to tell Peter to run. The way he was bounding along over the snow, lipperty-lipperty-lip, was wonderful to see. But it was just as wonderful to see how swiftly Reddy Fox was running behind Peter. Nanny watched them disappear in the direction of Farmer Brown's backyard. She hoped that Peter would find a hiding place over there where Reddy could not get at him.

All of a sudden there was a tremendous noise over in Farmer Brown's barnyard. "Bow, wow, wow, wow," roared a great voice. Nanny knew that voice; it was the voice of Bowser the Hound. She wondered what it meant. But she didn't have time to do much wondering; it was only a moment or two before Reddy Fox appeared once more. Reddy was running even faster than he ran when she saw him last. Once more he was headed straight toward her. But this time Nanny didn't fear him She didn't have time to fear him. He went past her, running as only Reddy can run A moment later Bowser the Hound passed Bowser would put his nose down to the snow where Reddy had been, then lift his head and his great voice would ring out. In no time at all Reddy had disappeared, with Bowser after him. But Bowser's voice could still be heard, and in it there was a joyous note. It was clear that Bowser was enjoying that chase of Reddy As a matter of fact, Reddy would have enjoyed it too had it not been that he was hungry. There are times when Reddy Fox enjoys being chased by Bower. This didn't happen to be one of those times, and Reddy was feeling quite upset. He was feeling the more so because he had been right at Peter Rabbit's heels when Bowser interfered. This would have been bad enough had it been mere chance, but Reddy knew it wasn't. He knew that Peter Rabbit had deliberately run almost in to Bowser's little house, and had done it so that Bowser would be sure to see Reddy.

"My," said Nanny to herself, "this is most exciting night. I wonder what will happen next. I do wish Spooky the Screech Owl would go away."

Just then, way over in the old orchard, on the other side of Farmer Brown's house, she heard the voice of Spooky. She knew then that he had left that tree without her knowing it. With a little sigh of pure thankfulness, Nanny stretched and then darted away from that tree; and because she felt quite certain that it was the safest direction in which to go, she headed

Reddy was running even faster than he ran when she saw him last toward Farmer Brown's barnyard. She felt that it was the safest direction because Bowser the Hound had just chased Reddy Fox from there, and he had made such a noise about it that she was sure no other enemies would be likely to be about. Besides, she had an idea that somewhere up in that direction Danny Meadow Mouse had gone, when Black Pussy chased him out from under the porch at Farmer Brown's house.

IN THE DAY'S NEWS

MADRID

A bloodless revolution in Spain! Madrid has just witnessed the passing of the military directorate of the last two years, its replacement by the civilian government, and all with the calmness and dispatch of an American business concern recovering from a receivership.

"Madrid is, however, a thoroughly modern city, with very little of the traditional flavor of old Spain and with nearly all the luxuries and conveniences of other European and American capitals," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic Society. "With a background of fine buildings, wide streets, theaters, educational and scientific institutions, and with automobile roads and railways reaching to every part of the kingdom, it is easier to understand why Madrid should today follow a moderate course in governmental procedure.

Subways and Boulevards

"Visitors who go by the fast direct trains from Paris to Madrid, and expect to see the colorful costumes and striking architecture one usually associates with the life of the country, are disappointed in Spain's capital city. Madrid's streets swarm with motor trucks and pleasure cars. Underground are two systems of speedy subways, connecting the railroad stations and the principal suburbs of the city. Its boulevards resemble those of Paris and Berlin, with their bordering trees and imposing hotels, public buildings, shops and monuments.

"In place of the poncho and sombrero the visitor will find the tailored suit and straw hat of a hustling business man of the New York stamp. The latest Paris creations make it difficult to distinguish the Spanish senora and senorita from their Latin sisters in Paris, Rome, Havana and Buenos Aires. The langorous strumming of the guitar and the click of the castanets, if they could be found off the stage in Madrid, would today be drowned by the incessant 'whank, whank' of its importunate taxis.

"Madrid is the youngest of the great cities of Spain. It owes its present importance to political creation. Until the middle of the sixteenth century it was an obscure little village of sun-baked adobe houses, clustering around the former Moorish outpost called Madjrit. Philip II, seeking at this time a capital for his newly united Spain, rejected one by one the Aragonese city of Saragossa, the Castilian Burgos, the Visigothic Toledo and the Moorish Cordova and Seville. Madjrit was in the almost exact geographic center of the kingdom, it had no sectional ties, so Philip declared it the 'Unica Corte' or Royal Residence, Castilianising its name to Madrid.

"With hardly any of the natural advantages that contribute to rapid growth, Madrid's early days as a capital were as troublous and uncertain as those of our own national capital. Excepting its central location Madrid was denied by nature of almost every suitable condition for a metropolis. It perches on an elevated steppe in the midst of a vast rolling plateau, bleak and treeless, about a half mile above sea level. Two hundred feet below it winds the insignificant river Manzanares, while the surrounding districts are unproductive, except for small quantities of corn.

"Another element to be reckoned with in Madrid is the climate. Sudden changes of weather often bring great extremes of temperature within a short time. In summer the heat is almost unbearable. People keep in the shade (bullfight tickets cost twice as much on the shady side of the ring), for the sun's rays hit the skin like little red-hot needles. The air is then so keen and subtle that, according to a popular couplet, 'it will kill a man, while it will not blow out a candle.'

"The city grew slowly but steadily, stimulated by royal encouragement and subsidy, and gradually began to take a significant part in the life of Spain outside the realm of governmental activities. Madrid's real prosperity and national importance, however, dates from the construction of Spain's railroad systems. It is now the greatest railroad center in the country and would probably figure as a greater international crossroad if the Spanish lines had the same gauges as those of the rest of Europe.

"Wealth, industries, and population have come in the wake of the railroads. Madrid, with more than 800,000 residents, is the largest city in Spain. Fine parks have been laid out over barren hills, wide tree-lined streets have pushed into the suburbs to take care of additional homes and buildings. They have done a great deal to take away the impression of barrenness. Some say they have even mitigated the heat of summer.

"From the Puerta del Sol, the Broadway and 42nd street of Madrid ten streets radiate, carrying a network of surface and subway lines to every part of the city. Less than half a mile away is the 'Prado', a boulevard lined with fine buildings and from five to eight rows of trees. Along this promenade, which is one of the 'show streets' of the world, is the museum of the same name, containing a collection of art which rivals that of the Louvre "Madrid also has one of the largest bull rings in the world. Its 'Plaza de Toros,' modelled after the Roman colosseum, seats 14,000 people. Bullfighting, however, has fallen from its high estate in Spain today, and spectators are, for the most part, the sporting element and American tourists."

CHILD TRAINING

Catalogue Shopping—Easy Education

School, to me, was a happy place. I never had to pore wearily over my studies as some children did, simply because my mother always prepared me a little ahead of time for what was coming. I am following my mother's example in bringing up my own children, and here is a device that I have found quite worth while.

I have all the catalogues that come into the house, and every day we go sightseeing, window shopping or make believe shopping by means of these books. Sometimes, beginning with the first page, we go through the catalogue and I point to the illustrations and describe and distinctly pronounce the names of the articles illustrated. At other times, we decide on something we pretend to go to buy, afterward, ex mining other articles in the same department. In either case the children repeat the names after me and they study the illustrations and after we have reviewed the catalogue several times, I have a guessing contest and as I point to various illustrations the children give the names. The one giving the greatest number correctly is awarded a prize—something that is entirely a surprise to the children. In this way they acquire knowledge while playing, are eager to learn and intensely interested. The method makes getting an education a pleasure, and is a real help to children in their early school years when everything is so new to them.

My little son and daughter could distinctly name every illustration pointed out to them in a six-hundred page mail order catalogue before they went to school. Now that they are in the second grade, I am teaching them to spell the names of the objects and they are learning quickly. Sometimes they pretend to buy and sometimes to sell. An article correctly spelled is delivered.

I have found that this catalogue play gives the children confidence and assurance when attending the school classes, sharpening their wits and observation. For this alone it has proved well worth while and one might devote to it one hour every day, regularly and systematically, to very good advantage.

It is easier to turn gold into anything else than it is to turn anything else into gold.

POLICE TOO QUICK FOR POOLROOM PROPRIETOR

The police made it two nights in succession for successful moves against alleged violators of the liquor law when they descended upon the poolroom of Frank Obuchowski at 471 North Main street about 7 o'clock Wednesday evening and captured the proprietor and a pint jug about three-quarters full of what is alleged to be liquor.

Obuchowski made a determined effort to dump the jug before the police could get it, but Sergeant Matthey Delaney and Officer Sharvan, who were the first of the squad to enter the place, were too quick for him. They had him in their grip before he could spill the contents of the jug and the prisoner and the evidence were brought to police headquarters. Bonds of $1,000 were given by the accused man for his appearance in court. Assisting in the arrest were Officers Charles Perry and Patrick Murphy.

URGES EASTERN CONNECTICUT TOWNS TO KEEP IN STEP WITH PROGRESS

A very comprehensive review of the recent New England conference was given the members of the Norwich Rotary club by Harold D. Larrabee, general manager of the Eastern Connecticut Power Co., who was a delegate from Norwich to the conference. Another interesting talk was by Lucius Briggs on the coal situation and the effect on the nation and miners.

Talk on Coal Situation

In his talk Mr. Briggs said that the coal strike of the present time is less felt by the consumer than any previous strike. He spoke of the more liberal use of coal substitutes which, although the deficit for the year 1925 was 23,000,000 tons of anthracite, has greatly lessened the need of coal. The miners during the past 44 months have been on strike about ten months and with the 10 per cent. increase granted them by Gov. Pinchot have lost approximately $230,000,000 and at the wage scale of 1921 their loss would be about $175,000,000.

At the business session President E. A. Harris presided and the song leader was George E. Johnson. The Rotary band held its first practice during the luncheon and their efforts called forth much comment.

Going to Danielson

About 30 members of the club expressed their intention of being present at the Charter Night of the Danielson club on this (Thursday) evening. The Rotarians will go by bus and will leave Franklin square at 5 o'clock.

James L. Case, president of the Norwich Chamber of Commerce, extended a very cordial invitation to the club to attend the meeting on next Tuesday evening when the Southern New England Telephone Co. will give an entertainment and demonstration of the switchboard operation.

Secretary John J. O'Rourke of the Chamber of Commerce spoke of a meeting to be held on Feb. 16th at which William J. Fortune of the Shawmut National Bank of Boston will speak on Selling New England.

Report on Springfield Conference

Mr. Larrabee was introduced by President Harris and gave a very interesting talk which held the close attention of his audience. Mr. Larrabee said:

The New England conference, held at Worcester, Nov. 12, and 13 last, was an outgrowth from the conferences previously held by the New England governors. Each governor had appointed three men, thereby forming a joint committee of 18, to which was entrusted the task of creating means to deal more effectively with New England problems.

The chairman of this committee was John S. Lawrence, of Boston, to whom great credit is due for the important work which he accomplished. This joint committee called the New England conference, by invitinx all industrial, agricultural and commercial organizations in New England to send representatives, with the result that there was an attendance of about 700, at which the conference was formally organized to the end that New England agriculture, commerce, industries, transportation and other public services may be effectively promoted. General direction of these affairs lies in the New England council, which is a body of 75 men, 12 from each of the six states. This conference was the first general meeting bringing together the interests of business, industry, farm and finance.

There were three sessions at which subjects relating to power, agriculture, and marketing were discussed, besides a general session on one evening.

First Session on Power

The first session on Power was under the chairmanship of Samuel Ferguson, president of the Hartford Electric Light company, Governor Fuller, of Massachusetts, first addressed the meeting, dwelling upon the possibilities of the organization and upon the fact that its efforts merit the assistance of every man and woman in New England. Owen D. Young, chairman of the board, of the General Electric company, and also a member of the Dawes commission, spoke upon Power in its relation to wages and standards of living. He pointed out that these 9,000,000 workers of our country have power placed at their disposal equivalent to 34 slaves working for them; while Athens, in its baimiest days, never had more than four. The use of power must so aid production as to permit higher wage levels, and, at the same time, reduce the cost of production.

Martin J. Insull, president, Middle West Utilities company, spoke upon the question of why they have entered the New England power field. He pointed out that the Insull interests have been in New England about 13 years, and that the recent extension of their holdings here is based upon the fact that they believe in New England and in its future. They have acquired electric properties in Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, forming an interesting power belt across northern New England.

Dexter Cooper, consulting engineer, spoke upon power from the tides, giving a description of the Passamaquoddy project near the mouth of the Bay of Fundy.

Thursday evening, at the general meeting, quite a number of short talks were given by various delegates, after which the organization meetings were held, and members of the New England council selected.

Perhaps the most striking short talk given was that by John F. Fitzgerald, of Boston, who quite forcibly brought out that it was time for us to get out and do something, to cut out ou petty jealousies and to awaken the dormant New England spirit of accomplishment.

Talks on Agriculture

Friday afternoon the session was on agriculture, the chairman being Horace A. Moses, president of the Eastern States league. Joseph W Alsop, president of the Connecticut Valley Tobacco Growers' association, gave a very interesting talk on Co-operative Marketing. He explained the development of the idea, pointed out the farmer's ignorance of business matters in general, and the farmer's inability to market alone. He also brought out the fact that co-operative organizations, which had been formed for the purpose of fixing prices, had invariably failed. The need for co-operative marketing was pointed out very clearly in the fact that last year potato production was about 6 per cent. above normal and potatoes went begging at a dollar a bushel, while this year, the production is only 6 per cent. below normal and they have been hard to get at $3 a bushel.

Roy D. Hunter, of the Eastern States exchange, spoke on the farmer's willingness and ability to co-operate. He pointed out that it was a great advantage for the farmer to take his produce to the warehouse, get a receipt for it, and wait three or four weeks for the cash, but that in general the farmer was coming to see the benefit of this method of marketing. He dwelt emphatically upon the idea that New England people must use more of New England products.

Julian A. Dimock, of the Dimock Orchard Seed Potato corporation, gave a very interesting discussion of the package idea in selling farm products. He has found by experience that at least up to a certain point people will pay the extra price for fancy packing of apples and also of potatoes and that the preparation of produce for such a market calls for very rigid and continuous inspection.

Charles M. White, of the department of agriculture, state of Maine, spoke upon Aroostook potato and other crops. He dwelt upon some of the difficulties in marketing potatoes and in taking care of the surplus crop. He also argued very strongly in favor of balancing farming as against one crop operation.

A. I. Briggs, secretary of the Boston Fruit & Produce exchange, spoke from the commission man's viewpoint upon New England agriculture. He brought out the fact that the New England farmer brings his produce to market, in very small quantities resulting in considerable handicap, because he is in competition with car load lots from the middle west. The strength of this competition is illustrated by the fact that Minnesota eggs and butter are sold in large quantities in the Boston market. New England produces only 15 per cent. of what it eats, so that when we go a thousand or two thousand miles away for food stuffs, our higher cost of living is somewhat accounted for.

Marketing

Friday afternoon's session was upon the subject of "marketing" with Louis K. Liggett, president of the United Drug company, chairman. Mr Liggett delivered an address which in many ways pointed out the basis upon which many of our difficulties rest. He stated that some of the difficulties are that there is a persistence in trying to do things today in the same way in which grandfather did them: too much insistence upon manufacturing the thing which we want to make rather than the thing which the public wants to buy; and too much dead hand management. An interesting thing which Mr. Liggett pointed out was that there was represented at this meeting New England business with an annual revenue aggregating $3,300,000,000 which, in the spirit of New England conservatism, he called five billion dollars.

Predicts New England Awakening

Governor Brewster, of Maine, who is said to be the country's youngest governor, delivered an address in which he predicted a real awakening for New England. He said that the railroad situation, cheaper farm lands in New England, the removal of free grazing privileges, and the inevitable increase in railroad rates to the northwest, argue insistently that the "great industrial east shall prepare to feed itself from the agricultural areas which are immediately available." The governor also said that he knew from statistics that more people had come from California to Maine than had gone from Maine to California.

Dr. Julius Klein, director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, read a letter from Secretary Hoover, as the latter was unable to be present. This letter stated in part: "There is surely no reason for discouragement on the part of the New England states. The courage and shrewd foresight of her business folk have formed the heritage of every state in the Union. It must be recognized, however, that certain factors have worked against her interests in the past few years. Among these have been the recent shifts in population and changes in industrial and commercial relationships. Another has been a tendency in certain older and more settled industries toward what might be called absentee administration. There has also been the growth of competitive mass production in certain lines in other parts of the country. A fundamental comprehensive elimination of economic waste, through improved transportation facilities, through more extensive electrification, through a greater simplification and standardization of manufactures, through a more thorough cultivation of foreign markets, through the larger production of those articles that require a relatively high degree of workmanship and through a score of other means—affords ample opportunity for the maintenance of New England's prestige.

Dr. Klein spoke at some length upon New England's ability to penetrate and hold foreign markets, for we produce the kind of goods "for which every upward movement of world standards creates a new and always accelerating demand."

Louis E. Kirstein, vice president of William Filene's Sons company, spoke upon selling New England products in New England and pointed out the necessity of the merchants providing what people want to buy.

Frederick A. Carol, vice president, National Shawmut bank, spoke upon sound marketing policies as a basis for credit.

Arthur G. Staples, editor The Lewiston Journal, spoke upon New England's recreational facilities, dwelling upon the value of properly selling their attractions to the rest of the country.

P. F. O'Keefe, president P. F. O'Keefe Advertising agency, the last speaker, emphasized the fact that generally speaking New England is a poor advertiser.

REV. S. A. ICIEK TO SPEAK AT AMERICANAZATION LUNCHEON

Rev. S. A. Iciek, of this city, will be one of the speakers at the luncheon given by the state council of Americanization workers in Hartford on Saturday of this week.

The luncheon will be of unusual interest as several prominent leaders of racial groups have been asked to state frankly the embarrassments felt by the newcomer to our country and the best way in which the adult classes in the schools can help them to make adjustment. Secretary of State Pallotti, Rev. Julius Hulteen, with Miss Annie Fisher, author and teacher, will be on the programme with Father Iciek.

An entertainment of Italian singing and dancing, the Russian court dance, Norwegian songs, and peasant dances all in costume, will be interspersed during the programme of speaking.

A considerable delegation from both New London and Norwich is expected to attend and have sent for reservations, and other parts of the state have responded in a way to make the occasion a noteworthy one.

COUNTY PENSION BOARD MEETS AT NORWICH

Wednesday morning, at 10 o'clock, the county pension board met at the office of Dr. Lester E. Walker, passing on the claims of four applicants, Spanish war soldiers, one each from Willimantic and Danielson and two from New London. The members of the board are Dr. Walker, president; Dr. J. H. Allen, secretary, and Dr. C. F. Congdon, of Mystic.

Few people are satisfied with their fortune or dissatisfied with their own wit.

LECTURES ON CURES FOR MAN-MADE STATIC

Static, its numerous causes and some of the means which are being used to eliminate it as far as possible, was the topic of a lecture given Wednesday evening at the Community House by J. O. Smith, of the Radio Corporation of America. The talk was given under the auspices of the Norwich Radio club and had an attendance of about 100 including several women radio fans. Mr. Smith was introduced to the audience by Harold E. Robbins, president of the club. Mr. Smith gave a very comprehensive talk on radio in general. His subject was Man-Made Static which differs materially from natural static. Man-made static is the result of leakage from high tension wires, power houses, motors, generators, trolley cars, etc.

Before the war radio was confined principally to commercial and amateur stations, Mr. Smith said. He then went on to tell of the great growth of radio which he said is here to stay. Static leakage from power lines has caused considerable trouble to radio listeners, and has resulted in numerous complaints to the Radio Corporation of America and other manufacturers of the radio. As the number of radio sets increased the number of complaints increased, he said, and as a result deluged the American Radio corporation and other manufacturers of radio sets.

We found we must educate the power people in the detection and elimination of man-made static. However, we can't blame all this static on the power people it does no good to rail at power stations and central stations. Just so long as power is manufactured things are going to break out and annoy the radio listeners. The next best thing is to learn how to combat the interference.

In the elimination of interference caused by industrial devices I should like to put a question. We will suppose that in this city you have an industrial plant using electricity. The operation of that plant sets up interference, perhaps over the whole town. Radio listeners call a meeting. They can or can't agree on the trouble. Perhaps they call us in. We come to the conclusion that the plant is responsible for the static. Where do we go from here? Redesigning of the equipment in the plant would entail an enormous cost. Who is going to pay for it?

Mr. Smith then went on to tell of some of his experiences in hunting down the cause of static in a number of cities. He told how with a trouble testing apparatus he had traced down trouble to its source and of how much of the trouble had been eliminated. Some of his experiences were real humorous and served to turn the audience to laughter. For instance, while he and several others were tracing trouble in Georgia one black night they set up a radio set in a field. It was so dark they had to use matches to set the dial. They tuned in on Miami, Fla., and were getting a splendid musical programme when suddenly several silhouetted figures, robed in white were seen running across the field from a nearby house, all shouting, "The hants are out. The hants are out. Save us. Save us." A colored family awakened by the strange music coming from they knew not where, were under the impression that ghosts and satan were abroad and went running through the village until they came up with a policeman who went back with them and after a few words of explanation dispelled their fears.

The talk was an extremely interesting one and profitable to the radio fans in the audience, who departed with a clearer idea of static, its causes and its cures.

The committee in charge comprised Harold E. Robbins, Joseph A. French, Lewis J. Smith and Jean Keiffer.

SAYS NAVY OFFICER MADE HIM BREAK TRAFFIC LAW

Not guilty, said Stanley Wilk, 28, U. S. N., when he was presented in the city court Wednesday morning on a charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. He was one of four sailors held by the police Monday night after the way in which the machine was operated attracted the attention of officers. His three companions were each fined for intoxication at the Tuesday morning session of the court but the case against Wilk was continued until Wednesday morning in order to give him time to provide the money for the fine to be imposed on him. It was understood at that time that he would plea guilty Wednesday morning. However, he changed his mind and entered a plea of not guilty to the charge.

Wilk, it seems, had expected some of his shipmates to raise money with which to pay the fine, but they did not show up Wednesday morning. Wilk denied driving the machine and implicated one of his superior officers, Chief Commissary Steward Gennaco, who he claims is the owner of the machine. Wilk claimed he was being made the goat. After some discussion of the matter, Judge Arthur F. Libby continued the case until Thursday morning and subpoenas were issued by the city attorney for the six sailors who were in the machine with Wilk.

Wilk on Wednesday asked to address the court and upon receiving permission said that when the car passed the left hand side of the traffic beacon in Norwich, a chief commissary steward, named Gennaco, who was his superior officer, was driving the car. He said that Gennaco made him get behind the wheel when the policemen started in pursuit and was so found when the car was overtaken.

The Norwich policemen said that when they halted the car, Gennaco was in the rear seat and Wilk behind the wheel but they could not understand how the change could have been made, if it was, in view of the fact that the car bearing the sailors was in high gear when overtaken.

The child died Tuesday after an illness of about three days. Undertakers Cummings and Ring had charge of the funeral arrangements.

Piles Disappear

No Cutting or Salves Needed

External treatments seldom cure piles.

Nor do surgical operations.

The cause is inside—bad circulation.

The blood is stagnant, the veins flabby.

The bowel walls are weak, the parts almost dead.

To quickly and safely rid yourself of piles you must free the circulation—send a fresh current through stagnant pools. Internal treatment is the one safe method. Ointments and cutting won't do it.

J. S. Leonhardt, M. D., a specialist, set at work some years ago to find a real internal remedy for piles. He succeeded. He named his prescription HEM-ROID, and tried it in 1000 cases before he was satisfied. Now HEM-ROID is sold by druggists everywhere under guarantee. It is a harmless tablet, easy to take, and can always be found at Lee & Osgood Co., who will gladly refund the purchase price to any dissatisfied customer.

NATIONAL LEAGUE OWNERS ENDORSE JUDGE LANDIS FOR TEN YEAR TERM

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(AP)—Endorsing the administration of Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis and reaffirming their confidence in him, the clubowners of the National League today passed a resolution urging his reappointment for a period of ten years at the expiration of his present seven-year term in 1927.

The resolution was adopted by a unanimous vote on the motion of William L. Veeck of Chicago and referred to the joint meeting of the major leagues, after the magnates had refused, for first time in many years, to ratify the schedule. The playing program, its arrangement made difficult by Commissioner Landis' decision to close the season one week earlier than usual, was referred to President Heydler for final revision and ratification.

The resolution advocating the reappointment of Commissioner Landis was drawn up by a committee consisting of William L. Veeck of Chicago, Judge Emil E. Fuchs of Boston and William F. Baker of Philadelphia. It follows:

"The National League at a meeting today, all clubs being represented, again affirms its confidence in Commissioner Landis, his firmness and fairness in all decisions and his grasp of all of the fundamentals of baseball; and, sure of the confidence of the public in his administration of his great office, resolves that his term of office be extended at the expiration of his present period for a new term of ten years, and urges that this be done at the next joint meeting of the two major leagues. The eight presidents of the National League club have today so pledged themselves."

President Heydler announced that the season would open April 13 with Brooklyn at New York Boston at Philadelphia Chicago at Cincinnati and Pittsburgh at St. Louis and with the exception of Boston, the season will close Sept. 26. The season in Boston will close Sept. 29. The western teams will be in the east on the closing dates, he added.

For the second successive year, the magnates voted to suspend the rule pertaining to the playing of postponed games and leave this matter entirely to the clubs involved.

A vote of thanks was given to John B. Foster, editor of the Baseball Guide, for his advice and aid to the joint rules committee and a similar vote was given to President John A. Heydler and his staff of assistants for the work in staging the golden jubilee dinner.

Edward W. Cady, Jr., commander of the Saranac Lake American Legion post and secretary of the Christy Mathewson Memorial committee of Saranac Lake, spoke in behalf of the memorial which is being planned for the hospital there. Mr. Cady said it was planned to provide a reading and lounging room at the soldiers' hospital and asked the magnates for their support. No action was taken on this as the league is already involved in a memorial planned for the Bucknell University Campus at Lewisburg, Pa.

President Heydler also announced the appointment of a staff of 72 umpires, the largest in the history of the league. This staff, President Heydler said, would insure three umpires for every game. The staff includes Henry O'Day, William J. Klem, Ernest C. Quigley, Barry McCormack, Charles Rigler, Charles Moran, Robert Hart, Charles Pfirman, Frank Wilson, P. J. McLaughlin, James Sweeney and Jack Reardon, the latter the newest addition to the corps. Reardon, obtained from the Pacific coast league, will make his major league debut this year.

MISS BROWN AND MRS. MALLORY REACH TENNIS SEMI-FINALS

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(AP)—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory and Mary K. Browne, former national women's champions, attained the semi-finals in opposite halves of the draw without being pressed today in the Heights Casino invitation tennis tournament.

Martha Bayard of Short Hills, N. J., seventh in national ranking, and Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere of Boston were the other seeded players to advance. Miss Bayard's victory, scored over Mrs. Frederick M. Letson in three hard-fought sets, 4-6, 6-4, 6-1, earned her the right to meet Miss Browne in the lower half of the draw, while Mrs. Corbiere, who won easily over Miss Caroma Winn of Mountain Lakes, N. J., 6-2, 6-0, will face Mrs. Mallory.

Mrs. W. M. Shedden of Boston played a steady, careful placement game against Mrs. Mallory, but the latter's severe driving decided the contest in straight sets, 6-4, 6-2. Miss Browne won even more decisively against Mrs. H. V. Kaetborn, 6-2, 6-0.

Mrs. Mallory and Miss Browne eliminated Miss Jessie Gott and Miss H. Vanderende in a first round doubles match, 6-1, 6-1, while in the second round Miss Bayard and Mrs. Corbiere won from Mrs. J. E. Bailey and Mrs. Theodore Sohst, 6-0, 6-3. In the same round, Mrs. DeForest Candee and Mrs. H. Weaver eliminated Miss Marie Wagner and Mrs. F. F. Schmitz, 3-6, 6-2, 7-5.

JOIE RAY DESERTS RANKS OF AMATEURS FOR PROS

CHICAGO, Feb. 3—(AP)—Joie Ray, who until the invasion of Paavo Nurmi, held a dozen world's distance running records, today signed a contract to turn professional after sixteen years competition as an amateur.

Like "Red" Grange, Joie acquired a manager. He is T. A. Donahue, former Illinois A. C. athlete and team mate of Ray's.

Ray further followed in the footsteps of Grange, declaring that running was the best thing he could do and that he intended to turn that ability into dollars. The diminutive Chicagoan is planning a European trip with exhibitions in London, Paris and Berlin.

Ray was recently adjudged a professional because he punched the bag in a sporting goods house as an advertising stunt. His efforts to obtain a rehearing and reinstatement failed.

BERLENBACH TO MAKE LONG BARNSTORMING TOUR

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—(AP)—Paul Berlenbach, world's light-heavyweight champion, displeased with the action of the state athletic commission in forcing him into a match with Mike McTigue, former title-holder, announced today that he would make a tour of the country before exhibiting his crown before New York fans again.

Four fights have already been booked for the champion at Boston, Cleveland, St. Louis and New Orleans after which the title-holder said he might go to the Pacific coast for a few exhibitions.

Definite dates have not been set for any of his matches, he said, but he added that at Boston he will meet Pat McCarthy, Boston light-heavyweight. At Cleveland, Berlenbach will face Bryan Downey of Cleveland, while in New Orleans, Tony Marullo will be his opponent, in each match, Berlenbach said, his title will be at stake if his opponents come in under the 175 pound limit. An opponent for his St. Louis appearance has not been selected.

In refusing to meet McTigue, Berlenbach reiterated that such a match would draw no money, was not a logical contest and would give him no prestige in the event he won from the former champion. His tour will start in two or three weeks, he added.

JEWETT CITY PROS FIND DANIELSON EASY FOES

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 3—The local Pros found the Danielson Town team an easy victim for their smashing attack here tonight and won easily 49 to 39. Harry Mills and Mondi Normandin with Bob Benjamin carried the battle to the visitors early in the game and at half time the score was 23 to 13. The Pros had little mercy on their guests in the second half and piled up 26 more points.

Mondi Normandin was the individual star of the game and took the wind out of the sails of the Danielson craft. Danielson fans had made the wise crack that Normandin would be unable to do much with Poirier guarding him, but Poirier had to call for help before the game had gone very far. Mondi although closely guarded managed to shoot 7 pretty baskets. Harry Mills was high scorer of the evening with nine baskets from the floor. Keach was high scorer for Danielson.

In the preliminary game the Fisk Red Tops won an easy victory from the Clarks, 33 to 23. The summary:

MERIDEN, Feb. 3—(AP)—Louis (Kid) Kaplan, of this city, world's featherweight champion, was tentatively matched tonight to meet Eddie (Kid) Wagner, Philadelphia, in a ten round bout at 133 pounds at the Arena, Philadelphia, on February 22.

Chapman Tech Swamps Westerly

At the Champlin Hall court in Westerly Wednesday evening the Chapman Tech Five won an easy victory over the Westerly High quintet, 35 to 17. Chapman took the lead earlier in the game and was never threatened, playing superior basketball throughout the game.

Dunker to Help Farrell

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 3—(AP)—Henry T. "Heinie" Dunker has been appointed as assistant to Eddie Farrell, Harvard track coach, it was announced today. Dunker was captain of last year's track team, shot-putting being his specialty, and is now entered in the Harvard business school

WORLD'S BEST TRACK STARS COMPETE TONIGHT IN MILLROSE A. A. GAMES

NEW YORK, Feb. 3—Athletic stars of six nations will test their skill and speed tomorrow night in New York's banner indoor track and field carnival, the annual games of the Millrose A. A., at Madison Square Garden. The pick of American talent has been assembled to meet invading rivals from Canada, Norway, Holland, England and Germany.

The foreign contingent was completed tonight by the arrival of Adrian Paulen, crack middle distance runner of Holland, who stepped from the gangplank of the Olympic with only 24 hours in which to regain his "land legs" for a test with Charley Hoff, of Norway, Christie of Canada, Alan Helffrich of the New York A. C., and "Soapy" Watters of Harvard in the classic "Millrose 600."

Helffrich has won this race for the past three years but has sustained several defeats also this season and is expected to have difficulty defending his honors. Paulen defeated Helffrich here last summer but the "Flying Dutchman" will face a severe handicap tomorrow night in competing without sufficient time to get into condition.

The meet will mark the American debut of Hoff, rated by many critics as the world's greatest all-around athlete. The lanky Norwegian will attempt to live up to this reputation by competing in his specialty, the pole vault, for which he holds the world's record, and the international relay race, besides the "Millrose 600". Ed Knourek, of the Illinois A. C., promises to give Hoff his keenest competition in the pole vault.

Another invader making his bow to American competition will be Gordon Goodwin, English walker, who will start in a three-mile test against Willie Plant, national champion who upheld native honors a year ago by conquering Ugo Frigerio, of Italy, the Olympic title-holder.

Hubert Houbeau, German sprinter, who met defeat in his first American race at Boston last Saturday, faces three of this country's speediest, Loran Murchison, Debart Hubbard and Frank Hussey, over a distance of 40 and 60 yards and the Teuton's chances of victory do not seem bright.

In the absence of Joie Ray for the first time in eight years, Willie Ritola, Finnish-American ace, heads a fast field in the Rodman Wanamaker mile.

Eight relay races are carded for college and club stars while the record-holding Canadian girls' quarter-mile relay quartet will oppose a picked American team.

SUZANNE DENIES REPORTS SHE IS TO MARRY A DUKE

NICE, France, Feb. 3—(AP)—Suzanne Lenglen was receiving good-natured, jesting congratulations today over rumors of her engagement to the Duke of Westminster, who was divorced last summer. Her friends around the tennis club were hailing her as "duchess," and she was kept busy denying the reports.

"I am getting ahead," was her comment. "The last time I denied I was engaged it was reported my fiance was a count. This time it's a duke. There is no more truth in this report today than there was when they had me married to Count Salm." She referred to rumors that she was to marry Count Ludwig Salm-Hoogstraten.

Mlle. Lenglen was kept idle today by the rain which prevented all play in the Nice tournament.

DID NOT GIVE HELEN A NEW WARDROBE

PARIS, Feb. 3—(AP)—Both Miss Helen Wills, from Cannes, and Jean Patou, designer of gowns, frocks and coats, in Paris, today characterized as "preposterous" the story that the Parisian designer had presented the American tennis champion with a thousand dollar wardrobe.

Miss Wills defended her amateur status stoutly, while M. Patou declared: "You know I never gave anything away in my life."

He remarked that Miss Wills had bought several models from him, but insisted: "Tennis may be a health pastime, but I am certainly not in business for my health."

Dartmouth Beats Williams

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Feb. 3—(AP)—Dartmouth defeated the Williams basketball team, 46 to 36, in a fast played game here tonight. Shumway, Williams star, was the outstanding performer, scoring nine baskets from the floor. He was playing his last game for Williams as the school authorities have placed him on the ineligible list.

"Y" EMPS TAKE CLOSE GAME FROM NUTMEGS

The Nutmegs lived up to their reputation last night when they met the Y. M. C. A. Emps on the "Y" court, making the latter quintette extend themselves to the limit to win the game, by the score of 23 to 14. The early part of the game looked threatening for the winners and at the beginning of the second half it was a question as to which team would be the victor. Brown proved to be the chief cager for the Emps, while Goodrow starred for the Nutmegs.

JEWETT CITY

CLUEY WATSON PUT IN ONE WICKED NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 3.—Old Cluey Watson was over to the town following last week's cold snap; to buy he said, "something he never yet had purchased in all his years of life as a hunter and trapper," and that was an oil stove for his winter camp on Wiley Brook. Everybody, if letters and personal statements are true, like to read his stories in The Bulletin. Speaking of winter camping, as affected by the cold! He said "In 1866, a lot of the young chaps down near my old home in Maine, were interested to try and find a deposit of lead, said to have been discovered years previous to that by the Ojibway Indians. We had our camp at the lower end of Survey's lake in Somerset county, some such a site as my present one below Mt. Misery, only there, I lack the dense hemlock growth that gave our camp protection in the north Maine woods. The cold came upon us following a northeast snowstorm that had kept up for three days. That night the mercury fell to 23 degrees below. The cold aroused us along towards midnight. It was too cold to sleep, with safety to fingers, toes and noses. The fire was increased, great pine logs thrown on and trained up nearer the doorway. We wrapped ourselves in the blankets, and huddled together in the evergreen just inside the door. It was too cold to live back out of the firelight. Our Great Dane, "Grip," shook and whined, we let him loose, and he immediately cuddled himself beside his master. The gusts of wind now and then, flared the fire in upon us in scorching whirls and hot gusts of smoke. That was a night, long to be remembered. We felt the near deadly grip of the ruthless elements. We had a doctor friend with us from Cambridge, just for the "winter in the woods" experience. I think he was a little alarmed, for, indeed, we could not have endured a much greater sinking of the temperature. The next day the wind blew all the forenoon, so sharply, that one could hardly have faced it for three minutes, without freezing nose or cheeks.

Toward night, however, the wind lulled, and the intense cold moderated somewhat, but it was a chilling night for all that, one I hurry over in its telling, as a dread memory, best forgotten.

L. G. Buckingham has been re-elected as a member of the electric light commissioners, for a term of three years. The board now stands, George Moeller, chairman, Daniel F. Finn, Lloyd G. Buckingham. The borough government deemed it expedient to reject so efficient a member of this important commission.

Deputy Sheriff John T. Dolan was notified Wednesday of a dastardly and cowardly deed that took place during the early hours of last Sunday morning. Joe Stenkeritis lives on the farm known as the Chris Colligan place a mile from town. Sunday morning his daughter was awakened by the exhaust of a motor vehicle in the yard, but as the unusual noise soon ceased the little girl drowsed again. At daylight, on going out to the barn to feed his stock, Mr. Stenkeritis found blood spattered about the walls of the stable and a large dark pool on the floor. Someone had attempted to unjoint a hip bone on one of his big team horses, by using a butcher knife. Several stabs had been made and with each thrust the knife had been worked around in an unsuccessful attempt to locate the joint.

Stenkeritis's delay in notifying the police, was due to the fact that he deemed that with silence on his part that he himself could locate the guilty party.

It is believed by the officers that this is another of the inhuman attempts to wreak vengeance on a man, by crippling and mutilating his animals. The horse, worth $350, was one of a heavy team pair, and will weigh 13 or 14 hundred pounds.

M. D. Gray, a Norwich veterinary, was sent for in an attempt to save the life of the animal. The criminal, in leaving the barn, took the keys of both Stenkerits's automobiles.

Gray was in charge of the program which was entitled Combination Salad, Yellow paper oranges and green paper lettuce leaves were distributed, the first symbolical of age, being typical of the Baptist Ministers' and Missionaries' Benefit board, while the second represented youth and growth, as seen in the board of education. The papers contained articles on these institutions, which were read by the members present. At the conclusion of the service tea and wafers were served by the hostess, Mrs. C. H. Prior, assisted by Miss Ellen Prior, Mrs. E. M. Grey and Miss Mabel McBroom.

It is with regret that his townspeople learn that "Ben" Schlieffer decided not to stand for re-election as president of the Chamber of Commerce. Mr. Schlieffer has closed his contract with the grain company, of which he was manager. He will now visit New York for a week's vacation, then returning to Connecticut will establish business elsewhere.

ZERO WEATHER WORKS AGAINST STORRS HENS

Zero weather during the thirteenth week of competition at Storrs was responsible for the continued drop in egg production; the contest pullets laying 172 eggs less than the total produced in the twelfth week. The lay for the week was 4,301 eggs or almost forty-four per cent. Despite the fact that these figures show a decrease over the previous week's lay, the total represents a gain of 1,054 eggs over the production for the corresponding week a year ago. To date, the contest pullets have laid a grand total of 47,430 eggs.

The Dudley Poultry Farm White Leghorns from Webster, Mass., leading pen in the White Leghorn class and second high pen in the contest, made the best record for the week with a lay of fifty-one eggs. Following closely behind for second place was the Rhode Island Red entry of George B. Treadwell, from Spencer, Mass., with a lay of fifty eggs. A pen of White Leghorns entered by Henry Rapp, Jr., from Farmingdale, N. J., was third for the week with a production of forty-eight eggs. Three pens were tied for fourth position, each with a lay of forty-six eggs. They are the Winlay White Wyandottes from Mystic, Conn., and two Rhode Island Red pens entered by Fred H. Sampson from Springfield, Mass., and F. E. Freeman from Middletown, Ohio.

The only change among the leading pens took place in the White Leghorn class. Entries of the Marquis Poultry Farm from Toms River, N. J., and Amakassin Farm from Yonkers, N. Y., went up into fourth and fifth positions respectively, while the entry of R. W. Colman from Medina, N. Y., was dropped from its position among the leading pens in the White Leghorn class.

With a record of 643 eggs to date, the Rhode Island entry of John Z. LaBelle, from Ballouville, Conn., continues to lead all other pens in the contest. This is a thirty-eight egg lead over the second high pen, the White Leghorn entry of Dudley Poultry Farm from Webster, Mass., which to date has a record of 605 eggs.

URGES EASTERN CONN. TOWNS KEEP IN STEP

presented at this conference. The real spirit and enthusiasm are difficult to define and more difficult to transmit. That it was a big move is shown by the five billion dollars of annual business there represented. That it is full of potential value is true because it was a really successful attempt to bring a great variety of New England interests together in one room for one purpose. Our advantages were brought out for encouragement but considerable stress was also laid upon our faults. There were brought out points from which a very helpful lesson may be learned—one which applies with particular force to us here in New London county and Norwich, and which may be helpful in securing a place in the sun for eastern Connecticut.

Must Correct Faults

The great lesson is that we must see some of our own faults and correct them; because more than all else we of New England, of eastern Connecticut, of Norwich, are lacking in ability or willingness to change our minds. We find fault because things do not come to us, forgetting that we have the choice between being the early bird or the worm. Take for example the matter of attendance at Worcester. There were over 700 delegates of whom 71 came from Connecticut—9 1-2 per cent—but our populations is 18 1-2 per cent. of New England's total. Maine with a little over half our population sent 67 delegates, and Vermont with about a quarter of our population sent 87, while Massachusetts was naturally very heavily represented. New London county with 7 per cent. of our state's population, and 14 per cent of its area, had 4 delegates out of 71 or 5 per cent. Windham county had 4 delegates, 3 being from Putnam.

Let us then have a good square look at ourselves in a well polished mirror of introspection. We have beyond question many advantages and sufficient ability to maintain the high standards set up before us, but it is only applied talent which produces results. We may unerringly judge the quality of a piece of steel or be strong enough to lift a ton, but if the axe is to be sharpened somebody must turn the grindstone it is our activity here and now which determines our position and governs the future—not the glory of our ancestry. There are interesting and great chapters in our early history—things in which we may well take pride—but love of tradition should not obscure our vision. These early achievements form a wonderful background for today's picture, but it is well to remember that they are the background. We are too prone to view the present or future through this curtain of the past, giving that color to the picture which develops one of our greatest handicaps—self-satisfaction. Things as we do them must be right for that reason. Opinions we have are correct because they are ours; anything else is wrong because it is not ours; any change is out of the question because it is different. When we get that way we say we are conservative.

Now the glory of our past does not rest upon any such foundation as this, but it does rest upon accomplishment; upon ability to meet and overcome great obstacles and courage to foresee and utilize changing conditions. Men went out from here, and from all New England, and built a nation. For this reason we are expected to be better trained, to do more expert work and greater things than are likely to obtain elsewhere. Geographic and climatic conditions we cannot control, but some of our acquired faults can be done away with.

Awake to Changes

We need here in New London county—in Norwich—to study the significance of the changes continually taking place rather than complain about them. A thing is not necessarily wrong because it is different. Changes must continually occur in order that there may be progress, and any given change has at least the same chance of being for good that it has for bad. We must not be too egotistical about this industrial leadership of ours, because at the time it was established the country was small and New England had about all there was of skill, capital, and developed water power—something like an only child being the flower of the family. Now, however, industrial activity is spread out all over the country and we are in a competitive situation. We are still the master craftsman in many things, but we must meet the newer condition by bringing our shop and our sales efforts up to date. A thing which hampers some of our enterprises is their having come down from a former generation, with investments in such shape that only a part of the income depends upon present management. In the newer sections of the country competing enterprises depend entirely upon present results, and are, therefore, likely to be more keenly operated; the new one is obliged to make its own way and the competition is sharpened. Necessity is said to be the mother of invention, but it is also the whiplash of achievement.

Another handicap of ours is a great capacity to whine—things are not so good as they might be. If they could be no better we could make no progress. Ask a man how the cotton business is in the Quinebaug Valley and he may give so many advantages of a cotton mill in the south that one wonders what keeps him here at all. The chances are that his mill may have 40 per cent. more spindles than it had before the war, and is running not over 75 per cent idle. There was a great Christmas trade this season in Norwich, and yet, when one of our merchants was questioned about it, he said "the trade was pretty good but it could have been more." It probably was more at Filene's, or Macy's, or Marshall Fields. There will always be room for growth and improvement, but there will always be difficulty in seeing it through a wall of pessimism plastered with self-satisfaction on one side and prejudice on the other.

New England Forging Ahead

The actual fact in the case is that we here and in New England generally, are forging ahead—not so rapidly as a new section of country, of course, but that should hardly be expected. Better and improving conditions obtain in cotton cloth and yarn; people are better off than ever before, housing conditions are improved, relations between employer and employe are better than ever before, cost of living is somewhat lower and there has been a good increase in savings deposits. Certainly there seems to be nothing discouraging in this.

We have capital, skill, and administrative ability with which to successfully handle our affairs and meet such competition as may exist. We have good rail and water transportation, and are not only near but actually within, good markets. We have attractive hill country, nearby sea shore, and plenty of room for more people to live where the climate is not severe. If the country's transportation system will put Minnesota eggs and butter into the Boston market, it certainly will bring cotton to the Quinebaug valley and deliver our goods anywhere.

Optimism Lacking

We lack optimism; we lack that courage and frankness in meeting new conditions which is rightly our heritage; we lack ability or willingness to tell the world of our advantages; in a word, we lack that vigor of youth which years ago established our town and our leadership. It has been said that such vigor is not to be expected in this an older section of the country. New York city was settled by the Dutch only six years after the Pilgrims landed, and yet there is little evidence of any lack of vigor there. Men active in business today are certainly not any older than men in corresponding positions years ago.

We may take from what has been done the fact that we are equipped to handle whatever may be before us. If we will squarely face the issues as they come up. No general formula has ever been written covering the success of either the individual or the community. The fact that we do not at the moment see some great coup by which big improvements may be brought about over night need be no discouragement. Spectacular performances are not likely to be lasting. The element of success lies rather in persistent effort applied in a definite line of action, leading to a definite goal. This thing lies within ourselves rather than in outside or general conditions. There is always some smaller duty ahead some little betterment to be made, some moment when vision is a bit clearer constituting the opportunity for improvement which we must grasp. These are the things we can all do every day, and for that reason they are the things which count. This will require a more intimate appreciation of each other, and a knowledge that we are winning and retaining that which is rightly our own. Do we want a place in the sun for eastern Connecticut? Well, the sun is shining—bring her out into it.

SIX-WHEEL MOTOR VEHICLE PLANT MAY BE ESTABLISHED IN NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 3—New London has in prospect now an industry that is very likely to be a success from the beginning. The city has been badly pressed for industries in recent years. Now it may be favored and not through any effort of its citizens. The natural advantages of the city, the outlook for the tremendous prosperity of the motor vehicle industry and the merits of the product of the Sarazin Truck company are factors that are intended to favor New London. Edward F. Bunker and his associates are in the city with a view to establishing the industry. So far as is known they have not sought to obtain any capital for their enterprise, which was established at Haverhill, Mass., a couple of years and which has in that time produced six wheel trucks and coaches. It is claimed for the vehicles that they are adapted to narrow streets and that they remove from the highway much of the load that is put there by the four-wheel vehicles. So the cost of operation is lessened and the usefulness of the automotive machine is increased. The factory, it is intended, will be established at Fort Nelk in the building made use of by the Norwich Automatic Folder company some few years ago. The business will be established by the 1st of April next if the plans of the promoters are carried out. Some forty hands will be given employment to begin the business. There is ample opportunity to extend the business there, once it is established. Coaches that will convey 25, 35 and 45 passengers are to be built, according to the promoters of the enterprise. Haverhill did not afford the facilities sought by the company, so the establishment of the business here, where railroad and water shipments are handy, was considered.

SENTENCED TO WORK OUT SUSPENDED JAIL PENALTY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 3—Violators of the liquor law in this city who were so fortunate as to have the execution of jail sentences suspended last October, when they were convicted of transporting booze must come to understand that the court meant what was said in suspending the penalty imposed upon the offenders. Louis Ramistella, a taximan, evidently regarded as trivial the advice the court gave him, for about a month after he was penalized here he was arrested at Stamford for conveying booze and there was sent to jail for thirty days. He was liberated last Saturday and came back here fresh as a June daisy. Today he was sent to jail here to work out the penalty imposed last October. Louis made his own plea that he might be spared the penalty, representing that he had two families to support and promised emphatically that he would never be caught transporting again. That plea did not avail him anything for Judge Crandall declared that his duty was obvious and that Louis having offended, there was nothing for the court to do but to see that the penalty was imposed. The court told him he had had his chance, but threw it away.

Alfred Morin made a poor showing when he appeared in the police court this morning to answer for a breach of the peace—offensive conduct—at his home. He said he was not guilty and then went upon the witness stand and by what he said disclosed that he was decidedly guilty. He is accused of having a thirst for rum, whether that accusation is correct or not. Last night he was charged with having "a few under his belt" and that condition led him to seek credit in the name of his father-in-law, Julius Watrous. Morin wanted tobacco and cigarettes and went to the Cochrane store to get them without cash to pay. There he was told that "Pop" had shut down on that sort of business. He went home in an ugly frame of mind and immediately began to smash things, and making a fairly complete job of it as he vented his wrath on the store, the stove pipe and pictures, etc. Pop was away from home at the time so Alfred got away with that sort of conduct. When Pop did arrive, Alfred was complained of to the police and there was trouble for him. It was recited today that Morin's wife died last April and that since then his four children, three girls and a boy, have had a precarious existence. They are too young to do for themselves and have been allowed freedom they should not have had. The case is one in which it is difficult to know what to do that is for the best interests of the children. There is no doubt as to what should be done with the father. To determine whether the family can be brought into a condition in the which the little ones will be cared for the case was continued till the 8th of March and that Good Samaritan, Richard W. Mansfield is to try his skill and his patience in bringing about the desired change.

Cambridge C. Hutchins was charged with allowing money to stick to his fingers that he should as agent for the Hoover Vacuum cleaner have turned over to his employers. Some $130 was represented in the transactions. He was arrested a week or more ago, but the case was postponed till today. It was disclosed this morning that Hutchins had made restitution of the money belonging to the Hoover company. With that assurance Hutchins was allowed to pay the costs of his trial and keep out of jail. He employed an attorney and paid $20 as the expense of his trial, so the experience was a costly one for him.

Thomas Grady came up with the Fishers' Island story when charged with intoxication. But his recital had the merit of truth and it won for him a suspension of judgment.

The funeral of Miss Eda R. Ferri, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Salvatore Ferri, Station 7, Waterford, was held this afternoon at 2 o'clock at the residence of the girl's parents. Burial was in St. Mary's cemetery.

Mrs. Daniel Moran, 314 Montauk avenue, reported to the police shortly after 1 o'clock this morning and but a short time after she had retired that she heard a noise in the attic and later in the cellar which indicated that an intruder was in the house. Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman William Riordan were dispatched to the house, but upon searching the rooms no sign of the supposed visitor was found.

Patrick Ahearn, driver of one of the busses operated between New London and the submarine base, reported to the police late last night that a stone had been hurled through one of the windows of the bus as it passed through Main street, near Church St. Patrolman John Foley was assigned to investigate the complaint. From circumstances attending the affair, it was evident that the window had been smashed by a sailor accidentally forcing his elbow through it. The stone was not found in the bus and only a small quantity of glass was on the bus floor, but a larger quantity of glass was found at the location where Ahearn stated that the stone had been thrown.

Miss Harriet Emmerich, clerk in the probate court, returned to her home, Connecticut avenue, this evening having attended the inaugural ceremony at the capitol, Richmond, Va., earlier in the week.

Mrs. Edith Dennis of Summer street has resigned as stenographer in the office of City Clerk Julian D. Moran.

Mrs. Wallace Halyburton and infant son of Middletown; Wells Dimmock, Waterford and Louis Howard of Norwich, patients at Lawrence Memorial Associated hospital, were discharged today.

The detail of police, who have been stationed at the entrances of alleged gambling and liquor places for a week, in an attempt to obtain evidence of the law being violated, have been withdrawn and with no evidence having been secured.

Councilor James A. May reported to the police this evening that an attempt had been made to steal his automobile. Mr. May declared that he left his machine in front of his office on State street and absented himself about an hour. When he returned to the car he observed evidence of the machine having been entered and upon investigating determined that the wires leading to the lock had been cut and an effort made to splice them that the engine could be started. But in this attempt the crook was unsuccessful because of the machine being equipped with a double lock. The alleged attempt to steal the automobile was between 7.30 and 8.30 o'clock and when State street was crowded with men and women on their way to the playhouses.

The condition of Hugh McPartland, Ocean avenue, and well known master plumber, who underwent an operation at Lawrence hospital recently, does not improve as rapidly as was anticipated.

Mrs. Mildred Culver McGourty, 36 Harris street, and widow of Lieut. Com. John F. McGourty, U. S. N., and Stanton Green, were married this evening at 6.30 o'clock at St. James Episcopal church in the presence of relatives and intimate acquaintances. The marriage ceremony was performed by Rev. Philip M. Kerridge, rector of the church.

The annual banquet of New London lodge, No. 360, Benevolent and Protective Order of Elks, occurred this evening by about 200 members and members of lodges in Norwich, Westerly and Hartford. Following the feasting and post prandial exercises a vaudeville entertainment was provided.

GOLDSMITH BUILDING THREATENED BY FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 3—The Goldsmith building, a four story structure, corner of State and Main streets, was threatened with extensive damage by fire at 4.30 o'clock this afternoon when a lively blaze was discovered on the roof. Damage will not exceed $1000 for the firemen confined the blaze to the roof, but it was not until a half hour after the fire was discovered that it was finally extinguished.

The fire was discovered by pedestrians, who observed smoke issuing from the roof close to the State street side. An alarm was rung in from Box 33, corner of State and North Bank streets, summoning the firemen. Lines of chemicals were stretched to the roof, but as the blaze had got beneath the building covering, the task of subduing the flames was a difficult and obstinate one. Chief Charles Rose directed the work of the firemen and after several tanks of chemicals had been deposited upon the fire it was subdued.

How the fire originated is not definitely known, but it is believed to have started from defective wiring in an illuminated advertising sign, which is operated from the roof of the structure close to where the fire was in progress when the firemen arrived on top of the building.

The upper floors of the building are occupied as offices, but none of the tenants suffered damage.

POLICE ARREST MAN CHARGED WITH RAPE

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 3—Thomas Benjamin James, colored, formerly of New London, and who has been sought by the New London police six months to answer for a charge of rape, was arrested late this afternoon by the Providence police. He was brought back to New London by Sergeant John Cavanaugh of the local department at 10.35 o'clock this evening and made a prisoner at the police station to await being given a hearing in the police court tomorrow.

James, it is alleged, is guilty of having committed rape on at least two or three occasions on a 16 year old white girl, who is now an inmate at Long Lane Farm, Middletown, a school for wayward girls, having been committed by Judge S. Victor Prince at the time of the alleged assault.

According to the girl the assaults were committed at her home and during the absence of her foster-mother. The authorities finally became aware of the alleged assaults and when the girl was interviewed and related her story, a search was made for James, but he had left the city. He was near apprehension several times in New York, but escaped being taken into custody. This afternoon when he appeared in Providence he was immediately apprehended and the New London police notified of the arrest.

The girl's parents now reside in North Stonington, but at the time that they consented to the adoption of the child, they resided in Willimantic and it was the probate court of that city that ratified the child's adoption. A plan is now in progress in an attempt to cause the girl to be returned to her natural parents and if that is obtained she will receive her discharge from the Middletown institution.

Palace Theatre

The old time fiddlers contest for the championship of Eastern Connecticut, opens at the Palace tonight and the management announces a very fine list of all the local favorites. Two youngsters that will bear watching are Orin Price from the Falls who paid us a visit yesterday that we enjoyed very much. With eighty-two young years on his shoulders and shaking a wicked horsehair across the cat gut we can see where he is going to make some of the other youngsters step to keep up the pace he is going to set. Another youngster and just as spry and full of pep is Wm. Henry Whitman 79 years young who is going to step out behind the footlights and give us all a treat with his old time melodies. Mr. Whitman paid us a visit today and we are sure that his neighbors from Bean Hill are going to be on hand when he steps into the spot light. Then there is George H. Smith just turning sixty-five who can easily pass for a whole lot less, that has his fiddle all tuned up and rearing to go. Edward Capron is also on the job and somebody has got to play pretty lively to nose him out of the first money. Patrick Gaynor who has probably the only fiddle of its kind in the state which by the way is all metal and was brought over from Japan, he too is going to be among those present and after hearing him fiddle a little bit we are then again all at sea as to who will be the ultimate winner. Ledyard will be represented by a Mr. Spicer whom we don't know much about but whose neighbors say that he will do himself proud and the community he represents. Montville sends down Ovala Greenwood and Frances De Mara while Jewett City will be ably represented by Napoleon Laliberte. Phillip Morris who sings and dances as well as play the fiddle will be there doin' girls stuff. It looks as though a good time was going to be had by all so let's start early and get down front.

The management promises a big vaudeville bill and a peppy picture The Fighting Edge with Kenneth Harlan and Patsy Ruth Miller.

Broadway Theatre

Never before has any theater in this state attempted to put on such a mammoth program as will be shown tonight at the Broadway theater.

The program will open with the feature picture which is adapted from that sensational novel by Gertie D. Wentworth-James, "The Girl Who Wouldn't Work." A brilliant cast of players are featured such as Lionel Barrymore, Marguerite De La Motte, Henry B. Walthall, Lilyan Tashman, Forrest Stanley and others of prominence.

Following will come the regular Keith-Albee stage acts, of which there are five. They are Herbert Lloyd and his Village Belles in a Burlesque classic "A Foot There Was" (Even worse than you and I)—Eddie Boiger, "The Banjoker"—The De Lyons Duo "novelty equilibrists"—William OClare and Madeline in "A Bit of Ould Ireland" and more laugh with Clifford & Kramer, comedians. Special note, for a grand finale Herbert Lloyd and his Girls assisted by the entire bill will put on a clown finale.

And then the contest will start.

The Harmonica contest comes first. A number of harmonicists from Norwich and vicinity have entered and a glance at the theater ad, elsewhere in this paper will show that you can look forward to a great time.

The New London County Old Time Fiddlers contest will wind up this gigantic program at which an unlimited amount of laughter is assured.

At The Breed

Lovers of thrilling Western melodrama and the many admirers of Buck Jones, can look forward to a decided treat when that stars latest picture, "The Timber Wolf" is featured as the principal attraction of a big double feature photoplay attraction at the Breed theater today, Friday and Saturday. Besides the usual hard fighting and fast riding episodes for which all Mr. Jones' vehicles are noted, this one offers an unusual love story in which the hero kidnaps a girl who thinks she hates him, and teaches her to love him in the end.

It's a great film with a splendid cast, with Elinor Fair as the fascinating heroine and Dave Dyas, Sam Allen, William Walling and Robert Mack supporting the principals.

"Stop Flirting," the great Christie laughing hit takes its place as the second big attraction on this mammoth double bill. With John T. Murray, Wanda Hawley, Jimmie Adams, Jack Duffy, David James, Ethel Shannon and a host of other fun makers playing the leading roles under the direction of the great Scott Sidney who acknowledges "Charley's Aunt" as his latest masterpiece, it is small wonder this is a whirlwind farce that hits the public like a cyclone.

The opening chapter of the new Pathe mystery chapter play, The Green Archer, with Allene Ray and Walter Miller and the Pathe News make up one of the finest picture programs seen on any local screen.

Patience is all right in its place, but it is better to back tenacity to win.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

The Norwich Social Workers Round Table meeting will be held at No. 8 Washington street, Friday at 4 p. m.

Sold on Lincoln Court

Miss Charlotte Barber has sold her seven room cottage located at No. 1 Lincoln Court to Joseph Romano of this city who will occupy it as his home. The sale was negotiated through the Real Estate Agency of Mrs. Rosa E. Benton.

Coming to the Breed

Massive concrete foundations were sunk and steel girders fabricated at Universal City for the largest interior set ever constructed, and incidentally the first all-steel motion picture set in the history of the industry. This is the huge reproduction of the Paris Opera, used for the production of "The Phantom of the Opera." Lon Chaney's successor to? "The Hunchback of Notre Dame," which is coming Sunday to the Breed theater.

Because of the big crowds to be placed on the grand staircase, in the many boxes and big auditorium, and on the stage, where several hundred people appear in ballets and other spectacles, the usual wooden construction in studios were abandoned. The entire set was made in steel and concrete, just as modern office buildings are constructed. The story enacted in these settings is a gripping mystery dealing with the "Opera Ghost," enacted by Lon Chaney, a weird figure of darkness whose activities spread nameless terror through the gay throngs of the brilliant opera. Mary Philbin, Universal's wonder girl, plays Christine, the heroine and Norman Kerry, Raoul, her lover and rescuer. Arthur Edmund Carewe as the mysterious "Persian," Gibson Gowland as "Simon," Nemesis of the Phantom, Virginia Pearson, John Sainpolis, and twenty-five other principals as well as four thousand extras took part in the play. The gorgeous opera scenes were photographed in color to add to their attractiveness.

Creomulsion contains in addition to creosote, other healing elements which soothe and heal the infected membranes and stop the irritation and inflammation, while the creosote goes on to the stomach, is absorbed into the blood, attacks the seat of the trouble and checks the growth of the germs.

Creomulsion is guaranteed satisfactory in the treatment of persistent coughs and colds, bronchial asthma, bronchitis and other forms of respiratory diseases, and is excellent for building up the system after colds or flu. Money refunded if any cough or cold is not relieved after taking according to directions. Ask your druggist. Creomulsion Company, Atlanta, Ga. (adv.)

Case to speak on behalf of the new members and P. D. Donohue to talk for the building committee of which he is chairman. Both responded in appropriate manner. A social hour with special entertainment arranged by a committee, headed by James H. Hurley, followed the regular session. Refreshments were served and the program consisted of orchestral music by the Melody Boys, piano selections by John T. Quinlan, vocal solos by Robert H. Fletcher and Louis Ashton and several amateur performances.

MARKET WAS BULLISH.

NEW YORK, Feb. 3.—(By The A. P.)—Bullish sentiment became more pronounced in today's stock market which showed a tendency to break away, on the up side, from the narrow trading area within which it has been fluctuating for the last few weeks. Easier money rates stimulated the demand for stocks with the oils, sulphurs, foods, coppers, rubbers and equipments, al giving good exhibitions of group strength. The upturn was accompanied by increased activity, the day's sales running over one and three-quarters millions shares.

Oils bounded upward when it became apparent that recent crude oil and gasoline price increases were assuming nation wide proportions. Pacific Oil was the leader of that group, moving up over two points to 80 1-2, the highest price since the stock was admitted to trading over five years ago.

Nash Motors was the spectacular individual feature, soaring nearly 45 points to 595, also a new high record, on toal sales of less than 1,500 shares. Other motors, which are believed to harbor a large short interest, displayed a firm undertone. Net gains of 1 to 2 1-2 points were recovered by General Motors, Mack Trucks and Willys-Overland preferred, the strength of the last named being based on reports of the retirement of a large block of that issue.

Despite the fact that the weekly steel trade reviews reported little change in the situation, a better demand was noted for those issues. United States Steel common closed fractionally higher at 133 1-4, but Sloss-Sheffield was run up 3 1-2 points to 126 1-2 and Gulf States Steel scored an extreme gain of 3 1-2 points at 83 5-8, part of which was later lost. Wall street hears persistent reports of a merger of independent steel companies, but to date there has been no tangible evidence of a new combination being formed.

The advance in rubber shares was checked by the announcement of a reduction in prices by the United States Rubber Company, the common stock of which showed a net gain of nearly one point at 83 1-2 after having sold as high as 85 3-8 earlier in the session. Goodrich closed 1 3-8 higher at 78. Higher prices for the red metal accelerated demand for the copper stocks, American Smelting recording a net gain of over two points at 140 3-4 after touching 141 1-2, the highest price since 1907. Federal Mining and Smelting jumped 5 points to 103, the preferred closed 3 points higher at 96 1-2 and Anaconda moved up over a point to 49.

Other outstanding industrial strong spots included Allied Chemical, American Beet Sugar preferred, American Can, American Zinc preferred, California Packing, National Lead, Third Avenue, United Drug and United Fruit, the net gains in which ran from 4 to nearly 12 points.

Rail shares lagged behind the rest of the list with heaviness cropping out in the eastern coalers as a result of the third failure of the anthracite conference to reach an agreement. Canadian Pacific, for which a strong foreign demand has suddenly developed, moved up to 12, the highest price since 1919, but later cancelled the day's gain on realising. Louisville and Nashville and Atlantic Coast Line also showed independent strength.

Commodity markets were mixed Wheat futures advanced over a cent a bushel on additional reports of unfavorable weather in the Argentine. Cotton again fluctuated within an area of 14 points, closing slightly lower on the day. Spot raw sugar was 1-32 of a cent a point lower but the futures displayed a firm undertone. Coffee sagged 1 to 4 points in reflection of a less active demand for the product out of local warehouse stocks.

Call money held steady at four per cent., but funds were available in the "outside market" as low as 3 1-2. Time money and commercial paper rates were unchanged.

Foreign exchanges again moved within a narrow area. Sterling exchange continued within striking distance of gold parity, which is approximately .86 5-8 for cables. French francs were slightly firmer just above 3.75 cents. Polish sloty rallied above 14 cents being heavy earlier in the week.

TAFTVILLE

There was a large attendance at the morning service and also at the evening service at 7 o'clock at the Sacred Heart church, Wednesday. This being the Feast of St. Plais, hundreds of the parishioners went forward to have their throats blessed, many after the morning mass, and hundreds of workers in the evening.

The Independent Order of Foresters held their regular monthly meeting Wednesday evening at St. Louis hall on Dion Street.

The crowds continue to flock to Parish hall for the joint carnival of the Sacred Heart church and the Army and Navy club. Thursday night will see some old fashioned dancing with old fashioned fiddlers furnishing the music. Several old time fiddlers have been secured and this will no doubt prove a treat to those who have been waiting for such an event. The carnival is to come to a close Saturday night, and from indications now, it will mark the close of one of the most successful affairs of the kind ever held in this part of the state.

North Third avenue being heavily coated with ice and snow is the meeting place for crowds of children of the village after school hours and in the evening. There is not much traffic on this street, consequently less liability for accidents, than on the town and state roads.

The monthly business meeting of St. Veronica's T. A. and B. society was held Monday evening at the society's rooms on Providence street. The president, Miss Mary Hanlon was in charge of the meeting.

Miss Arline Linderson of Gurleyville has been spending several days at the home of her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Linderson and family of North Third avenue.

A conclave of Castle Perilous, K. O. K. A. was held Wednesday evening at the vestry of the Taftville Congregational Church, in charge of Terrace M. Buckley. The castle has received word from the capital of the province at Boston, of the annual provincial conclave to be held this year at Lynn, Mass., on February 22nd. All castles subject to the province are asked to send delegates, and castles from other parts of New England have been invited. The program includes indoor sports at the Lynn Y. M. C. A. which has been loaned to the order for the day; a luncheon and songfest at noon; and an elaborate conclave with full regalia and banners in the afternoon. Plans are being made for 1,000 visiting delegates to take part in the processional preceding the conclave. Castle Perilous is making plans to celebrate the opening of the Provincial conclave with a ceremonial on February 17th.

Word has been received in town of the death in Florida of William Booth, of Providence, R. I., at one time a resident of Taftville, and well known locally. Mr. Booth was treasurer of the Pioneer Boys of Taftville, and was active last summer in promoting the annual meeting, reunion and Old Home week, sponsored by that organization, which was held in the village and lasted for three days.

The last meeting of the Ocowasin Camp Fire Girls was held with Miss Eva Nagle at her home on South Second avenue. The O. J. S. met Wednesday evening with Miss Mildred Dunlop of Germania avenue.

GILPATRIC PROPOSES THAT HE AID THE INVESTIGATORS OF HIS TRANSACTIONS

HARTFORD, Feb. 3.—(AP)—A letter from former State Treasurer G. Harold Gilpatric proposing that he and the investigators of his transactions "sit in conference and have all cards laid upon the table," was made public tonight by the governor's investigating committee, through Secretary Charles G. Morris.

"It hurts me to have the state of Connecticut appropriate and expend $10,000 to carry out this special investigation unless it is absolutely necessary," wrote the former treasurer from the Atlanta penitentiary. He vaguely recalled two state bond transactions involving $250,000 which were made under his administration of the state treasury about five years ago, and that his deputy, Charles F. Sumner, criticized "an unaccountable delay by the bank in the delivery of one of these lots of bonds," but emphatically denied that he had ever "taken any bonds or securities from the vaults or offices of the state of Connecticut," or "ever made any false entries on the books of the treasury department."

Following is the letter written by Gilpatric from the Atlanta penitentiary to his brother, F. R. Gilpatric, and transmitted to the state authorities:

"Dear Raymond: Have just wired you to get in communication with the governor and the attorney general, with reference to the impending investigation before the special committee appointed by the governor.

"This will be a rather lengthy letter, but I am determined to get forth my view in this matter, and hope you can see the whole affair in the light that I do.

"In the first place, I am very glad that the governor has appointed a special committee and the personnel is of the highest. While I do not know Mr. Morris, I have every confidence in him and am sure that a report of findings from such men as Governor Holcomb, Morgan G. Brainard, and Mr. Morris, will be final insofar as this controversy is concerned, and will satisfy the people of the state.

"I can appreciate how disagreeable it is to all the members of my family to have another such outburst of publicity. It troubles me greatly, but it is here; the flames have been fanned, and it looks to me as though the fire was at its height. With this condition I cannot see how it can possibly hurt if I inject myself into the question of state vs. bank.

"I have racked my brain to recall these two or three transactions involving the purchase, or registration of bonds for the state, through the First National bank, of Putnam, but I cannot go back in my mind to five years ago, and fix with any surety, even a single transaction, either as to date or amount. I do think there was a two hundred thousand ($200,000) dollar transaction, one for around one hundred and fifty ($150,000) dollars, and from what Walter has written me, there seems to have been an unaccountable delay by the bank, in the delivery of one of these lots of bonds. I remember that there was a transaction in which Mr. Sumner criticised this delay, and I presume that this is the same one that Walter mentions.

"Now, what I propose for the consideration of those interested, is that the governor, the attorney general, the special committee representing the state, the receiver, his counsel, and the counsel for the creditors of the bank, shall meet in joint session, stating the exact discrepancies as shown by the recent audit of the First National bank. It has been arranged that I can go to Hartford to consult an eye specialist, and if the governor can get the authorization from the department of justice, at Washington, I would be very glad to meet this joint committee, go over each transaction as presented by the bank and if there is any irregularity, admit the same; in fact to trace it to the satisfaction of both sides, every move as shown by those interested in the bank.

"I want the creditors of the First National bank, of Putnam, to receive every dollar possible. As I have written you, my father's interest, and the Putnam Woolen company's interest, the control of which is in my wife's family, would cause me to lean towards the First National bank. On the other hand, I did not want to transfer anything to the state, or anybody, else, if it doesn't belong to them.

"I hope you and the others can see how utterly futile it would be for me to attempt to deny, dispute, or deceive any of the parties as to my irregularities. It would all come out after an investigation, and if I could save the state the expense, I would be only too glad to do so. I have caused so much trouble that I would like to feel that in this case I could be of help.

"I feel, in going before the parties interested, just as I did when I appeared in the federal court, before Judge Thomas. I wanted to know what the charges were, did not want the government to go to any unnecessary expense in the conducting of the trial, and plead guilty to all such charges of which I was guilty. I want to do the same in regard to this question between the state and the bank. I realize both the legal and the moral question that is involved. Legally, I know the state of Connecticut has paid the First National bank, of Putnam, for all securities it received from the bank and the bank has had credit for all such payments. I know that I have never taken any bonds, or securities, from the vaults or offices of the state of Connecticut, nor have I ever made any false entries on the books of the treasury department. In fact, I have never made a single book entry on any of the ledgers or books, of the treasury department during my entire term of office, for as treasurer, I acted wholly in an executive capacity.

"From what I learn of the newspaper publicity attached to this case, I feel that the public, and some of those interested, criticise me for an apparent attitude of silence. It has been brought to my attention that I have refused to give out any information relative to the affairs of the bank, the affairs of my bankrupt estate, or the affairs of the treasury department under my administration. Now, nothing could be further from the truth than this reported feeling. It has been my desire, and I have so expressed it at all times, to help in any way I could untangle any of my affairs. Early last year I wrote to the receiver of the First National bank, of Putnam, and in as strong language as I could command, offered my services, and any information I could give, to help him at that end, I wrote a similar letter to Mr. Howard, the trustee of my bankrupt estate, and also expressed, through you and Walter, a desire to help in the state matters.

"With all these apparent misunderstandings as a background, it hurts me to have the state of Connecticut appropriate, and expend $10,000 to carry out this special investigation, unless it is absolutely necessary. If it is, I would be the first to advocate the use of every dollar, and the appropriation of additional funds, if needed. But I do feel confident that every interest, from every angle, could be satisfied if an attempt were made to sit in conference and have all cards laid upon the table.

"I hope this letter reaches you before the committee contracts to expend this appropriation and hope that you and the others can see this matter as I do. In any event, if it seems best to go ahead without consulting me, I wish you would ask, in all fairness, that some representative be allowed to consult the findings with a view of a possible satisfactory explanation from me on some of the matters involved.

"I wish you would see that this letter is presented to the governor, through the attorney general, as I do not want my friends to run up against a condition that they feel has been misrepresented to them by me.

"Kindly let me hear from you as soon as possible, because you can imagine that I am somewhat concerned as to the outcome.

"Your affectionate brother,
(Signed)
"G. H. GILPATRIC."

FAITH TRUMBULL CHAPTER ELECTS ITS DELEGATES

Delegates to the D. A. R., Continental Congress in Washington, April 19 to 26, and to the state conference in Stamford, March, 18-19, were elected at the February meeting of Faith Trumbull chapter, Daughters of the Revolution, which was held Wednesday afternoon at the Community house Church street, with the regent, Mrs. William H. Dawley, presiding.

To the state conference in Stamford, the regent, Mrs. Dawley and Mrs. Albert S. Comstock are delegates ex-officio. The delegates elected were Mrs. Harriet S. Blackmar and Mrs. Daniel M. Lester; alternates, Mrs. Harry E. Higgins, Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn. The delegates elected to the continental congress were Mrs. W. H. Dawley and Mrs. A. S. Comstock with the following alternates: Mrs. Harriet S. Blackmar, Mrs. Luther K. Zabriskie, Miss Barbara F. Allen, Mrs. Daniel M. Lester, Mrs. W. H. Oat, Miss Carrie E. Rogers, Mrs. Leslie L. Brewer, Mrs. George Haskell, Miss Susan I. Gallup and Mrs. Roy D. Judd.

The usual reports of the officers were made at the opening of the business meeting and the committee reports included those from Mrs. Samuel E. Smiley for the ways and means committee, Mrs. Frank S. Hempstead for the conservation committee and a talk by Mrs. Robert W. Otis who spoke under the auspices of the patriotic education committee, describing an Americanization work that is carried on in Norwich through the school for Italians, which is conducted at the Central Baptist church. At the close of her talk the chapter voted $25 for this work.

The chapter voted $5.00 to the Wakefield association which is formed to buy and care for some acres on the Potomac River that include the birthplace of George Washington, to prevent the use of this land for factory sites.

The regent welcomed five new members presenting each with her certificate of membership and also with a copy of the pamphlet "Why I am a Daughter" by a former president general, Mrs. George Maynard Miner. The five who received certificates were: Mrs. Adams P. Carroll, Mrs. E. J. Jones, Mrs. Benjamin H. Palmer, Miss Marion Otis Palmer, Mrs. Albert J. Sisey.

A paper which was listened to with much interest was read by Mrs. A. N. H. Vaughn upon Sulgrave Manor in England, which was purchased as a detail of the program formulated by an International American-British committee, organized to celebrate in 1914-15 the 100 years of peace among English speaking peoples, following the ratification of the Treaty of Ghent in 1815. The manor is the Mt. Vernon of Great Britain, the home of direct ancestors of George Washington. The ancestors of four presidents of the United States dwelt in this part of England, so-called Midlands, the seat of much of historic interest. The village has only 500 inhabitants inaccessible now as then except by carriage, only two streets, Big and Little the dwellings of gray and red sand stone, steep roofs, high chimneys looking like a little flock of children under the eaves of the Manor. Those who prefer the English type of country house, may find it here, unique even among many others. It was a ruin, passing into decay, now, under the care of the English-American committee, the interior has been uncovered, so called restorations removed, the furniture of Jacobean period only used, it has become once more a beautiful English mansion. Even the gardens where Madam Washington once took the air are planted in rosemary, lavendar, pansies, fennel, columbine, daisies and violets. Over all float the British flag and the Stars and Stripes in peaceful harmony.

At the close of the afternoon tea was served by the following committee. Miss Barbara F. Allen, chairman, Miss Natalie E. Hampton, Mrs. George L. Ingalls, Mrs. Herbert M. Leron, Mrs. Frank I. Royce. At the tea table were: Mrs. William H. Dawley and Mrs. Luther K. Zabriskie.

Two groups of songs were finely sung by Mrs. F. D. Ballou of Jewett City, with Mrs. Charles A. Saxton accompanist. The selections were:

Trees, Carl Hahn; Greeting, C. B. Hawley; Irish Folk Song, Arthur Foote; Serenade, Good Night, Good Night Beloved, Ethelbert Nevin.

NEW HAVEN ENTHUSED BY FRANK FARRELL'S PLAYING

The New Haven Union says:

Those who attended the Foot Guard concert at Poli's Palace theatre Tuesday afternoon experienced several musical thrills and surprises.

Harry Berman, the conductor, had recruited some 65 players from the New Haven Symphony and other orchestras in the city and with this band of capable performers gave a surprisingly fine concert.

The outstanding feature was the solo-pianist, Frank Farrell. His program selection was the E flat concerto by Lizat. This was given with orchestral accompaniment. Not only is he the master of a most brilliant technique, possessing amazing power and virility, grace and beauty of tone, but his playing may be described as coming from his soul. Mr. Berman and his men did well with so intricate a score and when the crashing, tornadic finale was finished, the audience burst into enthusiastic applause, emphatic in its intensity.

After several recalls, Mr. Farrell played the Chopin Nocturn, Opius 15, No. 2. Here again his exquisite touch and soulful imagination were in evidence. Nor was this all. Another encore was demanded, the Rubinstein Staccato Etude in C, which was played with fine spirit and amazing dexterity of technique. Mr. Farrell is a "Steinway" player. He thus enjoys the distinction of having an instrument placed at his disposal wherever he plays. A critic's opinion then, would seem to be only corroborative.

WEST END COMMUNITY CLUB CONDUCTED CARD EVENING

An evening of whist, bridge and pinochle was enjoyed Monday at the Elizabeth street school house under the auspices of the West End Community association. There were 22 tables in play and prizes were awarded to the winners. The scorers were Alfred G. Lillibridge, Jr., and Donald B. Royce.

The arrangements committee comprised Mrs. C. B. Carpenter, Mrs. M. E. Mullen, Miss Amy Burlingame, Mrs. Ralph Brown, Mrs. Edwin Griffith and Miss Harriet Holt. The candy table was in charge of Mrs. W. Avery Gallup. Misses Ida Heebner, Edna Jones, Althea Church and Cora Freeman.

The association is especially grateful to Cummings and Ring and Church and Allen for the loan of their chairs, and the Plaut-Cadden company for the use of an orthophonic Victrola, which furnished music during the evening.

UNCLE JOE SHIPPEE PLAYS FOR MILL ASSOCIATION GATHERING

The first meeting under the new officers of the Eastern Connecticut Mills Association, the membership of which includes office forces in about 30 mills in New London and Windham counties, was held Wednesday evening at the Wauregan hotel, with an attendance of over 100. Features of the meeting were an address by W. C. Burgy of this city, whose subject was Submarines, and the entertainment part of the evening in which New England's champion fiddler, Uncle Joe Shippee of Plainfield, played a prominent part.

A roast beef supper was served and when the cigars were passed President Walter M King, purchasing agent at the Guerin Mills, Mechanicsville, called the business meeting to order and this part of the evening was quickly disposed of.

The matter of holding a textile show was discussed and was left to the executive committee.

It was voted that resolutions upon the death of William M. Wood, former president of the American Co., several of whose mills have membership in this association be prepared by Secretary Prentice W. Chase, and forwarded to Mrs. Wood.

Special guests of the evening were Gordon Gale, secretary of the Danielson Chamber of Commerce, Frederick L. Babcock editor of Fibre and Fabric, the "grandfather" of this association, Joseph N. Paradis and Mr. Scales of the Fibre and Fabric staff, and George Goulston of Boston, who was instrumenta. in founding this mill association Mr Goulson was called upon to serve as song leader for the evening, the Ideal Radio orchestra playing during the banquet.

After adjournment of the business session, Secretary Chase, who was chairman of the entertainment committee, introduced Mr. Burgy as the speaker of the evening and the Norwich man's talk upon his experience upon submarines their construction and their operation was intensely interesting to the gathering and was warmly applauded.

Volunteer musical numbers that scored a big hit were offered by representatives of the American Woolen Co., mill at Yantic, which had a good sized delegation present. They gave Sweet Adeline as a chorus number. Agent Charles Molter sang a solo and Charles Harvey recited a parody on Barbara Frietchie in German dialect.

Then Uncle Joe Shippee was introduced carrying his faithful fiddle. From the first scrape of his bow the New England champion had the crowd with him and feet rapped out the time as he reeled off one old tune after another. The height of the enthusiasm was reached when eight of the men formed a square set to step it off to the music of Uncle Joe's fiddle.

Another salvo of applause came for Uncle Joe as Chairman Chase led him out and showed him wearing the championship gold medal that he won recently at the contest in Providence.

Two delightful entertainers who completed the programme of the evening were Miss Grace Chadwick, soprano soloist, and Miss Marion Miron, pianist, from a Boston bureau, who gave numbers that were repeatedly encored.

TRIAL OF SUIT FOR COMMISSION ON ORDERS

Trial in the $2,500 damage case brought by Charles W. Fisher, of Brooklyn, N. Y., against the Lebanon Valley Iron & Steel Co., of Lebanon, Pa., was begun and continued Wednesday, before Judge Allyn L. Brown, in the superior court at New London.

The plaintiff in his suit alleges that a commission and services are due him from the defendant company in the amount of $2,134.82, as the result of the alleged cancelling by the defendant of an order for spikes to be sent to the National Galvanizing Co., of Philadelphia, Pa., to be galvanized, after which they were to go to the Noank yard of the Groton iron works.

Fisher on the stand said that his profit was made only in handling the spikes to be galvanized. He said that on Aug. 30, 1918, he placed an order with the defendant concern to have spikes sent to be galvanized in Philadelphia and then shipped to the Noank concern. He said that the order was accepted but never filled, and, after much correspondence and many telephone calls, was cancelled. Attorney George Curtis Morgan appears for Fisher and Attorney Charles B. Whittlesey represents the Lebanon Valley Iron works.

The plaintiff's bill of particulars also alleges commissions on sales of feuder and bar iron to Greenport Basin and Construction Co., iron and boat materials to Nyack shipyard, and damages for cancelling parts of orders and not carrying out contracts.

FEISTER IN HOSPITAL WITH BROKEN ARM

David Feister, of 58 Fairmont street, suffered a broken right arm and multiple abrasions and contusions of the body and a New London man, Henry Hyde, of Howard street and Willets avenue, narrowly escaped serious injury Tuesday morning on the Norwich road when a delivery truck operated by Hyde skidded on the pavement of the road and striking a tree turned over three times.

According to Hyde, he was requested by Feister to give him a ride to Norwich when leaving New London. When the car reached a curve just beyond Connecticut college where several similar accidents have occurred during the past year the car began to skid.

The driver attempted to regain control but the car crashed into a tree on the right of the road and then turned over. Feister was thrown from the car in the crash with the tree and picked up unconscious by Hyde. Hyde escaped without a scratch.

A passing auto was hailed by Hyde and Feister was taken to a private hospital in New London. Later he was transferred to the Buckus hospital in this city where his condition was reported as improved Wednesday.

Feister is defendant in a suit brought against him by Hilda Thoma and her father Egidius Thoma, of 19 Lorenzo street, for $16,000 damages because of injuries received by Miss Thoma in an April when a motor truck, driven by Feister, ran into her on Boswell avenue near the city line at Taftville.

TAKES APPEAL FROM LIQUOR VIOLATION SENTENCE

In the city court Wednesday morning Stanley Kusak, 34, of No. 246 Yantic street, was fined $200 and costs and sent to jail for 30 days by Judge Arthur F. Libby, on a charge of violation of the liquor law. Kusak appealed to the court of common pleas and furnished a bond of $1,000. He was arrested early Tuesday evening in the raid conducted at his home by local police.

Being unable to prove the case against Alex Rincavitz, 32, No. 102 Yantic street, he was discharged by Judge Libby. The man was charged with breach of the peace in striking Mike Pietroszewicz, his brother-in-law Saturday night, with a bottle, inflicting a bad cut. The physician who attended the injured man said the cut was inflicted with a knife. It was intimated in court that Rincavitz and Pietroszewicz were fighting and that Mrs. Rincavitz, seeing that her husband was getting the worst of the fight, slashed Pietroszewicz with a knife. The city attorney said however that this could not be proven.

A local man who had trouble with his wife was given 10 days in jail suspended for six months.

SNOW CAUSED COLLAPSE OF WALL IN NEW BRITAIN, CAUSING DEATH OF SEVEN MEN

Wall at the Foundry at North & Judd Fell Into the Street and the Roof Fell on the Workmen—Eleven Men Are in the New Britain Hospital, Some in a Serious Condition—Six Men Are Unaccounted For—Gangs of Police and Firemen Worked All Night Searching the Debris in Quest of the Missing Men.

NEW BRITAIN, Conn., Feb. 4—(AP)—The collapse of a brick wall at the foundry of the North and Judd Manufacturing company in East Main St., today brought death to at least seven workmen, eleven others are in the New Britain general hospital, some in a serious condition, and six men are unaccounted for.

The accident was a direct result of the blizzard, which swept this section last night and today, snow gathering on the roof of the one-story building causing one wall to buckle. The wall fell into the streets and the roof of the structure dropped on the workers below.

The dead:
Tony Chertsafski, 328 Church street.
Joseph Rabis, 61 Laurel street.
Aiffio Brunetta, 14 Atlantic street.
Omar Bastille, 40 Church street.
Joseph Catanro.
Peter Sayszkowski, 80 Clark street.
One unidentified man.
The injured:
Frank Morak, arm mangled.
John Heisler, fireman, concussion of brain.
Thomas Mullen, gateman, shoulder and leg injured.
Patrick Prendergast.
M. Frembley.
E. Singleton.
B. Komsky.
Howard Jones fireman.
Icholas Foligna.
Leander Devolitis.
W. David, injury to head by falling brick.

The building, a brick structure, 150 feet long and 90 feet wide, was wrecked by the crash. The brick wall facing East Main street fell into the street and the unsupported roof, crashing down, left a scene of twisted steel and masses of brick. It was from under this mass of brick and timbers that the bodies of the workers were found. So far as could be learned there were no pedestrians passing the building at the time of the collapse.

The cause of the accident was in doubt for several hours, it first being believed that an explosion had caused the wall to crash into the street. No one could be found, however, who heard such a blast and an investigation by Building Inspector Arthur M. Rutherford this afternoon, established, almost conclusively, that the crash was caused by the weight of snow on the roof. The building inspector said he was unable to find any indications of an explosion. Raymond H. Sullivan, vice president and efficiency engineer of the company, said the company officials were convinced that the snow had been responsible for the accident.

A search for the dead and injured was started immediately, but the rescue crews were handicapped by huge drifts of snow that surrounded the factory and by the condition of the wreckage. A general alarm for fire brought the entire fire fighting force of the city to the scene and the police

SENATORS TALK BY RADIO ON PROHIBITION QUESTION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Coincident with the controversy aroused by the announcement in favor of light wines and beers by the Episcopal Church Temperance Society, the prohibition question was debated tonight on the air by two members of the senate.

Speaking from the studio of WRC, the station here of Radio Corporation of America, Senator Edge, republican, New Jersey, took the side of those advocating modification of the Volstead act, while Senator Dill, democrat, Washington, made the rejoinder on behalf of those opposing any change in the law.

Addressing an audience over the country reached through a series of linked stations, Senator Edge opened the debate with a talk of ten minutes. Senator Dill followed for fifteen minutes, and then the New Jersey senator was heard for five minutes in rebuttal.

The speakers agreed that corruption of public officials and a widespread illicit traffic in liquors had followed enactment of the Volstead law, but they were far apart as to the means of correcting these conditions.

Senator Edge contended that modification of the Volstead act "within the clear terms of the Constitution would partly subdue the spirit of protest and challenge now so apparent."

"Would it not be far better for the moral of the nation to have a temperate condition," he asked, "than to have prohibition that does not prohibit but rather breeds defiance and in addition leaves in its wake a rapidly broadening trail of misery and corruption?"

Declaring that "the bootleggers and the extreme drys are together resisting all efforts for modification," Senator Edge said. "Public opinion, as now daily expressed from the pulpit and the forum, is demanding action and freely admitting the error we have made.

"We are not enlisted in an effort to tear down, but rather to build up," he added. "To amend an unworkable law is not to violate it, but rather to make it worthy of the great republic in which we live."

Senator Dill told his audience that to legalize the sale of beer and light wines would be to return to conditions in pre-prohibition days, which as contended were far worse than those existing after six years of legal prohibition.

"There is only one course to follow if we are to remedy the evils that confront us," he said. "That is the straight-forward, honest course of obeying and enforcing the law."

SETTLEMENT WITH FORMER GERMAN RULERS DEFERRED

BERLIN, Feb. 4—(AP)—The reichstag, with its ear to the ground and showing its anxiety to follow popular opinion, today adopted by a two-thirds majority a bill which provides that all pending litigation concerning settlements by the various German states with their former rulers must be held in abeyance until June 30. Only the nationalists and fascists voted against the bill.

The act applies not only to the main royal families, including the Hohenzollerns, but also to all the secondary lines of former rulers. By this means the reichstag gains a respite which will be used to decide its future course with regard to this complicated question.

The settlements thus held in abeyance include that negotiated by the Prussian finance department with the Hohenzollerns and still awaiting final approval. By this arrangement the former kaiser's family would receive 30,000,000 marks in cash (about $7,150,000). Three palaces in Berlin and one in Bebelsberg, 180,000 acres of agricultural lands and forests and Berlin house property. William's total claims amounted to several hundred million marks.

TWO ELECTROCUTIONS IN SING SING LAST NIGHT

OSSINING, N. Y., Feb. —(AP)—Matthew Wasser, 37, and Ernest T. Mimms, 28, negro, were executed tonight in Sing Sing prison. Wasser, who went to the chair first was convicted of the murder of Howard Duff, a Niagara Falls paymaster, during a holdup. Mimms killed Detective Chester A. Hagen in the Bronx a year ago.

MINE SEALED IN EFFORT TO EXTINGUISH A FIRE

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Feb. 4—(AP)—The south entry of Horning mine No. 4, of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal company in which 16 men were entombed by an explosion yesterday, remained sealed tonight in an effort to extinguish a fire which prevented all attempts to reach the men. Mine and rescue officials planned to keep the mine sealed for at least twenty four hours, after which an entry will be cut, and should the fire prove under control further efforts to rescue the men will be made on the remote possibility that some may still be alive.

The general opinion is that the sixteen men left in the workings have met the fate of three of their fellow workmen, whose bodies have been taken out, but the one faint ray of hope that all have not perished rests on the fact that several of them were mine experts. Edward M. Ernst, general manager of the Pittsburgh Terminal Coal company and one of the men unaccounted for, was recognized as a safety expert, and old-time miners point out that Ernst and others of the entombed men might have succeded in bratticing themselves in some available space away from the smoke and gasses. Other missing men contend that the heat at the spot where the men were working is so intense that they could not possibly live, no matter how well protected.

A check-up today showed that two men, instead of three, escaped alive. They were Edward Travis and Lewis Powell. It was also revealed that of the men trapped, two are father and son, John Geth, Sr., 54, and John Geth, Jr., 28.

WILL SAVE CONNECTICUT CORPORATIONS ABOUT $1,000,000

HARTFORD, Feb. 4.—(AP)—A saving of approximately $1,000,000 to Connecticut corporations through the repeal of the federal capital stock tax and a substitute increase of one per cent. on the corporation income tax, is indicated by the amounts paid to the local office of the internal revenue department on such assessments during the past taxing period. The senate has voted in favor of both the capital stock tax repeal and the corporation income tax increase from 12 1-2 to 13 1-2 per cent. and the measures are now before the house.

Much of the saving to the corporations through possible repeal of the capital stock tax is expected to be offset by the increase in the amounts, paid in income tax which has been steady over a period of years. The capital stock tax returns for which are made in advance, amounts to $1,275,000, as of June 30, 1926. This would be abolished if the repeal becomes law.

The income tax paid by corporations for the calendar year 1925 amounts to $14,350,000. The one per cent. increase contemplated would mean at least $142,500 more, without consideration of the additions because of new corporations entering business or the increase in incomes of the present firms. It is estimated that the increases might easily bring this latter total to more than $200,000, offsetting by that amount the decrease through the repeal of the stock tax.

INJUNCTION AGAINST CON. STOCK EXCHANGE

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—Upon application of Attorney General Albert Ottinger, Supreme Court Justice Ford granted a preliminary injunction against the Consolidated Stock Exchange today and set February 11 as the date for a hearing, on request of Deputy Attorney General Winter for a permanent injunction and the appointment of a receiver.

The preliminary order forbids the continuance of certain practices alleged in the bill of complaint to be fraudulent and illegal. The defendants named are Thomas B. Maloney as president of the Consolidated, the Consolidated Clearing House of New York, Ltd., and the Consolidated Exchange Building company.

Service was made upon the defendants today, according to Deputy Attorney General Milholland, who declared that in the case of the Exchange itself, service upon President Maloney was sufficient to bind all the members of that body, which is a voluntary association.

Lightship [illegible]ore; Reported by Radio

Pollock Rip Lightship Has Gone on Beares Shoal, Seven Miles West of Her Station.

BOSTON, Feb. 4—(AP)—The steamer Greylock, bound for Boston, reported by radio late today that the lightship at Pollock Rip, south of Cape Cod, had gone ashore on Beares Shoal, about seven miles west of her station. The message contained no further details.

The lightship, which was on relief duty in place of the regular boat now under repairs, was commanded by Captain Jameson of New Bedford, and had a crew of 10 men.

Beares Shoal is just off Monomoy Point, a long finger of land running due south from the Capes. Wires were down to the Monomoy Point Live Saving station on account of the storm, and the coast guard station at Chatham at the northern end of the peninsula had heard nothing of the accident.

NEW BEDFORD, Mass., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The relief lightship at Pollock Rip, off Cape Cod, reported to have gone ashore in today's snow storm, left here January 28 to relieve the regular vessel, reaching her station last Saturday. Captain Humphrey L. Jamieson went to Boston on leave on the regular boat, leaving Mate Joseph Baxter of Chatham in command.

The remainder of the crew aboard is as follows:

Assistant Engineer W. J. Jeffreys of Boston; Firemen Jack Joseph and Manuel Santiago; Cook James Luce of New Bedford, and Seamen Jack Lopes, John Baptiste, Amos Ferreira, Joseph Pineaud and Manuel Gomes.

ELECTRIFIED RAILROADS WOULD SAVE LOT OF COAL

BOSTON, Feb. 4—(AP)—Savings estimated at between 100,000,000 and 140,000,000 tons of coal a year would be realized if all the railways in the United States were electrified, Samuel Insull, president of the Commonwealth Edison company of Chicago, said today, at an assembly meeting of the Boston chamber of commerce.

Mr. Insull, who urged the massing of production of electric power and its distribution over wide areas, conceded that the complete electrification of the country's railways could not be possible, but said they should be electrified wherever the density of population and manufactures made the tonnage considerable. He said only about one per cent. of them are electrified at present.

"There shouldn't be a steam locomotive running between Boston and New York.

"The massing of production and the spreading of distribution over wide areas; that is, the diversity factor, results in the more constant use of the investment. That means a more steady demand for the product, and that means low cost, because the greatest item is interest and if you spread it over 15 hours, it costs less than if spread over 10 hours."

Mr. Insull said the development of electric power had been greatest in the last three or four years.

GOV. PINCHOT AND LEWIS CONFER ON COAL SITUATION

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 4—(AP)—Governor Pinchot and John L. Lewis, the president of the United Mine Workers, were in conference tonight for more than an hour on the hard coal strike situation. At the conclusion of their meeting, which was held in the Bellevue-Stratford hotel, both maintained silence.

Neither the governor nor the union chief would reveal what was discussed or say whether the state executive had suggested any new plans for ending the long suspension.

"I have absolutely nothing to say regarding the conference with Mr. Lewis," said the governor as he hurried away to keep his engagement to speak over the radio station WIP.

Mr. Lewis was equally uncommunicative. "I was the governor's guest," said he, "and of course cannot reveal what we talked about."

Prior to the conference, Pinchot said:

"Somebody has got to get action in the anthracite strike, as governor of Pennsylvania, I do not propose to permit conditions to continue without doing everything I know how to end this terrible deadlock."

It was with this attitude that the governor met Mr. Lewis.

$127,415 HAS BEEN RAISED TO RESTORE "OLD-IRONSIDES"

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Coincident with the transfer of headquarters of the Save-Old-Ironsides fund from Boston to Washington, Secretary Wilburwn who is directing the campaign to reclaim the ancient frigate, reported that already one-fourth of the $600,000 necessary has been raised—mostly in two cent contributions from school children. The secretary also expressed gratification over action of the New York city board of education today in endorsing the fund.

"I've just been told that the New York city board of education has endorsed the campaign to restore 'Old Ironsides' by authorizing the school children of New York city to contribute to the fund being raised for that purpose," Mr. Wilbur said. "This action following so closely the Boston school board's vote last week is most encouraging and praiseworthy.

The campaign began April 3, 1925. To date $127,415 has been collected.

MESSENGER BOY FATALLY INJURED IN GREENWICH

GREENWICH, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Stanley Sabeske, 14 year old son, of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Sabeske, of Sherwood place, was fatally injured in front of the office of the Western Union this afternoon when the rear wheels of a truck from which he had jumped passed over his body. Stanley who was a second year high school student with ambitions to attend Dartmouth worked for the telegraph company.

He had delivered a message at the Rosemary Hall school and had climbed on the truck, driven by Charles A. Guiles, of Norwalk, to ride back to the office. When he leaped off, he slipped beneath the wheels. He died in the Greenwich hospital half an hour later.

Guiles, arrested in Stamford and held under $3,000 bail pending a coroner's inquest, said tonight that he had not known the boy was on the truck.

Army officials declined to give the names of the six in hospitals.

The death occurred during last night and this morning. The men were taken to hospitals yesterday in such condition that they were unable to make statements. Physicians are of the opinion of the men were poisoned by wood alcohol.

The drinking bout took place Sunday. Two men died Monday, two Tuesday and two Wednesday. Their addresses have not been learned, but it is reported that O'Brien, Devlo and Hapgood, who enlisted together at Newark, N. J., planned to go home on next Saturday's transport.

SEEKING PROOF THAT HE IS THE SON OF "ABE" HUMMEL

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—A reticent little man in a Derby and wing collar, who on other days drives a bakery wagon in Portland, Me., scurried about New York today seeking proof of his claim to a share in the fortune of "Little Abe" Hummel, notorious criminal lawyer of a past generation.

While the body of "Little Abe" lay in a funeral chapel, awaiting burial tomorrow, his self-styled son, Henry D. Hummel, went about with his lawyer, on the trail of persons who might know of a secret marriage and be able to identify him as the son.

It is his contention that "Little Abe" was married secretly to the late Leila Farrel, a singer and actress, and mother of Henry.

"Little Abe" who died in self-imposed exile in London, left a fortune estimated at $1,250,000, gleaned from his practice as a criminal and divorce lawyer. He left the country after a conviction for subordination of perjury in the Dodge-Morse divorce cases, and with him went two sisters, Miss Bertha Hummel and Mrs. A. H. Kauffenburg, and a nephew, Abe Kauffenburg. They are understood to be his heirs.

They did not accompany the body back for burial, so there was no actual meeting between them and Henry Hummel, whose claims they have denied.

When Henry and his lawyer, State Senator Frederick W. Hinckley, went to the funeral chapel they were at first refused permission to see the body, because the casket had been sealed. Later, however, Henry was allowed to see the body.

"Just the same," he said, "but his hair was dark then."

Though Henry had all but given up his bakery wagon business in Portland to talk about his claim, he referred everything to his lawyer today. The contest is expected to begin within a day or so, as "Little Abe's" will is in the hands of the Guaranty Trust company, and probably will be opened soon after the funeral.

CREW OF EIGHT WAS RESCUED FROM SCHOONER

SCITUATE, Mass., Feb. 4.—(AP)—The entire crew of eight men was rescued tonight from the schooner Kenwood, Halifax for Boston, which went ashore today on Rocky Cedar Point in a blinding snow storm. The vessel was in danger of breaking up, but no attempt at salvage was to be made until the heavy seas went down.

Sailors were brought ashore by a volunteer lifeboat crew. Exhausted and badly chilled by their five hour battle with the waves, the men were taken to a summer cottage on the beach, where a blazing fire was soon roaring in an open fire place. They said the schooner, bearing a cargo of lumber, had been blown 135 miles off her course to the southward.

STORM CAUSED NEARLY SCORE OF DEATHS IN ITS WIDE AREA

Covered the Entire Northeast From Georgia to Maine—Thousands of Passengers in Coastwise Liners Were Snow-Bound in the Sound—Two Ships Were Reported in Distress at Sea—In Boston and Many Other New England Cities Schools Were Closed Because of the Storm—Various Harbors Along the New England Coast Were Filled by Craft Seeking Shelter.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—The northeastern section of the United States tonight was digging itself out from under the heaviest snowfall experienced this winter.

The storm, after wrecking its fury for 18 hours upon the Atlantic seaboard from Georgia to Maine, lifted this afternoon as suddenly as it had descended and went whirling its way along the ship lanes toward Newfoundland. In its wake it left a snow blanket varying in depth from a few inches, in the south, to two feet in the Allegheny Mountains.

Nearly a score of deaths, property damage and partial disruption of transportation were recorded throughout the storm area.

Shipping, harried by more than a week of severe storms, suffered new disasters. Thousands of passengers on coastwie liner were snowbound in Long Island sound where the steamers anchored to await a clearing of the atmosphere.

Two ships were reported in distress at sea, and a third, the Dutch freighter Stad Zalt-Bommel, wirelessed that she was burning coal from her cargo to reach port at Providence, R. I. after her bunkers had been emptied by her long battle with the storm. The

WAR DEPT BILL CALLS FOR $339,581,000 APPROPRIATION

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—(AP)—Maintenance of the army and the various reserve organizations at their present strength for the next fiscal year was provided for in the annual war department appropriation bill reported to day to the house.

Carrying a total of $339,581,000, the measures would authorize an increase in expenditures of $6,965,000 over funds now available. This was an increase of $1,087,000 above budget estimates and was the first time in the present congress that budget recommendations have been exceeded.

The only unusual item in the bill, the house appropriations committee which drafted the measure reported, was that of $6,000,000 for replacing supplies taken from the war reserve, which is maintained on a basis for an army of one million men.

The appropriations for the army contemplated continuance for another year of an average strength of 118,583 enlisted men and 11,786 officers, with a reduction of the enlisted strength of the Philippine scouts from 8,000 to 7,000 men.

A saving of $988,000 was made in the army pay, the committee said, by reducing the number of non commissioned officers and privates of the first class. Vacancies occurring in these grade will be filled only as funds may permit.

Of the total $261,081,000 was apportioned for the military activities of the department, and $78,500,000 for the non-military functions, of the latter, $50,000,000 was carried for river and harbor work.

Besides the report on the bill, the testimony received by the committee during its consideration in executive session was made public today, throwing much light on the activities of the army and the aspirations of its officers for its equipment.

SPANISH PLANE COMPLETES TRANSATLANTIC FLIGHT

RIO JANEIRO, Brazil, Feb. 4—(AP)—With the precision of an express train and to the enthusiastic shouts of watching thousands, Commander Franco and his comrades pulled into Rio Janeiro at 5:25 o'clock this afternoon, completing the fifth stage of their air flight from Palos, Spain to Buenos Aires, Argentina.

They left Pernambuco at 5:15 o'clock in the morning and traversed the 1,264 miles to the Brazilian capital in 12 hours 10 minutes. Commander Franco said he would do it in 13 hours.

Only 1,380 miles separate the aviators from their goal, Buenos Aires, a comparatively easy flight so far as distance goes, many times attempted, but never yet made on a non-stop schedule.

The flight from Pernambuco to Rio was witnessed by great crowds of Brazilians, for the Plus Ultra passed over Maceio, 140 miles along the coast, at 6:30 a. m.; Aracaju at 7:35, Bahia at 9:05 Porto Seguro, 11:30; Caravellas 12:40, Victoria 2:45, and was sighted from the Brazilian capital 5:10, making a safe landing 15 minutes later. While soaring over Bahia, the residents of which had hoped the seaplane would make a stop, Commander Franco dropped flowers.

After being received by the authorities and numerous committees, Commander Franco, Captain Ruiz de Alda and Mechianician Rada, led a parade through the business section of the city. The streets were lined with cheering crowds; decorations were hung everywhere; the workers abandoned their labors, and others their works to give the Spanish aviators a befitting welcome. It is not known when they will take off for the last leg to Buenos Aires.

EPISCOPAL RECTORS NOT A UNIT ON PROHIBITION

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—Rectors of Episcopal churches in New Haven and vicinity both agreed and disagreed today in statements regarding the recently expressed attitude of the Church Temperance society of the Episcopal church on the 18th amendment.

Rev. Delmar S. Markle, rector of St. James and Grace Episcopal churches in Fair Haven, said: "I agree with them entirely in being against the 18th amendment for I believe it is unChristian in principale and unmoral in effect. We should strive for temperance, but we can't legislate the people to be temperate. Jesus taught temperance, but he did not teach handling adult people like babies and children."

Rev. Elmore M. McKee, rector of St. Paul's church, said: "It is well understood that the church temperance society does not represent the entire church, and personally I disagree with them. It is unfortunate that this report comes at a time when prohibition has not been fully tested."

Rev. Dr. Charles O. Scoville, rector of Trinity Episcopal church, stated very definitely that he believed the question of prohibition must be fought out to the end and that the society in issuing its recent pronouncement has informed thoughtful men where not to look for leadership. He felt that the society should have spent their time and intelligence in finding a way out which was both practical and workable.

FIXED FOR SHRINKAGE IN VALUES OF CRUDE RUBBER

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—Dwelling on the dangers of a rubber market which "continues to fluctuate violently on levels that are abnormally high and economically unsound," Edward G. Wilmer, chairman of the Goodyear Tire and Rubber company, announced today that the company had increased its special raw material reserve to $7,500,000 to guard against a possible abrupt shrinkage in rubber values.

A reserve of $3,000,000 for this purpose was established six months ago but Mr. Wilmer explained that the Goodyear directors believed a considerable decline in prices was still possible. The company's inventories and commitments at cost, however, were substantially under market values at the end of 195.

JEWETT CITY

REPORT SNOW DRIFTS FIFTEEN FEET HIGH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 6.—The youngest inhabitants of this section have no record of any such blizzard as that which blew here from 4 this after 10 o'clock Wednesday evening until this evening. At supper Thursday morning eight inches had fallen, and, as the forenoon wore on, with the mercury hanging at from 29 to 32, the storm gradually increased.

At noon a drop in the temperature thinned down the snow to as fine as meal, which, driven by a steady cutting blast from the northeast, became every minute a worse proposition. In mid-afternoon the mercury again rose three degrees, with the result that the snowfall doubled in quantity for the next hour. Beginning at an early hour the big power plows from the state highway department, kept running over the local section of the state road in an attempt to give traffic all help possible. The Aspinock company did a fine job with their side walk plow. Two blasts on the fire whistle announced that there would be no sessions of school.

During the afternoon, slowly but surely the storm king began to wear down the transportation schedules, and the bus lines and steam road, had to get through at such hours as it was possible to do so.

By night fall a considerable number of telephone lines were showing the "steady light" on the big switchboard indicating line out of orier. The local exchange reported 30 per cent. more call, on account of the storm, averaging 300 calls per hour. The electric light men had wires down in several parts of the borough, with normal service regained in record time.

At sundown although the gale of wind that blew all the latter part of the day, made correct measurements impossible, it was estimated from several sources that between 10 and 14 inches of snow had fallen since 10 p. m. Wednesday. The stores closed at noon, state road traffic practically ceased, with only such pedestrians venturing abroad, as found necessity's demands imperative. Drifts up to 10 and 15 feet were reported, with several trucks and automobiles stuck and deserted at different points in this section. The last big snow storm according to weather records kept by Simon Brewster, began during the forenoon of Feb. 5, 1920. Not quite two feet fell in that storm. It wound up with sleet at a freezing temperature, and during the night a crust was formed that would bear up boys on skates.

During the evening, Thursday, the motor coach service went by the board altogether, on account of busses stuck in the drift all over the line. A dozen or more people bound for points north and south, were marooned in the borough for the night.

AN URGENT NEED OF MORE RURAL HOSPITALS

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—(AP)—More than 750,000 women annually pass through chil dbirth in the United States without medical attention, the Department of Agriculture estimated in a statement tonight urging the need of more rural hospitals.

A large proportion of these women live on farms, the department said, and "there is no doubt that the mortality rate among them could be greatly reduced by adequate medical and hospital facilities." Not more than 12 per cent of the rural population of the country, it added, enjoys anything like modern health supervision, although progress is reported in some sections.

Probably the only women in the United States, who make a business of rat extermination are Helen A. Caldwell and Anna May Wright. The two girls, who hail from Virginia, have travelled through thirty-three states and by the use of scientific methods have rid many cities of unwelcome rodents.

ROW DEVELOPED IN HOUSE MILITARY SUB COMMITTEE

Washington, Feb. 4—(AP)—A row in the house military sub-committee revolving around the application of the "gag" clause of the budget law to inactive reserve officers of the army, was disclosed in the committee's hearings on the current army appropriation bill made ublic today.

John Ross Delafield, president of the Reserve Officers association, a general officer in the reserve, told the committee he accepted full responsibility for a nation-wide campaign to increase the appropriation for the reserves $1,461,000 over budget figures. He produced a ruling by the judge advocate general holding that the clause of the budget act forbidding any officer of the government to submit recommendations for budget increases to congress did not apply to reserve officers on inactive status.

Nevertheless, Chairman Madden of the appropriations committee declared General Delafield was "taking the place of the president" in investigating the campaign for an increase, and that the position of the reservists was "an insult to congress."

"As long as I am chairman, nothing of this kind is going to be permitted," he said. "The chief of the naval forces tried to do that once, and he got just what you are getting, and what everybody else is going to get who presumes to assume the dictatorial attitude that you have placed yourself in before us."

When the witness rose to reply, Representative Madden told him to "sit down there and present it in an orderly way."

The reserve chief said he was "head of a big civilian organizations of the taxpayers" and that the circulars distributed by the organization were "an appeal to congress." As to applications of the "gag" law, he pointed out that the court of claims had held that reserve officers could prosecute claims against the government despite their federal commissions.

The effect of holding otherwise would be the destruction of the organized reserve," he said. "These men of affairs (the reserve officers) want to be free and must be free to carry on as ordinary citizens. If they were not they would leave the organized reserve immediately."

The army appropriation bill, carrying $333,681,000 was reported to the house.

John W. Thompson, convicted with Charles R. Forbes, appealed to the supreme court.

Prohibition discussion was injected in by wets and drys, both in and out of congress and over the radio.

Hear "WHO" today—it will make you dance and dream

"WHO" is something even greater than the song hit from "Sunny." "Who" is the fox trot hit of the season. Recorded the new Victor way with George Olsen and His Music, and with a fascinating vocal refrain, "Who" is youth set to music.

Hear "Who" today. Any dealer in Victor products will gladly play it for you—and any or all of the new Victor Records listed below. As you listen to these new recordings, you will be amazed at their resonance. The deep bass rhythms which characterize the dance music of the day come booming forth. You can't drown them out—no matter how merry the party.

Who—Fox Trot Sunny—Fox Trot No. 19840, 10-inch, 75c

Song of the Vagabonds—Fox Trot
Only a Rose—Fox Trot
INTERNATIONAL NOVELTY ORCHESTRA

These two numbers from the "Vagabond King"—the rollicking baritone song and the soothing and dreamy air for the soprano—have been made into two beautiful fox trots. They make dancing a real pleasure.

No. 19901, 10-inch, 75c

What Could Be Sweeter Than You—Fox Trot
ART LANDRY AND HIS ORCHESTRA
Sleepy Time Gal ART LANDRY AND HIS ORCHESTRA

Beautiful smooth easy fox trots. Plenty of melody. Strings are heard, and the big tuba pulsates underneath.

No. 19843, 10-inch, 75c

Just a Cottage Small By a Waterfall JOHN MCCORMACK
Through All the Days to Be - - JOHN MCCORMACK

Two charming numbers by this great singer of songs; a simple "heart song," then a lovely song of promise. Beautiful high tenor notes.

No. 1133, 10-inch, $1.50

The Lightning Express - - - - - VERNON DALHART
The Letter Edged in Black - - - VERNON DALHART

Here's another Vernon Dalhart hit just as good as "The Prisoner's Song" by this ballad singer.

"The Lightning Express" is the story of the child who got on the fast train, fareless, to ride home to his dying mother. "The Letter Edged in Black" tells of the news of death brought by the postman.

No. 19837, 10-inch, 75c

I Wanna Go Where You Go - - - - - JACK SMITH
Are You Sorry? - - - - - - - - - - JACK SMITH

These are the latest records by Jack Smith, the famous "Whispering Baritone." You can imagine him walking along, quietly pouring these two pleas for happiness into a girl's ear, oblivious to the rest of the world. Well sung, however half-whispered.

No. 19856, 10-inch, 75c

Who stole my heart away,
Who makes me dream all day . . .

The glamourous, gliding rhythms of Who . . . someone who is one to you . . . someone with whom you always dance best . . . stars in her eyes . . . dreams . . . oh, play it again and again.

PLANS OF ROTARIANS KNOCKED OUT BY STORM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 4.—Trying to discourage Rotarians is a tough job, but the snow storm of Thursday just about accomplished that thing, on the occasion of a plan to present a charter to the newly organized Danielson Rotary club. The storm knocked plans for a goal. Delegations that were to have come here from various parts of Connecticut and many other places in New England were forced to cancel their arrangements because of blocked transportation lines. Putnam manager to get a delegation of twenty-five through and most of them did a bit of shoveling to open the highways for their cars. One lone Rotarian showed up from Norwich. The fifty or more members of the organization gathered at the state armory had a wonderful time. They feasted on a turkey dinner intended for 250 people, sang songs, told stories and presented skits that would have gone big in any party. Telegrams were received and read by President Sabin S. Russell from various clubs that were to have been represented. The storm was a particularly unfortunate thing for the Danielson Rotary members who had planned for a real big night, but it was said something will be done to make up for it later.

FIVE-FOOT DRIFT REPORTED FROM DARK LANTERN HILL

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 4.—The Snow King reigned supreme in this corner of eastern Connecticut Thursday. Riding on the wings of half a northeast gale, he blanketed all the countryside with as much as a foot of snow by sunset, and there were no ways or means of telling whether or not he had at that time satisfied his passion for making February's reputation for storms as bad as it has been painted.

Out in the wastes of snow and driving wind there were few signs of activity. A person plodded pantingly here and there, or a roaring motor told of its efforts to make progress through the drifts and storm.

Transportation facilities were not completely paralyzed at sunset time, but there were indications of such possibilities. Over in the eastern section of the town—in the Dark Lantern and State Line section—two ponderous motor coaches and their quota of passengers were stalled in the drifts. A state highway plow of the Rhode Island department was numbered among the machines that had succumbed to the storm just across the Killingly border, in Foster. Freighting trucks and pleasure cars lined the state highway over in that section at night was coming on and the wind continued to make matters worse by building over higher the drifts it had been designing since early morning.

No later than 3 p. m. Mrs. Raymond Tillson, resident just West of the town of Dark Lantern Hill said over the telephone that the cut at that point was practically closed by a drift that was nearly five feet in height and steadily growing higher. The cut was filling from each side of the highway leaving only a narrow land of deep snow between the high points on either side. This is the point that filled into a depth of 5 to 10 feet two years and a half ago to dug out with shovels, before traffic could be resumed. There was promise late Thursday afternoon that this condition would be duplicated by Friday morning. Similar stories came from points west of Brooklyn and from locations north and south along the Norwich-Putnam route through Danielson.

The schedule of the New England Transportation company and the Interstate line, competing organizations operating coaches between Providence and Willimantic and Providence and Hartford through Danielson, could not be adhered to. Each line had a coach and passengers stalled in the Dark Lantern hill territory, late in the afternoon and unable to get them through the blockade as the storm continued to make things steadily worse. The passengers were not regarded as in any danger, for by some laborious effort in wading the drifts they could obtain shelter in nearby homes.

While state highway plows assigned to this section were doing notable work to clear the highways, there are such things as impossibilities and ten times as many trucks as are available would have been needed to cope with a storm like that of Thursday. They simply could not be every where at once, whereas the storm was doing a land office business and piling up every side.

JOSEPH K. POTTER DEAD—FORMER NORWICH RESIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 4.—Joseph K. Potter, 80, died Thursday morning about 8 o'clock at his home in the Tatnic hill section of Brooklyn. He was a native of that town, born June 21, 1845, a son of William P. and Esther Gallup Potter. He had been engaged during the active years of his life as a farmer and was one of the best known residents of Brooklyn. Mr. Potter had made his home during recent years with his son, William E. Potter, Mrs. Potter having died three years ago. In addition to his son, he leaves a brother, John G. Potter, at present in Florida, and for years a resident of Norwich, though, like his brother, for many years identified with the affairs of Brooklyn. J. Dyer Potter, assistant treasurer of the Brooklyn Savings bank, and Sherwood B. Potter, treasurer of the Berlin, Conn., Savings bank, are nephews of the deceased.

As useless as anything we can think of this morning—those signs that read "Keep Off the Grass."

The storm cheated basketball fans out of a treat Thursday night. It caused a postponement of the scheduled game between the Crescents of Taftville and Danielson's classy town team. However, the delay in their meeting will be but brief. C. Clinton Cleveland said Thursday that he would try to fix a date for the next week and for a meeting here between these two good teams. Meanwhile, the rooters will have to wait on winter's whims.

Doing their very best, the Connecticut company kept coaches going up and down the route from Norwich to Putnam all day. There was no chance of maintaining schedules. The coaches got through when they could and as best they could. At times some of them stalled. But there was a mighty effort to keep them rolling and to serve the public. Drifts and stalled machines hindered them more and more as the day wore on. Considering records of the past, they did as well as the trolleys used to do in battling against such rarely severe storms.

Late afternoon reports told of cars stalled all along the line between Danielson and Hampton. Conditions were particularly bad between Brooklyn and Danielson, due to drifting. On the New Haven road trains were off schedule and having their troubles, like all other transportation lines.

Thursday morning at 10 o'clock at the home of her son, John Welcher, in the Black Hill section of the town of Plainfield, funeral services for Mrs Emma C. Welcher were conducted by Rev. William C. Prentiss of Plainfield. Burial was in Westfield cemetery, Danielson. The bearers were Everett E. Brown, Stanley Brown, Eldridge Kinney and Alfred Graves. Louis E. Kennedy was incharge of the funeral arrangements.

The fox snarers, with their barbarous devices, are at their illegal work again. This time it would appear that operations of this nature are under way in the vicinity of East Killingly. An Attawaugan man reports to James Moran of this place that Wednesday afternoon he saw a dog rolling and lashing about in a strange manner and upon going to the dog found the animal had a wire loop about its neck and was trying desperately to be rid of it. The loop, which had cut into the flesh and was partly strangling the dog, was removed with considerable difficulty. It apeared to be indicated that the dog had managed to break that part of the snare that had been anchored and get away.

Sportsmen sensed Thursday that the time has come for them to give attention to the feeding of wild game birds until such time as the deep snow now covering the countryside has largely disappeared. This is the first time this winter that the matter of feeding protected game birds has come up for serious attention. The late fall and the winter up to Thursday produced no deep snows or ice storms of a nature to make it real difficult for birds to get food in the regular manner.

Michael Head, Jr., died about 2.30 Thursday morning at his home on Academy street. He had been ill at home for eleven weeks and in poor health since he was injured five years ago while at work at a local manufactory. Mr. Head was born in Providence May 30, 1874, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Head. The family came to Brooklyn when he was a child and later moved to Danielson, since residing here. For years Mr. Head was engaged here and in other cities of the state as a barber. He was a veteran of the Spanish-American war, serving as a member of F company of Danielson in the Third Connecticut Infantry. He was in the service about nine months. Mr. Head leaves his father, who is a veteran of the Civil war, a brother, Thomas, of Winsted, and three sisters, Margaret, Mary and Nellie, all of whom have given him every loving care and attention through his long illness.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert J. Barnett are en route to St. Petersburg, Florida, getting away from Danielson just ahead of the big snow storm.

The Danielson Chamber of Commerce has a business boosting plan in the works, relative to which announcements will be made later.

Because of the storm, a one-session day was ordered for the school children Thursday by Supt. William E. Parker. Lower grades were dismissed as early as 11 a. m., and other grades at noon.

The types do not always say what one intends them to say. For instance, where the word Almyville should have appeared in a story about a new coach line that was in this column Thursday it persisted in being Elmville. Almyville is a section of Moosup, Elmville a community in Killingly. The slip proved a proof-reading puzzle for many readers.

The boat train, north-bound, was about 45 minutes late arriving in Danielson Thursday morning, due to the heavy storm. Other trains also were off schedule during the day, so it is not amazing that coach lines had their difficulties.

Thursday's storm came almost on the sixth anniversary of one that blocked all traffic and left two score or more Danielson people stranded in Putnam on February 3, 1926, these people unable to reach home until the following day.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Head and the members of their family of Winster, are here because of the death of Mr. Head's brother, Michael Head, Jr., of Academy street. A nephew, Francis McDonald, student for the priesthood at LaSalette college, Hartford, also is in Danielson to attend the funeral.

You saw automobiles stalled in the snow Thursday. Did it occur to you what difficulties fire apparatus might have in getting to your home for a fire in weather like that? If you have not sufficient insurance, see the Reeves Insurance Agency at once.—adv.

A milkman whose route takes him to Dayville, Goodyear and Killingly Center from a point just outside the borough of Danielson said at 11:30 Thursday morning that he had been on the road since 3.30 a. m., and still had all the southern part of his route to cover.

Thursday afternoon reports began to come in of big drifts accumulating at some points on state highways and of cars becoming stalled and being temporarily abandoned by their owners over in Rhode Island on the Providence route. Every effort was being made by Rhode Island crews to match what Connecticut crews were doing in keeping this important route open for travel.

Among those who had an exhausting experience Thursday were the letter carriers out of the Danielson office. In the morning, with the parcel post truck relaying mail to them, they were able to cover about 75 per cent. of their routes. In the afternoon they completed the usual circuit, making one complete trip for the day.

PUTNAM

FAMILIES WITHOUT FUEL HARD HIT BY STORM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 4—Snow began to fall here at 11 o'clock last night and has continued to fall steadily ever since then. At seven tonight it was from 18 to 20 inches in depth. Soon after daylight the wind began to blow and since then Putnam has been enveloped in the worst blizzard it has experienced for years. Where the snow has drifted it is from five to ten feet deep.

Only one session of the schools was held and trading at the retail stores was limited almost to necessities.

This is the first time that the highway busses have had to contend with real New England winter weather when it tries to interfere with or stop traffic. During the day and the early part of the evening they have been giving excellent service. Up until noon they were running almost on schedule time but since then there was a steady increase in their arrival. The line from Providence R. I. to Springfield, Mass., was showing "one-half" to "one hour" late announcements, but their adherence to schedule was on the whole as good as the steam lines. Privately owned passenger cars were not very much in evidence during the afternoon and evening.

One large Rhode Island car which had several suit cases strapped onto the running boards broke a wheel while passing under the railroad bridge on Front street this afternoon when the wind was blowing a gale. The comments of the driver and the passengers were audible above the noise of the storm.

Except a few local disturbances and trouble at one place on the Jewett City line the telephone service has been uninterrupted and up to its high standard of efficiency, Manager Booth said that he did not apprehend much trouble unless the wind shifted and the snow started to freeze on the wire.

The most serious phase of the severe storm is the fact that there are quite a few families without sufficient fuel. By officials and organizations systematic efforts will be made to furnish aid where needed.

ALL PUTNAM INTERESTED IN GILPATRIC'S LETTER

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 4—The Bulletin was very much in demand in Putnam this morning to see the lengthy letter from G. Harold Gilpatric in which he proposed a round table conference where all the parties of the investigation of the accounts of the state treasury, would sit up and "put their cards on the table." He asserted that he would answer every question concerning the transactions to the best of his ability, but that he could not recall all the details of five or six years ago of bond purchases by the state treasury department through the First National bank.

He emphasized the statement that the state had received every dollar to which it was entitled and that he never, personally, made an entry in the state records, that his work had been as an executive only. Regret was expressed by him that the state had appropriated $10,000 for the cost of the investigation, that as arrangement had been made for him to come to Hartford to consult an eye specialist, he though the two missions could be covered in the visit.

He evidently does not realize that the examination made of his eyes some two months ago by one of the leading specialists of the country and that he had announced that Gilpatric's vision was hopelessly lost, that one eyeball would have to be removed at no distant date and that there was no possibility of his ever seeing again with the remaining eye.

RUTH BAKER DID NOT VISIT PUTNAM FRIENDS

(Special to The Bulletin.)

PUTNAM, Feb. 4—Mrs. Ruth Baker, who came to Hartford last week from Florida to see her husband, Guy L. Baker, now in prison awaiting trial for self admitted thefts from the First National bank of which he was assistant cashier, did not come to Putnam to visit any of her friends nor, as far as known did she go to Pomfret to call on her husband's relatives. She did make a visit to her own people to South Braintree, Mass., but she said she had a position awaiting her in St. Petersburg and as she would have to "make her own way until her husband got out," she preferred to do it in a place where she would not be subject to criticism and the newspapers there would refrain from commenting about it.

The Rev. Charles L. Goodell, D. D., of New York, secretary of the Commission of Evangelism of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, spoke Wednesday afternoon at the Second Congregational church in this city. In the evening he spoke to the public at the same church to a large and interested audience.

Dr. Goodell is by no means a stranger in this city, for he was born in the nearby town of Dudley, Mass., and frequently visits there, and many people of this section still look upon Dr. Goodell as a boyhood friend.

Frank R. Whitman has returned from Florida. He and E. C. Rogers, proprietor of the Putnam Inn, left here about three weeks ago for Fort Myers, Fla., making the trip by automobile. Mr. Whitman returned by train and Mr. Rogers is expected home within a few days.

The meeting that was to have been held Thursday night to discuss the revaluation of property has been postponed for one week. One of the speakers who had been secured was unable to be present so the meeting was made for a later date.

The meeting of the East and West Auction Bridge club, which was to have met Thursday afternoon with Mrs. William Richardson on Mechanics street, has been postponed for one week because of the storm.

Many people in Putnam were disappointed not to have had an opportunity to hear Hubert Mayotte, the 82 year old father of Putnam's beloved martyr priest, Rev. Fr. Anselm Mayotte, at the old time fiddlers' contest at the Bradley theatre. Owing to the inclement weather it did not seem advisable for him to take the twelve mile trip. It is hoped, however, that he will give an exhibition of his skill at a later date.

The announcement of the candidacy of Albert McClellan Mathewson, of New Haven, for the governorship of Connecticut is of interest in this part of the state as he was born in the town of Woodstock and spent his boyhood there. In this connection it is interesting to note that Governor Trumbull was born at Ashford and Ex-Governor Lake in Woodstock.

James Hall of the Sawyer district, celebrated his 16th birthday with a party for his school mates at his home. James is a sophomore at Putnam High school. After being amused by games and merry stunts, a birthday supper was served, each guest receiving a souvenir place card. One of the features of the supper was the cutting and serving of a huge birthday cake by the young host.

After listening to a radio concert the boys returned to their homes wishing James many happy returns of the day. He received many useful and pretty gifts in honor of the occasion.

Mrs. Harry Morse entertained at whist this week at her home on School street. Four tables were at play. Miss Mary Coogan was awarded the first prize and Mrs. Harry Burgess received the second prize. During the after-

HEADLIGHT INSPECTION

There is much to be said in behalf of the campaign which has been inaugurated by the state police department, whereby the state police are to patrol the roads each evening and leave a tag with each auto owner whose lights are found to be defective, tilted or out of focus, such tags being an order to have the trouble remedied at once and report to that effect made to the department.

In spite of all that has been done to overcome the dangerous headlights they are still to be found. Lenses have done much to overcome the glare but there are lights which are focused most anywhere except upon the road, and it is only when they are directed on the road that they accomplish the purpose intended for the driver of the machine to which they are attached and at the same time prevent the blinding of the driver coming in the opposite direction.

Frequently cars are seen with the rays of one light directed skyward and the other onto the road bed. Some cars have lights which are throwing the rays directly on a level with the headlights instead of downward, and such lights are bad for other drivers even though they are behind special lenses.

That the department has found auto owners ready to have troubles fixed is by no means surprising. It is probable that a quarter of those with defective headlights are not aware that their lights are bad and it is only when some one in authority points it out that they are informed. Thus the patrolling of the roads for the purpose of pointing out the conditions which ought not to exist in regard to headlights should be productive of good results.

Such efforts as have been made to test the headlights of all autos at the state police barracks were praiseworthy for those particular localities, but had the plan been carried to the point of sending the state police to the various cities and boroughs at certain times for the extension of this service to all the auto owners of the state there are reasons to believe that a much different situation concerning headlights would prevail today.

It is not improbable that the state police department will yet see the advisability of such a move. Sending a group of state policemen to the various cities is far different and preferable to asking thousands of drivers to gather at a police barracks which many can reach only by traveling long distances. Such inspections during the spring and fall of the year would result in the poor headlights being few and far between instead of being numerous.

BITUMINOUS RATES

A question that is bound to be of no little interest to the people of New England is that concerning the rates on bituminous coal from the West Virginia fields in the future.

Because of the coal strike special rates for the transportation of West Virginia coal into New England were sought and obtained from the interstate commerce commission. Those rates are now in effect and because of them users of bituminous coal this winter have been able to get it at a better figure than would otherwise have been the case. This doesn't mean that bituminous has been given away but the higher the rates of transportation the higher the price of the commodity.

Whether these rates are to cease the first of May or are to become permanent may be influenced somewhat by the developments in the anthracite fields in the meantime. The bituminous field has contributed to the relief of the coal consumer to a great extent. It has made it clear to the consumer that he is no longer dependent upon hard coal and need no longer be subjected to the effects of the annual coal strike. He has found out through experience that was forced upon him that there are substitutes available in adequate quantities. It is necessary to get acquainted with the right way of using them but satisfaction prevails at the knowledge that the anthracite hold-up is no longer possible.

But what is going to happen to the fellow who has found that he gets better results with the substitutes than he did with the anthracite he formerly used? It is realized that the rates from the bituminous fields temporarily granted were based upon emergency conditions but it will be unfortunate if he is forced to give up the new fuel because of advancing rates. New England will no doubt be heard from before any change is made one way or the other.

GERMANY VOTES FOR LEAGUE

Even after it was indicated that Germany was desirous of entering the league of nations there were evidences of opposition at home which made the outlook decidedly uncertain. The people of Germany haven't been unanimous about such a step any more than they have about the present government. But in spite of all that has been done to prevent it the decision has been cast by the committee to which the important question was left and by a vote of 12 to 8 Germany decides to go in. The rest of the steps should be mere matters of formality.

The league has indicated its willingness to receive Germany and Germany has asked for membership. This means that Germany is going to carry out its part in connection with the future peace of Europe although for a time the opponents in Germany, those who are numbered in the nationalist party, did their utmost and threatened for a time to upset the government.

The entrance of Germany into the league should have its good influence upon disarmament. Germany's membership in the league prior to the disarmament conference was given as one of the reasons for postponing the preliminary conference, so that that point will be taken care of bfeore there is a gathering at Geneva, while the membership of Germany in the league should create a better feeling among the nations of Europe and cause those which have been insisting on big armies to take a different view of the situation and even realize that through new agreements much financial benefit would accrue to themselves to say nothing of the peace of mind, while the nations would remain on their existing bases of fighting strength.

Disarmament is directly opposed to European traditions. It means a right about face and therefore rather slow progress, but with all taking a stand for peace instead of for war a much needed change for the better should follow.

GREATER HIGHWAY SAFETY

While delegates are being named by the various states to the conference of street and highway safety in Washington next month it is easy to be impressed by the necessity for action by noting that there were something like a half million injured in street and highway accidents last year in this country and nearly 24,000 were killed. That means a slaughter that ought to be stopped.

Can it be done? Possibly not, but there can certainly be a decided reduction in such figures even with an increase in the number of automobiles, if there is the assumption on the part of every street and highway user of that responsibility which rests upon him.

Hundreds of millions of dollars are being spent for the elimination of grade crossings. Some of them ought to be removed, but the removal doesn't mean that the highway users are going to employ greater care in dealing with know highway dangers. The fact is that the crossing accidents and deaths, like other street and highway accidents and deaths are due in too many instances to the failure to respect danger and to exercise common care.

Thus the problem of the conference is bound to bring about a greater recognition and respect for present day highway dangers. If and when that can be done one of the most powerful influences for greater safety will be gotten into motion. We cannot laugh at danger and plunge into chance taking and recklessness and expect that we are going to safeguard ourselves and protect others.

WILLIAM M. WOOD

What ill health and a broken heart will do is illustrated in the case of William M. Wood. His death and the manner of it will be deeply deplored.

Here was a man with no better prospects in life than any other youngster, and far from as good as a great many of them, and yet through taking advantage of the opportunities that existed and the development of his inherent ability he climbed to the top of the ladder of success and became the commanding figure in woolen manufacture in the country. He had the benefit of excellent early training, but he made the most of it even when in humble employment. He rapidly grasped the inside of the woolen business and while he had ideas of his own, which he put into operation throughout his career, that differed greatly from those of many other manufacturers he was the guiding force in the organization of the great American Woolen company, through which he worked out various policies concerning business and the treatment of employes.

In the communities with which he has been so closely identified, up to within the past few years, there will be sincere mourning. Since the death of his son, a severe blow which marked the beginning of the end, his connection with the business had dwindled but whether in the model Shawsheen village or in the conditions which he had created for other employes there were acts which indicated the character of the man whose business life stands out so conspicuously as evidence of that old saying that great oaks from little acorns grow, even in human life.

EDITORIAL NOTES

Now comes the test of strength between the weatherman and the ground hog.

The snow is spotless as it falls but no special effort seems to be made to keep it that way.

Now will those who have been longing for deep snow, or snow enough to shovel, feel satisfied.

The man on the corner says: From the appearance of the streets some must have been snowbound.

It is wrong to say that the anthracite miners and operators are beginning to talk of ending the strike.

The arrival of the Westphalia should be the signal for a demonstration in behalf of its crew of mid-ocean life savers.

If the ground hog appeared as frequently as the road hog there would be far less interest in his judgment or his shadow.

While the crown prince of Belgium has decided to visit Brazil and other South American countries he has not elected to go by airplane.

Will it be possible that the anthracite miners appreciate the long winter vacation so much that they will insist on one every winter?

WHILE THE BUS WAITS

The matronly looking woman with the round, beaming face, who has spent the greater part of her time during the trip picking up the various bundles that have spilled off her apology for a lap, rises, looks wildly out of the windows, then bumps her way hastily to the door of the bus as it grinds to a standstill.

"Young man," she says, "is this Evergreen avenue?"

"Five blocks back? My, my, my, ain't that awful? And I never had no more ideas we was anywhere near it. I was just ridin' along and enjoyin' how pretty everything looks and I just plain forgot to watch for my street.

"Well, say, mister, will you just kinda hold my bundles till I go back and git my grip? I left it back there beside of that lady.

"Well, say, ain't you nice? You won't have to hold the bundles, young man, because this young lady's handed me my grip. Ain't she nice? And pretty, too, don't you think? Look at him blush. But don't you mind.

"Well, now, if you'll just hold this box till I git out and then kinda hand it to me real careful. I'll certainly be obligated to you. It's some fresh eggs my daughter's father-in-law brought in to her off his place a little ways out in the country. He's got some chickens and a veg-table garden and he's always bringin' something to my daughter. He's a swell father-in-law. Thinks more of my daughter than he does of his own son, Jack says, Jack, he's my daughter's husband and I guess he's about the best they make when it comes to sin-in-laws. That's another joke we got in our family—my daughter sayin' I think more of him what I do of her.

"Well, now, young man, if you'll just hand me my grip and then them coupla bundles and the eggs and that other kinda little long bundle—that's fine.

"And now I got to walk five blocks west and one block north. Ain't that awful? I don't know how ever I'm goin' to git there with all these bundles and my grip and all—

"I don't know why you need to be sorry. I don't know how you could of helped me forgittin' to git off when I'd ought to of. Had I of had sense enough to of asked you then it would of been kinda different—

"Now, which way do you go to go west? I'm all turned around, seems like, so I don't know which way is which—not that I ever do, for the most part. I ain't got no more sense of direction than a hen and I don't know if they ain't got some more.

"And I got six blocks more to walk? Well, well, well. Ain't that terrible? And I go this way to go west and then that way to go north.

"Just the opposite? Well, well, well! The folks will holler their heads off when I tell 'em about me forgittin' to git off the bus and then not knowin' which way to go and alt. And it is omical, me bein' so dumb, as they say.

"I certainly don't know how ever I'm goin' to git there with all these bundles and my grip and all. It sure is a joke. They ain't no bus nor anything I can take back, is there? Maybe I could git me a taxi—

"That Ford car across the street with the good-looking young feller in it?

"A friend of yours and he won't charge me nothin'? Well, say, ain't you grand? And him, too. And he's coming across to help me with my bundles and my grip. Well, well, well. Ain't that fine? I certainly feel obligated to you both, young man. And I'll tell you what I'm going to do, if you'll just wait a minute. I'm goin' to give you a dozen of them eggs. My son's wife that I'm takin' 'em to, she won't mind a bit. She'll be glad.

"Well, maybe you're right — they might break on you. And I guess you want to be gittin' on anyway, so the best kindness I can do you is just git out the way and let you go on. But I'll be back this way again real soon and I certainly will look for you.

"Well, here's your friend. I guess I'm started now and I certainly am obligated to you. I don't know what folks means when they talk about most folks bein' crabby and like that when it seems like when a person needs help it always turns up some way. Well, good-bye, young man! I'll look out for you the next time I come this way, and I certainly ain't never goin' to forgit how obligating the both of you was."—Exchange.

From Small Beginnings

John Gibson, A Great Sculptor

"My! but you can draw," said a small boy to another one 9 years old. "See! I've got a new prayerbook here. Won't you make a picture on the blank page in the front?"

"What would you give?" the 9-year-old boy asked.

"Well, I've got a sixpence here—see!" He held out a shining sixpenny piece. The 9-year-old looked at it eagerly. He was a ragged little fellow and had a pinched, sensitive look. "I'll do it!" he said and he took the new prayerbook and slowly, working for some time, made in it on that blank page a wonderful picture of Napoleon crossing the Alps—not the crude drawing such as a 9-year-old boy might be expected to make, but a really finished picture, worthy of a real artist.

That pinched little fellow, John Gibson, had had no training in drawing; he simply loved to draw. His home was too poor to afford pictures, so he filled his memory with the pictures that he saw in store windows.

"Why don't you want to work with me in the potatoes and the cabbages?" his father asked him—for he was a gardener.

"No," the boy answered. "I want to draw pictures." The father was willing to humor the boy and to give him art training, but there was no money. He sighed—and sent his son to work for a cabinetmaker. Even there, however, John Gibson found the means of drawing, for he took most interest in the making of mouldings, and finally turned entirely to carving in wood.

He went to a woodcarver and from there went to a sculptor, where he combined his love of drawing and his knowledge of carving. At 27 he found the means, poor as he was, to go to Rome. There he hunted up the famous sculptor, Antonio Canova. Now Canova, great as he was, had been born the son of a poor quarryman, and he sympathized with the ambitious and poverty-stricken young artist. Canova gave young Gibson money enough to supply his needs, taught him about sculpture and advertised him among the patrons of art. Nothing more to his credit can be said about Antonio Canova, himself a poor boy, become great.

John Gibson began to rise, and before he died, in 1866, at the age of 76, he had become one of the very greatest of English sculptors. In the house of parliament today a magnificent statue of Queen Victoria exhibits the work of a man whom all learned to admire. Patiently, earnestly, forever sticking to the one thing that he liked best of all to do, John Gibson, in spite of poverty and lack of training, made himself an artist of the first rank.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Sir Alfred Mond, who has stirred English political circles by his decision to sever his connection with the Liberal party because of its land nationalization policy, has been a Liberal member of parliament for 20 years. Before embarking on a political career Sir Alfred had made his mark in business, having been a managing director in half a dozen or more great financial and industrial corporations. By his writings on political and economic questions he has attained an international reputation as an economist. During the war, largely because of his known business ability, he was appointed by Lloyd George to the important administrative post of First Commissioner of Works. Entering parliament in 1906, as Liberal member for Chester, he has delivered ably reasoned speeches on many topics, but especially on free trade questions.

Stories That Recall Others

A Foolish Question

Little Roy, age three, was visiting a neighbor who was entertaining him by playing the phonograph. Abruptly Roy remarked: "Say, don't you ever get New York?"

Curious Human Nature

"Human nature is a curious thing," remarked a citizen. "It is so curious, so peculiar, that it causes me to wonder. I had occasion recently to meet a man about 8 o'clock in the morning to talk over some business. I suggested that he accompany me to the restaurant and talk while we ate. He had had his breakfast at home he told me, but he would go with me. All through the meal he was worried because he did not know how he would get past the cashier on the way out, since he had bought nothing. I tried to calm him but he mentioned the matter several times But my assurances did no good—that man was in a panic till we got by the cashier and out on the street. It struck me peculiar because he had been making his living by doing daredevil stunts where one would think fear would be foreign to him as hair on a snake's back."

"Reminds me," said his listener, "of another friend who had traveled the wide world over and had been in grave danger many times. Yet he always fusses and fumes and haws and haws trying to make up his mind just what the proper tip to his taxi driver should be. He actually breaks into a cold sweat in his panicky endeavor to decide on the right amount. Yet, you're right, human nature is a curious thing."

Two Old Friends Meet

In time of need may good luck send
To you a good and trusted friend.
—Nanny Meadow Mouse.

Nanny Meadow Mouse scampered over the snow in the direction of Farmer Brown's barnyard. Nanny's legs are short. She belongs to a family of short legs. But she can make those short legs go very fast, and she did it now when she scampered over the snow in the moonlight. It didn't take her long to get out of the young orchard and into the barnyard back

"Well, well, well! See who's here!" exclaimed Peter of Farmer Brown's house. There she stopped, uncertain which way to go. She didn't dare to go over to Farmer Brown's big barn, because she knew that Shadow the Weasel was there. It was because of Shadow's presence there that she and Danny had left that barn. She didn't dare run under the back porch of Farmer Brown's house, because it was under there that Black Pussy had nearly caught her. So she stopped, uncertain which way to go.

From around back of the little house which belonged to Bowser the Hound a dark form appeared very suddenly. For just a moment Nanny held her breath. Then she recognized Peter Rabbit. Peter was an old friend. There was no reason to fear Peter.

"Oh, Peter!" squeaked Nanny. "Oh, Peter, I am so glad you are safe!"

At the sound of Nanny's squeaky little voice Peter's long ears stood up straight. "Well, well, well, see who's here!" exclaimed Peter. "What under the moon are you doing up here, Nanny Meadow Mouse? You are the last person in the world I expected to see. Where is Danny?"

"I don't know," squeaked Nanny. "I dont know, and I wish I did. I'm looking for him. Haven't you seen him, Peter Rabbit?"

"If I had I wouldn't have asked you where he is, would I?" demanded Peter.

Nanny shook her head. "That was a silly question," she confessed, "but I have had such a dreadful night so far that I don't know what I'm saying." Then she told all her troubles to Peter Rabbit, and when she was all through she felt better. It often does make one feel better just to tell ones troubles to another.

Peter listened without once interrupting. "Well," said he, when Nanny had finished, "I should say that you have had plenty of excitement. I had a little myself when Reddy Fox surprised me, but I knew that if Bowser the Hound was at home, and I thought he was, that I would soon get rid of Reddy. Now the question is, where shall we look for Danny Meadow Mouse?"

"Do—do you mean that you will help me find him?" cried Nanny in her funny, squeaky little voice.

Peter nodded. "Of course I mean it," said he. "Why shouldn't I? Two heads are better than one. Two pairs of eyes are better than one pair. Four ears are better than two ears."

"Oh, Peter!" was all that Nanny could say. But right away she forgot all her troubles. It was just as if she hadn't had any narrow escapes. It was just as if she hadn't had any dreadful frights. Somehow she felt that between them they would be able to find Danny Meadow Mouse.

Now You Can End Constipation In 10 Days or Less

We Mean The Chronic Kind — The Habitual Kind That Calls For Daily Purging—Guaranteed, Too

Now what do you think, good folks? Remember we told you the other day in this paper about McCoy's Rinolin and how in ten days it would conquer the most stubborn kind of constipation and after that the bowels would function normally and regularly.

Remember how we invited all who wanted to get rid of constipation and that vicious habit of taking salts and violent cathartics to go to Lee & Osgood Co. or any drug store and get a bottle of Rinolin with the distinct understanding that it would do just what we said it would do or money back.

A whole lot of people must read this paper, because hardly before the ink is dry on our notice of invitation druggists in this city and towns nearby commenced to have a brisk demand for this effective Emulsion.

And best of all—according to the druggists—everyone who bought seems satisfied and of course they are, for McCoy's Rinolin was tried on thousands of slaves of habitual constipation before it was offered direct through druggists to the people. And how do you think it established regular bowel movements? The answer is simple; it overcame the chronic condition by thoroughly cleaning the walls of the intestines of all accumulated deposits and toxins which prevented active and normal peristalsis—no other preparations have been able to do this.

Besides that—it lubricated and put tone into the entire intestinal track so that it will be many a day before these now happy people will think of purgatives again.

Without active peristalsis, the bowels cannot function properly—McCoy's Rinolin increases the peristalic action. Rinolin tonight—Pep tomorrow.

Gas in the Stomach is Dangerous

Recommends Daily Use of Magnesia to Overcome Trouble Caused by Fermenting Food and Acid Indigestion.

Gas and wind in the stomach accompanied by that full, bloated feeling after eating are almost certain evidence of the presence of excessive hydrochloric acid in the stomach, creating so-called "acid indigestion."

Acid stomachs are dangerous because too much acid irritates the delicate lining of the stomach, often leading to gastritis accompanied by serious stomach ulcers. Food ferments and sours, creating the distressing gas which distends the stomach and hampers the normal functions of the vital internal organs, often affecting the heart.

It is the worst of folly to neglect such a serious condition or to treat with ordinary digestive aids which have no neutralizing effect on the stomach acids. Instead get from any druggist a few ounces of Bisurated Magnesia and take a teaspoonful in a quarter glass of water right after eating. This will drive the gas, wind and bloat right out of the body, sweeten the stomach, neutralize the excess acid and prevent its formation and there is no sourness or sick. Bisurated Magnesia (in powder or tablet form—never liquid or milk) is harmless to the stomach, inexpensive to take and the best form of magnesia for stomach purposes. It is used by thousands of people who enjoy their meals with no more fear of indigestion.

Men's Bible Class at Y. M. C. A.

Every chair at the supper table was occupied at the Men's weekly Bible class, at the Y. M. C. A., Wednesday evening. The study was based on Romans the 12th. chapter. Among the points brought out in the discussion were the following: That the best way to treat one who has harmed us in any way is to refuse to try to get even with him, for such a spirit will accomplish nothing. Generally speaking, "ever, knock is a boost," therefore the man who treats us unfairly or unkindly will gain nothing by such treatment, and there is very little real satisfaction in attempting to get even with him. There are some men with whom we may not be able to get along pleasantly and the best thing to do in such a case is to keep away from him. In a word, the most sensible way to treat an enemy is to treat him the way Jesus did, "over come evil with good."

In Drifts on Willimantic Road

The Willimantic road in the neighborhood of Franklin hill and Cooley hill was reported Thursday night to be lined with automobiles stuck in the snow drifts. Big powerful cars, bread trucks, meat trucks, busses and highway trucks were said to be included in the lot, but a Ford wrecker that was sent up from here to rescue a coupe with a broken axle gave them all the laugh when it hitched onto the coupe and waltzed away merrily to the city with the crippled car.

The plaintiffs claim that the Caplan automobile, which was operated by Berman, was driven on the left side of the road in such a way as to run into the Hazard machine, overturning it and injuring the occupants, and that this was due to recklessness and high speed and failure by the defendant and her agent to give attention to the operation of the Berman automobile.

NORWICH DIGGING OUT FROM WORST SNOW STORM FOR SEVERAL YEARS

Hard hit by the worst snow storm in years, Norwich was Thursday night slowly digging itself out of three foot drifts that have virtually paralyzed rail, trolley and automobile traffic since Thursday morning. The twenty hour storm swept in from the northeast late Wednesday night, dropping twelve inches of snow on the level and leaving in its wake hundreds of stranded automobiles in New London county. Traffic was demoralized throughout the day but during the late evening began to recover from the effects of the storm.

Half a hundred men under the direction of Street Commissioner John C. Donovan were kept busy all night Thursday, wrestling with three and four foot piles of snow ploughed into the curbs on Franklin square. As fast as the snow was ploughed from the center of the street into the curb it was shoveled into trucks, dropped down man holes and thence carried by the sewerage system into the river. It has been a strenuous time for Street Commissioner Donovan who had just succeeded in clearing up the streets from the effects of the sleet storm earlier in the week when the snow storm arrived Wednesday night. Street Commissioner Donovan has put in 42 hours of continuous duty and said late Thursday night that he was good for twenty-four more hours.

Towns and villages throughout eastern Connecticut reported drifts as high as ten feet with all kinds of traffic at practically a stand still. Some of the interurban busses succeeded in covering their routes at irregular intervals but nowhere was traffic operated on schedule. Several small villages off the main highways are reported as virtually snowbound as it was impossible for machines to get through the drift choked side highways.

Trolley Car Hit Building

Throughout the storm the temperature hovered between 26 and 30. This was extremely fortunate as low temperature would have materially added to the troubles of the public in general in spite of the bad condition of streets and highways few accidents were reported, and these were of a minor nature. As far as could be learned the only real accident of the day in Norwich was the derailing of a Connecticut Company trolley car which jumped the tracks on Thames street and sliding across the street came to a stop against a building. No one was hurt.

It was about 10:15 o'clock Wednesday night that the driving snow storm set in and from then on until early Thursday evening snow continued falling steadily. A brisk wind whipped the light snow into drifts and the storm commenced to take on the proportions of a blizzard. It was the worst snow storm in this vicinity for the past half dozen years.

By daylight Thursday morning between three and four inches of snow had fallen and from then on it piled up rapidly, the total fall being about 12 inches. Early morning risers found trolley and bus schedules disrupted and many were late in getting to their employment. Auto drivers, in some cases, had to shovel the snow drifts away from their garages before they could get in for their machines, and especially during the morning hours, were able to navigate the streets only with great difficulty. Some drivers got snowbound in their yards and either had to dig their machine out or abandon them and get to their places of employment as best they could, either on foot or on delayed trolleys.

Automobiles and Trolleys

A number of machines forced off the center of the highways by trolley cars or machines and large busses headed in the opposite direction became snow bound in large drifts or piles of snow ploughed by the roadside and were stuck for the day. Abandoned machines by the roadside were a common sight.

State highway traffic was badly demoralized despite the efforts of highway gangs to keep the roads clear. So badly did the snow drift that the ploughs had hardly gone through before the roads were as bad as ever. Some of the more fortunate drivers who succeeded in getting through to this city from New London, Westerly and points north reported the highways strewn with pleasure cars, trucks and busses unable to move.

Street Commissioner Busy

Despite persistent efforts of Street Commissioner John C. Donovan and his force of men and trucks to clear up the snow, the local streets were in bad condition in most sections of the city. Ploughing seemed to have but little effect on the snow for it was immediately blown back into the center of the streets.

Automobile drivers found it hard work to negotiate through the streets carrying trolley lines. Ploughing the center of the streets served only to pile the snow along the sides of the street and leaving only the center of the streets open to traffic. Scores of mix-ups occurred when auto met trolley. There was no place for the auto driver to go but into the snow banked by the sides of the street and it was extremely difficult for machines to pull out of the snow banks and into the center of the street again.

On Franklin street several drivers bound north had to back down the street for a hundred feet or so before they could get off the tracks in order to allow a trolley car to get through. Besides operating their cars, trolley crews all over the city had to act as rescue parties in pushing stalled machines off the trolley company's right of way. On one trip between Franklin square and Greeneville the trolley crew had to help bush at least a dozen stalled machines from the tracks.

Trolley Traffic Demoralized

Trolley traffic, especially on interurban lines, was badly demoralized. Few cars got through to New London, and those were greatly delayed. Only two through trips were made between Norwich and Willimantic during the afternoon. Willimantic people employed in Norwich found it impossible to get to Norwich in some cases.

The local trolley lines were running throughout the day but all were more or less off schedule. The trolley company provided the best service possible in the face of storm difficulties. The trolley snow ploughs were kept going all night Wednesday and throughout Thursday.

Thursday morning a trolley car jumped the tracks on Thames street and sliding sideways across the street came to a stop against the building known as the Comstock house. The resulting damage was small. It took several hours to get the car back on the rails.

Street Commissioner Donovan and his employees did very commendable work in their efforts to keep the streets open. All available men, ploughs and trucks, were kept busy practically all night, Wednesday and throughout the entire day Thursday. It was a gigantic task that faced the street commissioner but he made considerable headway despite the badly drifting snow. Truck load after truck load of snow was carted from the gutters in the central part of the city but no faster was the snow removed from the gutters than it was blown back in drifts by the strong wind.

Bus Line Tied Up

The Norwich-Hartford bus line was completely tied up by the storm. No busses were running between this city and the state capital Thursday night.

The railroad was hard hit also and trains were running from a half to an hour off schedule.

The telephone company in this city experienced but little trouble from the storm.

ISSUES FIRE WARNINGS FOR STORM CONDITIONS

Chief Howard L. Stanton of the local fire department sounded a warning to the public Thursday night to be extremely careful as with the bad going fires are likely to result in serious losses. Until the streets are in normal condition throughout the city the heavy apparatus of the department can make but slow time in responding to fire calls and then too, there is the chance that the apparatus may become stalled, especially so on the side streets and hills which have not yet been ploughed out.

Stove and furnace fires should be carefully watched to avoid chimney fires, which if not extinguished promptly might set fire to roofs and result in serious loss.

DIOCESAN BUREAU WILL OBSERVE 10TH ANNIVERSARY

The diocesan bureau of social service will commemorate its tenth anniversary as a dinner to be given at the Hartford Club on Tuesday evening, February 9, at 6:30 o'clock. Right Rev. John J. Nilan, bishop of Hartford, will address the meeting on the development of the work of the bureau. Rev. Matthew J. Judge, diocesan director, will serve as toastmaster. Rev. Dr. Robert F. Keegan, secretary of the Catholic Charities of the Archdiocese of New York, will be the principal speaker. After his ordination, Dr. Keegan spent two years at the New York School of Social Work, and for the past six years has been in charge of the development of Catholic charities in New York. He is a brilliant speaker and thoroughly conversant with all phases of social service work. A general invitation has been issued to all the clergy of the diocese and to the laity, both men and women.

The diocesan bureau of social service has just issued its annual report. In the introduction it tells of the development of the work during the past fifteen years.

The bureau operates through three main departments, the department of child welfare, the department of family welfare and the department of group activities and community centers. During the past ten years the bureau has had under its care 4,083 children's cases. Free homes have been found for 857 dependent children, and 777 children requiring temporary care have been placed in boarding homes.

In the family department the work is necessarily confined to the cities in which bureaux are located. Since the organization of the work Bridgeport has had under its care 1,953 poor families, New Haven 1,069, Hartford 610, Waterbury 520, and New London 183.

Community houses have been opened in Bridgeport, Hartford, New Haven and New London, and these provide recreational and educational opportunities for young people as well as temporary shelter for girls who are strangers to the cities. The bureaux maintain a room registry through which girls may be directed to suitable boarding homes; also an employment service to assist girls in finding suitable positions.

The diocesan bureau of social service serves as the investigating and placing agency for the Catholic institutions of the state, and has rendered invaluable service in supplementing the work of the institutions. The bureau co-operates cordially with all the public and private agencies doing kindred work in the state.

A separate report is given for the work of the bureau during the year 1925. During this past year 472 new children's cases were referred to the bureau for investigation and care. A total of 1451 children's cases were under the supervision of the bureau during the year. Good free foster homes were found for 72 children; 29 children were given for adoption; 198 children were placed in temporary boarding homes; 128 children were returned to their relatives. A total of 9,183 visits were made to or in behalf of these children by the staff of workers of the bureau.

In the family department a total of 463 cases were referred to the five bureau offices, and a total of 1,182 families were under the care of the bureau. 200 positions were secured for men out of employment. 6,461 articles of clothing were distributed to families. 17 families were taken out of rooming houses and established in their own homes. Hospital care was secured for 92 persons. 11,989 visits were made on or in behalf of these families during the year.

The bureau has been generously assisted in this work, both financially and through personal service, by the volunteer organizations, the Connecticut Council of Catholic Women and the Connecticut Council of Catholic Men.

Y., and resided in the Bonnell property on West Main street, this city, until the time of the colonel's death. Of late she has made her home at Liberty, N. Y., with her son, Dr. Stephen W. Wells. She was a member of Grace Episcopal church. Mrs. Wells is survived by the following children: Angie F. Wells, wife of Dr. W. S. Colfax of Pompton Lake, N. J., Charles F. Fullerton, Bath, N. Y.

Inheriting the brilliant, intellectual and social qualities of the race from which she sprang, Mrs. Wells was fitted by nature for a successful social career in the larger world, but her sense of responsibility as a wife and mother made her realize that her best service could be rendered in the home circle, and she fully exemplified in that circle the best traditions of American home life.

Her devotion to her family was fully justified and rewarded by the constant care and helpfulness of her children throughout her life. Mrs. Wells was a gifted letter writer and kept up an unusual correspondence not only with her own family but with a considerable circle of friends and this correspondence was continued up to within a few weeks of her death. A constant Christian, her religion was to her a chart and compass by which to direct her journey through life and a comfort and staff on which to lean as life brought to her, as to all, its burdens and trials.

North Main Street Blockaded

One of the worst of the troubles of the trolley company Thursday morning came when two cars, became stalled on North Main street near Roath street, with the sweeper and a plough right behind them. If the sweeper and plough had been in front it would have been all right, but the cars were unable to make any progress along the rails until men with shovels chipped the ice off the irons, enabling the group of rolling stock eventually to reach Franklin Square, after considerable delay.

BALTIC AND JEWETT CITY PROS CLASH IN THIRD GAME OF THEIR SERIES

One of the games to have a direct bearing on the Eastern Connecticut basketball championship will be played this evening when Baltic will clash with the Jewett City Pros at Baltic in the third and deciding game between these two clubs. Each team has a victory to its credit and the game tonight will be a hard fussle from whistle to whistle.

Jewett City has won from Taftville but has lost to Plainfield while Taftville has split with Baltic and has now disbanded. Plainfield is the logical champion at the present time but a victory for Baltic will make this team a contender for the title.

Bitter rivalry has marked all previous games between Baltic and Jewett City and tonight's contest is expected to be just as bitter. Baltic will marshal its strongest team to battle and will pit the following aggregation against the Jewett City Pros: W. Robitaille and Rabbit Gauthier, forwards; Red Charron, center; Capt. R. Robitaille, Ceady and Eccleston, guards.

Jewett City will also put one of the most formidable teams on the floor for tonight's game in an effort to put Baltic out of the running for championship honors. Jewett City will have Normandin, Benjamin and Blake in the forward berths; Harry Mills, center; Faber and Berry, guards.

MRS. MALLORY BEATEN FOR FIRST TIME IN 9 YEARS

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Molla Bjurstedt Mallory, former national champion, met defeat for the first time in nine years of indoor play in the Heights Casino invitation tournament when she was eliminated in the semi-finals today by the youthful star from Short Hills, N. J., Martha Bayard. The score was 6-2, 3-6, 8-6.

Winner of the event last year and a strong favorite to repeat, Mrs. Mallory yielded to the skill and endurance of her opponent only after one of the pluckiest fights of her long career. Twice she came from behind to deuce the score in the final set, breaking through Miss Bayard's service in the tenth game to square the count after twice being within a point of defeat.

Serving a sharp, high-bounding ball which troubled Mrs. Mallory throughout the contest, Miss Bayard, who holds seventh position in the national ranking, outgeneralled and out-stroked the former title-holder at crucial periods. By a clever change of pace she frequently lured Mrs. Mallory into firecourt and then passed her with sizzling sideline drives.

The first two sets found the rivals closely matched but Mrs. Mallory tired toward the close of the deciding set after making her gallant stand. In the final two games she registered only one point.

Miss Bayard, as a result of her victory, will play in the final Saturday against the winner of tomorrow's semi-final match between Miss Mary K. Browne, former national champion, and Mrs. J. Dallas Corbiere of Boston.

Mrs. Mallory, paired with Miss Browne, later was tended to another three-set match by Mrs. W. H. Trumbull and Mrs. F. M. Godfrey of Boston in the second round of the doubles. After winning the first set at 6-2, the Boston team was at match point once in the second set, only to be defeated, 7-5. The deciding set went to the New York women, 6-2, and they then advanced to the final round by eliminating Mrs. E. F. Briggs and Mrs. E. F. Stenz, 6-4, 6-4.

MEHLHORN WINS FROM CRUICKSHANK IN PLAY OFF

HOT SPRINGS, Ark., Feb. 4.—(AP)—William "Wild Bill" Mehlhorn, of Chicago, defeated his fellow townsman, Bobby Cruickshank, by one stroke for the South Central open golf tournament here today in the 18 hole play-off of the tie in the 72 hole match. Bill's card was 73, Bobby's 74.

Both professions showed results of the strain of tournament play, which was the fastest ever witnessed on a local course.

Bobby took the first hole with one stroke. Mehlhorn squared the match on the second and the next two holes were halved. Cruickshank again went into the lead on the fifth with an eagle three against five strokes for "Wild Bill". Mehlhorn gained a stroke on the sixth, halved the seventh and evened matters on the eighth. He forged into the lead by two strokes on the ninth when Cruickshank went into a ditch.

The tenth was halved with Mehlhorn gaining two more strokes on the eleventh hole. The twelfth was split, with Cruickshank recovering on the thirteenth to cut down Mehlhorn's lead to three strokes, but Bill again brought his lead to four strokes on the fourteenth.

The fifteenth was made in par three.

Cruickshank made the last three holes in par fours while Mehlhorn took fives, giving Mehlhorn the match with a one stroke advantage, and first money of $1,500. Cruickshank's share of the prize was $1,200 for second place.

KILLINGLY BEATS PLAINFIELD IN LAST MINUTE RALLY

(Special to The Bulletin.)

KILLINGLY Feb. 4—A long shot from better than midfloor and a foul basket by Conklin in the last minute of play won a hard fought contest for Killingly High over Plainfield High here last evening, the locals winning 23 to 18. The game had been an uphill battle for three quarters the locals taking the lead in the last quarter but as the game drew to a close the score was so nearly even that a basket meant victory for either team. Conklin gained possession of the ball on a foul and made good on the free try putting his team into the lead by two points. Just before the final whistle Conklin intercepted a pass and standing well past the center of the floor looped the ball through the hoop for what proved to be the winning basket.

Killingly took the lead in the first quarterly only to be passed by Plainfield in the second quarter. Plainfield held the margin by one point at the end of the third quarter but Killingly in this frame forged to the front by a single point and Conklin's accurate shooting clinched the game.

In the preliminary contest Plainfield scored a victory through the brilliant playing of its girls' team the locals being overwhelmed 25 to 5.

WORLD'S RECORD BROKEN IN POLE VAULT AT MILLROSE A. A. GAMES

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—Creation of two new world's indoor records, one a pole vault mark of 13 feet, one inch by Charles Hoff, Norwegian star, and triumphs by the United States in seven out of nine international events featured the athletic carnival of the Millrose A. A. in Madison Square Garden tonight.

Hoff's sensational performance in his American debut, giving him possession of all world's pole vault records, thrilled a crowd of close to 14,000. The Norwegian also figured in two other events, finishing third in the Milrose 600 and giving the foreign team a lead in the first leg of the international relay with the United States.

Hoff shared major honors, however, with Loran Murchison, of the Illinois A. C., who maintained his supremacy as American indoor sprint king by decisively conquering his German rival. Rubert Houben, in forty and sixty yard dashes, besides hanging up a third victory in the 300 yard sprint.

Houben could do no better than third in the 40-yard dash and fourth in the sixty yard event.

Miss Rosa Grosse, of Toronto, Canada, shaded distinction with Hoff as the only foreign victors when she defeated United States rivals in the girls' fifty yard dash.

The world's indoor record for the girls' quarter mile relay was shattered by a picked United States team in conquering a Canadian team. The time of 1m 6-10 seconds eclipsed the former mark of 64 1-5 seconds, set in 1924 by the National City Bank team of New York.

George Lermond, crack Boston A. A. distance runner, triumphed decisively over a field of a dozen in the two mile run leading James Louks of Syracuse by 10 yards. Russell Payne, former Ohio State star, now running for the University of Pennsylvania, finished fast to beat out Verne Booth of the Millrose A. A. for third place.

Ray Dodge of the Illinois A. C. scored a sensational victory over George Marsters of the New York A. C. in the 1,000-yard run, breasting the tape a yard and a half in front after a nip-and-tuck battle over the last lap. Syd Leslie of the New York A. C. finished third and Schuyler Enck, former Penn State runner, fourth. Hector Phillips, Canadian entry, failed to start.

Jimmy Connolly, veteran New York A. C. runner, sprang an upset when he raced to sensational victory in the Rodman Wanamaker mile, pulling away from Eddie Kirby of the New York A. C., to win by 20 yards with Willie Ritola, the favorite, third, ten yards further behind.

Ritola set the pace for the first half mile but Connolly set a burning pace over the last half, breasting the tape in the fast time of four minutes, 17 3-10. Walter Gegan of Georgetown finished fourth.

MECHANICSVILLE A. A. FIVE BEATS PUTNAM HIGH

The Mechanicsville athletic association basketball team won its seventh consecutive game by defeating the Putnam High school five champions of the city 35-23, Wednesday night.

The school boys took the lead and the first quarter ended with Putnam in the lead 7 to 4. The second period the M. A. boys showed that they were also playing, the half ending with Mechanicsville in the lead 16 to 11. The third period ended with a tie. The score was tied at 23 to 23 with only two minutes to play when the boys in the green suits started with a rally which decided the game. There were about 300 people attending.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Jack Delaney will make another bid for heavyweight honors when the Bridgeport sharpshooter boxes Johnny Risko of Cleveland in the 10 round feature at Madison Square Garden tomorrow night.

Risko enters the ring with the record of having never been knocked off his feet in his 18 professional fights, eight of which he won by knockouts. Delaney has been established a favorite although he will concede about 20 pounds to his rival.

"Chick" Suggs, Bedford, Mass., negro bantamweight ranked by Tex Rickard as the best in his class in 1925, will face Abe Goldstein, former titleholder, in another ten-rounder. In a third ten-round go, Eddie Anderson, a Wyoming featherweight, will engage Steven Smith of Bridgeport, Conn.

"Y" TO TAKE PART IN NAT. FREE THROW TOURNEY

An opportunity to compete on a nationwide basis is to be afforded local basketball players, through the medium of a national free throw tournament which is being held the early part of this month and in which various organizations all over the country will participate.

The event is being conducted under the direction of a national committee of sportsmen interested in the game of basketball and the event consists of shooting basketball goals from the fifteen foot free throw line.

Owing to the interest in basketball in this vicinity, the local YMCA has registered for the purpose of promoting the event among the local teams and players who would be interested in trying their skill in this popular activity.

The competition will begin in the "Y" gym next Monday and suitable awards will be offered both teams and individuals making the highest scores in the city. These scores will also count in the national competition for which a number of large trophies are awaiting the winning "cagers."

The participants are grouped into the following divisions:

-ersSenior 6qfilt...H;Oatoe8fi(AP)ca5A

Senior division, players over 18 years of age, 75 throws, each successful shot scoring one point.

Intermediate division, boys between the ages of 15-18, 60 throws.

Junior boys division, boys under the age of 15, 45 throws.

All teams and players in Norwich and vicinity are invited to enter the tournament, both for the enjoyment of the sport and to see how they match with other groups about the country.

No entry fee will be charged and all players wishing to enter the tournament should register at once at the local "Y".

THUNBERG DECIDES TO GO THROUGH WITH TOUR

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—Declaring he would go through with the rest of his North American tour in spite of some disagreement over his expense money, Clas Thunberg, Olympic skating king, left today for Detroit to compete in the international championships, starting tomorrow.

Rather than cancel his tour, as he threatened to do yesterday because of dissatisfaction with his own showing in competition so far as well as with financial matters, the Finnish star decided to compete in Detroit and also at Lake Placid, N. Y., Feb. 13 and 14, as proof of his own "good faith."

Thunberg was accompanied to Detroit by Raymond Becker, vice president of the middle Atlantic skating union, and Raymond Murray, New York juvenile star.

Plainfield-Middletown Game Postponed

Owing to the snow storm of Thursday which blocked state roads to such an extent that the game scheduled for tonight (Friday) has been postponed. There will be no game at the Plainfield court tonight but next week the Plainfield team plays the fast Brockton Y. M. H. A. team.

COMPETITION FOR CONTROL OF ASSOCIATED OIL CO.

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Competition for working stock control of the Associated Oil Company developed today between two banking groups, one headed by Blair and Company and the others by the First National bank and Morgan interests.

Acting presumably for the Tidewater Oil Company, the First National group was reported to have made an offer of $60 a share for several large blocks of Associated, bettering Blair's original bid of $56 a share. Negotiations, however, were not closed and several different proposals were submitted by the bankers in the hope of gaining control. The Pacific Oil Company, with 1,400,000 shares, has been the largest holder of Associated stock but is distributing its securities to its stockholders. One of the conditions imposed by large holders of Associated is that minority interests be offered the same terms.

SCREEN DARK HALF TIME PICTURE IS BEING SHOWN

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Charles Van Enger, who has photographed many film plays, has ascertained the screen is dark nearly half the time a picture is being shown, but the eye of the camera is so fast the average spectator never notices the darkness.

Not satisfied with this knowledge, he has estimated that in "Lady Windermere's Fan," the last photoplay he filmed, 180,000 "pictures" are thrown on the screen and that each of these is seen three times.

"Sounds impossible?" he asked. "Well, here's how it is: There are sixteen pictures in every foot of film. The photoplay is approximately 7,500 feet long. That's not so hard to figure out.

"One has to be a bit mechanically inclined to understand why you see each picture three times. In front of the lens on the projection machine is a revolving disk. This disk is divided into six parts, there being three black sections through which the light is allowed to travel to the screen.

"By means of an intricate synchronizing device, this disk revolves once each time one of the minute pictures stops before the opening. Therefore, each picture is shown three times before it passes on and the next takes its place. Of course, all this happens too fast for the eye to discern—but it happens, anyway.

"Darkness of the screen during nearly half the time the play is being shown is caused by the black sections of the disk being smaller than the solid portions."

$5 A Month For Good House

In Tahiti, in the South Seas, land can be had almost for the asking. Rents are ridiculously low. James Norman Hall tells in the Atlantic Monthly of having rented a small house on a two-acre lot for $5 a month. The lot was infested with land crabs, which are considered a delicacy when cooked with a common variety of nuts. The crabs are so numerous that the work of catching enough for a day's rations takes only a few moments. The nuts also are plentiful. There a man can live in comparative luxury on a few dollars a month. And the climate compares favorably with that of Florida.

COMPARATIVE SCORES FAVOR LENGLEN AS SUPERIOR TO AMERICAN CHAMPION

NICE, France, Feb. 4—(AP)—The first opportunity for a direct comparison of the tennis game Suzanne Lenglen is playing this winter with that of Helen Wills came today, when the French champion met Mrs. C. F. Aeschlimann in the Nice tournament, and the comparison was impressively favorable to Mlle Lenglen.

Suzanne, attacking vigorously downed Mrs. Aeschlimann, formerly Leslie Bancroft of Boston, in two love sets. On January 23 the American woman champion was pitted against the same opponent in the metropole tournament and won, 6-2, 6-2. Experts agreed, however, that the comparative scores hardly represents Mlle. Lenglen's superiority, for Mrs. Aeschlimann today was able to bring only two of the twelve games to deuce and scored only nine points in the first set and eleven in the second.

It is recalled that Mrs. Aeschlimann frequently defeated Miss Wills during the season of 1923.

Miss Wills scored two more victories in the Nice tournament today, in the mixed doubles she and C. F. Aeschlimann came through to the semi-finals by defeating Peggy Saunders and Mrs. Scovel, 4-6, 6-1, 6-3. Playing the first round of the women's doubles Miss Wills and Emily Bennett of England trounced Mlle Hovalsky and Mrs. Emmett, 6-2, 6-0.

After watching the French girl's play today thirteen experts, matching impressions agreed in failing to see why she should fear to meet her American rival, since on the basis of their respective forms in the Riviera season Mlle. Lenglen should be able to defeat the California girl rather easily.

Both Miss Wills and Mlle. Lenglen maintain their refusal to commit themselves in regard to playing in the women's singles of the Carleton tournament at Cannes next week, and it is possible that the long awaited meeting of the two champions will be still further postponed to the week of February 15.

Mrs. Satterthwaite, Mlle. Lenglen's partner in the women's doubles in the present tournament, was slightly injured today in an automobile accident. However, it is believed she will be able to appear as Suzanne's teammate by Saturday, although her doctor has ordered her to scratch her entries in the women's singles and mixed doubles.

THINGS THAT ENDURE

Honor and truth and manhood—
These are the things that stand,
Though the sneer and jibe of the cynic tribe
Are loud through the width of the land.
The scoffer may lord it an hour on earth,
And a lie may live for a day,
But truth and honor and manly worth
Are things that endure alway.

Courage and toil and service,
Old, yet forever new—
These are the rock that abides the shock
And holds through the storm, flint true.
Fad and folly, the whims of an hour,
May bicker and rant and shrill;
But the living granite of truth will tower
Long after their rage is still.

Labor and love and virtue—
Time does not dim their glow;
Though the smart may say, in their languid way,
"Oh, we've outgrown all that, you know!"
But a lie, whatever the guise it wears,
Is a lie as it was of yore,
And a truth that has lasted a million years
Is good for a million more!

Attendance for this busy meeting was large considering the severe snow storm, and while Mrs. John Burdick of Ashaway, who was on the programme for a paper, Country of the Narragansetts could not appear, Mrs. James H. Blackler gave readings from the D. A. R. national publication.

Hostesses were Mrs. William Thompson, Miss Bertha Brown, Mrs. A. L. Chester, Miss Sylvia Lanphear, Mrs. Alberti R. Stillman, Mrs. Thomas H. Peabody and Mrs. Charles H. Larkin, who assisted in the serving of refreshments.

Delegates elected to attend the national congress in Washington in April were: Mrs. Carrie E. Savage, regent, and Mrs. S. H. Davis, past state regent; alternates, Miss H. Louise Ayers, Mrs. Howard M. Barber, Mrs. Albert L. Chester, Mrs. Elisha C. Burdick, Mrs. Fred S. Opie, Mrs. John S. Burdick, Mrs. Horace E. Burdick, Mrs. George Champlin, Mrs. William Segar, and Mrs. Everett E. Whipple.

Delegates to attend the Rhode Island state conference in Providence next March were Mrs. Carrie E. Savage, regent, Mrs. Fayette F. Freeman, Mrs. Edwin Hall, Mrs. Frank Sullivan, Mrs. Everett Barnes and Mrs. LaCleve Woodmansee; alternates, Mrs. Elisha C. Burdik, Mrs. William Segar, Mrs. Hiram W. Barber, Mrs. William A. Wilcox, Mrs. Everett E. Whipple and Mrs. William Thompson.

Yearly appropriations were made for the following, the manual, Philippine Island scholarship, Ellis Island Emigrant, State Magazine for Westerly library and the necessary amounts to pay the Rhode Island state tax and the Washington birthday observance fund.

T. Edward Peabody, master of Pawcatuck lodge, No. 90, F. & A. M., together with Russell Hemphill, warden, and Samuel Girven, were in Hartford this week attending the Masonic Grand lodge sessions.

The meeting of Westerly physicians, Wednesday night, at the Westerly hospital, when invitations were sent by Secretary Edgar P. Maxson of the hospital board, for the organization of a staff bord, was attended by less than half of the local physicians.

The school bus, a Reo truck, owned by Edward Major, in the blinding snow storm of Thursday morning, left the Boston Post road and came to a stop on a stone wall near the residence of C. J. Clarke. The bus was returning from its delivery of early morning workmen and on the next trip was to have taken the school children of Charlestown and Quonohontaug to the Carolina school. No one was injured and a Westerly wrecking crew was called to the scene and returned with the bus.

Postponed to a future date by reason of the snow storm Thursday, was the action taken for the February meeting of the Westerly Historical society, first scheduled for last Thursday evening at the Westerly library, and at which Dr. John Champlin was to have presided at a stereopticon talk on the subject, Interesting Characters of Former Days.

West bound commuters who are accustomed to use electric car service were forced to use the steam train Thursday morning to reach their destination in the morning hours. In the afternoon through express travel on the steam road was held up and there was no west bound express train out of Westerly from noon until nearly 6 o'clock in the evening. At that time an express train, which had taken nearly two and one-half hours from Providence, pulled into the station and showered the waiting passengers with the snow which the locomotive plow rushed off the tracks.

Eunice Clark, of Wakefield, R. I. is the guest of relatives and friends in Westerly for several days.

Mrs. T. Edward Peabody of Pawcatuck, accompanied by her children, Thelma, Ruth and Donald Emory, are the guests of Mrs. Peabody's parents, Mr. and Mrs. George Downey, Wakefield, R. I.

Dr. James Vaughn and sister, Miss Dorothy Vaughn, returned on Wednesday to their home in Mt. Vernon, N. Y., after being in Westerly to attend the funeral of Mrs. John G. Vaughn, held at the Shelter in Riverbend cemetery, on Wednesday afternoon.

The 12 o'clock bus from Westerly to Norwich became stalled in a snow drift at Preston Plains, Thursday, and all trips had to be discontinued for the remainder of the day. Regular trips are to be attempted this (Friday) morning.

HELP YOURSELF TO HEALTH

W. K. Kellogg

Jealous Women

YOU can't blame them. Beauty and health are given but they are difficult to keep. No wonder women guard them jealously. No wonder their mirrors reveal the furtive glances of the afraid. It is too bad that women do not realize that constipation's ruinous poisons undermine health, destroy beauty, sap vitality and sicken with headaches. But thank goodness, beauty and health may be safeguarded by safely, surely and permanently relieving constipation with Kellogg's ALL-BRAN.

No matter if constipation has become chronic, Kellogg's ALL-BRAN will bring permanent relief. This is why: ALL-BRAN journeys through the body unchanged in fiber. It is what doctors call "bulk food." It is 100% bran and brings 100% results. As Kellogg's ALL-BRAN sweeps through the intestine, it cleans and purifies—stimulates the flow of digestive juices—absorbs and carries moisture. It causes a laggard intestine to function as nature intended. That's the splendid thing about the action of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN—it promotes natural, healthy and regular elimination.

Eat two tablespoonfuls of Kellogg's ALL-BRAN every day—in chronic cases, with every meal. If eaten regularly, it is guaranteed to bring permanent relief or the grocer returns the purchase price. Its delightful nutty flavor makes it good as a cereal. Serve with milk or cream alone, or with fresh or preserved fruit—sprinkle over other cereals; cook with hot cereals; use in soups, or in the recipes on the package.

Be sure you get Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Don't accept a part-bran product, for it cannot do a whole-bran job. Chances are, it will do no good at all. Don't take chances. All grocers sell Kellogg's ALL-BRAN. Leading hotels and restaurants serve it.

WORLD LEAGUE AGAINST ALCOHOLISM TAKES ISSUE WITH THE REV. EMPRINGHAM

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—The World League Against Alcoholism, in a statement made public today by Robert E. Corradini of its research department, took issue with the report yesterday of the Rev. James Empringham, national secretary of the Church Temperance society of the Episcopal church, purporting to show that prohibition has been a failure.

The statement challenged every point in the results of Dr. Empringham's survey of prohibition enforcement which caused the Episcopal organization to reverse its attitude toward the Volstead act and announce that it would work for the legalization of light wines and beer. It also denied that the league had "brought pressure from across the Atlantic" to bear upon Dr. Empringham to prevent the report from being published, as was intimated in press reports.

"Alcoholism in the United States before prohibition was decidedly beer and wine alcoholism and the legalizing of these beverages would bring back 90 per cent. of the old liquor traffic," said the statement.

The league also contended that the only surveys published do not indicate that there has been an increase of drinking among young people. "The real situation", it added, "is that prohibition had decreased the actual consumption of wine and beer to a larger extent than it has decreased the consumption of hard liquor."

In reply to the charge that prohibition caused disrespect for all laws, the statement says: "Was there ever a time in the history of the country when public opinion was so thoroughly mobilized and so actively militant for law enforcement?" The league denied that the Volstead act was class legislation, pointing to "the phenomenal rise in prosperity of the working man" and offered to prove from its data compiled in 700 cities that intemperance is decreasing, instead of increasing.

Mr. Corradini also asserted that on last January 28, Dr. Empringham authorized him to cable London that the report that the temperance society was about to admit the failure of prohibition was "absolutely without foundation."

Turning to Dr. Empringham's reference to "pressure from overseas," Mr. Corradini said he supposed this meant the query he received from London as to whether the society was going to declare prohibition a failure.

"If he (Dr. Empringham) has reference to the cablegram I showed him, and I have reason to believe that such is the case, then the statement is absolutely false, and knowingly so," Mr. Corradini said.

The church temperance society is composed of approximately 20,000 of the total 1,000,000 membership of the Protestant Episcopal church, including both clergymen and laymen, and officials of the society today explained pointing out that the only organization qualified to express opinions of policy affecting the denomination is the general assembly, composed of 400 lay members of the house of deputies and 185 bishops, which has not discussed prohibition.

STORM CAUSED NEARLY A SCORE OF DEATHS

Furness freighter, Manchester Producer, bound from Halifax to Manchester, was drifting with a broken rudder, about 300 miles from Halifax. The German steamship Hanover has gone to her aid. The collier Selwyn Eddy was reported in danger of the Delaware Capes. The frighter George H was reported standing by, and a coast guard cutter was proceeding to the collier's aid from Cape May, N. J.

Seven lives were believed to have been lost in the sinking and grounding of three barges off the New Jersey coast, in what was characterized as one of the most heroic rescues in the coast guard annals. Three men were rescued from the barge Metropolitan No. 21, which had grounded off Asbury Park. Two of the rescued men died from exposure after they were brought ashore. The living survivor, W. L. Carver, did not know the names of the dead. Six other barges broke loose from their tugs and were left to the mercy of the storm.

Three persons lost their lives in New York through exposure to the storm and several others were injured in traffic accidents.

Seven persons were killed at New Britain, Conn., when the wall of a brick foundry building collapsed under the weight of tons of snow on the roof.

Other fatalities were reported from scattered points in the storm region.

In the larger cities armies of workmen and hundreds of trucks and motor snowsweepers were put to work to keep the main thoroughfares open. In New York city this force numbered more than 19,000 men, and it was estimated the cost of clearing the streets would total $1,000,000.

Surface cars were able to keep in operation, but were subject to frequent delays. Commuting trains ran from a few minutes to half an hour behind schedule and most through express trains from distant points were delayed.

LOSS OF LIFE AND DAMAGE BY STORM IN CONNECTICUT

NEW HAVEN, Feb. 4—(AP)—Winter and old Boreas clutched savagely at Connecticut today and laid it under a blanket of snow, packed down by a wind of almost gale intensity, in a storm comparable to some of the worst in the state in the last quarter of a century. Tonight the weather was clearing.

All day the snow fell at a rate of an inch an hour and the wind swept it into drifts which made great stretches of state roads impassable, all but stopped motor busses traffic on inter-town lines, and brought great damage and some loss of life. Outstanding in tragic incidents was the collapse of a brick foundry building at New Britain with deaths of several of the workmen and injuries to nearly a score of others. Another death directly attributable to the elements was that of Charles Britto, 66, at Bridgeport, who expired after struggling through the snow to reach his place of employment.

Along the Long Island sound shore the mariners having had ample warning of the disturbance had sought refuge in harbors and shipping damage was not material. Of the coast guard patrol fleet out of New London the only craft which was out of touch of base officers was number 234 which was thought to be snugged down at anchor in some sheltered Long Island cove. Patrol boat 186 with a crew of eight reported late in the day that it was safe uder shelter of Block Island.

A warning was sent to theater owners by the state police department during the day to clear roofs to avoid danger of collapse of weakened walls, and to keep exits unblocke dby mounds of snow.

The state highway department which undertakes to keep trunk line highways clear after storms had more than 175 plows in action but these proved inadequate to handle the drifts. Motor bus traffic was badly tied up but railroad traffic was only discommoded. Trolley cars in cities moved behind plows so that the business man and woman did not miss the usual routine of place of employment. All over the state automobiles whose drivers undertook to go travelling were stalled and snowed in. The number ran into the thousands.

In northeastern Connecticut many motor busses with passengers aboard were stalled in country districts and those in them had to stay cooped up for hours, until relief could be sent to them. Near Danielson, on Dark Lantern hill early tonight were two busses in snow drifts which had persons on board who had been there all day, and might have to stay part of the night.

In southern Connecticut under influence of a wind from the ocean the snow became wet and the temperature went up making prospects for travelling even worse than they had been.

TWO HORSES DROWNED IN BRIDGEPORT HARBOR

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 4—(AP)—Two heavy dray horses harnessed to a cart loaded with snow which was being dumped into the harbor off the Wall street dock, at 3:15 o'clock this afternoon were dragged into the water as the wagon slipped over the dock edge, and perished as the bystanders looked helplessly upon their struggles to free themselves of their harness. It was stated that a train passing overhead on the tracks of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad frightened them into backing and as the rear of the wagon slipped over the dock edge they were pulled in.

Attempts later to raise the horses and wagon from the water were unsuccessful and another will be made some time tomorrow with a lighter derrick. The horses were the property of Patrick Doolan, who had contracted to remove loads of snow from the streets.

The Rev. John H. Carroll, pastor of the Holy Trinity church of Wallingford, is recovering from an operation performed at the St. Francis hospital, Hartford on January 29.

STORM DELAYED TRAIN SERVICE OUT OF BOSTON

BOSTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Train service out of Boston was suspended late today because of the snow storm which had been raging over New England since last night. At the same time passenger congestion in two mid-city subway terminals became so serious that the stations were closed.

The storm had laid a foot of snow in western Massachusetts by early evening, while elsewhere the fall raged from three to six inches.

Shipping was at a standstill in Boston and Portland harbors, and vessels, heeding yesterday's storm warnings, hugged port or made for many havens. The Cape Cod canal and Vineyard Haven were filled with craft seeking shelter. The Fall River line steamer Providence from New York was held at Whitestone throughout the night, and today failed to put in at Newport, continuing her trip in rough seas to Fall River.

In Boston and many other New England cities schools were closed because of the storm. In this city, state house and city hall employes were dismissed early and many large stores closed to permit the workers to reach their homes. While snow plows kept the Maine lines of the railroads open, several branch suburban lines were heavily drifted. In Boston 1,500 men worked throughout the day to clear the streets and this number was augmented tonight.

Western Massachusetts, where the snowfall was heaviest, trolley service was almost entirely suspended and the bus line between Springfield and Pittsfield cancelled service. Pittsfield had ten inches of snow by early evening with the storm continuing.

Northern Vermont and northern New Hampshire had from three to six inches of snow, the maximum being reported from Whitefield and Plymouth. Woodsville, N. H., reported the railroads using extra locomotives and cutting down tonnage to maintain prompt service. St. Albans, Vt., had six inches of snow, with little interference of traffic.

In southern New Hampshire, Concord reported five inches of snow. Portland, Me., had 2½ inches; while in eastern Maine the storm was heavier, as it worked its way up towards Nova Scotia. Bangor had three inches of snow and six inches three hours later.

Telegraph and telephone companies found most of their difficulties in southern New England, because the high temperatures accompanying the storm in that section made the snow cling to the wires.

The Western Union reported that practically all its poles in the New Bedford and Fall River sections were down and that it would take two days to repair the damage. Telephone wires were pressed into service to meet the emergency.

Soon after four p. m., the North Station was so crowded with commuters that Boston and Maine officials discontinued all outgoing service and concentrated all efforts in clearing the tracks.

Notices were posted advising patrons not to expect service to distant points until a late hour tonight.

Meanwhile officials of the New Haven and Boston and Albany roads tried to maintain some sort of service. Trains running whenever they could left the South Station at long intervals with two locomotives. All railroad wires south of South Braintree were down and the trains were being dispatched on telephone circuits.

One official, in summing up the situation, said:

"Trains are running but we tore up the time tables hours ago."

Storm bound commuters were invited to spend the night in the state house by Governor Fuller. Notices to this effect were posted in the North and South Stations. State house employes set up chairs in the bare sardine auditorium for women and a large room in another part of the building was prepared for the men.

TORCH IS BURNING ON SCHOONER BLOWN ASHORE

SCITUATE, Mass., Feb. 4.—(AP)—Burning a distress signal and cut off from help by stormy seas, an unidentified schooner was being battered tonight upon the rocks of Cedar Point, where she was blown ashore in the snow storm late today. Through the pitchy darkness watchers on shore could see a torch burning, but could not make out the vessel's dimensions. A 40 mile gale was blowing, and it was feared the ship would go to pieces during the night.

The coast guard station at North Scituate sent a boat to the rescue about six o'clock but two hours after the report had been received at the station. At a little store by the beach a knot of townspeople gazed through swirling snow at the blazing beacon aboard the schooner, which appeared to be about 600 feet from the mainland. It was reported that a lifeboat had come ashore some distance away, but whether or not it was occupied was not known.

FRANCE TO OPEN INCOME TAX ROLLS TO THE PUBLIC

PARIS, Feb. 4—(AP)—The Chamber of Deputies decided today to follow the American example and open the income tax rolls to the public. It even went a step further by providing for the posting of all income declarations at the offices of the mayors of the communes in the country and arrondissements in the city.

This unexpected development, coming after the check given by the chambers last evening to the socialists on the question of obligatory declarations by all who have incomes illustrates how the pendulum swings back and forth between extreme measures and moderation in the financial debates.

The deputies at four o'clock last evening decided that everybody must declare his income whether taxable or not; at 6 o'clock they began consideration of exemptions from the rule. When the session ended they had finally exempted everybody but those whose incomes are taxable.

This reverse depressed the extremists, so they gave up further efforts for the day, but they came back fresh to the attack this morning, and in spite of the advice of staid members, all the groups voted to post everybody's income.

Deputy Batanant, from Brittany, introduced an amendment to the finance bill providing that detailed declarations of the revenue of all senators and deputies be published in the official journal—the French congressional record—together with lists of the number, variety and horsepower of their automobiles, the number of their riding horses or teams, the figures of their personal fortunes as they stood on August 1, 1914 and November 11, 1918.

A special service was held in the Trinity College chapel this morning in memory of Cardinal Desire Joseph Mercier who received from Trinity college the honorary degree of doctor of laws in 1919.

A PROBLEM THAT NEEDS TO BE TACKLED

(Written specially for The Bulletin)

I suppose everyone likes to have his opinion backed up and fortified by the opinion of some accepted authority. Certainly I do.

We have talked several times, lately, of the high tax problem, especially in its relation to farmers. And I have tried to impress upon those willing to listen to me than their taxes weren't due to Washington impositions but wholly to state, county, city, town, and school district assessments. I don't know whether you've agreed with me or not. Our "Talks" are rather one-sided. You very seldom "come back at me" when you disagree or disapprove Less often than I wish you would.

But I fancy, whatever you think of my politics or my good sense, you'll listen respectfully to what an accepted authority puts forth.

I suppose Mark Sullivan is generally considered the best informed, the clearest-visioned and the ablest writer of politico-economic subjects for the periodical press. He devotes a long article in The New York Herald-Tribune of Jan. 17, to this subject of farm taxes.

He takes his text from the story of an Illinois farmer whose taxes, ten years ago, ran at about 60 cents an acre, and now amount to $3 an acre This latter tax, he remarks, is equivalent to a mortgage of $50 an acre, at six per cent., or to a reduction in the salable value of the land of $50 an acre. For a tax is a mortgage whose dues no individual can dodge, and a farm mortgaged for $50 an acre will bring $50 an acre less to its owner, if sold. This seems to be about as certain and as clear as anything can be.

If, in addition to this tax mortgage, the farmer has given a personal mortgage as surety for borrowed money, the interest payments on which must also be kept up under penalty of foreclosure, it will be evident, even to a blind man, that Mr. Farmer's "overhead" is mighty likely to put Mr Farmer himself, underfoot.

And then Mr. Sullivan goes on to explain just where the farmer's high taxes go and just who wishes them on him. I can't begin to paraphrase or condense Mr. Sullivan's statements and do them fair justice. So I'm going to ask you, Brother Farmer, to read them for yourself. He says: "For the relief of his troubles the farmer is turning to Washington. But the one great cause of the farmer's embarrassment, and the one great cause of the lowered value of the farmer's land, is high taxes. And about these high taxes the government at Washington can do nothing.

"The government at Washington lays no taxes on the farmer. (Except indirect, taxes inherent in the tariff or in the prices of goods whose manufacturer have had to pay a corporation tax.) The taxes laid by the government at Washington are almost wholly income taxes, and very few farmers pay an income tax. If the farmer is a married man he need pay no income tax on his first $3,500 of net income, that is, net profit. If he is a married man with three children under twenty-one, he need pay no income tax until after his net income has gone above $5,700. Very few farmers in the United States have a net income, after paying all expenses, of $5,700. The very few who do better than that have no cause to complain.

"The taxes which bear down on the farmer, and of which the farmer has just cause to complain—although he more often directs his complaint against other causes—are his local taxes, the taxes laid by his own local officials, by his own local state government, and county government, and township government. It is these local governments and these local officials who have run the farmer's taxes up to $3 an acre. These officials were elected by the farmer's own votes. He can now, if he wishes to better his condition, turn those officials out of office by his own vote.

"He cannot, unfortunately, reduce his taxes immediately, because the state legislatures, in the orgy of extravagance of the last six years, have not only laid high present taxes, but have borrowed immense sums of money, hundreds of millions of dollars in almost every state. They have borrowed this money through bonds on which interest will have to be paid for many years to come. The farmer cannot avoid paying taxes to meet this interest, but he can see to it that the borrowing is stopped and that the raising of taxes is stopped.

"Whenever the subject of federal income taxes, which are not paid by farmers, comes into the news; whenever a new tax bill is being discussed by congress there is enormous interest There is clamor for reduced income taxes; praise for Coolidge and Mellon —praise which is well deserved—because they reduce federal taxes from year to year.

"But who has seen any similar clamor about local taxes, the taxes laid by the state legislatures—which are the only taxes the farmers pay?

"And yet, the fact is that these local taxes are much greater than the federal taxes. The figures for 1924 are:

Federal taxes	$3,095,000,000
State, taxes	1,064,000,000
Local taxes	2,743,000,000

"The state and local taxes combined, which the farmers and other citizens must pay are half again as large as the federal taxes which the farmer does not pay. Yet there is vast clamor about federal taxes, and much less about local taxes.

"It is the farmer's own local state and county politicians and officials who are eating him up with high taxes."

If you're an honest-to-goodness Yankee farmer there's nothing does you more good than to be able to say "I told ye so!" That's what I'm saying, right this minute. When an expert like Mark Sullivan affirms with greater vigor and stronger emphasis what I've been saying, I'm encouraged—and you ought to be interested.

Mr. Sullivan's facts are drawn from the west and his argument addressed mainly to western conditions. This is natural, because the howl for farm relief comes mainly from the west. It's the wheel that squeaks that gets the grease. He is perfectly right in saying that out there, where the farmer vote controls,—or at least could control,—the farmers can get rid of their worst taxes by turning out their local officials and electing thriftier and wiser men.

But we eastern farmers are faced by a somewhat more difficult complication. In most of the eastern states, excluding perhaps Vermont and Maine where the farm population is still dominant, it is the city vote which rules. In Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and I presume several other states, more than half the voters are congregated in cities. And your average city dweller knows nothing and cares less about the farmers, their taxes or their incomes or their welfare. Of course there are exceptions in any and every city. But the vast and controlling majority don't care a hoot what happens out on Hardscrabble so long as they get the latest improvements on their street. They get wages and profits big enough to enable them to "stand the gaff." If the farmer can't stand it, why, let him quit farming and do something else. That's their logic. And they have the votes to put it through.

In some of the bigger cities a controlling number of voters own no property and pay no taxes whatever. It makes no difference to them whether the tax rate is 10 mills or 70 mills; they pay nothing in either case. Yet their votes decide which it shall be.

This doesn't seem an ideal way to do things; it doesn't even seem tolerably fair.

But what are we going to do about it? We eastern farmers, especially?

I wish Mark Sullivan or some other wiser man than I would tackle that phase of the subject.

THE FARMER.

The telephone cable recently completed from New York to Chicago—861 miles—is the longest in the world. It cost $25,000,000. More than 200 telephone circuits are provided by the cable and more than 500 telegraph messages can be sent at the same time as the telephone messages. The cable is carried across the country on poles, but in the cities it is laid underground. Its route is through Morristown, N. SENATE VOTES TO EXEMPT LIFE INS. COMPANIES FROM 1 PER CENT TAX

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—(AP)—After the seven hour session today in which it virtually marked time in its consideration of the tax reduction bill, the senate tonight voted, 54 to 13, to meet an hour earlier than usual tomorrow, to speed up the work.

Objection to the early session program was made by Senator Cousens, republican, of Michigan, who had the floor at the end of the debate today and said he was unprepared to meet at the early hour tomorrow.

Demanding night sessions as well as the early convening to speed up consideration of the bill, Senator Heflin, democrat, Alabama, joined Chairman Smoot of the finance committee in moving the early meeting tomorrow.

Seven republicans, five democrats and one farmer-labor voted against the proposition.

Completing its first week of work on the bill, the senate tonight still faced the most serious fights impending against provisions reported by the finance committee. Consideration of one of these controversial provisions—repeal of the provisions in the present law allowing publication of amounts of income tax payments—was begun today. The proposal to repeal the inheritance tax, the other controversial point, remains to be taken up.

The income tax publicity fight began only a short time before the day's debate ended with an amendment by Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, to make all income tax returns open to public inspection, the vehicle for discussion.

Prior to taking up this proposal, which Senator Cousens supported, the senate agreed to several changes in the administrative provision of the bill as amended by the finance committee. One of these would exempt life insurance companies from the one per cent. increase in the 12 1-2 per cent. corporation tax already voted into the bill by the senate.

The exemption was allowed because the companies could not take advantage of the proposed repeal of the capital stock levy. Senator King, democrat, Utah, protested against "the favored treatment of the insurance companies."

The senate also voted today to enact into law treasury regulations allowing installment tax payments on real estate transactions in which the profits accrue under the installment system, and to make this retroactive to 1916.

For three and a half hours previously, the chamber had heard explanations of the compromise agreement entered into by republicans and democrats of the finance committee for a 20 per cent. maximum surtax rate, which was accepted by the senate yesterday.

Replying to questions by Senators Lenroot of Wisconsin, nad Norris of Nebraska, republicans, who declared the democrats had "surrendered", Senator Simmons of North Carolina, the ranking democrat of the committee, explained the compromise.

He said democrats had accepted the 20 per cent. maximum instead of fighting for a 25 per cent. rate because their proposal for greater reductions on the lower surtax rates than voted by the house had been accepted in part by the republicans. This equalized the reduction to a 20 per cent. maximum, he said.

Senators Lenroot and Norris insisted the democrats had dropped their fight of two years ago for higher surtax rates and served notice that, despite the adverse votes on such proposals yesterday, they would make another attempt to raise the maximum.

It's surprising how easy it is to get something you don't want.

SENATE DEBATES COAL PROBLEM FOR AN HOUR

WASHINGTON, Feb. 4—(AP)—The attitude of President Coolidge on the anthracite suspension drew fire again today in congress.

The senate debated the subject for nearly an hour, while Representative Black, democrat, New York, issued a statement replying to a pronouncement made recently to newspaper correspondents by the "official spokesman" of the white house.

Senate discussion was reported by Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, who wants the president to call in the representatives of the miners and operators, and before it had been concluded, Senators Harrison, democrat, Mississippi and Norris, republican, Nebraska, had joined in the suggestion for presidential action along that line.

Senator Norris declared that he believed the suspension could be ended if the president would call in the spokesmen for the two sides and inform them that unless operation was resumed immediately, he would recommend to congress that some of the mines be seized so as to furnish an adequate supply of coal to the country at reasonable prices.

Saying that the chief executive had "used his influence" with senators for adoption of the world court resolution of adhesion and for a favorable report by the senate agriculture committee on Muscle Shoals, Senator Harrison, said it was "a pity" that the president had not made a similar effort with the coal men long ago.

Senator Copeland told the senate that he had little hope that his resolution requesting the president to initiate a conference with the coal men would be passed, but he wanted to make it clear that "the failure of the administration to act means to the suffering poor."

The New York senator called attention that a blizzard is raging in his state and declared that thousands were suffering and that perhaps many would die. Senator Harrison later told him that, "in taking the part he has in behalf of his people, he will bring down upon his head the condemnation of the president."

Interrupting the debate, Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, again suggested that the senators bring forward some legislation pointing a way out of the present situation. He assured them of his support of that sort of legislation, but reiterated his belief that the proposals thus far advanced here ineffective.

Senator Norris said he was satisfied that the president did not have authority to act without legislation from congress, but he insisted that suggestion of "nationalization" of some of the mines in such an "emergency as now exists", would bring about resumption of anthracite mining.

SNOW CAUSED COLLAPSE OF WALL

department sent every available man to the scene.

The bodies of three men were taken from the wreckage within an hour after the accident and four other bodies were recovered at intervals during the afternoon. The seventh body was found at 5 o'clock this afternoon. The approach of night did not hold up the rescue work. Under the glare of huge lights, the rescue squads continued to dig into the wreckage in the hopes of taking out more of the victims before morning.

Hospital and police ambulances were rushed to the scene and practically every doctor in the city responded to the call for aid. A number of private automobiles were pressed into service and carried injured men to the hospital. The physicians gave their first attention to the survivors, but did excellent rescue work when not engaged in giving medical aid. Dr. R. W. Pullen, superintendent of the health department, seizing a pick, aided in clearing away the debris.

The North and Judd club house on East Main street, the private hospital of the company in the Stanley street building and the day nursery on Winter street, were pressed into service as temporary hospitals for the injured.

Thomas J. Mullen, son of the gateman who was injured, saw the roof coming down and jumped under a desk for safety. He was not injured but is suffering from shock.

W. David, a volunteer worker, was cut on the head when bricks fell upon him, but after his wounds were dressed, he jumped into an automobile and aided in carrying the injured to the hospital.

When the rescue squad had dug its way into the wreckage in the north end of the building, they found Joseph Rabis pinned up against a kiln and held in a standing position by a heavy wooden beam across the stomach. He was still alive and to free him it was necessary to saw through the beam. The body fell forward into the arms of firemen and Rabis was carried to the street. He died a few minutes later. Rabis is survived by a wife and eight children, the oldest being fourteen.

Thomas Mullen, a watchman stationed at the plant, was buried by falling bricks and was said to be paralyzed from the waist down and has a badly crushed arm. Despite his injuries he retained consciousness and directed the work of the rescuers.

Rev. Walter Lyddy, of St. Mary's church, administered the last rites of the church to four of the injured. Two of them died a few minutes later. To reach one man the priest was forced to crawl through a narrow tunnel of bricks.

Two firemen were injured while engaged in rescue work. John Heisler received serious injuries when debris toppled over on top of him as he was digging among the ruins. It is reported that his son, John Heisler, Jr., was employed at the foundry and is among the missing. Howard Jones, another member of the fire department, was hit on the head by falling bricks.

Leander Devolitis, 14, was carrying his father's lunch to the foundry when the building collapsed and received injuries to his head when bricks fell upon him.

The accident occurred fifteen minutes before the workers were to have left the foundry for the lunch period. It was also pointed out by officials of the company that if the wall had fallen into the street fifteen minutes later, the casualties would have been much greater as hundreds of men and women from other departments of the plant would have been passing along East Main street on their way to lunch.

A further investigation will be made tomorrow by Fire Chief William J. Noble acting in cooperation with the mayor.

Chief Noble made plans to continue searching the ruins for the bodies, continuing all night if necessary. Calls for help were sent to the Stanley works and the Landers, Frary and Clark plants, the mayor stating that the firemen and policemen who did duty all day were exhausted. Both factories responded with large gangs of men. The Berlin Construction company and Contractor William H. Allen also sent gangs of men to the scene.

The Connecticut Light and Power Company which has been operating two trucks equipped with large electric winches on the scene all day, helping remove the steel girders and T beams, sent a gang of men to the vicinity and strung up a line of arc lights. Gangs of police and firemen were kept on the job all night.

Fifty men from the Stanley works arrived at 4:30 o'clock and immediately went into the extreme west wing of the building where rescue workers expected to find three more bodies. It was the practice of workmen to congregate in this corner of the building just before quitting time, that being the warmest spot in the department. At the time the crash came three employes not yet accounted for are understood to have been standing in the corner conversing.

CONTINUE CASE OF BENJAMIN JAMES, NEW LONDON, UNTIL TUESDAY, FEB. 9TH

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 4—Benjamin Thomas James, a negro, got abroad the legal vehicle that is supposed to stop at the state's prison at Wethersfield when he appeared in the police court this morning. He is charged with statutory rape upon a girl not yet 16 years of age. His victim is white, but she is said to have been adopted by a colored woman. James was employed in the dining car service of the New Haven railroad when he committed his alleged crime. He is about 25 years of age, short of stature and very dark. After his experience here it became known that he was accused as stated so he left the city, taking up a residence in Providence. There he was sought and located at the request of the New London police. He had furniture stored in this city, so it was known that he would eventually seek to obtain it. Yesterday he sent a truck here from Providence to get his household goods, but the crew did not receive them as the New London police were advised of the intention of James. The Providence officers were asked to grab James and to hold him until a local policeman could be sent there to get him. To get witnesses here against James was not accomplished when the court convened this morning so it became necessary to adjourn the case until next Tuesday. That was done and James was ordered to give a bond of $5,000 to insure his appearance Tuesday next. He could not furnish that bond and is held in jail where he will have opportunity to ponder over his conduct. The police claim that James is a bigamist as well as a ravisher, and say that it was through a recent matrimonial arrangement that he sought to get his furniture.

Many an honest dollar was earned today by men who have been idle of late, in the removal of snow from the sidewalks. The snow was not without its blessings in this respect for men who have been idle found employment at good wages. Smart and active boys also reaped a harvest in dollars.

Hold on. There's something new under the sun and over the daughter. Umbrellas appeared today made of material the same as the so-called "flickers" the woman are wearing. The umbrellas have pictures of women upon them after the style of the girls who have lettered upon the backs of their rain garments the names of boys, etc.

Mrs. William Starr, South Ledyard street; Mrs. Robert Edwards and infant son, Mystic; Mrs. Leighton Barrett and infant son, 15 West Coit street; Mrs. Michael Baldelli, 34 Stuart avenue, Ocean Beach, and Miss Cathia Plant House, Connecticut college, patients at Lawrence hospital, were discharged today.

Miss Sarah E. Ryley died today at the residence of her brother, L. G. Ryley, 13 Cape Ann court. She is survived by several brothers and sisters and was a graduate of the 1887 class of Williams Memorial Institute.

Mrs. Eva Wyant, 32, Reed street, reported to the police last midnight that her son, Paul, 8, was missing from home, for the youth had not put in an appearance since the previous morning at 10 o'clock. A search for the youngster failed to locate him, but this morning shortly after 10 o'clock he appeared at his home, he having remained over night at the home of one of his school chums.

Forrest F. Lewis, 30 Richards street, has complained to the police that while his automobile was parked on Huntington street, near Richards street, last night a thief visited the machine and stole a spare tire.

John McDonough, Ledyard street, is a patient at Lawrence hospital suffering from a fractured ankle sustained this forenoon when he slipped and fell upon a slippery sidewalk on Jefferson avenue.

McDonough, who was intoxicated, was attempting to navigate in the storm and when he fell and failed to arise the police were notified. Two officers went to Jefferson avenue, and finding McDonough down they brought him to the police station where City Physician George P. Chaney determined the injury. McDonough will be presented in the police court when the injured limb has knitted.

One of the Lyceum taxicabs, operated by Harry E. Squire, Spring street, and a Luxor cab, owned in Norwich, were in collision late last night at the Union station. Both machines were damaged.

In trying to obtain a quart of liquor late last night, James Hyde, a coast guardsman attached to the U. S. S. Trippe, stationed at the state pier, was victimized of $10, this being the amount of money he gave a strange negro to make the purchase. When Hyde became satisfied that he had lost the money he lodged complaint with the police, but the negro was not located.

Hyde, together with several "buddies," was in the vicinity of Atlantic and Water streets and approached the negro with the request that the sailors be supplied with liquor. The negro stated that he could accommodate the bluejackets, but that the fee for doing so would be $10. Hyde gave the negro the money and as the latter started through Water street the sailors followed him. When near John street the negro went to the rear of a house and when he failed to appear within a reasonable time the sailors sought to recover their money. Hyde went to the police station and lodged complaint and then, accompanied by Sergeant Patrick Murphy and Patrolman William Riordan, returned to the John street house. The officers entered the house and there found a negress, Nina Bryant. She declared that the man that the officers sought was Theodore Morris and that he had entered the house a short time before by the rear entrance and had departed by the front entrance. The officers searched the house, but they found neither trace of Morris, nor liquor.

Merton C., infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank S. Shepard, formerly of New London, died Sunday at the residence of his parents, Brattleboro, Vt.

Mrs. Edward Swan and infant daughter, patients at Home Memorial hospital, have returned to their home.

Work was started yesterday on the construction of an addition to the pier of the New England Navigation company. The addition will, when completed, provide 150 additional feet of space for storing freight. It is believed that the addition will be completed by the middle of the month. The pier is also receiving the attention of a force of repair men, for new piles are being driven on the north side, cables are being replaced at the front of the pier and general repairs made to the platform.

Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Solomon, 11 Home street, are in New York, where last evening, they attended the wedding of a relative.

Miss Bessie Slade, Truman street, departed yesterday for Sioux City, Ia., and Norfolk, Neb., where she will remain indefinitely as guest of relatives.

Two strokes of good fortune came Thursday to Rev. Mother Alphonsa Lathrop (Rose Hawthorne Lathrop) in whom so many New London Catholic and non-Catholic friends are interested. From the estate of over $500,000 left by Ella R. Rogers the sum of $25,000 is left to Mother Lathrop's convent, Rosary Hill, N. Y., for the care of cancerous poor of all creeds. Also by the will of Robert P. Greene her hospital shares with three other Catholic charities the sum of $25,000.

John Finisky, Old Lyme, complained to the police late last night that his automobile, a Hudson coach, had been stolen. Finisky declared that he left the car parked on Reed street early in the evening and when he returned the car was missing. The state police and the authorities at Norwich, Westerly and Hartford were requested to be on the lookout for the stolen machine.

Later this evening the state police, Groton barracks, recovered the stolen machine abandoned on the outskirts of the city.

The board of relief was in session in the second voting district hall, School street, Groton, yesterday, for the purpose of receiving protests of aggrieved property owners because of the valuations assessed against their property. Nearly 50 remonstrants were received by the board and in most instances the complaint was made because of assessment levied against automobiles. Together with the remonstrants already filed for Mystic and Noank, the board will have over 100 petitions to give their attention.

Mrs. Edward Mahon, and infant son, Groton, and Miss Mildred Frits, Phillips street, were patients dismissed this afternoon at Home Memorial hospital.

Santo Iriandi, 58, one of the best known Italian residents of New London, died this morning at his former home, 34 Ocean avenue, following an illness of two months of heart trouble. Marquardt placed the car, a Ford coupe, in his garage about 11 o'clock last night, but this morning when he went to the garage, he discovered that the building had been entered and the car stolen. The theft was reported to the state police and three hours later it was found on the Rhode Island highway.

SISTERS IN VAUDEVILLE MARRIED SAME NIGHT

(Special to The Bulletin.)

New London, Feb. 4—Two sisters who are appearing here in vaudeville were married Wednesday evening in the office of Justice J. Holandersky. They are Pearline M. Moreno and Marie Moreno, both of Oklahoma City. Their husbands are William R. McClain and Cyril Rapp, both sailors on the coast guard steamer Cassin. The former's home is in Illinois and the latter hails from Philadelphia. The couples met the usual way—by chance, and their acquaintance ripened into love, which culminated in marriage. Judge Holandersky expressed the conviction that the young folks would be happy in their marriage relations and said they did a wise thing if they intended to live up to the vows they had made before him and in the eyes of their creator. The girls are said never to have seen a ship that was owned by Uncle Sam until they came to New London and to have heard only of the men who man the ships through newspaper and magazine stories.

STEAM SHIPS KEPT AT PIERS DURING THE STORM

(Special to The Bulletin.)

NEW LONDON, Feb. 4—New London experienced one of the worst snow storms in many years today when during the early morning hours, a storm that started shortly after 10 o'clock last night, and which was followed soon after daybreak by a rain and sleet storm, together with a terrific northeast gale, broke into a miniature blizzard and prevailed until late this afternoon. The ferocity of the storm caused great interruption to maritime transportation, as well as land traffic, although the cars of the Connecticut company's city lines were operated close to regular schedule. Two big snow plows were operated throughout the night and today, which fact enabled all lines to be kept open. On the New London-Norwich line cars between the two cities were operated about a half hour late during the forenoon, but this afternoon and evening the cars were run anywhere from an hour to two hours late. During the afternoon a car left the rails west of Montville station and that mishap caused a further irregularity in cars arriving and departing at either end of the line. During the early evening a car of the Broad street line was derailed at the corner of Blackhall and Truman streets, but a wrecking force quickly placed the car back on the rails.

All trains on the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad are running anywhere from an hour to six hours late. The greatest delay is being experienced to trains arriving on the road from the Pennsylvania division.

Sound steamers were at their piers, both in New London and New York throughout the night. Steamer New Hampshire did not leave port at all, being kept at the pier here, but the steamer Richard Peck, left New York at 6 o'clock this morning and at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon she was being berthed at the New London pier. The Central Vermont freighter New London arrived at the Long Wharf here at 5 o'clock after a battle with the sea and snow all the way from New York, but the freighter New York did not attempt to make the trip through the sound. Steamer New Hampshire left here for New York tonight on scheduled time.

Bus traffic west of New London is at a standstill, not a bus operated by the New York, New Haven & Hartford railroad, between this city and New Haven, reaching here after 9 o'clock this forenoon and no busses departed from New London, so great was the fall of snow on the turnpike.

During the height of the gale this morning one of the plate glass windows in the store of Thomas J. Eagan, 51 Main street, was shattered, making it necessary that the opening be boarded over to protect the interior of the window from being damaged.

GENEVIVE CASE FOUND IN LONELY SUMMER CABIN

CAMDEN, N. J., Feb. 4.—(AP)—In a lonely summer cabin, a mile and a half off any roadway and approximately eight miles from this city, New York and New Jersey authorities today found 17 year old Genevieve Case, of Oneida, N. Y., bringing to an end a five months' search for the girl who disappeared from her home last August.

With the girl the authorities found Failing, 32, of Syracuse, N. Y., who the girl accused of having abducted her and forced her under threat of death to remain with him during her long absence. Failing waived extradition and was returned to that city. He had been at the cabin about three months, police said.

Failing, who has a wife and three children living near Vernon, N. Y., declared the girl's beauty caused him to abduct her. He insisted he had not mistreated her and Miss Case corroborated him.

"I was crazy," Failing told the police. "I had seen her and I could not get her out of my head. I was made about her and when the opportunity came, I ran away with her. She will tell you I have always treated her with respect. But I could not bear to have her leave me."

Miss Case, a pretty blonde, told how Failing, who knew her slightly, invited her for an automobile ride on August 22. He refused to allow her to leave the motor car, threatening her with a pistol, she said, and had since repeatedly declared he would follow her and shoot her if she attempted to escape.

Search for Miss Case finally narrowed to Camden county through a letter the girl dropped recently while in Philadelphia, addressed to her parents, saying: "I am held a prisoner in a lonely cabin near a cemetery called 'Locust Wood.'"

Palace Theater

Five Paramount acts headed by The Lonesome Club Revue and Kenneth Harlan in The Fighting Edge, The Scarlet Streak, the Universal chapter play, is the program at the Palace today. The Lonesome Club Revue consisting of four girls and a comedian is a combination of singing, dancing and comedy. Terrell and Kemp with several harmonicas and paper tearing stunts are vaudevillians of the finished type. Cronin and Garcia a song and dance team with the female side of the team showing something new in dancing. A clever pair. Jean, Jack and Jean the comedy trio with good voices were in the spot that audiences have been educated to expect the comedy act. Kenneth Harlan and Patsy Ruth Miller in the Fighting Edge is an exciting sort of a tale as is also the Scarlet Streak that is getting more interesting every week.

John Barrymore in "The Sea Beast" comes to the Palace theater on Sunday for a run of four days. The picture, adapted from Herman Melville's "Moby Dick" and produced by Warner Brothers under the direction of Millard Webb, has been acclaimed as the most important photoplay of the year. It deals with the New England whalers of 1840 who, in their clipper ships, carried the American flag over the seven seas. It is said to have done for this heroic chapter in American history what "The Covered Wagon" did for the Western pioneers and "The Iron Horse" did for the building of the railroads.

Barrymore, who has not been seen in pictures since, as "Beau Brummel," he won the gold medal for the greatest acting of the 1924 season, is said to have contributed another masterpiece of acting to the screen in the role of Ahab Ceeley, the fighting sailor whose towering pride and mighty strength carried him through blistering passion and murderous adventure.

Crippled and apparently deserted by the girl he loves, Ahab scours the seas, a prey to the tormenting demons of revenge and despair. Caring nothing for life, he lives amid sudden death and ever-present danger. But in the end, Ahab's story is the story of an unconquerable soul. Barrymore, who toyed so beautifully through the pretty romancings of "Beau Brummel" and with such blood-curdling power through the horrors of "Dr. Jekyll and Mr. Hyde," is said in "The Sea Beast" to have at last found a picture that likes full sweep to the multitudinous powers that have given him his position as the foremost American actor of screen or stage.

The picture was adapted to the screen by Bess Meredyth from Herman Melville's novel, "Moby Dick." The direction was by Millard Webb.

Tomorrow afternoon the second qualifying contest for the juvenile Charleston Championship will see many of the young local favorites entered. All children who want to compete are advised to come to the box office before 2:30 and leave their name. On Monday night the second round of the adult class will hold the limelight. An amateur night with several local favorites will also be added to the bill.

At the Breed

Heading an excellent double feature bill, Buck Jones came back to the Breed theater yesterday in "The Timber Wolf," and an exciting evening was enjoyed by a capacity crowd that turned out to see the popular William Fox star in action. Incidentally, "action" is the word. There was plenty of it—and in every form—hard riding, thrilling fights, romance and, oh boy, everything.

"The Timber Wolf" is an adaptation of Jackson Gregory's novel of the same name and is a story of the timber and gold country. It was adapted by John Stone and directed by W. S. Van Dyke.

Elinor Fair, who has won the cinematic distinction of being selected as a Wampas Baby Star, has the feminine lead and does a fine piece of dramatic work opposite Jones. Others in the cast are Will Walling, Dave Dyas, Sam Allen, Robert Mack and Jack Craig.

The second feature on this excellent bill is "Stop Flirting." It is another one of those Christie comedies whose aim and purpose is merely to entertain, not to solve some big social problem or preach some moral doctrine, and the resounding laughter that greeted "Stop Flirting" last night in ample evidence that it fills its mission most agreeably.

The opening chapter of the new Pathe serial, "The Green Archer," featuring Allene Ray and Walter Miller and the Pathe News are also shown.

Coming to the Breed

What is promised to be something unique in lavish productions will entertain patrons of the Breed theater on Sunday, when "The Phantom of the Opera" will open its engagement of five days. Lon Chaney, who has become famous for his grotesque and distorted character portrayals, uses here what is said to be his most unusual make-up.

Lon Chaney featured in "The Phantom of the Opera"

As Erik, the Phantom of the Opera, he strikes a new note in screen artistry. Mary Philbin and Norma Kerry are the lovers whom he seeks to separate, while the many other brilliant artists in the cast include Arthur Edmund Carewe, Gibson Gowland, Snits Edwards, Virginia Pearson and many others.

HEROIC RESCUES WERE MADE BY COAST GUARDSMEN

ASBURY PARK, N. J., Feb. 4.—(AP)—A fresh page was turned today in the book of valor when four captains and nine coast guardsmen, selected from the crew of four stations volunteering as a man, jammed their small life boat into the teeth of a gale-driven blizzard to rescue any who might be aboard the barge Metropolitan No. 21, floundering a mile off Barnegat Station.

Through 25 foot seas lashed by a 50 mile wind they fought their way for two hours only to find a new menace in the wreckage of the barge which broke up as they reached it. One survivor was rescued from the waves, one was taken from an improvised raft and the third from the pilot house of the wrecked craft. They constituted the crew of the Metropolitan.

One was dead from exposure when the heroes reached shore an hour later and a second was reported dying, and the third, W. L. Carver of Northampton, Mass., said he did not know the names of his companions.

Superintendent Rasmussen, commanding the Fifth District Coast Guards, said the rescue was one of the most heroic in coast guard annals.

The Metropolitan No. 21, was owned by the Metropolitan Coal company of Boston and was being towed by the Georges Creek from Newport News, Va., with a load of soft coal.

BOOTLEGGERS TESTIFY OF "PROTECTION MONEY"

BOSTON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Testimony concerning campaign payments "protection money" that failed to protect, sales of moonshine and alleged assessments by police officers, was given today by self-confessed former bootleggers at the Chelsea liquor trial, so-called, before a jury in federal court. Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea and 27 other defendants are charged with conspiracy to violate the national prohibition law. Defendants include Police Inspector Thomas Quigley, brother of the mayor, and former police officers.

Mrs. Sophie Isenberg, who admitted that she sold moonshine as well as groceries in her store in 1924 and 1925 testified that Thomas Quigley told her she would have to pay $50 a week or close up her store. She testified to buying liquor from "Dutch" Henry, alleged by other witnesses to have acted as a "collector" for city hall, and who is a defendant.

Although he paid $50 a month to Thomas Quigley and gave generous contributions toward the mayor's campaign, he nevertheless was raided, Louis Barlow testified. He mentioned two campaign contributions of $400 each and another of $300. Barlow was a defendant in the Prest case, but pleaded guilty.

The witness, in broken English said that he finally agreed to pay and did pay, Thomas Quigley $50 a month for a year after the police inspector had demanded $100 a month. Barlow added that Quigley compelled him to buy two lots of moonshine consisting of 35 gallons each from "another man."

The price, he said, was $2.1t a gallon although the market price was $1.80. The witness declared that Quigley complained that he did not buy enough and then raided him, seizing the bulk of the second lot of 35 gallons sold him.

ROBERT L. C. SHAFER FOUND GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Feb. 4.—(AP)—A jury in Middlesex superior court tonight found Robert L. C. Shafer of Boston guilty of manslaughter in causing the death of Arthur J. Levesque of Central Falls, R. I., a fireman of the U. S. S. Wandank. Shafer stabbed Levesque during a quarrel at a local skating rink last December. The jury was out three hours.

Before the case went to the jury Shafer said in open court:

"I had no intention of killing that man. My story as I told it on the stand today is true, and that is as far as I am able to go. I am just as sorry for the death of this man as anyone."

Testifying in his own defense, Shafer said that Levesque insulted him and that Levesque and a crowd of other sailors threatened him. He declared that he drew a knife "as a bluff" and that Levesque ran against the blade.

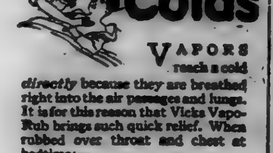
Vapors stop Colds



VAPORS reach a cold directly because they are breathed right into the air passages and lungs. It is for this reason that Vicks VapoRub brings such quick relief. When rubbed over throat and chest at bedtime:—
It is vaporized by the body heat and inhaled, while you sleep, right to the affected parts, loosening the phlegm and easing the difficult breathing.
At the same time it acts through the skin (like a poultice or plaster) "drawing out" the pain and soreness.
Most colds yield by morning to this double action of Vicks.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT

The Eastern Conn. Mills Association is deeply grieved in learning of the death of William M. Wood, retired president of the American Woolen Company, February 2nd, 1926

To the members of the association from the Yantic Mills of Yantic, Connecticut, the Whitestone Mills of Elmvile, Connecticut and the American Woolen Mills at Moosup, Connecticut, all of which are a part of the wonderful organization which Mr. Wood represented, the association extends the greatest sympathy.

To the textile industry in general and to the business world do we regret the loss of such a big asset.

Likewise do we wish last but not least, to extend our deepest sympathy to those who knew him best and who will suffer most by his being taken away, his widow, son and daughter.

PRENTICE, W. CHASE,
Secretary and Treasurer,
Eastern Conn. Mills Association.

14 INCHES OF SNOW IN DANIELSON VICINITY

DANIELSON, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Today's storm was a wild one in northeastern Connecticut and the motor bus lines and their passengers who ventured forth felt the full brunt of the elements. Busses of the New England Transportation company running between Willimantic and Providence, R. I., by the way of this place, were in many instances stalled in the snow at remote places and passengers in them remained for hours until they could be rescued. It was thought that some passengers on busses which have not been reported at a station will have to remain in the mail night or else have made their way to nearby farm houses.

The Interstate line with busses between here and Hartford also fared badly and on none of the lines was it possible to maintain a schedule.

The Connecticut company running a motor line between Putnam and Norwich got a few vehicles through after a hard bucking of drifts. Trains on the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad were going through only slightly delayed. Trolley cars made fair progress as a snow plow went ahead of each car to clear the rails.

The state highway department had out all its available equipment to clear the highways but with this snow that equipment was not enough.

The snow was about 14 inches on a level tonight while drifts five and six feet high were to be seen everywhere. The storm was the heaviest since February 3, 1920, in this section.

Two stalled busses on Dark Lantern hill near here this afternoon had many passengers on board and they were marooned for hours.

Hundreds of automobiles have been snowed in in towns in this section, the drivers of which had attempted to travel from one town to another. Many of the machines have entirely disappeared in drifts.

PINOCHLE CLUB MET WITH ONECO ST. MEMBER

The Thursday Afternoon Pinochle club met this week with Mrs. Albert W. Johnson at her home, on Oneco street with a very good attendance, only two of the members being unable to attend. The prizes went to Mrs. Roswell J. P. Brown, first, and Mrs. Milo R. Waters, second. The hostess served delicious refreshments at the close of play. The next session of the club will be held next week at the home of Mrs. Herman Fukalius on West Main street.

MARKET WAS STRONG

NEW YORK, Feb. 4.—(AP)—Renewal of selling pressure, inspired by the markings up of call money rates, failed to stem the rising tide of prices in today's stock market, which was featured by the buoyancy of the high priced industrials. Trading was again in large volume, the day's sales running close to 2,000,000 shares.

Several popular industrials were hammered down one to 3 points from their earlier highs when it became known that out of town banks were calling loans, but offerings were well absorbed, and new leaders were quickly brought forward to rally the list. The high money rates were regarded as temporary and Wall street was inclined to place a bullish interpretation on the senate compromise of a 20 per cent. surtax on large incomes.

Reports of an early merger of the Associated Oil company with some other western concern revised speculative interest in the oil shares, but the net gains, as a rule, were held to fractions. Pacific and Associated both touched new record high prices at 81 5-8 and 58, respectively.

Nash Motors made another sensational jump of 55 points to a new record high at 640 on three sales, making a net gain of nearly 100 points in two days. United Fruit scored an extreme gain of 19 1-2 points at 288 1-2, also a new high, and then fell back to 281, and Allied Chemical, American Radiator, the Commercial Solvents issues, General Electric and National Tea showed net gains of 5 to 17 points.

Although the outlook for the local tractions has improved as a result of larger earnings and the better relations developing between company and city officials Wall street has been rather mystified by the recent sharp advance in those issues. Interboro Rapid Transit stock jumped over 5 points to 38 1-8, as against a low of 25 last week, and Third Avenue advanced nearly six points to 39 1-2, as compared with a low of 17 1-4 last week.

Motors were again run up at the apparent expense of an overcrowded short interest. Hudson closed nearly four points higher at 115 7-8 and Dodge Brothers preferred, General Motors, Jordan, Fisher Body, and White closed 1 to 2 1-2 points higher. United States Steel common closed fractionally higher at 136 5-8, but a brisk demand developed for some of the independent issues, Otis Steel preferred closing five points higher at 103, and Sloss Sheffield showing a net gain of 3 3-4 at 133 1-4.

Rubber shares turned slightly reactionary as a result of cuts in tire prices. Heaviness also developed in American Zinc preferred, Foundation Company, National Power and Light, Tobacco Products and United Cigar Stores. Sugars responded to the stiffening of commodity prices, American Sugar Refining closing over five points higher at 82 1-2. Rails were practically neglected although Chesapeake and Ohio, Canadian Pacific and Lackawanna were noticeably heavy.

With the exception of wheat futures, which dropped 1 1-3 to 2 cents a bushel on selling inspired by reports of better weather in the Argentine, most of the commodity markets pointed upward.

Cotton broke out of the narrow trading area within which it has been fluctuating, closing 9 to 23 points net higher in sympathy with higher Liverpool prices and the failure of the prevailing March premium to attract large shipments of cotton to New York for delivery next month. Large sales of raw sugar were reported with prices 1-32 of one cent a pound above those prevailing yesterday. Coffee was 21 to 25 points net higher.

Call money renewed at 4 per cent. and advanced, successively, to 4 1-2, 5 and 5 1-2, closing at the top. Heavy withdrawals of funds by interior banks, presumably because of the low rates previously prevailing here, was the direct cause of the run-up. Time money rates were unchanged. Prime commercial paper was on a flat 4 1-2 per cent. basis, instead of 4 1-4 to 4 1-2.

The principal foreign exchanges held steady in quiet trading. Demand sterling ruled around 4.84, and French francs around 3.75 cents. A jump of over 10 points to 1.55 cents in Greek drachmas in apparent reflection of the recent forced loan in that country, was one of the few features.

BOND MARKET

NEW WYORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—Bond prices rose to new high levels today, with buying unrestricted by indication of tighter money conditions implied in the calling of more than $25,000,000 in bank loans. Railroad, traction, oil and sugar company liens shared in the demand for both high grade and speculative securities.

Price movements in the railroad group were not uniformly upward, but the list as a whole registered slight improvement, despite fractional recessions in several high grade issues. Among those which encountered selling pressure were Union Pacific refunding 4s, Chesapeake and Ohio convertible 5s, Southern Railway General 6 1-2s and Baltimore and Ohio refunding 6s. On the other hand, a good demand developed for Erie General 4s, Delaware and Hudson convertible 5s, Pere Marquette refunding 4s, Great Northern 5s and Wilkes Barre and Eastern First 5s, several of which sold at the year's top prices.

New high records also were common in the local traction division, where buying was based on the progress made in improving operating conditions since the first of the year. Interborough, Third Avenue, Manhattan and New York railways issues all participated in the upward movement.

Indications that the present tendency toward consolidation in the food industry might spread to the sugar companies contributed to the revival of interest in these bonds. Warner Sugar 7s of 1939 spurted up almost five points and obligations of some of the Cuban producing companies were under accumulation.

Offerings scheduled for tomorrow include $10,000,000 Manitoba Power company first mortgage 5 1-2 per cent. bonds at 96 to yield about 5.80 per cent.

CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, Feb. 4—(AP)—Speculative interest in today's curb market was again divided between the Latin-American oil shares, several of which attained new record high prices, and a few industrial specialties, in which special developments are believed to be pending. Price movements in the general list lacked uniformity, but the main trend still appeared to be upward.

Outside of the Lago Oil issues, Caribb Syndicate and Venezuelan Petroleum, all of which moved into new high ground, there was little interest in the oil group. Standard Oils, of Indiana and California. The two most active issues among the higher priced shares, each showed small fractional gains on the day, but Vacuum and some of the others lost ground on profit taking. New 1926 peak prices in the industrial list were registered by American Cyanamid at 232, Union Carbide at 85 1-4, Bucyrus at 232, American Rolling Mills at 59 1-4; Canada Dry Ginger Ale at 45, Continental Baking at 131 1-2 and Hellman, Inc., at 18, the net gains ranging from 1 to 5 points. Good buying also developed in Gillette Safety Razor, Land company of Florida and Chandler-Cleveland Motors. Coal shares were again heavy, Glen Alden and Lehigh Coal certificates each losing about a point on the day. Public utilities displayed a firmer undertone, American Super-Power B, Commonwealth Power, United Gas Improvement and a few others closing 1 to 2 points higher.

Strength and activity of Utah Apex, which advanced over a point to a new peak price at 10 3-4, featured the mining list. Noranda and Newmont also broke their previous high levels. Higher copper metal prices stimulated the demand for these shares.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, Feb. 4—(AP)—Sharp breaks in foreign markets had a depressing effect today in the wheat market here, reducing the volume of business and cutting down values as well. Today transactions were the smallest noted of late. Wheat closed heavy, 2 3-8 to 1 7-8c net lower, May (new) 1.75 5-8 to 1.75 3-4 and July 1.53 5-8 to 1.53 3-4, with corn 1-2 to 7-8c off, oats 1-8 to 3-8 down and provisions varying from unchanged figures to a setback of 15 cents.

General selling which took place at the outset in the wheat market here seemed to take all the enthusiasm out out of the buying side, and left prices minus apparent power to rally with any special vigor.

Export sales of 300,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were announced as the day came to an end. According to current gossip, Argentine shipments were shortly expected to increase.

Corn and oats were dominated by the action of wheat and by lack of important shipping demand here for corn.

Provisions sagged as a result of selling ascribed to eastern and foreign sources.

TAFTVILLE

A Providence paper has the following item on the death of William R. Booth, well known former Taftville resident:

William R. Booth for several years paymaster for Horton & Hemingway contractors and well known among the business men and sporting fraternity of the last generation, died suddenly at Hollywood, Florida, where he was spending the winter with his wife. Although not in the best of health when he left this city in December, friends here had no expectation of death.

He was born in the Pawtuxet valley, the son of the late Thomas Booth, and attended school there as a boy. He went to Taftville, in his sixteens, and there was married to his first wife, who died about 12 years ago, leaving one son, Howard Booth. (Howard Booth is connected with the Minneapolis offices of the National City Company of New York.) While in Taftville, Mr. Booth became a member of the Pioneer Boys of Taftville and was its secretary and treasurer for a number of years. This was the only organization with which he was ever affiliated. About 10 years ago he married his present wife, Miss Edith Hough, with whom he lived at 784 Hope street, this city.

About a year ago he resigned his position as paymaster at the Baird-North Co., where he had been for several years, previous to which time he held a similar position with Horton & Hemingway company. It is expected that his body will arrive in Providence Friday morning when arrangements for the funeral will be completed.

Traffic was at a standstill all day Thursday. Heavy drifts of snow prevented vehicles from going through many of the streets, and scores of automobiles had to be shovelled or towed out of snow banks. Although the state highway department road scraper was out bright and early, the fast falling snow soon filled up the highways again, and made them practically impassable. The sidewalks about the town were cleared off during the morning by the Ponemah mills scraper. There was no afternoon session at the Wequonnoc School. Dozens of cars were stuck on Post Office Hill, many of them having to be pushed up the grade by the passengers. Trolley traffic was way off schedule.

This was the programme carried out Thursday night to the edification of the assemblage of Elks when Exalted Ruler Charles W. SUIT OVER HEATERS PLACED FOR TAFTVILLE PARISH

In the superior court at New London, before Judge Allyn L. Brown, trial was continuing Thursday in the $7,500 damage suit brought by Michael F. O'Hara, a New London plumber, against the Trinity Oil Heating Co., now the Hartford Oil Heating Co. Attorneys Arthur T. Keefe and Marion Davis appeared for the plaintiff.

The plaintiff alleges that on August 7, 1925, he entered into an agreement with the defendant wherein the latter agreed to supply O'Hara a certain number of automatic oil heating machines.

As an inducement to the making of the contract, according to the plaintiff, the defendant represented to him that the automatic burner would burn and consume in its operation any oil that would flow under extreme conditions. The plaintiff claims that he, relying upon the representations and the contract, sold and installed two of the machines in the rectory and convent of the Sacred Heart church at Taftville, in September, 1925. After installation, according to the plaintiff, they failed to function and would not consume the oil that was supplied to them.

The plaintiff further alleges that he notified the defendants of the non-operation of the machine and requested that they remedy the same or install new ones. The plaintiff claims that the company endeavored to repair and to effect an operation of the machines but failed to make them operate properly. The plaintiff claims to have requested the defendants to remove the machines but they refused to do so and that the plaintiff at his own expense has been obliged to remove them and has thereby lost not only the profit of the sale of the machines but has also incurred expense incidental to the installation and removal of the machines. The plaintiff also claims to have been put to a large expense in projecting the sale and installation of the machines, and that the company has failed to furnish one that would function according to the purpose for which it was designed.

Among the witnesses called by the plaintiff thus far were the plaintiff, the Rev. Father Henry Chagnon, Francis O'Hara, John Turello, Mrs. Julia A. Bill, Eastern Point road, Groton, and Mrs. Catherine M. Avery. The latter two witnesses were prospects for the purchase of similar machines and had visited the convent endeavoring to see those machines there in operation.

CAKE SALE PROCEEDS REPORTED AT $101

At the regular monthly meeting of the Woman's Auxiliary of the Young Men's Christian Association, which was held Tuesday afternoon at 3 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Harry E. Higgins on Sachem terrace, with an attendance of about 75, the president, Miss Marion L. Bishop, called the meeting to order and the officers reports were presented with reports from the house membership and other committees.

It was announced that the proceeds from the recent cake sale were $101 and that new curtains had been provided for several rooms at the Association building with money donated by a member of the auxiliary board. They were first placed in the boys' department and on Tuesday were hung in the parlor and reading rooms. It was also annound that all the dues of the auxiliary had been paid in.

The business meeting was followed by an interesting illustrated talk by Arthur L. Peale upon the Indians, the stereopticon being operated by Joseph S. Adams. Appropriate Indian songs were rendered by a group of the Park church Camp Fire Girls, including Marion Agnew, Mary Shaver, Ruth Cruckshanks, Louise Evans, Esther Evans, Marion Allen, Janet Harris, Janice Richards, Anna Blake and Louise Higgins, with Dorothy Harris at the piano.

FOUTH MEETING HELD AT WEST SIDE MILL

At noon Wednesday, the fourth in a series of meetings was held at the plant of the West Side Silk mill.

Lively orchestra music was furnished by the following: John Swahn, cornet; Frederick Geer, pianist; John Dougherty, violinist, and Ralph Marsh, violinist. The music was loudly applauded. The orchestra also accompanied the singing of several songs in which the large audience of employes joined heartily. Louis Aldrick led the song service.

Secretary Edwin Hill introduced Rev. Edwin G. Crowdis, of Taftville, as the speaker of the occasion, and Mr. Crowdis gave a very impressive and cheering talk. Among other things, he said, "I am glad you can have this martial music; it makes us all happy, and I would not have you miss the thought to the serious things, but in some deeper things and more serious things in life, and to these I wish to call your attention. Most of you are young and have not yet come to the place where you give very much thought to the serious things, but in due time you will come to these experiences and it is well to be prepared when the hard things come to you. Some years since in a meeting of the New York assembly, Elihu Root asked if anyone present had certain important figures pertaining to a matter pending in the legislature; Mr. Smith, now the governor of the great metropolis, arose and stated that he could give Mr. Root the figures he desired, whereupon Mr. Root asked when he could give them to him, and Mr. Smith replied, 'right now.' The point is Mr. Smith was prepared by close study of the matter to produce the figures needed. It is certainly well to be prepared for emergencies that are sure to come. No life can expect to have all music; the tears will come, the problems will surely come to everyone of you; our tears are all alike in that they come usually from a troubled heart. It is well to remember the words of Jesus that we may be prepared. He said, 'Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid.' Jesus came to bring us peace in time of trouble; he knew what it was to cry, and to meet hard problems, and he is amply able to help us in our times of tears and heartache."

The meeting closed with the singing by the entire company, of "The Battle Hymn of the Republic." The weekly meeting was most successful, and apparently the employes enjoy this weekly inovation.

WILL GIVE EXPOSITION FOR CHURCH SCHOOL TEACHERS

Rev. Walter B. Denny of the Graduate School of Yale, who is to give an exposition of the Gospel of John at the open meeting, Feb. 5th, in the lower rooms of the United Church for the especial benefit of the church school teachers of Norwich and vicinity, is thoroughly modern in his viewpoint and at the same time constructive. This is a combination which produces the type of religious teacher very much needed today.

Describing Rev. Mr. Denny's teaching attitude, one of those interested in the course said:

Some teachers are not modern. Their ideas are clothed in phraseology of 2,000 years ago. Their viewpoints are taken without any reference to the unfolding knowledge of the last thousand years. Some teachers are modern but destructive. They leave you with old foundations shattered and the debris of old theories scattered all about and with nothing in their place. We are in need of constructive teachers in religion. When we let go of old and often cherished views we want something at hand to which we may turn. Thinking people will welcome a teacher who helps them build more stately mansions for their beliefs in the place of these structures which have served their time and ceased to be habitable.

"Mr. Denny comes to us with the hearty endorsement of the State Council of Religious Education under whose auspices his appointments are made.

"All who are engaged in teaching in our church schools will want to be present on Friday evening at 7:30 and remain through the second period for Mr. Denny's suggestions on how to handle both fact and fiction in teaching religion. In the second period there will also be an opportunity for those who would like to consider the problems of the primary teacher to discuss these problems with Miss Congdon who proved so helpful on a similar course in September."

COURT IMPOSED FINE ON AUTOMOBILE OPERATOR

After telling his story of how he had been "planted" behind the wheel of the machine which Frank Gennacco, a chief commissary steward, U. S. N., had been driving while Gennacco's license was suspended, Stanley Wilk, U. S. N., won his discharge from the city court Thursday morning on the charge of driving an automobile while under the influence of liquor. However he was fined $5 and costs for intoxication and paid his fine of $23.10. He was arrested Monday night by the police along with a half dozen other sailors and since that time had been confined either at the police station or at the jail as he was unable to provide a $500 bond.

It developed that Wilk was being made "the goat" by his shipmates. Gennacco's license had been suspended and at the time the machine was overhauled Monday night, he did not wish to be found operating while his license had been suspended. So Wilk was placed behind the wheel, when the police overhauled the car, to make it appear that he had been driving and Gennacco got into the rear seat. It is said that Gennacco and several of the others had arranged with Wilk to raise money with which to pay Wilk's fine when he was presented in court Wednesday morning, but they failed to appear when the case came up. It was then that Wilk told the real story of the affair and as a result a warrant was issued for Gennacco's arrest.

Gennacco was presented in court Thursday morning and admitted that he was the operator of the machine. Judge Libby fined him $100 and costs and he paid $111.50.

WHEELER SCHOOL TEACHER GOES TO DANVERS, MASS.

CHAPMAN'S FATE HANGS ON LEGAL CONSTRUCTION OF WORD

State's Attorney Alcorn Contends That "Commutation" of Sentence in Synonymous to the Word "Reprieve" Used by Makers of the Constitution—Chapman's Attorney Claims That "Commutation" Granted by President Coolidge Was Either a Pardon on a Violation of the President's Constitutional Rights—Judge Hand Has Taken the Appeal Under Advisement.

NEW YORK, —(AP)—The makers of the constitution in 1787 may have unwittingly written the death sentence for Gerald Chapman, mail robber and convicted murder.

The question of constitutional interpretation was raised today in Chapman's appeal before the United States circuit court of appeals, when Judge Learned Hand suggested that a "reprieve" in the 18th century may have meant the same thing as "commutation" means today.

If the court finds they did mean the same, the state of Connecticut has won a point in its efforts to send Chapman to the gallows March 3, for the murder of Patrolman Skelly, in New Britain. If the court finds they did not mean the same, Chapman's attorneys have won a point in their contention that President Coolidge had no right to commute his federal sentence, and that he should go back to Atlanta penitentiary to serve a term for mail robbery, instead of to the gallows.

In today's argument before the court of appeals, Frederick J. Groehl, attorney for Chapman, contended that "commutation" granted by President Coolidge was either a pardon which the prisoner could refuse to accept—or a violation of the president's constitutional rights. State's Attorney Hugh Alcorn of Hartford, contended the "commutation" was a reprieve.

The appeal was taken under advisement by the court, and Mr. Groehl was given two days in which to file supplementary briefs.

BAND OF 20 ROBBERS GOT $20,000 WORTH OF ALCOHOL

PEORIA, Ills., Feb. 5—(AP)—A band of twenty robbers early today sacked a small town railroad office near here, seizing equipment which they later used to hold up and rob a Rock Island freight train from which they too $10,000 worth of alcohol. Cutting the air hose on the seventy car freight train, the robbers held the crew prisoners while their mates carted the barrels of alcohol away in trucks.

Torches, cutters, launches, wrecking bars, rifles, shot guns and cartridges were taken in the station robbery. These tools are believed to have been used to force open the cars which yielded the alcohol cargo.

Tonight police are searching for a stranger who was discovered on the freight train shortly after it left Peoria. He was put off at Chillicothe and told Special Agent M. Thomas, one of the guards, his name was Albert Hensen of Pekin, and that he was beating his way to Silvis, Illinois.

Three cars of alcohol consigned from the Corning Distillery company of this city, were attached to the train of merchandise. Two of these cars were broken open and the contents, consisting of more than six hundred gallons of high grade grain alcohol were loaded into waiting trucks.

TRAFFIC ON CONNECTICUT HIGHWAYS STILL DISRUPTED

NEW HAVEN Feb. 5—(AP)—Despite a struggle which began in many instances before snow ceased falling yesterday, Connecticut tonight remained crippled from the blizzard which swept New England for 36 hours and which was responsible for ten deaths in the state. Traffic on highways was still disrupted and many of the smaller towns remained cut-off from the outside world as far as motor transportation was concerned.

When the Ridgefield-Branchville route of the New England Transportation company was stopped today, a horse and sleigh was pressed into service to carry mail for a trips until steam train service could be substituted over the rails. The New Haven road which operated its main trains almost on schedule today, reported tonight the continuance of this service until the highway is again passable. In several other instances the railroad supplied temporary steam service to take care of incapacitated lines of the New England Transportation company.

The Connecticut company kept the majority of its trolley lines in operation, although at times the cars were not being operated on schedule.

MASS. HAS ALMOST FULLY RECOVERED FROM STORM

BOSTON, Feb. 5—(AP)—Boston and surrounding communities had almost fully recovered tonight from the storm which yesterday took a toll of six lives, demoralized transportation, imperilled shipping and crippled telephone, telegraph, electric light and power service.

Railroad and trolley lines were operating on close to normal schedules, although an army of shovelers was still laboring to remove snow drifts that had blocked tracks and clogged switches in the wake of the 13.2 inch snow fall, the heaviest here since 1921.

Few delays were reported by the transportation companies tonight in handling the homeward rush of commuters, many of whom were obliged to sleep last night in railroad depots, police stations, stores, the city hall, the state house and other public buildings.

The Boston and Maine railroad announced tonight that its suburban service was practically normal. During the peak of the rush between 4 and 9 p. m., the road moved 120 trains out of Boston, with delays in only a few cases, and there was no congestion at the terminal. Similar conditions prevailed on the Boston and Albany, and New Haven railroads.

TWO HEROES GIVEN AWARD BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Captain George Fried of the President Roosevelt, rescuer of the Antinoe crew, and Commander John Rodgers, leader of last summer's airplane flight to Hawaii, both of whom, through the Associated Press, furnished to the public prompt and affective news of thrilling adventure, are to have the distinction of being the first two laymen to whom the Associated Press ever has given the special award coveted by every reporter of the Associated Press. Tokens in the form of gold watches, with inscriptions designating the specific news reporting performed by each of them, will be presented both Commander Rodgers and Captain Fried, though never having had newspaper experience, accepted and promptly filled Associated Press assignments at critical moments when notified of public anxiety for accurate news which they were in the best position to furnish.

TO PUBLISH ALL INCOME TAX RETURNS IN FRANCE

PARIS, Feb. 5 —(AP)—Supplementing its action of yesterday, when it decided that all income declarations should be published at the offices of the mayors of the communes in the country and arrondissements in the city, the chamber of deputies today passed amendments requiring publication in the official journal, of a list of the incomes of deputies and the names of stock companies, on whose boards deputies are serving as directros.

Deputy Balanant, conservative, and M. Vaillant-Couteries, communist, sponsored these amendments, which are characterized of "facetious propositions." Their fate before the senate appears quite as clear as that of the amendment requiring income declarations to be posted. The upper house is expected to refuse even to take these features of the financial bills under consideration.

Thus far the chamber has dealt partially with three of the 104 articles of the financial bills, and it is commented that if progress continues at the same rate, it will require about 30 more sessions to finish discussion of the articles.

RITTERMAN LOSES FIGHT FOR REDUCTION OF BAIL

ST. ALBANS, Vt., Feb. 5—(AP)—Lieb Ritterman of Antwerp, Belgium held in $25,000 bail on charges of attempting to smuggle $250,000 worth of diamonds across the Canadian border, lost his first fight for reduction of bail today. United States Commissioner C. D. Watson, after a hearing refused counsel's request that the figure be lowered to $15,000 or preferably to $7,500. Ritterman's case is scheduled to come before the federal grand jury at Burlington February 23.

Ritterman was captured eight days ago on a train from Montreal to Washington and a search here disclosed the diamonds, the largest of which weighed more than four karats, concealed about his clothing and in a bag in the baggage car. Ritterman said he was bringing the contraband to this country for an Antwerp firm. He admitted attempting to evade the customs duties of more than $45,000, for which the maximum punishment is a $5,000 fine and two years imprisonment.

SAYS AMERICA'S BUILDINGS ARE BECOMING JAZZY

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5.—(AP)—America's buildings are becoming as jazzy as its music, William Downie, of Cleveland, today told the delegates of the International Association of Master House Painters and Decorators at their annual convention in the Benjamin Franklin hotel.

"Instead of the drab structures to which we were accustomed in the past generation," said Mr. Downie, "we will soon see pink and orange banks, city halls, office buildings and houses. The modern trend is for more and brighter decorations."

J. B. Rising, Chicago, was selcted president of the association for 1926. Other officers chosen included Alfred E. Joy, New York, vice president, and Earl Dabelstein, New York, secretary-treasurer.

Milwaukee was selected as next year's convention city.

Bishop Manning to Take Up Prohibition

Subject Prompted by Controversy Started by Declaration of Rev. James Empringham.

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The Rev. James Empringham, secretary of the church temperance society of the Protestant Episcopal church, went to Washington today, leaving behind reports that he had been called there in connection with his statement that the society had reversed its views on prohibition.

The reports were not confirmed, however, as Dr. Empringham left unexpectedly this morning, and his associates said he had not told them the purpose of his visit.

Only one new protest was added today to those made since he announced the society now favored a modification of the Volstead act legalizing light wines and beer. The protest came from the Rev. W. C. Charlton of the society. He declared Dr. Empringham's statement did not represent the views of the majority of members, and that "it was a shock to me, and a perfect outrage."

Bishop William T. Manning announced that his Sunday sermon would be on the subject of prohibition, prompted by the controversy.

A gang of seven manned powerful jacks which raised the trolley wheel from the foot of the trapped man beneath. ROME, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The London agreement of Italy's war debt to Great Britain was approved by the chamber of deputies today with only one dissenting vote after Count Volpi, minister of finance and negotiator of the agreement, had spoken eloquently in recommending its acceptance.

Count Volpi described the settlement as "an equitable and honest transaction between nations allied in war and intimate collaborators in peace." He said it had been made after the most friendly discussion and was not connected with any other economic or political problems or engagements.

England, he declared, had taken into consideration Italy's need to limit her sacrifices because of the requirements for reconstruction of the country and the impossibility of placing further burdens on the already heavily taxed citizens.

EDWARDSVILLE, Ill., Feb. 5.—(AP)—The bodies of Constable Omah Hockett and John Boelke, his aide, believed to have been slain by bootleggers, were discovered today by prohibition agents, buried on a farm near Horseshoe Lake. Both bodies were fully clothed and the hands of each were tied behind the back. Prohibition agents who started a search at the request of Mrs. Hockett, first found Hockett's body three feet under a mound of fresh earth.

RELIEF FOR FAMILIES OF MEN KILLED IN NEW BRITAIN

NEW BRITAIN, Feb. 5.—(AP)—While city officials completed their investigation today into the collapse yesterday of the North and Judd company building which cost eight lives, civic organizations launched a drive for the relief of families of those killed and of the ten workmen lying injured in the hospital.

At the meeting late today more than a thousand dollars was pledged. This amount is expected to be swelled considerably within the next few days. Many families of the men fatally injured are destitute it was learned today.

The only official investigation expected to be made into the catastrophe was held by city officials late today. At its conclusion an official statement was made, but nothing was said concerning any possible blame for the crash.

NO FREEDOM FOR SLAYER OF ANNA MAY DIETRICH

PHILADELPHIA, Feb. 5—(AP)—Less than three hours sufficed today to destroy hopes of temporary freedom for David L. Marshall, confessed slayer of Anna May Dietrich, and to make certain his trial under charges of murder or manslaughter.

Judge Howard A. Davis, in quarter sessions court, rejected Marshall's plea for release under bail on a writ of habeas corpus, and 21 minutes later the grand jury found true bills against the defendant, charging him with murder in the first and second degrees and with manslaughter. Two bills were returned, one charging murder and the other voluntary and involuntary manslaughter.

MINERS WOULD RATHER STARVE THAN SURRENDER

SHAMOKIN, Pa., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Miners at the Enterprise local here would "rather starve" than see their leaders accept any plan so far offered by the operators in which they see only a reduction of wages

In resolutions passed today by the local, one of the strongest in this area of the anthracite fields, they pledged 100 per cent. loyalty to President John L. Lewis, of the United Mine Workers. The resolution reads: "We are willing to starve to death being idle rather than starve to death working."

BRITISH SCHOONER BEING TOWED INTO CHATHAM, MASS.

CHATHAM, Mass., Feb. 5—(AP)—The British three-masted schooner Alfred Ock Hedley, Wilmington, N. C. for Halifax was picked up by the Coastguard Cutter Redwing off this port late today and taken in tow for Boston. The scheoner was anchored when found but had blown out her sails and was helpless. The Redwing had been dispatched from her base at Provincetown to aid the drifting Pollock Rip lightship.

HUMMEL SON CLAIMANT NOT MENTIONED IN WILL

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Henry D. Hummel, bakery cart driver of Portland, Me., who claims he is the son of Abe Hummel, once famous divorce and criminal lawyer, was not mentioned in the latter's will, it was learned when the document was read today. The lawyer stated in the will that he was a bachelor. He made no mention of any children, and left his estate, estimated at more than $1,000,000 to his two sisters and a nephew.

PRESIDENT PLEASED WITH THE WORK OF CONGRESS

Chief Executive Feels That Democrats as Well as Republicans Deserve Credit For Speeding Action on the Tax Bill and the World Court Proposal—Senate Rejected Proposal That President Coolidge Intervene in the Anthracite Controversy.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—(AP)—Congress came in for a kind word at the White House today on the heels of the publication of President Coolidge's opinion that some senators and representatives were trying to put his administration in a bad light for political reasons.

It was announced at the White House today that the executive is pleased over the progress being made in legislation and feels that democrats as well as republicans deserve credit for speeding action on the tax bill and the world court proposal.

Without show of partisanship, the house disposed of the revenue measure with dispatch, the president recognizes, and also has acted on other proposals of importance.

In the senate, he also has observed a disposition to treat both foreign and fiscal affairs and legislation affecting business in a similar spirit.

SENATE NOT TO MEDDLE IN THE COAL CONTROVERSY

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—(AP)—By an overwhelming majority the senate refused today to consider a proposal that President Coolidge be requested to halt in the miners and operators in an effort to end the anthracite suspension.

This action was the first taken by congress in the coal controversy and was forced by Senator Copeland, democrat, New York, one of those foremost in assailing the president's non-intervention policy.

Although his motion to take up his resolution proposing the white house conference was snowed under, 48 to 28, Senator Copeland served notice that he would seek action daily "to save shivering humanity."

The roll call came after Senator Smoot, republican, Utah, in charge of the tax bill, had objected to unanimous consent for consideration of the Copeland resolution on the ground that it would delay the revenue measure.

Seven republicans and one farmer-labor senator joined with 20 democrats in supporting the Copeland motion, while nine democrats and 39 republicans for a few minutes, Senator Harris, democrat, Georgia, requested that he be recorded as voting in the affirmative instead of in the negative, explaining that he had voted under a misapprehension.

STATEMENTS BY ADVOCATES OF SEPARATE AIR SERVICE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Advocates of some form of a separate air service had another inning in Congress today.

Major General Mason M. Patrick, chief of the army air service, appeared before the senate military committee, while the house military committee heard his former assistant, William Mitchell, whose criticism of the present air policy led to his court martial and sentence of suspension, followed by his resignation from the service.

General Patrick, called to discuss the Walsworth bill, designed to carry out recommendations of the president's air board, declared the measure did not go far enough. He renewed his advance of a separate air corps, with an independent status like that of the marine corps.

Mitchell, who favors a separate, unified air service, described the present condition of aviation as "a terrible mess." He declared there was no system for operation, training or equipment." The air personnel, he contended should be trained to prevent armies from coming together and to know how to make independent attacks on vital centers, instead of being held for duty with an army.

Brigadier General Hugh A. Drum, assistant chief of the army general staff, informed the senate committee that the war department "by direction" was submitting anew army aircraft bill as a substitute for the Wadsworth measure. It would remove the provisions for insuring the lives of airplane pilots for $10,000 each without premiums

SENATE CALLS FOR THE ALUMINUM CO. EVIDENCE

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5—(AP)—Evidence furnished by the Aluminum company of America and withheld from the department of justice by the federal trade commission, was called for today by the senate.

Demand of the commission was made in a resolution which was adopted with little discussion and without a record vote. The measure was presented by Chairman Cummins of the judiciary committee, by direction of that body.

When the evidence is obtained, it will be made available to the justice department for whatever it may be worth in the investigation now being made by that agency to determine whether the Aluminum company, in which Secretary Mellon is a stockholder, has violated federal court decrees.

Before the senate acted, Senator Reed, republican, Pennsylvania, said he was advised that the company had informed the federal trade commission it was entirely willing to have all of the evidence made public.

Senator LaFollette, republican, Wisconsin, remarked that he was glad to know the senate was to get evidence which the department of justice was unable to obtain.

Adoption of this resolution will not serve to halt senators who are insisting that the senate through the judiciary committee conducts its own inquiry into the charge of the federal trade commission that the Aluminum company has violated the court decree.

REPRESENTATIVE MADDEN IS SUFFERING FROM GRIP

WASHINGTON, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Representative Martin B. M. Madden, of Illinois, who has been in poor health for many months, suffered a severe chill while attending to his duties at the capitol today and was moved to his home in an ambulance.

His family physician announced tonight that he was suffering from an attack of grippe, and that his strength was returning gradually. His temperature which rose to 102 degrees before he was removed from his office, had subsided about two degrees.

Mr. Madden, one of the republican leaders in congress and chairman of the house appropriations committee, contracted a severe cold several days ago, his physician said, and to guard against further exposure, he was taken to his residence in an ambulance.

His private secretary said tonight that Mr. Madden expected to be back at work by the middle of next week and was making engagements with this in view.

He is in his seventieth year and during his twenty years in congress, has been one of the hardest workers in the house. In September, 1923, he suffered a heart attack, which greatly weakened him, but the fears of his friends that he would not be able to return to active work in congress, proved groundless.

CONTENDING FOR FAMOUS ROMANOFF CROWN JEWELS

MOSCOW, Feb. 5—(AP)—Gem experts of seven nationalities are contending for possession of part of the famous Romanoff crown jewels, which the soviet government has placed on the market. Americans are the most active bidders, closely followed by French and British experts.

Rudolph Oblatt, representing a syndicate of American diamond firms, today made a bid on the entire collection of unmounted emeralds, which is valued at several million dollars and comprises stones up to 65 carats in weight.

Polish representatives also are competing for a part of the gems. It is recalled that arrangements were made last year by the soviet government to give Poland 26,000,000 rubles worth of crown jewels in part payment of Russia's obligation to her, but difficulties arose at the late last moment and Poland ultimatively received only 11,000,000 rubles worth of gems.

CONSUMPTION OF SUGAR MAY EQUAL PRODUCTION

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—(AP)—Charles Hayden, chairman of the executive committee of the Cuba Cane Sugar corporation, said today he believed consumption of sugar this year would equal production, and in that event, he looked for a steady slow improvement up to at least 3 cents a pound. While he considered that figure a low price for the average producer, nevertheless, it would permit lower cost producers to make a fair profit. Bankers were uniformly of the opinon, he said, that the price of sugar must be dependent upon the natural law of supply and demand.

HARDSHIPS OF A HUSBAND WHO HAD A WOODEN LEG

BRIDGEPORT, Feb. 5.—(AP)—A professor of botany in a college in New York city, George T. Harrington, recently wanted his leg.

It was in the cellar of the Greenwich home of his wife, Ethel Chamberlain Harrington, from whom he is estranged.

Mr. Harrington informed his wife he wanted his leg, but she would not let him in her residence to get it.

He communicated with Greenwich attorneys. She was prevailed upon to place her husband's leg out on the front porch where he could get it.

Falling on a sidewalk on Forty-second street, New York city, Mr. Harrington broke an artificial leg. He had the substitute cork leg at Greenwich, but was obliged to walk on crutches until he obtained it.

Mrs. Harrington did place her husband's leg on the front porch. He got it, but did not want to put it on out-of-doors. He asked if he could come in the house. Mrs. Harrington said no. He again called upon Greenwich lawyers, and for him was arranged the privilege of temporarily entering his wife's home to adjust his leg.

Harrington has brought suit for a divorce. He was married on June 2, 1913, and declares his wife deserted him in October of 1923. They have two children.

Judge Leonard J. Nickerson placed the Harrington divorce case on the uncontested list this afternoon. Mrs. Harrington did not file an answer to her husband's charges.

CON. STOCK EXCHANGE INJUNCTION MODIFIED

NEW YORK, Feb. 5—(AP)—Supreme Court Justice John Ford today agreed to modifications of the injunctions granted yesterday against the Consolidated Stock exchange restraining it from alleged bucket shop operations and sales manipulations in which no securities changed hands.

The modifications granted today were designed to permit the exchange to continue doing business through its clearing house, and to continue trading under restricted conditions.

Justice Ford agreed to change the original injunction so as to allow 48 hours for the delivery of stock within the city, rather than 24 hours, and to extend the delivery period outside the state from 36 to 96 hours. The time limit for deliveries out of the city, but within the state, is 72 hours.

He also permitted the pledging of customer's stock for loans by brokers in excess of money owed on account of the purchase stock, if the customers consent.

MANY TOWNS CUT OFF FROM WILLIMANTIC

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 5.—Calm weather which came with the dawn Friday following the worst snowstorm of the year found Willimantic and outlying towns practically snow-bound under 20 inches of snow which had drifted to a depth of three and as high as seven feet in some sections. The tieup in traffic was the worst in many years. All the main highways and trunk lines in this section were practically impassable, with the possible exception of the Hartford-Willimantic road.

All of the country roads were blocked Thursday isolating the towns of Hampton, Mansfield, Ashford, Chaplin, Scotland, Willington, Hebron, Columbia, and to some extent Coventry and Andover. In the area of the towns mentioned 25 of the 175 state highway plows were put into operation but their work in drifts was practically useless until the wind had abated early Friday. Exposed sections of road filled up within a few minutes of the time they had been cleared. On the Storrs road a snow plow jammed into a drift and remained there. It was said that the machine broke down in an endeavor to extricate itself. Over a dozen automobiles and trucks were abandoned on the highways.

With the weather more favorable traffic continued to be impeded by the heavy snow Friday. One motorist who left in the morning headed for Providence got as far as Hampton where he found the going impossible and he returned to this city.

Schedules on all but three motor bus lines operating out of this city were disrupted by the storm. The Hartford-Willimantic Jitney association, the Stafford-Willimantic Black and White line and the Storrs-Willimantic lines maintained a regular schedule, although under considerable difficulty. The Connecticut Motor company line to Colchester curtailed trips in the afternoon as did also the interstate line between New London and Springfield, Mass., via this city. The combination passenger and mail automobiles operated from Scotland by Harry N Mosely and from Eastford by John B. Eldridge made late trips. Trolley service was demoralized. But two trips were made by the Norwich-Willimantic trolley during the afternoon the third car attempting the trip going off the rails on Windham road near the Willimantic Camp Ground and blocking traffic on the line to that point for the remainder of the day. The South Coventry branch line of the Connecticut company managed to fill its schedule.

All school sessions were suspended Thursday and in surrounding towns where the roads had not been opened the school had to remain closed Friday. With the snow many feet deep in drifts the children were forced to remain indoors.

The passenger train service on the railroads having terminals here was maintained although some of the arrivals were one hour late during the day and during the evening Train No. 175 New York-Boston express due here at 6:32 was one hour and one half late leaving for Boston. This situation had been remedied Friday.

With fifteen additional men assigned to his regular force Street Superintendent Irvin M. Ford was able to make remarkable progress in keeping sidewalks and streets cleared. Snow which had been piled several feet high in the gutters was being carted away and thirty men were busy clearing the streets and gutters in the residential sections.

GYPSY FORTUNE TELLERS PLACED UNDER ARREST

(Special to The Bulletin.)

WILLIMANTIC, Feb. 5.—Three Gypsy fortune tellers who have held quarters in the Hall estate building on Main street for the past few weeks were placed under arrest Friday afternoon about three o'clock by County Detective William E. Jackson and Constable Alfred P. Abbe. The women gave their names as Mary Kreuse, 30, Katherine Marks, 35, and Angeline Kreuse, 30, and said that they had come here from Worcester, Mass., where they had resided for about half a dozen years. All said that they were married. They were detained in the police station overnight in default of bonds, to await a hearing in police court this Saturday morning charged with violating the law relative to fortune telling. Circumstances leading up to the arrest of the Gypsy trio were of somewhat unusual nature. County Detective Jackson and Constable Abbe walked past the establishment and one of the women standing in the doorway solicited their business. She promised to tell them something nice about their future and the two officers entered. Professing to be accomplished in the science of phrenology which consists of reading the character and type of the subject by studying the contours of the features and figure one of the women told Detective Jackson that he had a sorrowing heart but was kind to all people. She said that she would tell him more if he showed her his pocketbook. After listening to these complimentary remarks the officer was forced to reiterate with a rather unkind announcement that she and her partners were under arrest.

The demonstration on telephone service which was to have been given for the public by the Southern New England Telephone company, under the auspices of the Chamber of Commerce, in the Windham High school auditorium Friday evening was postponed at the eleventh hour when the truck bearing the demonstration paraphernalia became stalled on Plant hill in Lyme on the journey from Saybrook to this city. Word that the heavy truck had been stalled in a snow drift was received here late in the forenoon and up to three o'clock it had not as yet been extricated. Manager John C. Frazier of the local exchange then issued notice that the demonstration would be postponed until next Thursday evening when it will be held at the same hour and place with the proviso, of course, that the truck gets to this city by that time.

When news of the tragedy caused by the caving in of a foundry in New Britain under the heavy strain of snow Thursday became generally known in this city property owners here began to give some thought to this danger and many set about to remove snow from their buildings. Thursday evening members of Engine Company No. 1 assisted in removing snow from the front roof of the Chamber of Commerce building, this being done principally however, to keep the snow from slipping down onto the sidewalk with possible injury. The aerial ladder was used in the work.

The difficulties of the members of the Emma Welcome household, in Andover, were believed to have been fully ironed out Friday morning when the authorities of the town placed Amel Bush, 11 years old, into the care of his father, Amel Bush, Sr., of Bernardston, Mass., who came to claim his son. The final detail was to place the house cat in the custody of Justice of the Peace Charles A. Faulkner. Deputy Sheriff Allison L. Frink removed the last articles of furniture from the Welcome house Friday and placed them in storage. The work of clearing out the Welcome household started about Christmas time. As the situation now stands, Mrs. Emma Welcome, the head of the house and Mrs. Lillian Ouselette, who lived with her, are in the Tolland county jail. Mrs. Ouselette, 20, is charged with theft of chickens and Mrs. Welcome with being an accessory to the fact. Henry Kellherson of Mrs. Welcome and father of Mrs. Ouselette's youngest child is in jail in Springfield, Mass., awaiting trial on a charge of theft of an automobile. Two minor girls named Bush, who lived in the house are at the Long Lane Farm at Middletown. The girls and Amel Bush are children of Amel Bush of Bernardston, Mass. One of Mrs. Ouselette's two children is being cared for by her mother, Mrs. Gladue of this city and the other has been placed with friends here. Mr. Bush explained to First Selectman William Palmer Friday that his wife, the mother of the three children, was divorced from him and she was given the custody of their children but she has paid no attention to their welfare. They had been in charge of Mrs. Welcome, who is their grandmother. The mother married a Waterbury man who is now living in California where he intends to secure a divorce.

A reminder that property owners or rent payers are responsible for clearing off their abutting sidewalks within six hours after a snow fall was issued Friday when many residents complained that their sidewalks had not as yet been cleared by the street department. There are about 60 miles of streets in Willimantic and over two thirds of these have sidewalks on both sides. It will be some time before the city plows can cover all this ground in addition to clearing out gutters and streets.

The following committees for the year have been named by President Mrs. Lena Tripp of Francis S. Long Woman's Relief corps, No. 28: Executive board, Alice Bentley, Kate Woodward, Elinor Benner, Alice Tripp, Mary Dimock, Fannie Larkin, Elizabeth Hanson, Cleora Benton; relief, Cora Nye, Catherine Osterhoudt, Carrie Noble, Jennie Bradshaw; dining room, Fannie Lamb, Mary Lovett, Minnie Jones, Mary Van Zandt, Ethel Larned, Frances McKenna, Eleanor Ford, Florence Lewis, Harriet King; auditing, Jennie Randall, Adelaide Cole, Lucy Potter; ways and means, Mae Russ, Wardy Hoey, Ida Williams; house and employment, Lena Gates, Cora Duntz, Minnie Wilson; entertainment, Minnie Mathieu, Margaret Sears, Lillie Hersant, Gladys Magnes, Lucille Dinneen, Lucy Champlin; Americanization, Florence Smith, Minnie Flynn; thrift, Ida Chamberlain, Ruth James; silver, Mabel Dimock, Sabra Stoughton; child welfare, Lottie Gilman; flowers, Ida Williams; linen, Alice D. Stoughton.

From the family home, 237 Valley street, funeral services for Harry S. Clarke were held at two o'clock Friday afternoon with Rev. Arthur S. Wheelock officiating. Burial was in the Willimantic cemetery. The bearers were Charles Perkins, Samuel Snow, James Ferguson, Maurice Morin, Joseph Boucher, and Daniel Cremin. Avery and Van Zandt had charge of the arrangements.

In the South Coventry First Congregational church at two o'clock Friday afternoon funeral services were conducted for Mrs. Bessie S. Boynton. Rev. Charles G. Johnson, the pastor, officiated. Burial was in the Nathan Hall cemetery. Arrangements were in charge of Avery and VanZandt.

Alexander Smith, 56, of 39 Donnelly street, Fall River, Mass., who died from exposure Saturday, was a former resident of this city. He was a Spanish War veteran, serving in Company E, Third Connecticut Volunteers of this city in 1898.

During the possibility of spending the night in a snow covered automobile or having to walk for miles in a blizzard eight lion-hearted members of the Willimantic Rotary club set forth shortly after five o'clock Thursday night in a bold attempt to reach Danielson where the new club of that town was to hold its Charter Night. Thirty Rotarians had planned to go originally and they were to travel in a motor bus but the storm had a telling effect. The party of eight secured Ovila Martin and his Paige sedan. Two hours later to appear on fender hands, while they reached Sherman's Corners in South Chaplin, about five miles distant. Callouses were already beginning empty stomachs, which had been prepared for a turkey dinner in Danielson, began to weaken. Telephone calls to brought forth weird stories of immense snow drifts. The Rotarians had just finished digging themselves and the machine out of a drift which was "up to the ears" and with a vote of regret it was decided to return to this city. The men attempting the trip were: Vice-president, James P. Bath, Secretary G. E. Loisell, Treasurer Herbert W. Huber, James P. Mustard, Albert B. Smith, Edward J. Kanney, William E. Jackson and G. Everett Harrington.

At the Lyceum meeting Friday forenoon the Windham High School Dramatic club entertained a large audience of students with the one-act comedy, The Burglar. Uses Resinol for boils

First application gives relief

Pattsville, Ky., June 30:—"I had five boils on my neck, and after reading of your treatment for them I used it as directed. I was very much surprised on waking the next morning to find that they were not a bit sore and the swelling was going down fast. I will know the next time what to get when I have sores of this kind.

I must say that your Resinol Soap is a wonder for cleansing the hands and face. I am a painter, and at the end of my day's work I use your soap. It makes my hands and face whiter than any other soap has been able to do so far." (Signed) Chester E. Vanhoose, 241 East Third St.

JEWETT CITY

MERRY MIX-UP WHEN DOCTOR'S CAR WAS STUCK

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 5.—The tales of digging out and rescue work that were reported Friday, were of the sort not known in this section since some of the blizzards of years ago. Trucks and cars, temporarily abandoned, were a common sight, in cases where people attempted to reach the outlying districts over Griswold's back country roads. One, with a complexity of issues is outstanding. During the height of the storm, Dr. J. H. McLaughlin was stalled in one of the great drifts on the Voluntown pike. Not liking to leave his car, he floundered to a nearby farm house and telephoned to Ed. Blake, in the borough to come over at top speed and pull him out. Blake neared the place indicated by the doctor, when the storm was at its height. A great drift loomed up dead ahead. He opened up everything and stepped on it hard, in order to butt through. Whango!! within the drift; buried to its top, which was hidden in the blinding storm, was a big Cadillac. That mixup put the Dr. on his uppers again, so he telephoned to Rojeski's garage for help. His man, Steve Yorkowski, with a big Hupmobile arrived, and hooked on to the doctor's car. The draft gear snapped and as it flew back, the heavy chain caught Yorkowski about the body; and he was rushed to the Backus hospital in Norwich, badly bruised and with a broken leg. Another call brought Michael Shea with a double span of heavy team horses, and he was able to draw out the whole business, Cadillac, Blake and all.

FARMERS UNABLE TO GET MILK TO STATION

(Special to The Bulletin.)

JEWETT CITY, Feb. 5.—Alec Raney of Jewett City, in charge of the Boston milk car, left here Friday morning without a single can of milk. Impassable roads, filled with 10 foot drifts made it impossible for any of the 12 farmers to reach the depot in time for the boat train which carries the car.

On account of the storm Boston was short 40 ten quart cans from Jewett City.

Much of interest will be heard at the union meeting to be held at the Baptist church Sunday evening. The speaker will be H. F. Kasmier, director of Near East work in Connecticut. There will be explanations of the difference in the situation with that of three years ago.

Dance at Pachaug grange hall, postponed to next Saturday evening.—adv.

The Connecticut company ran its busses all day Friday, as a shuttle line between Norwich and Jewett City. The six state road plows, ended their work at the New London county line, near Bishop's crossing. Above that point the road was impassable. The last busses trying to complete the through schedules were called above Springvale farm until midnight.

Arba Browning and his son, Dr. Frank D. Browning, had the big power tractor out all day Friday in an attempt to clear the roads, filled top-wall high, between the homestead and Pachaug.

There is no little interest evidenced in the Winter School of Missions, to be opened, which any may attend, at the Baptist church Sunday evening. Four classes are planned; For boys, taught by Miss Florence Quimby; for young women, teacher, Mrs. Earl Palmer; for women, in charge of Mrs. G. [illegible] instructor for the men's class. The subject will consider Slavic Nations in Europe and Aspects of their Life in the United States. The book title is Peasant Pioneers.

"Now then, how shall we get rid of it?" is part of the statement of one of the master mechanics of the borough, who has a large industrial plant's welfare on his hands, as far, at least, as flood problems are concerned.

Jewett City lies close to the bottom and in the center of one of the largest water sheds in eastern Connecticut. Near its southern boundary, the Pachaug and Quinebaug rivers are in confluence, and the latter, in winter, is no trout stream. Jewett City was once devastated by a flood, and years ago, was accustomed to a regular annual inundation of more or less severity. Before the snow came, the hillsides, comprising many square miles, now covered with a foot and a half of hard packed snow, were frozen hard. In event of a warm south-easter, it is pointed out that there would likely be water to spare in this local part of the Valley of the Quinebaug.

More horse drawn vehicles were seen on the Jewett City state road Friday, than for ten years before. Among them was an old time ox-sled, drawn by a pair of farm team horses. Another curiosity was a man and his two fair daughters, peddling milk, right from a nearby farm; not from a milk wagon out from a 16 foot double team wagon.

Mrs. Edward J. Raney is the guest of her daughter, Mrs. John McLean, of New York city.

Fire Chief Bert Field, is anxious that the borough people use every possible precaution. Many streets in the borough are hard going which would make travelling with the heavily loaded truck a very uncertain proposition. The borough fire commissioners, Edmond Jodoin and Ernest French, had a gang of 15 men working all day Friday, clearing impassable streets and opening approaches to every hydrant in the borough. Men will be at work today (Saturday) in attempt to lower the fire hazard, resultant from the storm, to a minimum. Meanwhile they ask that every fire liability be carefully guarded.

Bill Davis received a telephoned dispatch Friday, as follows: Mount Misery, Wiley Brook Camp. Snowed in. Trap line buried under six feet, with drifts up to the tops of the tallest trees. Send 30 pounds of salt-pork, mostly fat and the biggest ham you can buy. I am going to Voluntown on snow shoes and will get them there and mush into camp with dog team. Signed, C. Watson.

The alarm on the fire whistle at 6 p. m Friday, was for a chimney blaze in the Guillotte block on Palmer avenue. The truck's chemical tank did the trick. The firemen were much hampered by snow on the roof.

The news of the death of the 8 months old son of Mr. and Mrs. Jay Ricketts on Thursday in Charleston, W. Va., has been received by Mrs. Ricketts' parents, Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Robinson. The father and mother are expected to arrive with the body in Norwich today (Saturday).

A fire Friday afternoon destroyed a garage and automobile on the former Whipple farm on the Glasgo road. The place is now occupied by Arsen Bulka.

UNION

L. M. Reed is ill with a severe cold and pleurisy.

Mrs. Nelson Horton has recovered from her recent illness so that she has taken her place on the school team from the center to Mashapaug a few times this week.

The storm Thursday was a touch of real winter, but fortunately the mercury did not go below 20 degrees during the day. There was no school at Mashapaug but Rock Meadow and Reid School were in session as usual although there was a smaller attendance. The mail came through on the state road, but did not go to the patrons on the other roads.

Mrs. H. A. Coolidge arrived last week from Ann Arbor, Mich. She had spent several weeks with her daughter, Mrs. Floyd Firestone and family. She left Mrs. Firestone training in health and the little grandson was well.

Miss Anna Szych, a pupil at Stafford High school came home last Saturday with a hard cold and was not able to return to school the first of the week.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Oliver and their last Sunday to visit relatives at Rock Meadow and the center.

Miss Irene Moore was at home from Southbridge High school for the week end.

Martin Brown of Staffordville, who formerly lived in Union and who had many friends here, was buried in the center cemetery last Tuesday afternoon.

WINTER CARNIVAL OF THE DARTMOUTH OUTING CLUB

HANOVER, N. H., Feb. 5—(AP)—Swashbuckling buccaneers, languorous Spanish maidens and desperate adventurers of every race filled the Dartmouth aluminum gymnasium tonight as the 160th annual winter carnival of the Dartmouth outing club reached its social climax with the annual costume ball.

The decorations and settings were those of a pirate's den and the midnight thrill was provided by a cutlass battle between members of the fencing team who descended on the hall with a chest of booty. The fight replaced the customary selection of [illegible] men and their maidens were scheduled to dance until dawn.

The formal program began early today with ski-jorring speeds around the campus, followed by the Dartmouth ski and snow shoe meet on the golf course, with inter-fraternity and open races.

Most of the carnival throng surrounded the Spalding pool in the afternoon to watch the Yale swimming team defeat the green with three pool records and one intercollegiate mark fall.

DANIELSON

HOPE TO OPEN STATE ROADS BY THIS EVENING

(Special to The Bulletin.)

DANIELSON, Feb. 5—No motor coaches were operating between Providence, Willimantic and Hartford via Danielson up to late Friday afternoon. The truck line highway was choked with snow, heavily drifted in some places, against which state highway plows were battering away to open the important route to travel. At noon the road between Danielson and Brooklyn had been opened only as far west as The Pines, about two miles from Danielson Center. To the east the road was open between Danielson and South Killingly hill.

Brooklyn was practically cut off from Danielson. A big coach of the New England Transportation company, Danielson-bound from Williamantic, spent all of Thursday night at Brooklyn Center and was still there late Friday afternoon, awaiting release through opening of the highway. Two passengers who were in the coach spent the night at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney W. Bard. Friday, Robert Bard managed to get this couple through to the Ennis place in a light car, but progress beyond that point, about midway between Danielson and Brooklyn, was barred by heavy drifts in a cut at the top of what is often called Brickyard hill and against which no ordinary automobile could prevail. A bobsled with an old door put aboard for a seat, brought the couple the remaining distance to Danielson. Mr. Bard reported that a drift in the cut about a hundred yards east of the Ennis place, was from 6 to 9 feet high and sloping down to a foot or more on each side. On the Brooklyn flats, from which much of the snow that fell was blown, there was no more than 9 to 8 inches of snow for considerable distances. Between Brooklyn and Hampton and Hampton and Willimantic, conditions were equally bad, and state highway plows worked steadily all day and into Friday night. The plow crews are having a most strenuous time of it, working many hours a day their travel lanes may serve their usual useful purpose.

The Dark Lantern territory and points east of it on the Providence highway was practically a No Man's land during Friday. No traffic could move through there, and Providence might as well have been a thousand miles away, if one cared to go there over the highway. It simply couldn't be done. However, the road likely will be open all the way from Providence to Hartford sometime today, at least that was a hope expressed Friday evening and then attention can be given by the road crews to making travel better day by day.

Uncle Sam's mail men were making good on rural and star routes out of the Danielson office Friday. The mails between Brooklyn and Dahlelson and Elast Killingly and Danielson were handled on horse-drawn vehicles. East Killingly sent a morning mail here and got one in return. From Brooklyn the first mail of Friday arrived about 3 p. m.

At that hour, Rural Carrier A. W. Lopes and an assistant who started on this morning trip with him, had not returned to the office, though this carrier is usually back by 11 a. m. There was no attempt of the impossible in trying to cover all this route, which goes over much bad country, but every effort was being made to serve those whose letter boxes are along the state highway.

The Connecticut company's schedule was disrupted south of here during Friday. No coaches were available for points south of Danielson. The highway was blocked. Service was being maintained between Danielson and Putnam and it was also given out here that the line between Putnam and North Grosvenordale was open.

Number of mill employes who leave on early morning coaches out of Danielson and nearby territory for points south could not get through Friday and find an enforced holiday.

Highway crews of the town of Killingly spent Friday breaking out county highways and in making borough streets more passable for traffic. In Danielson, a motor driven plow was traveling over borough streets, doing fine work in making them better to get over, particularly with motor vehicles.

Telephone inquiries to all parts of the town brought stories of impassable highways. It is going to cost the town of Killingly a pretty penny to rid its roads of the snow, even if it does no more than open them to what may be called rough traveling level with drifts that in some cases are 6 and 8 feet in height. A week likely will elapse before all or nearly all of the 150 miles of highway in the town can be traveled over with anything but horse-drawn conveyances. No machines were getting deeper from Elmville to East Killingly during Friday. Stalled cars by the dozen remained during all of Friday in the grasp of the snow on all highways of importance within miles of Danielson. Numbers of them were released as state highway plows broke through to their locations.

Nelson Gauthier has the thanks of many residents for his plowing of paths along Broad street.

A threat is expressed in the rural equipment of many these days, and not without good reason.

President Babin A. Russell of the Danielson Rotary club, said Friday afternoon that no plan has been made as yet, following Thursday night's postponement on account of the storm, for the presentation of the charter to the Danielson Rotary club.

A brigade of shovel wielders opened miles of paths and cleared long lines of sidewalks in Danielson during Friday, so that getting about is not such a difficult thing now as was the case Thursday and early Friday.

It was indicated Friday that services will be abandoned in some country districts next Sunday on account of the very bad traveling conditions.

Section crews of the New Haven road had special work in the way of clearing switch entrances of snow during Friday.

Sleighs have come into their own again. A considerable number of them are now in service by milkmen, grocers and others who have deliveries to make. Incidentally, the big snow has developed projects for sleighing parties within a day or two.

Louis S. Barstow, who takes milk by auto truck from East Killingly to Providence every day, arrived here Friday afternoon from a trip he started on Thursday morning. He managed to get to Providence through the storm and as far as South Killingly on the return trip before his machine was blocked from further progress by the snow. His concern Friday afternoon was over the impossible task of getting the machine up to East Killingly.

In the Danielson division the telephone company experienced very little line damage from the storm, but the period produced an overload of business that kept operators exceedingly busy all day Thursday and Friday.

It is likely that some snow removal work will be done in the business section of Danielson as soon as more pressing needs for men and equipment have been disposed of.

Charles I. Keegan, of the Killingly Worsted company, has been elected first vice president of the national association of Textile Dyers and Finishers, at the annual meeting of the organization held in Providence recently.

Miss Emma F. Pilling will have the members of the Fortnightly club at her home for a meeting Tuesday afternoon.

Members of the Civic federation met at the home of Mrs. H. D. Crosby, Academy street, Friday afternoon.

Wilbur C. Kane, of Lowell, is spending the week-end with friends in Danielson.

The public service cars proved during the big storm, to be very valuable assets to the town's people. They made many hard trips and kept their machines going even under great stress of effort.

It appears that a very considerable reserve supply of fuel remains in Danielson and no greater concern over the outcome of the coal strike is generally expressed now than in the fall season.

Frank J. G. Bailey went down to New York Friday, to sail today on the Momus, for New Orleans.

William Swainson, pastor of the Dayville Congregational church.

She was attended by Miss Monica Reddy, who wore nile green crepe de chine with black satin hat faced with nile green. She carried yellow tea roses. The best man was William Steinbough, brother of the groom.

That much vaunted thriller de luxe, The Phantom of the Opera, variously described by the movie critics, all of whom have substantiated the billing, "Greatest mystery thriller of the age," will play tomorrow at the Sroad theatre, and the people of Norwich will at last have an opportunity to see Lon Chaney play what is said to be his latest and greatest role.

It is claimed that 20 acres were covered with 70 massive sets for the gigantic production, which is adapted from the French mystery romances by Gaston Leroux, sometimes alluded to as France's successor to De Maupassant. The sets are said to include a complete reproduction of the great Paris Opera house, interior, exterior and underground.

Lon Chaney, who plays the Phantom, is supported by a cast numbering thousands, all in the colorful splendor affected by the wealthy and noble of that period with notable extravagance. Many noted principals head the great cast of players. Among them are Mary Philbin, Norman Kerry, Snitz Edwards, Gibson Gowland, John Sainpolis, Virginia Pearson, Arthur Edmund Carewe, Edith Yorke, Anton Vaverka, Bernard Siegel, Olive Ann Alcorn, Edward Cecil, Alexander Bevani, John Miljuan, Bruce Covington and George B. Williams.

A special augmented orchestra has been engaged for the local presentation.

Broadway Theatre.

When Rex Beach wrote The Goose Woman he founded the story on an actual murder which stirred the eastern part of the United States about four years ago.

The whole Atlantic seaboard was stirred into a fever heat by the startling disclosures arising from a little New Jersey town. A flock of one hundred newspapermen from New York and other cities spent a period of three months in the town attempting to unravel the mystery.

Rex Beach followed the murder very closely and then wrote a novel solving the mystery after his own theory. This has been made into a motion picture, and will be shown Sunday at the Broadway theatre as a Universal Jewel release.

In the picture version Louise Dresser plays the part of the Goose Woman, giving a moving portrayal of the opera singer who loses her voice and slips down the stream of intemperance, becoming a drunken slattern, to be regenerated only after the murder is perpetrated.

Jack Pickford and Constance Bennett furnish the love interest, Pickford as the son of the Goose Woman and Miss Bennett as an actress.

Other members of the cast are Spottiswood Aitken, George Cooper, Gustave von Seyffertitz, George Nichols and Mark MacDermott.

The adaptation was done by Melville Brown and the direction by Clarence Brown.

The second feature is one of the great outdoors, with Wally Wales in The Roaring Rider. A comedy and Kinograms complete this program, with regular prices of only 25c admission.

Broadway Theatre

An open letter to Louise Dresser:

You have given me one of the most refreshing experiences of my whole moving picture career by your work in "The Goose Woman." You have given me an added faith in the possibilities of the screen and its future. You have played one of the most difficult roles ever assigned to a screen star and you have played it in a manner that will make it one of the classics of moving pictures.

You have given to that woman who owned the goose farm the rich fruits of your experience as an actress. You have shown that even a seared soul can be healed. Every true lover of the histrionic art will feel humble in the presence of that woman of the goose farm.

All honor to Rex Beach for a fine story and all honor to Clarence Brown for a masterly piece of directing, but, Miss Dresser, I am not indulging in flattery when I state my belief that no other person could have elevated this picture to such great heights as you have done. I wish you could know how deep a pride I will take in presenting you to the people of this city in "The Goose Woman," under the Universal banner.

We anticipate a great business at our Broadway theatre, for we feel sure that Norwich theatregoers appreciate a real sensation when they see it. It opens at the above named theatre this Sunday, Feb. 7.

Respectfully yours,

M. LEVINE.

Don't tell all you know; keep a little for seed.

What bright little student of American literature can tell off hand who Moby Dick was?

Until a few years ago the name was virtually unknown to all but a few connoisseurs who treasured "Moby Dick" as one of the greatest novels ever written by an American. But Herman Melville's fame was due for a vivid resurrection. A new edition of "Moby Dick" created a furore in the literary world, and, as widely as the story had been forgotten, it began to be read.

Among the readers was John Barrymore, and Barrymore's imagination was fired at every page of his reading, by a vision of "Moby Dick" transferred to the screen. To him it seemed that no novel he had ever read contained such magnificent possibilities for picturization. For Melville had told his story in pictures; pictures that remain steadily in the memories of his readers.

"Moby Dick" is a story of the New England sailors of 1840 who took their fast clippers throughout the world in the hunt for whales. And each whale in those days meant a fortune for the traders, for the whale supplied an endless number of necessities, but especially the oil that was needed for lamp lighting.

The adventures of these whalers reached epic proportions in Melville's telling of them. With simple accuracy he had portrayed the rugged heroism that had conquered the terrors of the sea, but his was a simplicity that mounted up to magnificence in its picture of the lives of brave men.

As Barrymore read, he saw himself acting the central character, the tremendous character of Ahab Cesley. He felt the compulsion to do this character on the screen, just as he had felt the compulsion to do "Hamlet" on the stage. And he promised himself that as soon as he returned to the screen "Moby Dick" would be his first picture.

But "Moby Dick," which was the name given by Melville to a great white whale, whose presence fills the background of the novel, was discarded as a title when the picture went into production at the Warner Brothers studios in Hollywood. In its screen form, "Moby Dick" became "The Sea Beast," and, in "The Sea Beast," John Barrymore seems to have achieved everything that his imagination pictured; his finest performance in his greatest photoplay.

"The Sea Beast" was adapted to the screen by Bess Meredyth and produced under the direction of Millard Webb. The titles were written by Rupert Hughes. Dolores Costello and George O'Hara are in the cast.

The unusually large audience present last Sunday at the large gymnasium of the Y. M. C. A. indicated the great popularity of the screen feature, "If Winter Comes." On that occasion the first six reels of this remarkable picture were shown; the remaining six reels will be shown on the coming Sunday at 4 o'clock, when both men and women are cordially invited. This feature is a Fox production, and Percy Marmont, the leading character is ably assisted by the following: Sidney Herbert, Arthur Metcalf, William Riley, Hatch takes the part of the minister of the picture, Margaret Fielding, Virginia Lee, George Pelzer and several others. Eight English towns are used to visualize "Tidborough" as described by the author, A. S. M. Hutchinson. The whole trend of the remarkable picture is uplifting in its influence, and perhaps no picture of recent years has received such hearty endorsement of the clergy as has this production. While the first six reels were impressive, the last six will be even more so. The invitation to see this picture is specially to men and women, the boys and girls may come, provided each is accompanied by parent. On account of the fact that many had to stand last Sunday several extra seats will be provided on this occasion. Hugh Kinder will furnish music for the picture and render vocal solos, and a brief talk appropriate to the picture will be given. The doors will be opened at 3:30 and the service will begin promptly at 4 o'clock.

Andrew C. Lathrop of Boston university, was recently home for several days. He was the guest of his brother in Hartford and was the only one from here to attend the state fiddling contest recently held in the capitol city.

He counted it a rare treat to hear the skillful player Eugene Maynard, the winner, from his home town.

There and Now, was the subject of consideration at the Community club meeting held Wednesday evening. My Grandmother's Pantry and The Pantry of Today was subjects of interest given by Miss Laura McCall.

The debate followed. Resolved, That the styles of the nineteenth century were preferable to those of today. Miss Clara Gillett and Mrs. J. A. Randall, affirmative; Miss Ruth Maynard and Miss Annie Gillett, negative. The three judges after conferring with each other on the points of both sides decided for the negative. There was also singing and violin selections on the program. Refreshments were served.

PREVENTING UNTIDY STREETS

Philadelphia faces the same state of affairs as many if not most, other cities. Thus there is bound to be more or less common interest in the method it employs in its effort at correction.

The Quaker city has parks, squares and streets and there are some of its citizens who greatly deplore the practice, and the appearance as the result of such practice, of scattering litter about such places. Even though there may be street cleaners there is no justification for throwing rubbish about indiscriminately, tossing papers, tin cans or other refuse into the gutters just because it is the easiest method of disposing of them. Such acts simply create untidy conditions, make a bad impression upon residents and visitors and add to public expense.

Philadelphia may not think that it is going to put a quick damper on such practices by the offer which has been made by a commission of 14 leading citizens of a prize of $5,000 for the best practical plan for keeping visitors in parks and squeares from scattering such litter, but it apparently hopes to develop public sentiment in regard to this matter.

Any scheme worthy of such a prize will have to be regarded as effective. It is nevertheless sufficient in amount to call forth many real suggestions and to get some hard thinkers busy in the competition. There is no reason to suppose that all the litter that is thrown in the parks and squares, or streets of Philadelphia comes from visitors. Certainly it isn't true in other cities. Residents are undoubtedly responsible for the most of it. They set the example and others are quick to follow. Practice is said to make perfect and it doesn't take long for the habit to become firmly established. Discarding unwanted material by throwing it into the street is wrong, but it is the well kept street rather than the untidy one which causes people to hesitate about making a garbage can out of it. Philadelphia is interested in correcting an undesirable condition. It is trying to do it by educational methods and it will be worth watching to see whether it succeeds, it deserves to. Others should be anxious to do as much.

OUR FORESTRY PROBLEMS

While we have been told within a comparatively few years that our forests will be exhausted in another quarter of a century unless we put a robust reforestation policy into effect, it was much longer ago that recognition was given to the forestry problems in this country. Back in 1876, or just a half century ago, the government saw the necessity of looking into conditions and Dr. Franklin B. Hough was made a special investigator. From that time on constant study has been made. Attention has been given by some to the disclosures, the development of conditions has been pointed out and increased recognition given to the need of radical changes. It can not be said that we are doing all that we should in the way of planning new forests for the future. There are instances where we are eliminating wastes, where states have taken up the problem, where state forests have been established and even where town forests are showing the good effects of such planning as an inspiration to land owners whose property is not productive. But the population grows and demands increase for lumber. We point to that which is visible but we give too little thought to the outlook for the future with increasing demands. We bask in the sense of a false security. We are far from being as well off as we were 50 years ago.

Charles Lathrop Pack, president of the American Tree association, is an optimist. He takes this view: "Just as the date of 1876 marked the centennial of our political independence, so it will mark the beginning of our economic independence, when the forestry history of our country is written. But I prefer to look ahead another 50 years to 1976, when there will be a forestry centennial in the same year that marks the 200th anniversary of its political independence. Will this country have advanced toward economic independence in a forestry sense? I believe long before that date the people of this nation will have become so aroused that they will demand a timber crop every year upon our thousands of acres of idle land as a well ordered project of public policy."

It is to be sincerely hoped that he is right. Certainly conditions call for it and the results of the investigations during the past 50 years demand it.

A WEAK FLOURISH

When a great emergency arises something ought to be done about it, of course. Sometimes provisions have been made for doing that very thing and sometime there have not. Sometimes it is the case that such conditions have been anticipated and the means of dealing with them suggested but nothing has ever been done to authorize such procedure.

That is about the situation in connection with the coal strike and yet there are among those who have failed to act who are clamoring for the president to do something when it is fully understood that his hands are tied and those who are trying to impose the impossibility on him never raised a finger to provide a way of meeting just such an emergency when the time was ripe for it following the last coal strike. They failed to do anything but they are loud in their appeals for someone else to get busy.

We find Senator Copeland of New York, a democrat, pleading that the president end the strike. Why hadn't he thought of this "let George do it" plan long ago before the sixth month of the strike was entered? He knew of the recommendation of the coal commission that the president be given the authority to deal with this very situation. He knew the report was made more than two years ago and that congress has never adopted it. He might have sponsored such a step, even if it had failed and been able to point to that effort in his present plea, but he failed to either do anything or to urge others to do something. He turned his back upon just what might be employed in meeting the existing emergency but wants the president to dig into something which the failure of congress to act indicates that it desired him to keep out of. At least he as a senator has done nothing to give the president the authority to do what he is now urging him to do. Senator Copeland has been playing to the galleries but unintentionally calling attion of an obstructionist congress.

By his plea he brings home to himself and others the responsibility which he failed to meet long ago.

TEMPERANCE SOCIETY'S VERDICT

It is not to be supposed that the declaration by the Church Temperance society of the Episcopal church in favor of modification of the Volstead act is going to bring it about. That is, the mere statement is not going to accomplish the decided change in federal legislation. What its influence will be remains to be seen.

The statement is quite in keeping with the report which was made by the executive secretary of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ, which stirred up such a furore at the time. It is in keeping with sentiment that has been expressed by many leaders inasmuch as it gives recognition to the conditions which have developed from prohibition simply because, regardless of the efforts that have been made in behalf of enforcement, there are still so many ways of getting around it that intoxicating beverages are still obtainable but are of a character which are declared by those who have made investigations to be 99 per cent poison.

While the stand taken by the church organization may not have a great bearing on legislation, because the society in itself may not be a large one, it is the fact that it can be pointed to as a church organization's opinion, quite the same as was the case with the Council of Churches report, that will carry influence. It will be seized upon, not only by those who have been persistently working for modification but by those who have always worked against prohibition, as one of their strong bits of evidence. It will be employed as a high class character witness for the elimination of conditions which many regard as highly detrimental to the country as the result of the experience already had.

GILPATRIC'S HELP

Of course it makes little difference whether the appointment of a special investigation committee by Governor Trumbull to dig into the Gilpatric affairs is pleasing or satisfactory to Mr Gilpatric, but the fact that he has indicated his desire to give all possible assistance must be regarded as gratifying. Certainly it is preferable that he should be a willing rather than an obstinate witness before the commission.

The desire to have all the cards laid on the table and to make a clean breast of the whole tangled affair so far as it is possible for him to unsnarl it is, of course, a commendable course. It is the thing to do but whether he will be able to accomplish all he is willing to or the committee desires him to is another question. Naturally he hasn't kept a diary of the crooked transactions covering a period of several years and as he got deeper and deeper into the hole the muddle of affairs involving various funds is not an easy one to unravel.

Nevertheless with all the cards put on the table and with such reminders as can be offered to him, the person who is anxious to give his best assistance should be of much help. His attitude is the right one and judgment will have to be suspended as to what his help will amount to until after it has been extended.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

When we hear people enthuse over the "good old times", we have a right to ask just what "times" do they refer to? We refuse to swallow that statement at a gulp; it requires a good deal of chewing. To say that "times" generally were better once than now is to deny that civilization has made any advancement. One can hardly point to a single human objective that has not progressed in the last hundred years. Take, for instance, the matter of sport, which is a powerful natural instinct in the young. How bitterly was it frowned upon in the days when ultra-Calvinism was dominant! It was attacked in the pulpit and denounced in the pew as clear evidence of natural depravity, and that it should be eradicated from the system by the severest measures. Does anybody want such "good old times" to come back again?

While admitting that sport, like anything else, may be overdone, yet in its own legitimate province, it is as natural as any other human instinct. It has as important a place in human life as prayer. In early life it is far more natural for a boy to play than it is to pray. I would far rather see a boy under twelve running bases than trying to run a prayer meeting. It is not the precocious boy who develops into the most normal manhood, but the boy of good all round faculties. The Apostle Paul was giving a fine bit of psychology when he wrote: "Howbeit that was not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; and afterward that which is spiritual." Where the play instinct is strong it is laying a sure foundation for the more serious things which come when the consciousness of responsibility develops.

Shall we go back to the "good old times" of puritannic theology, when our Heavenly Father was chiefly regarded as an inexorable judge? His sovereignty was the main theme of pulpit teaching. This stood as the basis of "predestination and election" which seemed to the tender and immature minds of the young as a horrible nightmare. Such preaching might have been strong and in seeming agreement with a literal translation of the Bible. Those doctrinal sermons were hard, dry, long and wearisome to those who had no interest in them. Does any rational being desire a return to this conception of the Bible, or to this method of preaching? There has never been a time when Bible instruction touched human life at so many points as now, or gave so much solace to aching hearts. Shall we return to the older Calvinism?

Mid-winter teaches us that unreliability does not belong to man alone. Some men you can't trust five minutes, and some weather you can't trust at all. During the last week in January the weather ran the whole gamut of possibility. We had about everything except the sultry days of midsummer. It rained, it snowed, it hailed, it was foggy, it was hazy, it was sunny, it froze, it thawed, it was frosty, it was cloudy, it was clear, it was sometimes neither, it was cold, it was warm, and most of the time of this week the mercury was racing up and down the thermometer. Of course this meant icy, slippery sidewalks that gave to locomotion a constant appearance of uncertainty, or of a general and sudden patronage of the goods of the bootlegger. Now we have seen in men many evidences of inconstancies, but never anything that could match this.

From the standpoint of its inference one of the saddest verses in the Bible is this: "And a great multitude followed him, because they beheld the signs which he did on them that were sick." Of course there is no sadness in the fact that people to the number of 5000 followed Jesus with no evil in their hearts. It is only when we stop to analyze the motives of their hearts that the sadness comes in. It was not for the purpose that contact with his gracious personality would make them more spiritually efficient, not that it would create in them a religious zeal more nearly like his own. It was not for the high purpose of feeling the thrill of his amazing personality, or catching an inspiration from him that would urge them on to do an uplifting work like this. We fear it was something worse than mere idle curiosity; it was for the selfish purpose of getting something out of him for nothing. If he cured them there would be no doctor's bill to pay.

During the month of January it is customary for the churches of all denominations to hold their annual meetings. It is the logical season of the year for doing so. As the preceding year has closed it is well to bring in review before the people the activities of the last year. It is sound business policy to know just where the church stands financially, and also to have carefully reviewed the moral and religious activities of the organization. The annual meeting is also the place for making suggestions for the ensuing year; ought the church to retrench along some lines; ought there be advancement along others; would it be well to blaze a pathway in some untrodden territory? As civilization is never static, neither can the church be if it is going to serve the community efficiently. The annual meeting is of great importance.

One of the easiest things in this world is to cavil at what the other fellow says and does. And one of the hardest things is to do the same stunt just as well or a little better yourself. We sometimes come into contact with the pigmies (not so much today as we did yesterday) who sneer at the church as a society made up of weaklings, mostly old ladies and young children. This, of course, is due to crass ignorance. Let such carping critics attend the annual meeting of almost any church organization and hear the reports covering so large an area of human needs, and putting emphasis upon everything that makes for Christian character. It is not too much to say if these activities—that cover such a territory of human needs—should fail, our present civilization would soon begin to topple and fall. The church is still the world's great humanitarian agency.

We have just passed one of the important, but lesser known, anniversaries that did much to change the moral map of the United States, and to some extent that of the whole civilized world. I refer to February 4, 1861, when the Southern Confederacy was formally launched at Montgomery, Ala. What a great moral challenge was this for Abraham Lincoln to face who was inaugurated as president one month later on March 4, 1861! For the first time since the Union came into existence in 1776, had its extence been threatened by open rebellion, and we know how its fate hung in the balance for three long, anxious years. But God was on his throne, and a man after his own heart was in the white house, and the Almighty knew how to work through the nation's chief magistrate! If old Columbia bled profusely, at least, slavery was abolished, and the greatest of our national curses was wiped out forever from the fair life of this "El Dorado of the West".

Expenditure of approximately $280,000,000 over a five-year period to build up naval aviation was recommended to the house naval committee by the bureau of aeronautics.

GEOGRAPHIC SHORT STORIES FROM THE PANTRY SHELF.

Boston within the last year, has lost two landmarks. Most Americans have heard of the Washington Elm which stood in Cambridge but most Americans have had much closer acquaintance with the Parker House which has been surrendered to the wreckers. In the kitchen of the famous hotel a cook created the Parker House roll.

"When it comes to geographic short stories, kitchens can tell many anecdotes of strange times, strange lands, and strange peoples," says a bulletin from the headquarters of the National Geographic society in Washington, D. C. "Flavored with history and spiced with the humor of humanity, the collected tales from the cook's domain will push out the ends of many a five foot pantry shelf.

Bun Making in Capitol

"Take, for example, the intimate relation between Congress and a famous bun. Below the floor of the Capitol the Vienna roll was first made for America. It happened this way. All the quiet on the Potomac was shattered one day, during the Civil war by rumor that the Confederates were plotting to blow up the bakeries on the outskirts of the city. Next day Pennsylvania avenue saw a strange parade, bakers and baker wagons, bake ovens and baker supplies, toiling along to the Capitol. While the bakeries occupied the extensive cellars under the halls of Congress, Vienna rolls and French bread were introduced in the capital and a taste for them spread through the nation.

"Benjamin Franklin is the father of the broom industry in America. A lady came to Philadelphia from Europe and brought a whisk broom. Franklin happened to see it one day and noticed the unusual stiffness of the fibres. Attached to one straw he saw a seed pod which he requested of the lady. Franklin is said to have planted the seed and thus he grew the first broom corn in the United States.

When Cook Won Blue Ribbon

"Franklin had many honors in many fields but there is no record of him winning the Blue Ribbon. Nowadays prize horses and cows, prize peanuts and babies, are given Blue Ribbons, but that is a misuse of a sacred privilege. The 'Cordon Bleu' as the French say, is the supreme distinction for cookery. An argument between Louis XV and Madame DuBarry brought it into being. The King said only men could be superior chefs. Madame Du Barry set about having a wonderful dinner prepared. The King came, ate, and asked the name of the chef that he might attach him to the royal household. 'I have caught you at last,' said Du Barry. 'The chef is not a man at all, but a woman. I demand a recompense for her, worthy both of her and your majesty. Your royal bounty has made my negro servant, Zamore, governor of Luciennes and I cannot accept less than the "Cordon Bleu" for my cook.'

"Some names of familiar kitchen supplies have curious origins. Currants are named for a famous city of Greek antiquity. Greece still is famous as the home of the currant and in olden days the variety which grew in the vicinity of the present Gortho was prized. Gortho is on the site of old Corinth, pronounced in former times 'Coraunts.' Cantaloupes take their name from Cantalupo, Italy, but a popular variety favored in America, Rocky Ford cantaloupes, originated in Rocky Ford, a small town of Colorado. To Italy we are indebted for a grim, white breed of chickens and pay out indemnity by awarding them the name of an Italian seaport, Lexhorn.

Brussels Sprouts vs. Carpets

"The neighboring Iberian Peninsula has bequeathed to the English language the luscious word 'Marmalade.' The Portuguese preserved quince in syrup and called it 'marmelo.' In coming over to the English the word enlarged and took in many more fruits and even nuts to label toothsome marmalade. Brussels sprouts came by their name more honestly than Brussels carpets; the sprouts have been a favorite with Belgium since the 14th century but the carpets were never made in Brussels.

"Cooks have a finger in the broth of language, witness Saratoga chips. These were popularized by a negro cook at a summer hotel on Morris Lake, Saratoga, New York. Good cooking, however, is supposed to be a Southern specialty but Boston has done more advertising. In addition to the Parker House roll, the Hub city has put its label on Boston baked beans and Boston cream pie.

"Knives and forks at six paces alone can settle the title to porterhouse steak. Boston claims that the choice cut was the particular pride of Porter's Tavern, a roadhouse near Cambridge. New York holds that the proprietor of a saloon, or 'Porter house, near the old Fly Market observed that the steaks cut from the thick end of the sirloin were best. He insisted that his butcher cut none but these for him. The fame of 'porterhouse' steak spread rapidly and the term is now established in the terminology of meats.

Julienne and Graham

"A famous French chef has done better. He perpetuated his own name, Jean Julienne, in a method of preparing potatoes for the table. Sylvester Graham, a physician and dietician, arrived at the same end by his great enthusiasm for the beneficial powers of graham bread.

"Both kitchen and grocery are implicated in the international complications of macaroni and its cousin spaghetti. Like so many useful perquisites of Christian civilization, macaroni is an invention of China—or Japan. It was introduced in Europe by the Germans, from whom the Italians learned to make it. Italy raised macaroni to a national institution which the rest of Europe did not learn to appreciate until after the 14th century. At Tours there lived a French chef who learned to make macaroni and earned a reputation for his dishes. Hearing of him, Louis XIII paid a special visit to Tours and came away praising both chef and macaroni. Now macaroni is a foodstuff known far and wide. Germans call macaroni 'nudel' which America has corrupted into 'noodle' to label a special kind of macaroni."

From Small Beginnings

John Fitch Who Made Boats Go By Steam.

Every steamboat that sails the ocean should have a picture of John Fitch, who died in 1798, utterly discouraged because he could not interest the world in his plan of making boats go by steam. In fact, John Fitch committed suicide because he could not make the dream of his life come true. He should have persisted. He should have kept on. It never pays to give up. There was John Fitch, 65 years old, strong and skillful, right on the heels of one of the greatest contributions to the advancement of civilization. Perhaps a few years more would have won the day for him, and made him rich beyond all his imagination. He had had a hard row to hoe, this John Fitch. As a boy he had to work on a farm instead of going to school, except for the long winter months, when he trudged through the Connecticut snows to a little district school.

Then, a little older and stronger, off he went as a common sailor, having all sorts of rough adventures. In those days sailors were beaten and cuffed about, half-starved, shut up in the stuffiest of cabins and treated like beasts. John Fitch lived through that. This, mind you, was before the American Revolution, when life was hard almost anywhere. Then came the Revolution.

John Fitch went into the war as a provider of food for the army. Out of the money that he made he bought land. He was a man of big ideas. "This country is going to grow," he said. "Look at all that territory!" So off he went into the wildest forests, surveying and making maps. The only way to travel through the wilderness was by the great rivers. John Fitch found paddling hard work. "I wish I had a boat that would paddle itself!" he said. Then he thought of steam.

"I'll try!" and he went back home and spent the rest of his life trying to make a steamboat. He failed to think of the paddle wheel idea as we have it, but he did make a boat that went by steam. He even made a stern wheeler. Every one laughed at him. "Look at the boiler on the water!" they called out. He tried to get rich people to give him money to carry on his work. "Put money into that harebrained scheme!" they cried. "Not much! It'll never work."

So neither in America nor in Europe could he find one who would take his plan seriously. What would John Fitch say today if he could see the fleets of steamboats that go to all the oceans of the world? It is never good to laugh at a new idea. A new idea is often the ark of the future.

Sunday Morning Talk

Heaven

"In my Father's house are many mansions; if it were not so I would have told you. I go to prepare a place for you!" John 14:2.

Jesus has things to say about Heaven. The first is that of locality. "I go to prepare a place!" This cannot be resolved into a mere state of mind or character. There is a place called Heaven. Christ leaves us to infer that it is a place other than the earth where we live. Jesus intimates that Heaven is a large place also a prepared place for a prepared people.

Next Heaven is a permanent place for all eternity. It is a place of reward to the faithful. We are told to rejoice that our names are written in Heaven. There are battles to be fought before we reach that place of joy. There are burdens to be borne but we are promised strength if we remain faithful to the end.

May we be so filled with the love of God that we may join in doing hard things for our Saviour. That we may count no sacrifice too great for our Lord and Master. That at the end of life we may feel that we have been loyal and faithful to Him and enter with joy into the Heavenly joy which our Saviour has prepared for us.

IN THE PUBLIC EYE

Dr. John Henry MacCracken, who has resigned the presidency of Lafayette college, represents an interesting case of a man, as it were, inheriting his profession, since his father, Henry M. MacCracken, from 1885 to 1910, was either vice-chancellor or chancellor of New York university, New York city, and made it rival Columbia university in size, equipment and educational prestige. Another of Henry M. MacCracken's sons is president of Vassar college. President John MacCracken of Lafayette graduated from New York university and later attended the universities of Halle and Heidelberg. In 1899 he became president of Westminster college, Missouri, holding the position for four years, resigning in 1903 to join the faculty at New York university. Stories That Recall Others

On Other Side

A certain school teacher whose name is withheld for reasons which will be apparent was giving a party at her home. Another teacher who had received an invitation feared that she might not be able to find the house at night and was asking directions.

"I live in a double house," the teacher giving the party said in the course of her instructions. "When you approach it you will see a woman standing in the doorway on one side watching for you. My home is on the other side of the house."

He Didn't

After some time spent in studying the profile of a Grecian goddess in a picture in the school room a pupil with a puzzled air approached the Latin teacher, indicating the picture, the pupil said:

"Whose picture is it?"

"Juno," the teacher replied.

"No, I don't know," the pupil said quite seriously.

There were a few odds and ends left at a Gettysburg (Pa.) auction, and Thomas Myrick bought a chair for $1.10. He took it home and found under the cushion a card which said that the chair had been used by Abraham Lincoln when he came to Gettysburg to deliver the address which has since become immortal. It also said that the chair was formerly owned by Judge David Wills, who was Lincoln's host, and the last line was the brief injunction, "Save this chair." Bidders had paid more than $200 each for chairs owned by James Gettys, founder of Gettysburg, when Myrick struck his bargain.

SONG CYCLE GIVEN IN EXCELLENT FORM BY PARK CHURCH QUARTETTE

A group of Norwich musicians, the quartette of Park Congregational church, gave a rarely delightful evening Friday at the Osgood Memorial parish house when they rendered a song cycle, The Morning of The Year, written by Charles Wakefield Cadman. In the ensemble numbers, the admirable balance and blending of the voices was maintained in every selection, while each of the soloists sang with artistic expression and understanding and in pleasing voice. There were frequent requests for repetitions, to which the singers graciously responded.

The quartette was composed of Mrs. W. C. Burgy, soprano; Mrs. E. A. Harris, alto; Lyle H. Fillmore, tenor; William A. Lund, bass.

At the intermission between the two parts of the cycle, Mrs. Burgy and Mrs. Harris rendered the "Every Flower" duet from Madame Butterfly, which was one of the gems of the evening, for which they gave as an encore, "Beauteous Night, O Night of Love" from Tales of Hoffman (Offenbach).

GAVE DEMONSTRATION OF WONDERS OF PANATROPE

Through the courtesy of the Hanover-Curland company, Franklin and 54th streets, an audience of 100 music lovers was given a demonstration of the wonders of the new Brunswick Panatrope, at the Community house Friday evening. The demonstration was given under the personal direction of Max Hanover of the Hanover-Curland company and N. Emerson York, of the Brunswick's Chicago office.

On the stage were exhibited the new Brunswick Panatrope and an ordinary Brunswick machine. Mr. Hanover welcomed the audience and spoke of the great strides being made in the reproducing business. Following his opening talk he introduced Mr. York, who, he said, came here from Chicago for the purpose of giving the demonstration. A new era of reproducing music is with us today, Mr. York said. This is a day of progress. The Brunswick company are keeping pace with the world. The Panatrope is the world's first exclusive electrically reproducing machine. It is not an improvised phonograph, but is a radical departure from reproducing machines of the past.

Mr. York with the aid of his assistant then demonstrated the marked difference between records played on the ordinary phonograph as compared with records played on the Panatrope. The ordinary phonograph sounded well enough but when the Panatrope was turned on it drowned out the ordinary machine. Mr. York played a dozen records, vocal and instrumental, one of the records played being a reproduction of an orchestra of 86 pieces.

Following the demonstration the audience were invited to the platform where the construction of the machines was explained by Mr. York. During the programme Mr. York exhibited the five volume arrangement on the machine.

The invention of the Panatrope music-reproducing instrument employing a fundamentally different principle of tone reproduction has provoked widespread discussion through the world of music. For years the phonographic or mechanical reproducing instrument has failed to reproduce fully one-half of the sound vibrations of the orchestra or artist. When it is realized that the piano keyboard extends in vibrations from a low frequency of 26 to a high frequency of 4,128, that the musical scale reaches from 16 to 10,000 vibrations, and that the mechanical phonograph could only reproduce from 128 to 2,000 vibrations. It is evident that up to this time a great wealth of tone has evaded reproduction. The high and low notes have been entirely missing.

To the solution of this vital problem of music the joint efforts of the Radio Corporation of America, the General Electric Company, the Westinghouse Electric and Manufacturing Company, and Brunswick have been directed. After five years of exhaustive experimentation, the research laboratories of these vast electrical and radio manufacturers have yielded a solution in the form of a remarkable invention called The Pantatrope.

As radio enthusiasts know, the frequency of the amplified current remains always constant. In this way the Panatrope increases its tone volume without distortion whatsoever. By a simple turn of the volume control, tones suitabl to the smallest room of the home can be amplified to a volume that floods the largest auditorium. But most remarkable of all is the fact that the Panatrope reaches down past the 128 vibrations of the phonograph to low 16-per-second and up beyond the phonograph's 2,000 vibrations to the highest audible tone of 10,000 vibrations per second. This means that at last in the field of electricity, science has found perfect reproduction of the complete range of tone audible to the human ear.

A. O. H AUXILIARY HEARD STATE INSTALLATION REPORT

The regular meeting of Division 54, Ladies Auxiliary, A. O. H. held this week in A. O. H. hall had a large attendance. Routine business was conducted, a communication was read and accepted from the National President. Mrs. Margaret Coughlin, chairman of the committee in charge of the whist last week, read her report which was accepted showing that a good sum had been realized, it was voted to hold a Valentine social evening and dance and Miss B. Dewire was made chairman of the committee. Mrs. Julia Brock, state treasurer, gave an interesting report of the joint installation held in Hartford at the Garde hotel last Sunday afternoon, at which 600 were present and the speakers were national and state officers.

Drifts Hold Up Driver

J. A. Atwood of Wauregan, a summer cottager at Watch Hill, who started by automobile Thursday morning for Providence, encountered such high snow drifts on the Danielson-Providence road, that his chauffeur drove him to Westerly, where he took the train for Providence. His machine was left at Westerly until he made the return trip from Providence to Westerly, late Thursday afternoon.

NORWICH NATIVE MADE FORTUNE IN COLUMBUS

Under the caption of "Fifty Famous Fortunes in Columbus Real Estate," a paper of that Ohio city gives a sketch of a Norwich native, Pelatiah Webster Huntington, who was a son of a Norwich banker, the late Benjamin Huntington, who became treasurer of the Norwich Savings Society in 1863 and held that office for many years.

The Columbus (Ohio) Journal writes of Pelatiah Huntington as follows:

When Pelatiah Webster Huntington, 13-year-old son of a successful banker at Norwich, Conn., went to sea in a sailing vessel in the Russian trade, the village Nestors shook their hoary heads and muttered wise sayings about rolling stones and prodigal sons, but the murmurings were confined to their venerable beards, for the town banker was then, as now, a power in the land.

Three years at sea before the mast as a common sailor will either make or break a boy's spirit. Young Huntington, scion of two long lines of indomitable New England Yankees, grew in determination and character under a course of instruction in the hardest school on earth, a wind-jammer of the 50's.

With the sound of the sea still in his ears, Huntington came to Columbus in 1853 and found employment as messenger in the exchange branch of the State bank of Ohio. He occupied, in succession, every position in the bank from messenger boy to president, and his record of 64 years with one banking institution and its successors, in all probability, was never surpassed in Ohio's history.

Mr. Huntington's interests were wide and varied and, during the latter half of the century, no great movement for the betterment of Columbus was without the name of P. W. Huntington. Railroads, public utilities and insurance companies owed their beginning to later success to the impetus given them by this Columbus financier. Unlike the average banker of the past century, Huntington used the Columbus funds entrusted to his care in helping local enterprises, rightly believing that resulting prosperity would react directly to his bank's advantage.

This Huntington tradition is reflected in the erection of the magnificent new Huntington building. This great structure, built with Columbus funds, is in the hands of Columbus architects, engineers and builders and every dollar spent in its construction is of direct and immediate benefit to the city of Columbus.

P. W. Huntington did not "put all his eggs in one basket" even though that basket was the Huntington bank, one of the strongest in America. Columbus real estate was among his preferred securities and unlike the old-school operator, Mr. Huntington did not buy and wait for the growth of Columbus to increase the value of his property.

In partnership with William G. Deshler, P. W. Huntington built the Wesley and Clinton blocks, two of the finest Columbus structures of their day, and the effect of these structures on the increase in N. High St., ground values is history now.

Of the 30 or more parcels of real estate in his name at his death in 1918, three stand out as notable examples of solid growth in value; the site of the old bank at the southwest corner of Broad and High Sts., the site of the old Andrew Dobbie store in S. High St., and the old homestead at 141 E. Broad St.

The first of these was owned by him in 1915 at a valuation of $48,260 and now is leased to the United Cigar Stores Co., at a mean valuation of $220,000; the second appraised at $125,630 in 1918 is listed for taxation at $320,935, while the E. Broad St., parcel valued at $30,870 at his death, is leased to L. P. McCullough and C. C. Winans at a valuation of $180,000.

FEED FOR GAME BIRDS IN PERIOD OF SNOW

An appeal to sportsmen of Norwich and vicinity has been issued by Arthur E. Story, president of the Norwich Fish and Game association, asking them to carry out the request of Robert Chappell of the State Fish and Game association to feed the game birds while the ground is so heavily covered with snow.

Arrangements have been completed by President Story with the Yantic Grain company to furnish the members of the local fish and game association free feed for the game birds. The feed will be furnished upon the presentation of the association membership card or a letter from any official of the association. It is feared that the quail will find it especially difficult to find feed during the present month. The appeal is not only being made to members of the association but to the public in general.

Rallies Well After Operation

Word was received here Friday that M. C. Higgins of 228 Broadway, who had an operation last Tuesday in a New York hospital, had rallied encouragingly after the operation, but it is expected that he will be in the hospital for some time yet under a radium treatment.

Still water may run deep, but some men who talk little think less.

MET PASNIK AND SCHWARTZ IN FAR OFF CUBA

Meeting Alex Pasnik and Abner Schwartz of this city, a former resident of this vicinity is moved to write the Bulletin as follows:

Greetings to Norwich and my friends My how small this old world is after all! During the war it was my glorious experience to be stationed in your vicinity and how I did enjoy my sojourn amongst you. Born a southerner, in Aiken, S. C., how I did welcome the chance to become acquainted in my own mother's territory. And the many delightful people I met in New London county. But to think that years after in Havana, Cuba, I should renew the delightful reminiscences I had of your quaint old city. In the meantime I've wandered all over the world, until I'm as familiar with Shanghai as I used to be in New London and Norwich.

Thursday after an all night journey from Key West, Fla., I boarded the Northland at Key West, Havana bound. On the same boat went the very famous Dempsey. Standing against the rail, was a face I recognized, and I stepped boldly forward and accosting a fine looking gentleman, I said, "Your pardon, Senor, are you not from Norwich, Ct." He replied "Senorita, I am. My name is Pasnik." I was puzzled for a minute and said "Yes, Senor Pasnik, your motto or slogan is "We Sell for Less." I could tell he too, was surprised, so I asked him to come forward and meet my two brothers, Jim and Ed. They had heard me tell many times of my various experiences in Connecticut so we welcomed the opportunity.

Alex surely is an international character as I learned. So we all came on together to the famous "San Carlos"—and if there's a blessed thing in Cuba that Abner Schwartz, Alex Pasnik and Jim and Nancy eLe have missed I'd surely like to meet it. We've traveled everywhere together and as Jack League, Dempsey's training partner and chum, said: "If there's any whiter guys living than Alex and Abner, lead me to them!"

We've been to the races, been to the Monte Carlo of North America and tonight at dinner, we dined with a chap all the way from Albania, Beyreuth, Haita and Corfu, who knew us all! I've been a long while, met many people in many lands, and I must say when it comes to regular guys, I've never met any better anywhere, anytime, than Alex and Abner.

For some reason the "all seeing hand throws us together as pawns on the checkerboard of life" and I'm glad it has been my wonderful privilege to know both. Jack League feels likewise as he and I spoke about the same though today. My brother Jim Lee thinks the wide world of both and I am writing this to tell the people of Norwich what strangers, thrown together, from all parts of the world think of the "Two Inseparables." Alex presented to Jack and Estelle Dempsey today, a set of his famous salt and pepper shakers and I know they took as much pleasure in receiving them as Alex did in giving them.

Alex, Abner and I are awaiting the arrival of the Dempsey crowd while I am writing this. To all whom I meet while an interne in your vicinity I send greetings. I will be up there soon and at that time I'll take great pleasure I'm sure, in telling you of the adventures of the "Three Musketeers". Abner Schwarts, Alex Pasnik and Nancy Lee, in a foreign land. I'll tell you this, in confidence, ask both Abner and Alex about the "Mexican Greeting." It's truly good.

Sincerely
NANCY AND JOHN LEE
NANCY MARY LEE, M. D.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE IS MAKING FINANCIAL APPEAL

How a cash contribution of $7,090 can be made to represent $20,000 if given to Connecticut College for Women is graphically depicted in a pamphlet issued this week by the college in the interest of its $500,000 endowment effort now under way.

The pamphlet entitled Does It Pay? shows that through the $150,000 conditional grant of the general education board and the Hollis amendment to the income tax law, a $20,000 donation actually costs the donor but $7,090. In explanation the pamphlet says: "Uncle Sam has made giving easier through the present income tax. The Hollis amendment to the federal income tax law permits you to deduct from your taxable income the amount of your gift made during the year, for such educational and charitable purposes as the law specifies, up to 15 per cent. of your net income.

The larger the income the greater the reduction in income tax.

"A gift from an individual with an income of $100,000, would amount to $15,000; of that $7,910 would represent a reduction in income tax, making the actual cost of the donation to the giver but $7,090. In addition the general education board will give Connecticut college $1 for every $2, so the donation in reality means $20,000 to the college."

Connecticut College for Women, although only founded 10 years ago, has quickly stepped into the public eye and is recognized as one of the leading women's colleges in the United States. The college, of course, has a Class A rating and incidentally was the first college in America to attain this distinction in so short a period of years.

MLLE LENGLEN BEATS MRS HAYLOCK AND IS 7 TO 1 FAVORITE OVER HELEN

NICE, France, Feb. 5.—(AP)—The announcement that Helen Wills and Suzanne Lenglen both are certain entries in the women's singles in the Carlton tournament at Cannes, opening next week, overshadowed all other tennis developments on the Riviera today, even eclipsing the French champion's impressive defeat of Mrs. R. B. Haylock of England without the loss of a game in the Nice tournament.

It is generally conceded that the American and French champions will meet in the Carlton finals, as they are seeded in different halves of the draw and the experts have revived interest in figuring the relative chances of Helen and Susanne by comparison of their scores against the same opponents.

A new opportunity for this was given today by Mlle. Lenglen's 6-0, 6-0 defeat of Mrs. Haylock, the player who forced Miss Wills to extend herself to win at 9-7, 6-2 in the Gallia tournament last week at Cannes. The French girl gave her opponent simply no chance. Mrs. Haylock was outplayed in every department of the game. Although she gave Miss Wills such a stiff argument at Cannes, against Mlle. Lenglen today she was able to bring only two games to duece, while Mlle. Lenglen won three games at love.

Meanwhile the California girl was forced to the limit to win her match in the semi-finals of the women's doubles. Paired with Miss Ellena Bennett, an English girl, she defeated Miss P. M. Radcliffe and Miss N. Q. Platt, a veteran English doubles team, in three sets, 8-6, 4-6, 8-6.

Miss Wills' victory, however, was much less impressive than that of Mlle. Lenglen's. The American girl and her partner were within two points of defeat at the hands of the two English players, who displayed old-fashioned tennis, and who have never ranked among the first twenty women players of Great Britain.

Miss Wills and Miss Bennett, although their showing as a team today was most disappointing, may have a chance to win the finals, owing to the fact that Mlle. Lenglen and her partner in the women's doubles, Mrs Satterthwaite, of England, were forced to scratch, Mrs. Satterthwaite having been slightly injured in an automobile accident.

Mlle. Lenglen just now is playing in the best form she has displayed for years, according to experts who have followed her game closely. She has acquired more pace in her shots, and this was the only department of her game in which she ever could have been considered relatively weak.

Today she is an overwhelming favorite to defeat the American in their expected meeting next week. Tonight as high as seven to one against Miss Wills' chances against the marvelous French player was offered, with no takers.

MORE SYRACUSE ATHLETES ARE DECLARED INELIGIBLE

SYRACUSE, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Consternation reigns in Syracuse university athletic ranks this week and seems to be on the increase rather than dying out after the first flurry that put several athletes in the ranks of the ineligible, because of a new system of academic ratings.

The names of more men who will not be permitted to register for the second semester were posted today in the Archbold gymnasium.

Prominent among these are names of Ernest Fivaz, brother of "Big Bill" Fivaz, star of the 1924 varsity gridiron combination. Fivaz, who was a student in the College of Business Administration, left for home. Last fall he turned in an excellent game on the freshman team and gave promise of developing into a first class varsity man.

Joe Delmonica, 300 pound football guard; Roy D. Tweedy, frosh football man; Hyman Kopp, guard of this year's frosh team; Harry Kahn, former Central High soccer and la crosse player; Milton Barnett, fifth man on Coach Tom Keane's mile relay team and Arthur Devine, crewman, are on the list.

Ted Webster, who broke the Niagara district swimming record for the 250 yard free style at Buffalo four weeks ago, has also been listed as ineligible for competition on the team, although he has been permitted to register. There is some hope that he may remove the cause of his ineligibility.

Lynn Fontaine, Glen Manning and Harold Maysinger left for Akron, Ohio, Thursday night, following receipt of notice that they would not be allowed to register. These three, all members of the first freshman eleven last fall, represent a serious loss in Syracuse football.

MEETING OF FOOTBALL LEAGUE TO DISCUSS COLLEGIAN

DETROIT, Feb. 5.—(AP)—With ordinary business matters submerged by the probability of spirited discussion of the college football star and his place on the professional gridiron, representatives of the 20 clubs holding franchises in the National Football league will open their semi-annual meeting here tomorrow.

Three cities now outside the league also have signified their intention of attending the meetings in an effort to obtain a franchise in the league. Boston and St. Louis and the Racine, Wis., American league are expected to ask for places.

The announcement in Chicago that Red Grange is interested in the game to the extent of desiring to own a club in the circuit has laid special emphasis upon the college player question, which already is a warm one as a result of much press discussion that followed Grange's definite alignment with the box office game last fall.

Much of the 1926 schedule will be made at the two-day session. Schedule making is left to individual managers. A plan has been suggested for a division of the league into eastern and western circuit, with the winners of each circuit to meet for the championship.

Definite action concerning barnstorming and exhibition games also is expected to be taken.

GENGLER PICKS UP 154 PINS ON TRUCKS

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Bowling on his "home" alleys tonight in the fourth 10-game block of their sixty-game match, John (Count) Gengler, of New York, reduced the 436 pin lead of Charley Trucks, Philadelphia, by 154 points. Both bowlers were off form, Gengler averaging 196.9 and Trucks 181.5. Trucks now has a total of 7,833 pins against 7,551 for Gengler.

As a result of Gengler's rally, Trucks tomorrow will have an advantage of only 282 pins going into the fifth block. The final ten game will be contested Saturday.

Bowling Finals

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., Feb. 5.—(AP)—Grand Rapids, Mich., and Buffalo, N. Y., will meet tomorrow to decide the doubles championship of the national lawn bowling tournament. These two teams survived third round play and semi-finals today. Buffalo eliminated Toronto, Ont., Alex M. Crawford and Dr. F. Gallanaugh, twice singles champion of Canada, today is favored to win in the finals.

TILDEN'S STAGE CAREER HAMPERS HIS GAME

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Demands upon William T. Tildren as a professional actor may compel the national tennis champion to withdraw as a member of the American team selected to face Rene LaCoste and Jean Borotra of France in an international team match at the seventh regiment armory three weeks hence.

"The strain of trying to carry on in tennis this winter while I am working behind the footlights seems to be too great for me," Tilden said today. "My game has suffered a slump and I have been playing below form in practice. A few days ago I lost three out of four sets to a professional."

Tilden expressed the belief that his eyes have been effected by the glare of stage lights and by grease from make-up materials. He said that his game lacked the touch of perfect timing in his strokes.

He declared he would try to recover championship form next week in an invitation tournament on the indoor courts of the Heights Casino.

"If I can't get back on my game next week, I shall ask the United States Lawn Tennis association to use Francis T. Hunter in the singles matches against the Frenchmen," he said, "there is no need of me playing if it means certain defeat."

THINKS DETROIT OFFICIALS HAVE PULLED A "BONER"

NEW YORK, Feb. 5.—(AP)—Action of the International Skating union officials in suspending Joe Moore, New York speed skating star, and Charles Gorman, Canadian champion, for failure to appear at the championship meet in Detroit, Mich., was characterized as a "joke" tonight by James K. Savage, president of the Middle Atlantic Skating association and former president of the union.

"Officials at the Detroit meet haven't the power to suspend Moore or Gorman even pending a hearing," said Savage. "That privilege is conferred by the constitution of the union upon the board of control, to which formal charges must be presented. This board consists of delegates from several skating organizations. Until this board suspends Moore, he will be considered eligible to skate by the Middle Atlantic association.
